And Kufr is tagged along with him to begin with at times, and after the establishment of the Hujjah at other times, as it will be clarified and elaborated soon, that the one who falls under this nullifier is committing Kufr by Ijmā', and Kufr is tagged along with him to begin with at times, and after the establishment of the Hujjah at other times.

And this is what we affirmed in the Principle that was mentioned before it, that this Rule is Unanimously Agreed upon in General, and there are Details attached to it.

The Fifth Principle: That the Manāt of Kufr (the cause to which Kufr is tied too) for this Nullifier is "Denial, Rejection and Opposing the Judgement of Allāh after knowing it".

And this Manāt (cause to which Kufr is tied too) has numerous proofs in the Book of Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic.

Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) says, "But it is the verses of Allah that the wrongdoers reject." [6:33]

Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) also says, "And none reject Our verses except the wrongdoers." [29:49]

Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) also says, "And none reject Our verses except the disbelievers." [29:47]

Precisely determining this (5th) Principle and keeping it accompanied with us while speaking about the matters related to this topic is crucially important, because as we have affirmed, that the Methodology which we will follow (in teaching) is Ta'sīl (establishing the principles), then Tafrī'

(application).

Because most of the times, mistakes occur either in Tafi' (application) without Ta'sil (principles), or by incorrect Ta'sil (principles) then Tafi' (application), or some of them determine an Usul by taking it from a Furu' (end-result) in some issues, whereas it could only be applicable in some situations.

But in any case, inconsistencies in one's methodology, most of the time incurs mistakes and distortions, that's why you find there are sects which went astray, due to a fault in the Ta'sil (establishment of the principles).

So for example, they would give precedence to the Ambiguous (text) over the Clear (text), or they make what is Ambiguous as something Explicitly Clear, or they make it into an Asl (core foundation) in which they construct as a basis, while there is an Affirmed Clear text, etc...

The Sixth Principle: What is excluded from the generality of this Rule are the Differed Upon Ijtihadi Matters, in which the Scholars have differed upon.

And it is for example: Such as the ruling on the abandoner of Salāh, the abandoner of Siyām, the abandoner of Zakāt, the abandoner of Hajj, etc...

And our discussion here about the Khilāf (difference of opinion) between the Scholars is in "Abandoning", not "Denying" (these rituals), for indeed the denial (of these rituals) is agreed upon (as being Kufr), even if the individual performed them, and established these rituals while he denies their obligation, he would become a Kāfir.

(For instance) A man always prays 5 times a day, and never misses a single Salāh, however he denies its obligation, he would become a Kāfir.

A man who adheres to fasting the month of Ramadān, and he never misses it at all, however he denies its obligation, he would become a Kāfir, even if he fasts.

Therefore Juhūd (denial) is one issue, and "Tark" (abandoning) is another issue, likewise what is excluded from the general meaning of this Rule are the Mawāni' (preventions of Takfir) which the Scholars differed upon in its particular minute details.

For example: Stipulating Bulūgh (reaching maturity) for the validity of apostasy to apply (upon the individual).

Meaning, from the conditions or affirmation of apostasy (to occur) is "Al-Bulūgh", this is disputable between the Scholars, and the place of dispute is in the age of "Tamyiz" (when does one become a Mumayyiz).

There is an Usulī Method that the Scholars follow, which they call "Settling the place of dispute" (تحرير محل النزاع), who can clarify what "settling the place of dispute" means?

Excellent! What is meant by settling the place of dispute, is to mention the points that are agreed upon, then after that, mention the point that's differed upon (to solve it).

So for example: The Scholars have unanimously agreed that apostasy occurs upon the person who has reached Bulūgh (maturity), and it's valid, and he's responsible for his actions, held to account, and punished.

And the Scholars have unanimously agreed that the child who is under the age of "Tamyiz" doesn't have apostasy occur upon him, and we have clarified that previously, and we stated: That if there's a boy where he could utter some words of disbelief.

For example: You say to a boy, do you love Allāh? The boy might say "No", it's possible that a similar word can come out from him, similar to this word.

So he is right now under the age of "Tamyiz", so is apostasy applied upon him in such a situation? We say, No, and this is agreed upon.

What remains is the phase which is between these two ages, (between) the age of Bulūgh and above the age of Tamyiz, so the age of Tamyiz here is differed upon by the Scholars in defining it.

- So some of them said: The border-line of Tamyiz: Is when the child understands speech, and is able to respond, i.e. if he is asked something, he understands the question, and gives a good answer.

This Criterion for Tamyiz, it doesn't have a restricted age, so it could occur at an earlier age, and it could be later. Since you can find a child who becomes 7 years old, and hasn't reached this "border-line", and you will find some who are less than this age & is able to distinguish (i.e. understand & respond).

- The second view: Which is the correct opinion, and Allāh the Exalted is the most high and knows best, is that the border-line for the age of Tamyiz is 7, so if the child becomes 7 years old, he is considered a Mumayyiz in the Islamic point of view, and this view is solidified by proof

Wherein the Prophet (ﷺ) said:

"Command your children to pray when they become seven years old, and beat them for it (prayer) when they become ten years old"

So there are moral obligations, or there is some kind of Speech in the Sharī'ah addressing the child that's 7 years old.

Based upon that, we know that Tamyīz is from the age of 7 until the age of maturity.

And Bulūgh (maturity) occurs with 3 things in respect to the boy, and the woman has an additional indicator, which is the menses.

The boy (reaches Bulūgh) by emission, the emission of semen, and growth of hair (on the body) & roughness around the facial kissing area, and reaching 15 years old.

Is it possible that the boy reaches maturity before the age of 15?

We say: Yes, and the Scholars also differentiated between the cold areas and hot areas, and the discussion concerning this is lengthy.

The reason why I mentioned this matter, is that stipulating Bulūgh (reaching maturity) as a condition for apostasy or the validity of apostasy to be affirmed (upon an individual), is a disputable matter between the Scholars.

For example: The opinion of Imām Abū Hanīfah (رحمه الله) and his companion Muhammad Ibn al-Hassan, and also Ahmad in a narration from him, is that Bulūgh isn't a stipulated condition for the validity of apostasy to be applied (upon an individual), what do we understand from this?

That if the Mumayyiz happens to come out with a Kufr statement, or a Kufr action, he is judged upon with Kufr, except that they stated: Verily the Ahkām (rulings) related to Istitābah (repenting from apostasy) is delayed and postponed until the age of Bulūgh.

So what is the benefit of this differentiation?

Yes excellent! (student said: The benefit from this is the inheritance), because even if we delayed the rulings of Istitābah (repenting from apostasy), however if the Mumayyiz is judged upon in this situation with apostasy, then there is no inheritance between him and his muslim relatives even if he was married.

Meaning, that what incurs from this apostasy as well is the dissolving of the bond of his marriage contract, is it possible to imagine a Mumayyiz boy being married? Yes, it is present.

Student: O Shaykh, so if this child died, he is not to be washed etc..?

Shaykh: That is based upon this opinion, however it's a weak opinion, and we'll show the correct view Inshā'Allāh.

And the second opinion: It was adopted by Abū Yūsuf from the companions of Abū Hanīfah, and the Shāfi'iyyah, and Ahmad in the most dominant of the two narrations from him, which is that apostasy isn't affirmed, and isn't valid (to be applied) upon a Mumayyiz who is under the age of Bulūgh.

And based upon that, i.e. upon this view, the Mumayyiz child and other than the Mumayyiz are equal in the ruling (meaning they must reach Bulūgh for apostasy to apply), and this is what's correct, and Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) is the Most High and Knows best.

Since the speech addressed in the Sharī'ah and the moral obligations in the Sharī'ah are tied too Bulūgh (reaching maturity).

"The pen has been lifted from 3", and the child until he reaches maturity is among those who have been mentioned.

And we mentioned the signs of Bulūgh, and you can say the same thing in regards to the intoxicated person, because the Scholars arrange & classify the removal of the mind, or the Scholars categorise it into different categories.

Removal (of the mind) due a permissible cause, and removal (of the mind) due to a prohibited cause.

And the removal (of the mind) due to a permissible cause: It includes what is by the choice of an individual, and it includes what isn't done by the choice of an individual.

The choice of a person is like: A surgery operation, so Ya'hī the doctor says to him:

"We will place for you this anesthetic" for instance. The removal of the mind here is due to a permissible cause.

And a cause which is outside the will of an individual is like deep sleep, epilepsy, and it could overcome an individuals eyes, so he falls asleep.

And the removal of the mind due to a prohibited cause: Is through drinking alcohol.

As for the removal of the mind due to a permissible cause, then the Scholars are in agreement that apostasy doesn't occur, and this isn't the place that concerns us.

What concerns us is intoxication, the Scholars have differed here, so those who say that it occurs, and those who say that it doesn't occur, does this scenario fall under this Rule (the 3rd nullifier), is the scenario about Tamyīz (we previously discussed) through which the Scholars differed upon fall under this Rule?

We say, no. Because we have affirmed that the differed upon matters which are open to Ijtihād between the Scholars is outside of this Rule.

So it's not possible that someone comes along and constructs (his own principle)...

Look, if the Asl (foundation) becomes incorrect, it would result in an incorrect Tafrī' (application), so he makes an Asl and comes to say:

"You did not make Takfir upon the Mumayyiz, this is sufficient, you're a Kāfir, you didn't make Takfir upon whoever came with a statement of disbelief whilst drunk etc...so you're a Kāfir".

Even though what's correct from the statements of the Scholars: Is that the words which come out from an intoxicated person (has apostasy) fall upon him, however the rulings of Istitābah (to repent or face execution) is delayed until his mind returns back to him.

Since this view has a deterrence, because a person may belittle and be negligent in the issue of speaking statements or doing actions of disbelief, so he would resort to drinking alcohol, so that can be a means or a justification to saying these (Kufr) statements, or doing these (Kufr) actions.

Because there are those from the perpetrators, and those amongst the criminals who have a Fiqh, so that's why the Scholars affirm that in some situations, an individual is dealt with in opposition to his intention.

Ofcourse the intention here by mentioning this matter isn't to get into the issue with its minute details and the proofs for both sides, but rather what's intended is that there are specific issues, there are matters, and there are impediments (i.e. preventions of Takfīr etc), in which there's a difference of opinion between the Scholars, so it isn't included under this Rule (3rd nullifier).

Likewise, from the important matters is the impediment of Ikrāh (coercion), which is an agreed upon impediment (prevention of Takfir), the impediment of Ikrāh is an agreed upon impediment in general, however the Scholars have differed over some of its specific aspects.

For instance: We have an Ikrāh that is called "Ikrāh Mulji'" and "Ikrāh Ghayr Mulji'", is there a difference between the two?

Yes there is, and what is the criterion for Ikrāh al-Mulji' (to occur)?

**Students answering the question****

Yes, excellent. However the Scholars have differed over this specific issue, so some of them expanded on 1 side, and others tightened it on the other side.

So for example, some of them said: "Verily, the iljā' (valid Ikrāh) is actualised by mere imprisonment", such as the Shāfi'iyyah.

And others tightened in that regard, and said, "The iljā' (valid Ikrāh) isn't actualised until an individual is threatened with a matter which involves harm to oneself or loss of a limb or torture which the ordinary self cannot bear"

Why did we say, the ordinary self? Ya'nī, there are some amongst the people whom which 1 strike could make him say everything (of Kufr), or others without a strike.

And some of them for instance, not at all, he could bear hundreds of strikes, however in this situation, if there is nothing specified, then what we go by is along the 'Urf (customs) and towards the average state of the people.

So if he was amongst the average state of the people, for instance 50 intense strikes is enough (to bear & no more), so in this instance iljā' (valid Ikrāh) is actualised etc...

But the point from that in mentioning this issue, is that based upon this, there is a difference of opinion. Are the scenarios of this difference of opinion included under this Rule (3rd nullifier)?

We say, no. And what you can say in that case, is because the Scholars have differed, they said: Is threatening sufficient for Ikrāh to occur, or is it necessary that he gets afflicted with torture?

The majority of the Scholars in opposition to Ahmad said, yes the threat (of torturing) is sufficient (for Ikrāh to occur).

What does threatening mean?

He says, if you do not do this, we will do such and such with you, and the vast Majority of the Scholars said, yes the threat is sufficient.

Whereas Ahmad said no, may Allāh have mercy upon the Imām, he said: Not until he is afflicted with torture.

That's why the authors of the Siyar mention that Yahya Ibn Ma'īn (رحمه الله تعالى) entered upon Imām Ahmad, and Yahya Ibn Ma'īn conceded, he took the concession, so he was released from prison.

As for Imām Ahmad (رحمه الله), No. He chose fixed determination, and held firmly upon his views, so when Yahya Ibn Maʿīn was visiting and entered upon him - may Allāh have mercy upon them all - visiting (Ahmad), the Imām turned away from him.

So Yahya Ibn Maʿīn said, "O Abā 'Abdillāh!!! The Hadīth of 'Ammār", so Ahmad did not respond to him.

Look at the noble position of Yahya Ibn Maʿīn (رحمه الله), an Imām and an eminent man of knowledge amongst the guided ones, and a servant from the servants of the Sunnah.

So Imām Ahmad turned away from him, pay attention. Imām Ahmad didn't make Takfīr upon him, while he took the concession (of Ikrāh) by being threatened, he said the threatening was sufficient, and this is what actualises iljā' (a valid Ikrāh), so based upon that, he takes this concession.

So when Imām Yahya Ibn Maʿīn left, Imām Ahmad said: "They use the Hadīth of 'Ammār as proof, when 'Ammār was afflicted with torture".

Students: Allāhu Akbar.

You guys know the story of 'Ammār, he was lashed, and was harmed to an extent that when he came to the Prophet (ﷺ), what did he say to him?

He said, "They did not leave me alone (in torturing me) until I spoke ill about you", that he even spoke ill of the Prophet (ﷺ).

So the Prophet (ﷺ) said to him, "how do you find your heart?"

He replied: "Comfortable with Ēmān"

The Prophet said: "If they do the same thing, then repeat what you did"

And even if some of these narrations have criticism to it, however the Scholars still use these narrations to make Tafsīr of the Āyah.

So yes, in these specific issues, is being threatened sufficient (for Ikrāh to occur) or is it necessary to be afflicted with torture?

This is a difference of opinion based upon that the one who says, it's necessary to stipulate of the actualisation of iljā' (valid Ikrāh) for e.g. that he is afflicted with torture.

So based upon this, the one who gave in (by the threat) without being afflicted by torture, and was merely threatened, based upon this Ta'sīl (principle), he is a Kāfir.

However we say, these issues aren't included within this Rule (3rd nullifier), the Rule of "whoever doesn't make Takfīr upon the Kāfir or doubts in his Kufr or corrects his beliefs, is a Kāfir."

Student: O Shaykh, even if we took Imām Ahmad's opinion, Imām Ahmad didn't make Takfīr upon Imām Yahyā Ibn Maʿīn.

Yes this is what we say and what we established. But we say, someone might come, and insert the issues that are differed upon and open to Ijtihād under this Rule, so we would say to him, no. And the Scholars have remained differing in the likes of these matters, and none of them made Takfīr upon each other.

There's something here which is of utmost importance, however we may postpone it in the last class, however I'll point towards it.

If we know that the Manāt (basis and reasons to which the ruling is tied too) of Kufr (for the 3rd nullifier) is denial and rejecting the texts, and opposing it after knowing about it.

We differentiate between the one who refrains (in making Takfīr) with the clearness of the doer's reality - because a category will come shortly with us, but I'll mention it briefly - there is a category which must be precisely understood to understand the issues of this Rule:

- Firstly: The action is clear and the reality of the doer (i.e. ruling upon the individual) is clear, so the action is clear and the reality of the doer is clear, there is no avoidance in tagging along the ruling of Kufr upon whoever's situation is like this.
- Secondly: The action is clear and the reality of the doer (i.e. ruling upon the individual) isn't clear (i.e. known in the religion by necessity by the muslims), so here we say: The ruling (of Kufr) isn't tagged along with him immediately, but rather it's necessary to establish the Hujjah and remove the doubts.
- Thirdly: The action is unclear, so here the circle for establishing the Hujjah is going to expand, i.e. Whenever the clearness of a matter is manifest, establishing the Hujjah becomes tightened, and whenever unclearness is present, the circle of establishing the Hujjah expands (i.e. Requires more effort to establish it), etc...

The Seventh Principle: The people in this Rule are divided into three types of people.

- The first type: Those who intended the Haqq and attained that.

There's no doubt that this person is precisely correct, Allāh has guided him, and for that reason, the Prophet (ﷺ) used to teach 'Alī (رضي الله عنه), O 'Alī say in your du'ā as it's narrated in the Sahīh:

"O Allāh, direct me to the right path and make me adhere correctly to the straight path. And when you make a mention of right guidance, keep in mind the right path and when you consider of the straight (path), keep in mind the straightness of the arrow."

- The second type: Those who intended the Haqq and didn't attain that.

As for these people, it's not permissible to hasten and recklessly risk classifying them with some un-Islamic descriptions, because these people intended the Haqq and mistakenly didn't attain that. And they did not intend falsehood to begin with & attained what they wanted (of falsehood), is there a difference or not? There's a difference.

We know that there are those who are seekers of the Haqq, however they mistakenly didn't attain that, doesn't this occur?

What has occurred from some of the Sahābah. Likewise during the event of Qudāmah Ibn Madh'ūn (رضي الله عنه). He made a misinterpretation, however this ta'wīl (misinterpretation) is mistaken, so we know that there are people who intend the Haqq, however they mistakenly didn't attain that, and no one is infallible.

Is there anyone who is infallible from mistakes amongst mankind? No, except for the Prophets (عليهم الصلاة والسلام) from what they convey on behalf of their Lord.

And there's no doubt that guidance and returning back to the truth is wished for them, because the original intention is good.

Student: Pardon me O Shaykh, is that also regarding Aslu Dīn?

Shaykh: No no, we were speaking about this issue, we're speaking about "whoever doesn't make Takfīr upon the Kāfir", we are speaking about this Rule, and all the principles that we are mentioning is related to this Rule.

- The third type: Those who wanted to bring about whims within themselves, we ask Allāh for good-health and well-being, so he acted in his own hands (without sincerity for Allāh's sake) and was prevented from attaining guidance and correctness, so he went astray and led others astray.

The Final (Eighth) Principle, because what will shortly come with us are the (matters of) clearness and unclearness, so what would be advisable and suitable for us now is: Mentioning the criterion for the clear matters and the criterion for the unclear matters.

Without a doubt, we're still in the introduction at the moment, meaning we haven't delved deeply, and we didn't encompass the matters of this topic, because I clarified that the methodology which we are following by the permission of Allāh, the Exalted, is At-Ta'sīl (establishing the principles), then At-Tafrī' (application).

Because if I began to apply rulings whilst the principles aren't understood, then imagine what would happen by that? You will find a lot of objections, "How is this so? How is this so?", however once the Usūl (principles) are precisely understood, you will feel at ease & be comfortable.

The Criterion for the Clear Matters: Every knowledge or every issue whose proof has become manifest, and the Ummah has unanimously agreed upon, and knowledge of it is apparent to the Scholars and Laymen.

Also, if this is precisely understood, it will benefit us in establishing the Hujjah and removing doubts, if we understand it well.

I have come to know that some people think that establishing the Hujjah and removing doubts means and assumes, is that you must come to him, then after that he sits for 30 mins explaining to him until he completely understands...

Not at all, this is all speech far from the truth, and this is not what the Salaf or the Scholars intended in this issue.

Yes, even though there are matters which stipulate understanding it (for the Hujjah to apply), and it is in the matters which may become unclear.

However, if it was from the matters of Usūl (clear matters), then it's merely sufficed by the evidence reaching him in a language that the receiver (of the Hujjah) understands it in.

So an Arab receives the message in the arabic language is sufficient, and a non-Arab receives the message in his tongue. Whether he understands or not, this is another issue.

That's why you tend to find in the context of the Qur'ān in numerous places, the condemnation comes whilst the Hujjah of Allāh has been established upon the Mushrikīn, and despite that, you find (Allāh saying):

"They have hearts with which they do not understand, they have eyes with which they do not see." [7:179]

So what's intended by "Hearing" is understanding, whilst they have "heard" and the Hujjah has been established upon them by mere hearing, with the condition that this "hearing" is in a manner wherein the receiver understands it, an Arab who is addressed in Arabic, etc. Thus, we know the Criterion for the Clear Matters.

The Criterion for the Unclear Matters: It is every matter in which its knowledge is known to the People of Knowledge instead of the Masses, due to its obscurity and unfamiliarity.

Likewise, from its stipulated guidelines is that it's not known in the religion by necessity, so every matter which isn't known in the religion by necessity, then it's from the unclear matters, whose knowledge is independently known by the People of Knowledge instead of the Masses.

Thus, these are the Principles which I wanted to place for our discussion concerning the matters of this topic, so that we can begin with at-Tafrī' (applying the principles).

So we begin, seeking aid in Allāh, with the first issue. The Scholars divide this Rule or the people within this Rule into several categories:

- First Category: Those which the text has explicitly make Takfīr upon, individually, and they are divided into two types: Groups and People or Individuals.

The groups are for example: Judaism, Christianity, Majūs, Buddhists, etc. And determining the rulings which come shortly Inshā'Allāh.

The individuals are like: Fir'awn, Hāmān, Qārūn, Iblīs, Abī Lahab, and everyone whom the text has explicitly mentioned by name and specifically judging them with Kufr.

So based upon this Ta'sīl (established principle), right now you have understood this category, have you understood or not?

Okay, and what is the ruling on this category. We are aware of this category, those whom the text has explicitly made Takfīr upon individually, and we said they are divided into two types, individuals and groups.

The ruling on this category: Is that whoever doesn't make Takfīr upon them, individually, then he's a Kāfir, and he is included immediately to begin with under this Rule (3rd nullifier), why is this?

Student 1: Because it's known in the religion by necessity!

Shaykh: Excellent! And we firmly established this principle in the Rule.

Student 2: Because there's an explicit text from the noble Qur'ān.

Shaykh: Excellent, and due to considering these people Muslims, such an act is considered denying and opposing (the Qur'ān), so does this issue have clearness or unclearness?

Clearness! This issue is precisely known, and likewise you can deduct from this, that every verse which Allāh has judged upon with Kufr for everyone that denies something from his verses or something from the Islamic rulings which the text has mentioned.

Is this clear O brothers? (Students reply "Clear"). Therefore, this is the first category and its ruling.

And the Scholars, may Allāh have spacious mercy upon them, have mentioned an Ijmā' upon the Kufr of whoever doesn't make Takfīr of this category or kind amongst the people.

Among those who have cited the Ijmā' regarding that is Al-Qādhī 'Iyādh (رحمه الله) in his book "Al-Shifā", and it's truly like what it's called, a Shifā' (cure), if the heart was purified and refined, indeed Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) will make these proofs a Shifā' (cure) for the doubts, and a Shifā' (cure) for everything that hangs in the mind of an individual.

And he (i.e. Al-Qādhī 'Iyādh) has mentioned an Ijmā' regarding the Kufr of whoever doesn't make Takfīr upon anyone amongst the christians and the jews, and everyone that distances himself from the religion of the Muslims, or halts in making Takfīr upon them or doubts, he (i.e. Al-Qādhī 'Iyādh) said:

"Because the Tawqīf (divine revelation) and Ijmā' have unanimously agreed upon their Kufr - {ponder with me brothers} - so whoever halts regarding that - {i.e. whoever doubts or corrects or} - then he has denied the text or Tawqīf (divine revelation)."

This is what we founded as a principle a short while ago, that the Manāt al-Kufrī (What Kufr is tied too) in this nullifier is what?

Look at what Al-Qādhī 'Iyādh (رحمه الله) affirms, "for he has denied the text or Tawqīf (divine revelation) or doubted in it, and denying or doubting it doesn't occur except from a Kāfir".

Therefore, we benefit from this citation several things:

That the Ijmā' is firmly established regarding the Kufr of whoever doesn't make Takfīr upon this kind, and we learnt the Manāt al-Takfirī for this Nullifier (i.e. What Takfīr is hanged upon in this nullifier), which is denying and opposing the judgement of Allāh or denying the text of the Sharī'ah.

Likewise, Shaykh Abū Butayn (رحمه الله) cited an Ijmā' pertaining whoever doesn't make Takfir upon the jews and christians, wherein he said:

"The muslims have unanimously agreed upon the Kufr of whoever doesn't make Takfir upon the jews and christians, or doubts in their Kufr".

Take heed, "we also have assurance that most of them (christians and jews) are ignorant", why? This matter is known from the religion by necessity, and the textual evidence is explicit and unanimously agreed upon, and there's not a single individual except that he has read the verses which are indicative of the Kufr of the jews and christians, or it has been recited to him.

Shaykh: Yes! Because this matter is clear, the text is explicit and agreed upon, so as we affirmed, we say that whoever falls into Major Shirk in the clear matters, where is the Ta'sil (principles we laid out), isn't it present with us.

For indeed it's a clear matter, and likewise agreed upon, and the text pertaining it is explicit, so there's no way it could be unclear (concerning the Kufr of the jews and christians), and we mentioned right here, that the excuser of these (Kuffār), the text is clearly indicative of his Kufr, and he immediately falls under this nullifier, or this Rule.

And ofcourse as we have affirmed, the Kufr of the jews and christians is considered to be known in the religion by necessity, none of the masses or the scholars are ignorant of it, infact the Ēmān of any individual is not valid until he believes in the invalidity of every religion that opposes Islām, thus this is the first category.

There's another matter which we mentioned, and perhaps we will re-iterate it Inshā'Allāh, and also in the future lessons: We mentioned that there is the clearness of the action and the clearness of the reality of its doer. And there is the clearness of the action and the unclearness of the reality of its doer. And there is the unclearness of an action, so there's no doubt that they aren't upon a single level.

- The second category from the categories that fall under this Rule (3rd nullifier): Speech and actions which the text has made Takfir of those who adhere to it or act upon it.

Such as Istighātha (seeking help and refuge) in other than Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, and sacrificing to other than Allāh, prostrating to other than Allāh, ruling by other than what Allāh has revealed etc...and mocking Allāh or the religion or the honest messenger (عليه الصلاة والسلام), we will now address the details pertaining the ruling of this category, speak Shaykh.

Okay, excellent. You hastened (in our discussion), you mentioned a category and its correct Ta'sil (established principles) regarding it. We say, whoever halts or doubts in the Kufr of the committer of any of these nullifiers, then it does not escape these situations:

- The first situation: And it is very precise, that he refrains from making Takfir, due to considering what he fell into as not being Kufr, meaning that he will tell you:

Sacrificing to other than Allāh is permissible, not Kufr, this individual is a Kāfir to begin with, whether he is hesitant in the Kufr of such an individual or not, because he viewed that these actions which the text has clearly considered disbelief for whoever commits it as not being Kufr, and this is rejecting and denying the textual Sharī evidence, that he doesn't make Takfir upon him due to considering what he fell into as not being Kufr.

Such as saying, sacrificing to other than Allāh, or ruling by other than what Allāh has revealed, or Istighātha (seeking help and refuge) from other than Allāh is not Kufr and it's from that which Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) has made permissible, so Kufr gets tagged along with this individual, we ask Allāh for good health and well-being.

- The second situation: Pay attention to the difference, these are very precise matters, that he refrains from making Takfir upon him whilst affirming that what this individual fell into is Kufr.

Ruling by other than what Allāh has revealed, he will say, I do not have the slightest of doubts that ruling by other than what Allāh has revealed is Kufr.

He slaughtered to other than Allāh, he will say, I do not have the slightest of doubts that this action is Kufr, however he refrains from making Takfir upon him whilst affirming that what the individual fell into was Kufr, but he refrains from applying Takfir upon him due to the presence of a Māni' (prevention) which prevented applying the ruling upon the committer of Kufr, and this is also not free from the following situations:

That the Māni' (impediment) which he mentioned is valid, and the application is correct. Therefore, what do we understand from this, that there are Mawāni' (impediments) that are valid and Mawāni' (impediments) that are invalid. And there are Mawāni' that are valid and the application of it is incorrect, and there are Mawāni' that are valid and the application of it is correct.

Therefore, it consists of different categories, speak ya Shaykh.

Student: Are the Murji'ah included in this (category)? They say, we know that ruling by other than what Allāh has revealed is Kufr, however did this person make Istihlāl (i.e. declare this action permissible) or not, so they don't make Takfir upon him until he declares it permissible?

Shaykh: Okay, I'll ask you right now, that this Māni' (impediment) which he cited, is it a valid or invalid Māni'?

Student: Invalid.

Shaykh: Then this doesn't have any consideration given to it to begin with, it's excluded from what we're discussing.

And because everyone that falls into Kufr, you will find he has ta'wil (misinterpretation), however not every ta'wil (misinterpretation) is accepted, and not every Māni' (impediment) is possible to be applied (in every situation).

Ya'nī, for example: If you look towards the Māni' (impediment) of ignorance, you will find that there are matters where the Scholars have unanimously agreed that ignorance is not considered a Māni' (impediment) in it.

And there are Mawāni' (impediments) where the Scholars considered ignorance as a valid Māni' (impediment) in those issues.

So the clearness and unclearness of the issue has an effect (on applying rulings).

For instance, a clear matter which is known in the religion by necessity, then the Scholars have said as we have established via principles and affirmed, that whoever commits Shirk in the clear matters disbelieves, whether he was ignorant or had a misinterpretation.

Therefore, I repeat. We mentioned the first refrainer, now we will repeat the second refrainer, that he refrains from making Takfir upon him whilst affirming that what this individual fell into was Kufr, however he refrained from making Takfir upon the individual due to an impediment which prevented applying the ruling of Kufr upon the doer of Kufr.

Okay, I want to see if you guys are paying attention with me or not, (it seems) you're not paying attention? Is there a difference between the first refrainer and the second refrainer?

Student: Yes, ofcourse.

Shaykh: What is the difference?

Student: The difference, is that the first person refrained due to NOT considering what he fell into was Kufr.

Shaykh: Excellent.

Student: This person has Kufr applied upon him.

Shaykh: Excellent, why?

Student: Because this person has denied the text.

Shaykh: Excellent, and what about the second person?

Student: As for the second person, then it's also established via the text, however he had a Māni' (impediment) with him. And if there was truly a Māni' (preventative upon the doer of Kufr), so he doesn't make Takfir upon him, then he did nothing wrong.

Shaykh: And this issue will be elaborated further, however right now I have understood your words, yes that's excellent. Because it's not possible to say here that this person didn't apply the ruling of the Sharī'ah upon him (doer of Kufr), for indeed he (the individual) is a doer of Kufr. But he says: Yes, he committed Kufr, however there was something which prevented the ruling (of Kufr) from falling upon him.

For instance, the one who is forced, he says a statement of disbelief, how come we don't call him a Kāfir?

Students: Because he is being forced.

Shaykh: Because this Māni' (of Ikrāh) prevented the ruling (of Kufr) from being applied upon him.

This is why this Māni' repels what's considered present (of Kufr) to being absent, is this clear? (Student replies, "Clear").

And the Mawāni' (preventions of Takfir) my dear brothers, there are impediments which are taken into consideration in all matters of Ēmān and Kufr, such as Ikrāh for example. And there are impediments which are taken into consideration in some matters, not in others, and here is where mistakes occur, that you bring a Māni' (prevention of Takfir) which the Scholars accepted in a specific issue, and then generalise it upon the other issues, or vice versa.

Such as ignorance for example, the Scholars take it into consideration in the unclear matters, it's necessary (to take it into consideration) if he was ignorant, so he is excused, and Kufr isn't tagged along with him until the Hujjah is established upon him, and he understands it.

Stipulating 'understanding' (of the hujjah) for example, you will find the Scholars affirming this in the unclear matters, so he generalises this stipulation, that some people amongst us came out and said: That the Tawāghit whose Kufr is known, and their Kufr is perhaps known amongst the young and elderly, he says "Kufr isn't tagged along with him until you establish the Hujjah upon him".

And the understanding of 'Hujjah' according to him is originally faulty, meaning that it's necessary to come, and sit with him, then afterwards show him the proof, and discuss with him concerning every proof, have you understood or not? Understood, so we will go to the other issue, you haven't understood, we will remain at the first until eternity.

The Prophets (عليهم الصلاة والسلام) whom Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) has sent them as a Hujjah to mankind, and they weren't to be considered 'addresses' to begin with, and they are immediately considered a Hujjah to mankind when Allāh sent them, infact the Prophet (ﷺ) said the exact opposite of this (i.e. the Hujjah wasn't to simply address the Mushrikīn) as it's narrated in Sahīh Muslim from the Hadīth of Abī Hurayrah:

"By Him in Whose hand is the life of Muhammad, he who amongst the Ummah {What is meant by Ummah here is Ummat al-Da'wah (those who are invited to the call of Islām)} of Jews or Christians hears about me, {Look at how he hanged the matter, he hanged it on mere 'hearing'}, but does not affirm his belief in that with which I have been sent and dies in this state (of disbelief), he shall be but one of the inhabitants of Hell-Fire"

Yes, therefore there's a difference between the refraining in the 1st situation and the refraining in the 2nd situation, so the Kufr of the 1st situation is clear, and the Kufr of the 2nd situation, we will mention its different circumstances, or in other words, what the 2nd person fell into from refraining has different circumstances.

Student: Shaykh, are the Mawānī' (preventions of Takfīr) able to be counted, or restricted to a specific number?

Shaykh: Yes, the Scholars have still remained mentioning them.

Student: Ya'nī, in every time, it's restricted or?

Shaykh: No, do not say at all times. Rather, some of the matters could become unclear in some societies, whilst being clear in others, and vice versa.

Student: Is it restricted to 4 (preventions), ignorance, misinterpretation, mistake, and coercion?

Shaykh: Yes, like 'mistakes' in this context is like...

Student: "You are my slave, and I am your lord"

Shaykh: Excellent, so here it's called 'slip of the tongue', so this is what's classified as a 'mistake', what does slip of the tongue mean? That you intend a wording or meaning, but what comes out from the tongue is another wording, and from the 'mistakes' is 'not wanting to do an action (but accidentally did it)'.

Look, there's a difference and don't confuse between "intending to do the action in one's heart (i.e. permitting Kufr)" and "intending to do the action (this is what he's judged by, even if he doesn't permit the Kufr act)", ya'nī for example: A man came to break a statue, so his foot slipped over a rock and fell in a position of prostration (towards the statue), this is an example.

This action by apparent is prostration and bending over, and the general basic principle regarding this bending over is that it's one of humbleness, submission and worship!

However what is it that prevents the ruling of Kufr from being applied? Do not include Qasd (intending with one's heart), the intending of the heart is whoever performs the action of prostration, he disbelieves even if didn't intend Kufr in his heart, have you understood the difference?

There is "intending the action" and "intending it by the heart (by permitting it)", what did the Murji'ah fall into? They said, he doesn't become a Kāfir until he intends it (allowed in his heart), and this is encounters the textual evidences of the Sharī'ah!

Rather, Ahlus-Sunnah affirm that Kufr consists of different types: It could be through speech, actions, beliefs, doubts, denial, turning away etc...

But as for them, then no! They restricted it to belief in the heart, ya'nī he prostrates: What is this action? Kufr. When does he disbelieves according to them? "Until he believes it's permissible in his heart", and this is the peak of Irjā', Tajahhum (extracted from the term Jahmiyyah), we ask Allāh for good-health and well-being.

This person who prostrates takes the hukm (of Kufr), even if he didn't intend it (to be fine) in his heart. However in this example that I mentioned (of accidentally tripping to bend over to a statue), this is where you mention 'mistakes', no ruling (of Kufr) is tagged along with him. Why is that?

Because it's a mistake, and the action occurred without intending to do the action, pay attention to the difference. (Between) intending it with the heart and intending the action, there's a difference - Go ahead Shaykh.

Student: Such as the man in the desert (who found his camel).

Shaykh: Yes, excellent. We mentioned this, may Allāh bless you.

Yes, excellent. Therefore, this refrainer who affirms that what the specific individual fell into was Kufr has different circumstances:

- The first circumstance: That the Māni' (impediment) he cited is valid and the application is correct, then this person isn't included with us in the Rule (3rd nullifier) to begin with, have you understood this?

Yes, excellent! A valid Māni' (impediment) and a correct application, this person doesn't get tagged with it to begin with, no ruling (of Kufr) gets tagged along with him, in order for us to say: There is someone who doesn't make Takfir upon the Kāfir, this isn't included with us.

So when I mentioned to you right now, by using this scenario. We have affirmed that the ruling (of Kufr) gets tagged along with him or not? It doesn't, so based upon this, he isn't included within the Rule (3rd nullifier) to begin with. But rather our discussion is concerning an individual who gets tagged along with the ruling (of Kufr), so the refraining occurs.

- The second circumstance: That the Māni' (impediment) isn't valid, or that it's valid and the application is incorrect. Ya'nī for instance, what's an example for a Māni' (impediment) which isn't valid:

Student: Ignorance?

Shaykh: No Yā Shaykh, what we say here is that the Māni' (impediment) is valid, but the application is incorrect, because ignorance is a valid Māni' (impediment), however it's only applicable in certain matters, I'm asking you for a Māni' (impediment) which is not valid, ya'nī something which has no proof for it being a Māni' (impediment).

Such as if an individual says "excessive fear" which has no basis for it, or a man who does it for worldly benefit, there's a man who you ask, why did you join the army, the army of the Tāghūt? So a man comes along and says, "O man, this is a strange, poor, weak guy, he has children who he spends upon", right now he is citing a Māni' (impediment) which isn't valid.

What's intended is a valid Māni' (impediment) and the application is incorrect, it's a valid Māni' (impediment), however it isn't to be applied in these matters.

For example, you might come with "Jahl" (ignorance), and consider it a Māni' (impediment) in major Shirk, so we'll say to you, it's a valid Māni' (impediment) and the application is incorrect, because it's taken into consideration in some matters besides others, so what is the ruling upon such a person?

Student: To clarify it to him.

Shaykh: Excellent! We say that this person doesn't get the ruling applied upon him immediately, except after establishing the Hujjah and removing the doubts.

Why didn't we say that the Manāt (what Takfir is hanged upon) is fulfilled with him? Because he didn't deny (the text), he affirms that this action (the person fell into) is Kufr, however he says, there's a Māni' (impediment) which prevented applying the ruling of Kufr upon its doer.

Ya'nī, according to him to begin with, he says: "It hasn't been fulfilled with him to start with", or "the conditions haven't been fulfilled".

So here, we come towards what some of the brothers mentioned, they said "when does the misconception get removed and the Hujjah gets established?"

The Ta'sil (aforementioned principles) will be brought to us that we mentioned to you, so if the action was clear and the reality of the doer is clear, does the circle of establishing the Hujjah tighten or expand? It tightens! Infact you may not find any loops for it (due to it being clear)

And if the action was clear, however the reality of the doer was unclear, in this case it expands.

Therefore, let no one come and unrestrictedly claim establishing the Hujjah and removing misconceptions is required.

And let no one come and completely abandon establishing the Hujjah and removing misconceptions.

But rather, what we say is that this is according to the action and the reality of the doer.

Right now, an important issue will arise - Pay attention: Applying the rulings upon the individuals is from the matters that require observations and the Ijtihād of the one who is fit to determine the rulings in this topic, so whoever acquired this ability, it's permissible for him to delve and observe further into this matter, and whoever doesn't acquire this ability, then he's not allowed to do so.

Okay, but where is the proof for this?

Student: Doesn't this fall underneath giving Fatwā?

Shaykh: Yes it is issuing a Fatwā without a doubt. What is application? Is it knowledge or not? It's knowledge, and pay attention that we're talking about, "Whoever doesn't make Takfīr upon the Kāfir".

And the confusion within the issue of "Whoever doesn't make Takfīr upon the Kāfir" is more apparent and clearer than the one who actually falls into Kufr.

And what we will address, is that the discussion concerning this nullifier revolves around 3 points. The one who commits Kufr to begin with, the one who refrains from making Takfīr upon him, and the one who refrains from making Takfīr upon the one who refrained (from making Takfīr).

Ahlus-Sunnah do not give the same hukm upon the third person like the second person (the one who refrains on making Takfīr upon the Kāfir), and the words of Imām al-Maltī (رحمه الله تعالى) will come shortly, wherein he spoke about the 'Aqīdah of the Mu'tazilah in Basrah and the Mu'tazilah of Baghdād, and he differentiated between them, and we'll come to it, so don't hasten towards it.

However, understand that the 'Āthir (refrainer) of the 'Āthir (refrainer) doesn't get a ruling (of Kufr) tagged along with him, because according to Ahlus-Sunnah as it will be shown by a valuable precious citation from Imām al-Maltī (رحمه الله تعالى), as the TV hosts say, "in the next episode".

So we mentioned applying rulings upon specific individuals and that it's from the matters that stop at the analysis and Ijtihād of the one suitable to make a judgement concerning this matter, so whoever acquired this ability, it's permissible for him to delve and observe further into this matter, and whoever doesn't acquire this ability, then he's not allowed to do so.

We said, what is the proof for that?

Student: Proof from the 'Aql (intellect) ya'nī...

Shaykh: The 'Aql?! Māshā'Allāh, Yallāh Abū al-'Aql (Shaykh making a joke).

Student 1: Since it returns back to being established via proof (from the text) and removing misconceptions, then this is not to be delved into except by a person who has knowledge surrounding the issue.

Student 2: There's a difference between the Asl (falling into Kufr itself) and the Far' (branch issue of the 3rd nullifier), so it's a condition that he's a person fit to determine rulings in it, such as (surrounding) someone who doesn't make Takfīr (upon the doer of Kufr).

Shaykh: Yes, excellent. That's why whoever delves into other than his field, he will come with strange things, there is a divine command, where Allāh, the Majestic and Exalted says:

"Ask the people of knowledge...", when? "...if you don't know..."

If we come to know that this person acquires this ability and encompassed the knowledge surrounding this issue, there's no blame upon him in an Islamic aspect, however when is he blamed? When a person hasn't encompassed the knowledge surrounding the issue, and delves into it, this is where faults are to be found.

I'll give an example right now: Let's say that there's a man who is suffering from a heart disease - May Allāh give us and you and every muslim well-being - then he faints on the floor quickly between us, and all of the people of this gathering knows that they don't have any ability or knowledge in medicine, nothing close or far to it.

So I rolled up my sleeves and said: "Give me the knife - may Allāh have mercy upon you all - so that I may perform a surgery operation for this man", is it permissible for me to do this or not permissible?

Students: Not permissible!

It's not permissible, SubhānAllāh, all the people condemned this action of mine, despite the fact that it relates to the life of a single human, so how about the case with the religion of an entire Ummah?!

Students: Allāhu Akbar!

So that's why we say, whoever is eloquent in discussion, and possessed the ability then there's no rebuke upon him, however the problem in the matters of application, is when someone who is not suitable to enter into it, delves into it and comes with strange things.

And this issue if ours, why do we say that it's required to make an analysis and the Ijtihād of one fit to determine a judgement?

Because he is the one who knows the islamic ruling and the reality of the matter, because it's stipulated with us at all times in the matters related to Fatwā or matters of application or what's similar to that, that we have knowledge of the islamic ruling in this specific issue and the reality of this issue in and of itself, the reality of the person falling into it etc...

Because for example, at times, and you will even find this in the speech of the early generations, you will find that they possess the ability and are suitable to pass judgements, and they could differ with regards to a specific individual amongst the people, and examples will be brought to us regarding that.

Student: Pardon me Shaykh, I have a question. In a previous lesson, it was about fulfilling the Shurūt (conditions of Takfīr) and removal of Mawānī' (preventatives of Takfīr). So being fit to analyse this topic means you need to know when the conditions are fulfilled and the preventatives are removed.

Shaykh: Yes, excellent. This is concerning the ruling according to the Sharī'ah, and likewise the reality (of the matter).

Infact, at times, there could be a Scholar who knows the ruling with its details attached to it, however he is ignorant of the reality, so it becomes Harām for him to apply rulings.

And there could be a person who knows the reality with its edges and specific details, whilst he was ignorant of the Islamic ruling, it becomes Harām for him to apply rulings, "He must combine between both", yes, the judgement of Allāh in this issue and the reality of who he will apply the judgement of Allāh and its true state of affairs.

And ofcourse, the one fit to determine that ruling, we said that the matters can expand with regards to applying the Hujjah and removing misconceptions, likewise he must be someone fit to determine rulings (of the issue), and here his opinion is open to being correct and mistaken, so the correct view may be with whoever made Takfīr and the mistaken one may be contrary to that, and it could be the other way around, the correct view may be with whoever gave an excuse, and the mistake is with who made Takfīr, and vice versa, etc...

So by this, we will have finished today's lesson, and I apologise for taking longer, and we'll finish it off in the next lesson tomorrow Inshā'Allāh. All praise belongs to Allāh, and peace and blessings be upon the Messenger of Allāh, and upon all of his household and companions, and those who followed them with excellence till the day of judgement.

Explanation of the Rule: "Whoever doesn't make Takfīr upon the Kāfir" (Lesson 1/2)

The Mujāhid, Shaykh Abū Mālik at-Tamīmī (تقبله الله) said:
بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم

In the name of Allāh, Al-Rahmān Al-Raheem, all Praise belongs to Allāh, the Lord of Mankind, May the most perfect and complete Peace and Blessings of Allāh be upon the most noble of Prophets and Messengers, our Prophet Muhammad, with the best Prayers and the most commendable of Salutations be upon him and his household.

Glory be to you (O Allāh), we have no knowledge except that which you have taught us, Indeed you are the All-Knowing, All-Wise.

O Allāh grant us Fiqh in the religion, and teach us its true interpretation, O Allāh teach us that which benefits us, and allow us to benefit from what you have taught us, and increase us in guidance, piety, righteousness, correctness and right direction O Lord of Mankind.

My beloved noble brothers, we will be studying in today's class, a matter from the enormous matters, and it is a matter which has been affirmed by the Scholars of the past and present, and this issue has caused confusion to some people, and a type of confusion has occurred in it.

So by the permission of Allāh during these classes, we will try to lay out the Principles for this matter according to Pure Islamic Foundations, so that Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) may inspire and reveal to us the path of success and correctness.

A fundamental rule from the fundamental rules of the Sharī'ah which was affirmed by the Scholars, and it is the Rule:
"Whoever doesn't make Takfīr upon the Kāfir, or doubts in his disbelief, or corrects his ways, is a Kāfir".

And before starting to clarify the rulings and matters related to this Rule, I would like to use a particular approach with you in these lessons, and it is from the long-practised disciplined approaches, and it is laying out the foundations, then diving into the sub-branch issues (applications).

Meaning, that I will mention to you right now the firmly established Usūl (principles) that we will mention as we're speaking, from matters that fall under this Rule, for indeed if a person precisely understands the Usūl (principles), he will be fine with the application.

And as it's determined by the Scholars of Usūl, the "Asl" (core foundation) is what other things are built upon from it, and the "Far'" (sub-branch) is what's built upon something else.

Is there a difference or not? There's a difference, the Asl is what other things are built upon from it, whereas the Far' (sub-branch) is what's built upon something else.

So if a person's Ta'sīl (principles) are valid, his Tadrī' (application of those principles) will be correct.

And if there's a fault in the principles, what would the result be? An error in the application, and this is why the Scholars say, "Whatever is built upon falsehood, is falsehood".

So if the Asl (core foundation) is correct, then it's necessary that what's built upon it is going to be correct. And if the Asl (core foundation) is corrupt, then what's built upon it is also going to be corrupt.

The First Principle from the established Usūl which we'll bring forth in our discussion on the matters related under this Rule, the first principle: Is that the one who falls into Major Shirk in the Clear Matters, is a Kāfir Murtad, whether he was ignorant or had a misinterpretation.

Now, we will mention these Principles, and it must be accompanied with us under every issue that we speak about this Rule, so these Principles that we're going to mention right now must be present with us.

The Second Principle: The Rule of whoever doesn't make Takfir upon a Kāfir (becomes a Kāfir), is an agreed upon Rule amongst the Righteous Predecessors of the Ummah and the Great Imāms.

And this Ijmā' is a consensus upon it in general, and there are precise details which we'll clarify Inshā'Allāh while speaking about the issues related to this topic, it consists of Tafsīl (elaboration) and Clarification.

Therefore we say: Verily the Scholars have affirmed that whoever doesn't make Takfir upon a Kāfir becomes a Kāfir, however when does he disbelieve? This is what we'll be going through Inshā'Allāh while studying this Fundamental Rule.

Therefore this Rule isn't upon that supposed absoluteness (i.e. Left unrestricted) as some think, rather there are Guidelines and Conditions, Inshā'Allāh we'll clarify it soon.

The Third Principle: Indeed, this Rule isn't as some claim as being an innovation from Imām Muhammad Ibn 'Abdil Wahhāb (رحمه الله).

Because there are those misguided individuals who say: That this rule was invented and innovated by Imām Muhammad Ibn 'Abdil Wahhāb (رحمه الله تعالى), and this isn't correct, and it is a feeble claim void of proof, infact it is a pure fabrication and lie.

Rather this Rule is affirmed by the Scholars of the Past, and the one who reads, and examines the statements of the Scholars would see that this Rule is Apparent in their Foundations (laid out).

Hence, this Rule has been mentioned from Sufyān Ibn 'Uyaynah (رحمه الله), and also Imām Ahmad Ibn Hanbal (رحمه الله), and Abū Zur'ah (رحمه الله), and Muhammad Ibn Sahnūn (رحمه الله), and also Abū Bakr Ibn 'Ayyāsh (رحمه الله), and Yazīd Ibn Hārūn (رحمه الله) and a large group from the Imāms of the Salaf.

And likewise Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah (رحمه الله), Al-Qādī 'Iyādh (رحمه الله), A'immat al-Da'wah (i.e. Imāms of Najd) and other than them who have mentioned this Rule.

Therefore this Rule isn't as some say, as being an innovation from Imām Muhammad Ibn 'Abdil Wahhāb (رحمه الله), rather it is a Rule which the Salaf of the Ummah have spoke about in the past.

And the one who examines their statements and narrated quotes from them, he would find that manifestly apparent while going through these quotes that are mentioned from them, and we will shortly move to these quotes Inshā'Allāh, and we'll stop at it with some pauses (to address it).

The Fourth Principle: That the one who falls under this nullifier is committing Kufr, what is this nullifier? "Whoever doesn't make Takfir upon the Kāfir", he is committing Kufr according to the Consensus of the Scholars.

And Kufr is tagged along with him to begin with at times, and after the establishment of the Hujjah at other times, as it will be clarified and elaborated soon, that the one who falls under this nullifier is committing Kufr by Ijmā', and Kufr is tagged along with him to begin with at times, and after the establishment of the Hujjah at other times.

And this is what we affirmed in the Principle that was mentioned before it, that this Rule is Unanimously Agreed upon in General, and there are Details attached to it.

The Fifth Principle: That the Manāt of Kufr (the cause to which Kufr is tied too) for this Nullifier is "Denial, Rejection and Opposing the Judgement of Allāh after knowing it".

And this Manāt (cause to which Kufr is tied too) has numerous proofs in the Book of Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic.

Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) says, "But it is the verses of Allah that the wrongdoers reject." [6:33]

Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) also says, "And none reject Our verses except the wrongdoers." [29:49]

Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) also says, "And none reject Our verses except the disbelievers." [29:47]

Precisely determining this (5th) Principle and keeping it accompanied with us while speaking about the matters related to this topic is crucially important, because as we have affirmed, that the Methodology which we will follow (in teaching) is Ta'sil (establishing the principles), then Tafsir (application).

Because most of the times, mistakes occur either in Tafrī' (application) without Ta'sīl (principles), or by incorrect Ta'sīl (principles) then Tafrī' (application), or some of them determine an Usūl by taking it from a Furū' (end-result) in some issues, whereas it could only be applicable in some situations.

But in any case, inconsistencies in one's methodology, most of the time incurs mistakes and distortions, that's why you find there are sects which went astray, due to a fault in the Ta'sīl (establishment of the principles).

So for example, they would give precedence to the Ambiguous (text) over the Clear (text), or they make what is Ambiguous as something Explicitly Clear, or they make it into an Asl (core foundation) in which they construct as a basis, while there is an Affirmed Clear text, etc...

The Sixth Principle: What is excluded from the generality of this Rule are the Differed Upon Ijtihādī Matters, in which the Scholars have differed upon.

And it is for example: Such as the ruling on the abandoner of Salāh, the abandoner of Siyām, the abandoner of Zakāt, the abandoner of Hajj, etc...

And our discussion here about the Khilāf (difference of opinion) between the Scholars is in "Abandoning", not "Denying" (these rituals), for indeed the denial (of these rituals) is agreed upon (as being Kufr), even if the individual performed them, and established these rituals while he denies their obligation, he would become a Kāfir.

(For instance) A man always prays 5 times a day, and never misses a single Salāh, however he denies its obligation, he would become a Kāfir.

A man who adheres to fasting the month of Ramadān, and he never misses it at all, however he denies its obligation, he would become a Kāfir, even if he fasts.

Therefore Juhūd (denial) is one issue, and "Tark" (abandoning) is another issue, likewise what is excluded from the general meaning of this Rule are the Mawānī' (preventions of Takfir) which the Scholars differed upon in its particular minute details.

For example: Stipulating Bulūgh (reaching maturity) for the validity of apostasy to apply (upon the individual).

Meaning, from the conditions or affirmation of apostasy (to occur) is "Al-Bulūgh", this is disputable between the Scholars, and the place of dispute is in the age of "Tamyīz" (when does one become a Mumayyiz).

There is an Usūlī Method that the Scholars follow, which they call "Settling the place of dispute" (تحرير محل النزاع), who can clarify what "settling the place of dispute" means?

Excellent! What is meant by settling the place of dispute, is to mention the points that are agreed upon, then after that, mention the point that's differed upon (to solve it).

So for example: The Scholars have unanimously agreed that apostasy occurs upon the person who has reached Bulūgh (maturity), and it's valid, and he's responsible for his actions, held to account, and punished.

And the Scholars have unanimously agreed that the child who is under the age of "Tamyīz" doesn't have apostasy occur upon him, and we have clarified that previously, and we stated: That if there's a boy where he could utter some words of disbelief.

For example: You say to a boy, do you love Allāh? The boy might say "No", it's possible that a similar word can come out from him, similar to this word.

So he is right now under the age of "Tamyīz", so is apostasy applied upon him in such a situation? We say, No, and this is agreed upon.

What remains is the phase which is between these two ages, (between) the age of Bulūgh and above the age of Tamyīz, so the age of Tamyīz here is differed upon by the Scholars in defining it.

- So some of them said: The border-line of Tamyīz: Is when the child understands speech, and is able to respond, i.e. if he is asked something, he understands the question, and gives a good answer.

This Criterion for Tamyīz, it doesn't have a restricted age, so it could occur at an earlier age, and it could be later. Since you can find a child who becomes 7 years old, and hasn't reached this "border-line", and you will find some who are less than this age & is able to distinguish (i.e. understand & respond).

- The second view: Which is the correct opinion, and Allāh the Exalted is the most high and knows best, is that the border-line for the age of Tamyīz is 7, so if the child becomes 7 years old, he is considered a Mumayyiz in the Islamic point of view, and this view is solidified by proof

Wherein the Prophet (ﷺ) said:

"Command your children to pray when they become seven years old, and beat them for it (prayer) when they become ten years old"

So there are moral obligations, or there is some kind of Speech in the Shari'ah addressing the child that's 7 years old.

Based upon that, we know that Tamyiz is from the age of 7 until the age of maturity.

And Bulūgh (maturity) occurs with 3 things in respect to the boy, and the woman has an additional indicator, which is the menses.

The boy (reaches Bulūgh) by emission, the emission of semen, and growth of hair (on the body) & roughness around the facial kissing area, and reaching 15 years old.

Is it possible that the boy reaches maturity before the age of 15?

We say: Yes, and the Scholars also differentiated between the cold areas and hot areas, and the discussion concerning this is lengthy.

The reason why I mentioned this matter, is that stipulating Bulūgh (reaching maturity) as a condition for apostasy or the validity of apostasy to be affirmed (upon an individual), is a disputable matter between the Scholars.

For example: The opinion of Imām Abū Hanīfah (رحمه الله) and his companion Muhammad Ibn al-Hassan, and also Ahmad in a narration from him, is that Bulūgh isn't a stipulated condition for the validity of apostasy to be applied (upon an individual), what do we understand from this?

That if the Mumayyiz happens to come out with a Kufr statement, or a Kufr action, he is judged upon with Kufr, except that they stated: Verily the Ahkām (rulings) related to Istitābah (repenting from apostasy) is delayed and postponed until the age of Bulūgh.

So what is the benefit of this differentiation?

Yes excellent! (student said: The benefit from this is the inheritance), because even if we delayed the rulings of Istitābah (repenting from apostasy), however if the Mumayyiz is judged upon in this situation with apostasy, then there is no inheritance between him and his muslim relatives even if he was married.

Meaning, that what incurs from this apostasy as well is the dissolving of the bond of his marriage contract, is it possible to imagine a Mumayyiz boy being married? Yes, it is present.

Student: O Shaykh, so if this child died, he is not to be washed etc..?

Shaykh: That is based upon this opinion, however it's a weak opinion, and we'll show the correct view Inshā'Allāh.

And the second opinion: It was adopted by Abū Yūsuf from the companions of Abū Hanīfah, and the Shāfi'iyyah, and Ahmad in the most dominant of the two narrations from him, which is that apostasy isn't affirmed, and isn't valid (to be applied) upon a Mumayyiz who is under the age of Bulūgh.

And based upon that, i.e. upon this view, the Mumayyiz child and other than the Mumayyiz are equal in the ruling (meaning they must reach Bulūgh for apostasy to apply), and this is what's correct, and Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) is the Most High and Knows best.

Since the speech addressed in the Shari'ah and the moral obligations in the Shari'ah are tied too Bulūgh (reaching maturity).

"The pen has been lifted from 3", and the child until he reaches maturity is among those who have been mentioned.

And we mentioned the signs of Bulūgh, and you can say the same thing in regards to the intoxicated person, because the Scholars arrange & classify the removal of the mind, or the Scholars categorise it into different categories.

Removal (of the mind) due a permissible cause, and removal (of the mind) due to a prohibited cause.

And the removal (of the mind) due to a permissible cause: It includes what is by the choice of an individual, and it includes what isn't done by the choice of an individual.

The choice of a person is like: A surgery operation, so Ya'hī the doctor says to him:

"We will place for you this anesthetic" for instance. The removal of the mind here is due to a permissible cause.

And a cause which is outside the will of an individual is like deep sleep, epilepsy, and it could overcome an individuals eyes, so he falls asleep.

And the removal of the mind due to a prohibited cause: Is through drinking alcohol.

As for the removal of the mind due to a permissible cause, then the Scholars are in agreement that apostasy doesn't occur, and this isn't the place that concerns us.

What concerns us is intoxication, the Scholars have differed here, so those who say that it occurs, and those who say that it doesn't occur, does this scenario fall under this Rule (the 3rd nullifier), is the scenario about Tamyiz (we previously discussed) through which the Scholars differed upon fall under this Rule?

We say, no. Because we have affirmed that the differed upon matters which are open to Ijtihād between the Scholars is outside of this Rule.

So it's not possible that someone comes along and constructs (his own principle)...

Look, if the Asl (foundation) becomes incorrect, it would result in an incorrect Tadrī' (application), so he makes an Asl and comes to say:

"You did not make Takfīr upon the Mumayyiz, this is sufficient, you're a Kāfir, you didn't make Takfīr upon whoever came with a statement of disbelief whilst drunk etc...so you're a Kāfir".

Even though what's correct from the statements of the Scholars: Is that the words which come out from an intoxicated person (has apostasy) fall upon him, however the rulings of Istībāh (to repent or face execution) is delayed until his mind returns back to him.

Since this view has a deterrence, because a person may belittle and be negligent in the issue of speaking statements or doing actions of disbelief, so he would resort to drinking alcohol, so that can be a means or a justification to saying these (Kufr) statements, or doing these (Kufr) actions.

Because there are those from the perpetrators, and those amongst the criminals who have a Fiqh, so that's why the Scholars affirm that in some situations, an individual is dealt with in opposition to his intention.

Ofcourse the intention here by mentioning this matter isn't to get into the issue with its minute details and the proofs for both sides, but rather what's intended is that there are specific issues, there are matters, and there are impediments (i.e. preventions of Takfīr etc), in which there's a difference of opinion between the Scholars, so it isn't included under this Rule (3rd nullifier).

Likewise, from the important matters is the impediment of Ikrāh (coercion), which is an agreed upon impediment (prevention of Takfīr), the impediment of Ikrāh is an agreed upon impediment in general, however the Scholars have differed over some of its specific aspects.

For instance: We have an Ikrāh that is called "Ikrāh Mulji" and "Ikrāh Ghayr Mulji", is there a difference between the two?

Yes there is, and what is the criterion for Ikrāh al-Mulji' (to occur)?

**Students answering the question****

Yes, excellent. However the Scholars have differed over this specific issue, so some of them expanded on 1 side, and others tightened it on the other side.

So for example, some of them said: "Verily, the iljā' (valid Ikrāh) is actualised by mere imprisonment", such as the Shāfi'iyyah.

And others tightened in that regard, and said, "The iljā' (valid Ikrāh) isn't actualised until an individual is threatened with a matter which involves harm to oneself or loss of a limb or torture which the ordinary self cannot bear"

Why did we say, the ordinary self? Ya'nī, there are some amongst the people whom which 1 strike could make him say everything (of Kufr), or others without a strike.

And some of them for instance, not at all, he could bear hundreds of strikes, however in this situation, if there is nothing specified, then what we go by is along the 'Urf (customs) and towards the average state of the people.

So if he was amongst the average state of the people, for instance 50 intense strikes is enough (to bear & no more), so in this instance iljā' (valid Ikrāh) is actualised etc...

But the point from that in mentioning this issue, is that based upon this, there is a difference of opinion. Are the scenarios of this difference of opinion included under this Rule (3rd nullifier)?

We say, no. And what you can say in that case, is because the Scholars have differed, they said: Is threatening sufficient for Ikrāh to occur, or is it necessary that he gets afflicted with torture?

The majority of the Scholars in opposition to Ahmad said, yes the threat (of torturing) is sufficient (for Ikrāh to occur).

What does threatening mean?

He says, if you do not do this, we will do such and such with you, and the vast Majority of the Scholars said, yes the threat is sufficient.

Whereas Ahmad said no, may Allāh have mercy upon the Imām, he said: Not until he is afflicted with torture.

That's why the authors of the Siyar mention that Yahya Ibn Ma'īn (رحمه الله تعالى) entered upon Imām Ahmad, and Yahya Ibn Ma'īn conceded, he took the concession, so he was released from prison.

As for Imām Ahmad (رحمه الله), No. He chose fixed determination, and held firmly upon his views, so when Yahya Ibn Maʿīn was visiting and entered upon him - may Allāh have mercy upon them all - visiting (Ahmad), the Imām turned away from him.

So Yahya Ibn Maʿīn said, "O Abā 'Abdillāh!!! The Hadīth of 'Ammār", so Ahmad did not respond to him.

Look at the noble position of Yahya Ibn Maʿīn (رحمه الله), an Imām and an eminent man of knowledge amongst the guided ones, and a servant from the servants of the Sunnah.

So Imām Ahmad turned away from him, pay attention. Imām Ahmad didn't make Takfīr upon him, while he took the concession (of Ikrāh) by being threatened, he said the threatening was sufficient, and this is what actualises iljā' (a valid Ikrāh), so based upon that, he takes this concession.

So when Imām Yahya Ibn Maʿīn left, Imām Ahmad said: "They use the Hadīth of 'Ammār as proof, when 'Ammār was afflicted with torture".

Students: Allāhu Akbar.

You guys know the story of 'Ammār, he was lashed, and was harmed to an extent that when he came to the Prophet (ﷺ), what did he say to him?

He said, "They did not leave me alone (in torturing me) until I spoke ill about you", that he even spoke ill of the Prophet (ﷺ).

So the Prophet (ﷺ) said to him, "how do you find your heart?"

He replied: "Comfortable with Ēmān"

The Prophet said: "If they do the same thing, then repeat what you did"

And even if some of these narrations have criticism to it, however the Scholars still use these narrations to make Tafsīr of the Āyah.

So yes, in these specific issues, is being threatened sufficient (for Ikrāh to occur) or is it necessary to be afflicted with torture?

This is a difference of opinion based upon that the one who says, it's necessary to stipulate of the actualisation of iljā' (valid Ikrāh) for e.g. that he is afflicted with torture.

So based upon this, the one who gave in (by the threat) without being afflicted by torture, and was merely threatened, based upon this Ta'sīl (principle), he is a Kāfir.

However we say, these issues aren't included within this Rule (3rd nullifier), the Rule of "whoever doesn't make Takfīr upon the Kāfir or doubts in his Kufr or corrects his beliefs, is a Kāfir."

Student: O Shaykh, even if we took Imām Ahmad's opinion, Imām Ahmad didn't make Takfīr upon Imām Yahyā Ibn Maʿīn.

Yes this is what we say and what we established. But we say, someone might come, and insert the issues that are differed upon and open to Ijtihād under this Rule, so we would say to him, no. And the Scholars have remained differing in the likes of these matters, and none of them made Takfīr upon each other.

There's something here which is of utmost importance, however we may postpone it in the last class, however I'll point towards it.

If we know that the Manāt (basis and reasons to which the ruling is tied too) of Kufr (for the 3rd nullifier) is denial and rejecting the texts, and opposing it after knowing about it.

We differentiate between the one who refrains (in making Takfīr) with the clearness of the doer's reality - because a category will come shortly with us, but I'll mention it briefly - there is a category which must be precisely understood to understand the issues of this Rule:

- Firstly: The action is clear and the reality of the doer (i.e. ruling upon the individual) is clear, so the action is clear and the reality of the doer is clear, there is no avoidance in tagging along the ruling of Kufr upon whoever's situation is like this.
- Secondly: The action is clear and the reality of the doer (i.e. ruling upon the individual) isn't clear (i.e. known in the religion by necessity by the muslims), so here we say: The ruling (of Kufr) isn't tagged along with him immediately, but rather it's necessary to establish the Hujjah and remove the doubts.
- Thirdly: The action is unclear, so here the circle for establishing the Hujjah is going to expand, i.e. Whenever the clearness of a matter is manifest, establishing the Hujjah becomes tightened, and whenever unclearness is present, the circle of establishing the Hujjah expands (i.e. Requires more effort to establish it), etc...

The Seventh Principle: The people in this Rule are divided into three types of people.

- The first type: Those who intended the Haqq and attained that.

There's no doubt that this person is precisely correct, Allāh has guided him, and for that reason, the Prophet (ﷺ) used to teach 'Alī (رضي الله عنه), O 'Alī say in your du'ā as it's narrated in the Sahīh:

"O Allāh, direct me to the right path and make me adhere correctly to the straight path. And when you make a mention of right guidance, keep in mind the right path and when you consider of the straight (path), keep in mind the straightness of the arrow."

- The second type: Those who intended the Haqq and didn't attain that.

As for these people, it's not permissible to hasten and recklessly risk classifying them with some un-Islamic descriptions, because these people intended the Haqq and mistakenly didn't attain that. And they did not intend falsehood to begin with & attained what they wanted (of falsehood), is there a difference or not? There's a difference.

We know that there are those who are seekers of the Haqq, however they mistakenly didn't attain that, doesn't this occur?

What has occurred from some of the Sahābah. Likewise during the event of Qudāmah Ibn Madh'ūn (رضي الله عنه). He made a misinterpretation, however this ta'wīl (misinterpretation) is mistaken, so we know that there are people who intend the Haqq, however they mistakenly didn't attain that, and no one is infallible.

Is there anyone who is infallible from mistakes amongst mankind? No, except for the Prophets (عليهم الصلاة والسلام) from what they convey on behalf of their Lord.

And there's no doubt that guidance and returning back to the truth is wished for them, because the original intention is good.

Student: Pardon me O Shaykh, is that also regarding Aslu Dīn?

Shaykh: No no, we were speaking about this issue, we're speaking about "whoever doesn't make Takfīr upon the Kāfir", we are speaking about this Rule, and all the principles that we are mentioning is related to this Rule.

- The third type: Those who wanted to bring about whims within themselves, we ask Allāh for good-health and well-being, so he acted in his own hands (without sincerity for Allāh's sake) and was prevented from attaining guidance and correctness, so he went astray and led others astray.

The Final (Eighth) Principle, because what will shortly come with us are the (matters of) clearness and unclearness, so what would be advisable and suitable for us now is: Mentioning the criterion for the clear matters and the criterion for the unclear matters.

Without a doubt, we're still in the introduction at the moment, meaning we haven't delved deeply, and we didn't encompass the matters of this topic, because I clarified that the methodology which we are following by the permission of Allāh, the Exalted, is At-Ta'sīl (establishing the principles), then At-Tafrī' (application).

Because if I began to apply rulings whilst the principles aren't understood, then imagine what would happen by that? You will find a lot of objections, "How is this so? How is this so?", however once the Usūl (principles) are precisely understood, you will feel at ease & be comfortable.

The Criterion for the Clear Matters: Every knowledge or every issue whose proof has become manifest, and the Ummah has unanimously agreed upon, and knowledge of it is apparent to the Scholars and Laymen.

Also, if this is precisely understood, it will benefit us in establishing the Hujjah and removing doubts, if we understand it well.

I have come to know that some people think that establishing the Hujjah and removing doubts means and assumes, is that you must come to him, then after that he sits for 30 mins explaining to him until he completely understands...

Not at all, this is all speech far from the truth, and this is not what the Salaf or the Scholars intended in this issue.

Yes, even though there are matters which stipulate understanding it (for the Hujjah to apply), and it is in the matters which may become unclear.

However, if it was from the matters of Usūl (clear matters), then it's merely sufficed by the evidence reaching him in a language that the receiver (of the Hujjah) understands it in.

So an Arab receives the message in the arabic language is sufficient, and a non-Arab receives the message in his tongue. Whether he understands or not, this is another issue.

That's why you tend to find in the context of the Qur'ān in numerous places, the condemnation comes whilst the Hujjah of Allāh has been established upon the Mushrikīn, and despite that, you find (Allāh saying):

"They have hearts with which they do not understand, they have eyes with which they do not see."

So what's intended by "Hearing" is understanding, whilst they have "heard" and the Hujjah has been established upon them by mere hearing, with the condition that this "hearing" is in a manner wherein the receiver understands it, an Arab who is addressed in Arabic, etc. Thus, we know the Criterion for the Clear Matters.

The Criterion for the Unclear Matters: It is every matter in which its knowledge is known to the People of Knowledge instead of the Masses, due to its obscurity and unfamiliarity.

Likewise, from its stipulated guidelines is that it's not known in the religion by necessity, so every matter which isn't known in the religion by necessity, then it's from the unclear matters, whose knowledge is independently known by the People of Knowledge instead of the Masses.

Thus, these are the Principles which I wanted to place for our discussion concerning the matters of this topic, so that we can begin with at-Tafrī' (applying the principles).

So we begin, seeking aid in Allāh, with the first issue. The Scholars divide this Rule or the people within this Rule into several categories:

- First Category: Those which the text has explicitly make Takfīr upon, individually, and they are divided into two types: Groups and People or Individuals.

The groups are for example: Judaism, Christianity, Majūs, Buddhists, etc. And determining the rulings which come shortly Inshā'Allāh.

The individuals are like: Fir'awn, Hāmān, Qārūn, Iblīs, Abī Lahab, and everyone whom the text has explicitly mentioned by name and specifically judging them with Kufr.

So based upon this Ta'sīl (established principle), right now you have understood this category, have you understood or not?

Okay, and what is the ruling on this category. We are aware of this category, those whom the text has explicitly made Takfīr upon individually, and we said they are divided into two types, individuals and groups.

The ruling on this category: Is that whoever doesn't make Takfīr upon them, individually, then he's a Kāfir, and he is included immediately to begin with under this Rule (3rd nullifier), why is this?

Student 1: Because it's known in the religion by necessity!

Shaykh: Excellent! And we firmly established this principle in the Rule.

Student 2: Because there's an explicit text from the noble Qur'ān.

Shaykh: Excellent, and due to considering these people Muslims, such an act is considered denying and opposing (the Qur'ān), so does this issue have clearness or unclearness?

Clearness! This issue is precisely known, and likewise you can deduct from this, that every verse which Allāh has judged upon with Kufr for everyone that denies something from his verses or something from the Islamic rulings which the text has mentioned.

Is this clear O brothers? (Students reply "Clear"). Therefore, this is the first category and its ruling.

And the Scholars, may Allāh have spacious mercy upon them, have mentioned an Ijmā' upon the Kufr of whoever doesn't make Takfīr of this category or kind amongst the people.

Among those who have cited the Ijmā' regarding that is Al-Qādhī 'Iyādh (رحمه الله) in his book "Al-Shifā", and it's truly like what it's called, a Shifā' (cure), if the heart was purified and refined, indeed Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) will make these proofs a Shifā' (cure) for the doubts, and a Shifā' (cure) for everything that hangs in the mind of an individual.

And he (i.e. Al-Qādhī 'Iyādh) has mentioned an Ijmā' regarding the Kufr of whoever doesn't make Takfīr upon anyone amongst the christians and the jews, and everyone that distances himself from the religion of the Muslims, or halts in making Takfīr upon them or doubts, he (i.e. Al-Qādhī 'Iyādh) said:

"Because the Tawqīf (divine revelation) and Ijmā' have unanimously agreed upon their Kufr - {ponder with me brothers} - so whoever halts regarding that - {i.e. whoever doubts or corrects or} - then he has denied the text or Tawqīf (divine revelation)."

This is what we founded as a principle a short while ago, that the Manāt al-Kufrī (What Kufr is tied too) in this nullifier is what?

Look at what Al-Qādhī 'Iyādh (رحمه الله) affirms, "for he has denied the text or Tawqīf (divine revelation) or doubted in it, and denying or doubting it doesn't occur except from a Kāfir".

Therefore, we benefit from this citation several things:

That the Ijmā' is firmly established regarding the Kufr of whoever doesn't make Takfīr upon this kind, and we learnt the Manāt al-Takfirī for this Nullifier (i.e. What Takfīr is hanged upon in this nullifier), which is denying and opposing the judgement of Allāh or denying the text of the Sharī'ah.

Likewise, Shaykh Abū Butayn (رحمه الله) cited an Ijmā' pertaining whoever doesn't make Takfir upon the jews and christians, wherein he said:

"The muslims have unanimously agreed upon the Kufr of whoever doesn't make Takfir upon the jews and christians, or doubts in their Kufr".

Take heed, "we also have assurance that most of them (christians and jews) are ignorant", why? This matter is known from the religion by necessity, and the textual evidence is explicit and unanimously agreed upon, and there's not a single individual except that he has read the verses which are indicative of the Kufr of the jews and christians, or it has been recited to him.

Shaykh: Yes! Because this matter is clear, the text is explicit and agreed upon, so as we affirmed, we say that whoever falls into Major Shirk in the clear matters, where is the Ta'sīl (principles we laid out), isn't it present with us.

For indeed it's a clear matter, and likewise agreed upon, and the text pertaining it is explicit, so there's no way it could be unclear (concerning the Kufr of the jews and christians), and we mentioned right here, that the excuser of these (Kuffār), the text is clearly indicative of his Kufr, and he immediately falls under this nullifier, or this Rule.

And ofcourse as we have affirmed, the Kufr of the jews and christians is considered to be known in the religion by necessity, none of the masses or the scholars are ignorant of it, infact the Ēmān of any individual is not valid until he believes in the invalidity of every religion that opposes Islām, thus this is the first category.

There's another matter which we mentioned, and perhaps we will re-iterate it Inshā'Allāh, and also in the future lessons: We mentioned that there is the clearness of the action and the clearness of the reality of its doer. And there is the clearness of the action and the unclearness of the reality of its doer. And there is the unclearness of an action, so there's no doubt that they aren't upon a single level.

- The second category from the categories that fall under this Rule (3rd nullifier): Speech and actions which the text has made Takfir of those who adhere to it or act upon it.

Such as Istighātha (seeking help and refuge) in other than Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, and sacrificing to other than Allāh, prostrating to other than Allāh, ruling by other than what Allāh has revealed etc...and mocking Allāh or the religion or the honest messenger (عليه الصلاة والسلام), we will now address the details pertaining the ruling of this category, speak Shaykh.

Okay, excellent. You hastened (in our discussion), you mentioned a category and its correct Ta'sīl (established principles) regarding it. We say, whoever halts or doubts in the Kufr of the committer of any of these nullifiers, then it does not escape these situations:

- The first situation: And it is very precise, that he refrains from making Takfir, due to considering what he fell into as not being Kufr, meaning that he will tell you:

Sacrificing to other than Allāh is permissible, not Kufr, this individual is a Kāfir to begin with, whether he is hesitant in the Kufr of such an individual or not, because he viewed that these actions which the text has clearly considered disbelief for whoever commits it as not being Kufr, and this is rejecting and denying the textual Shar'ī evidence, that he doesn't make Takfir upon him due to considering what he fell into as not being Kufr.

Such as saying, sacrificing to other than Allāh, or ruling by other than what Allāh has revealed, or Istighātha (seeking help and refuge) from other than Allāh is not Kufr and it's from that which Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) has made permissible, so Kufr gets tagged along with this individual, we ask Allāh for good health and well-being.

- The second situation: Pay attention to the difference, these are very precise matters, that he refrains from making Takfir upon him whilst affirming that what this individual fell into is Kufr.

Ruling by other than what Allāh has revealed, he will say, I do not have the slightest of doubts that ruling by other than what Allāh has revealed is Kufr.

He slaughtered to other than Allāh, he will say, I do not have the slightest of doubts that this action is Kufr, however he refrains from making Takfir upon him whilst affirming that what the individual fell into was Kufr, but he refrains from applying Takfir upon him due to the presence of a Māni' (prevention) which prevented applying the ruling upon the committer of Kufr, and this is also not free from the following situations:

That the Māni' (impediment) which he mentioned is valid, and the application is correct. Therefore, what do we understand from this, that there are Mawāni' (impediments) that are valid and Mawāni' (impediments) that are invalid. And there are Mawāni' that are valid and the application of it is incorrect, and there are Mawāni' that are valid and the application of it is correct.

Therefore, it consists of different categories, speak ya Shaykh.

Student: Are the Murji'ah included in this (category)? They say, we know that ruling by other than what Allāh has revealed is Kufr, however did this person make Istihlāl (i.e. declare this action permissible) or not, so they don't make Takfīr upon him until he declares it permissible?

Shaykh: Okay, I'll ask you right now, that this Māni' (impediment) which he cited, is it a valid or invalid Māni'?

Student: Invalid.

Shaykh: Then this doesn't have any consideration given to it to begin with, it's excluded from what we're discussing.

And because everyone that falls into Kufr, you will find he has ta'wīl (misinterpretation), however not every ta'wīl (misinterpretation) is accepted, and not every Māni' (impediment) is possible to be applied (in every situation).

Ya'nī, for example: If you look towards the Māni' (impediment) of ignorance, you will find that there are matters where the Scholars have unanimously agreed that ignorance is not considered a Māni' (impediment) in it.

And there are Mawāni' (impediments) where the Scholars considered ignorance as a valid Māni' (impediment) in those issues.

So the clearness and unclearness of the issue has an effect (on applying rulings).

For instance, a clear matter which is known in the religion by necessity, then the Scholars have said as we have established via principles and affirmed, that whoever commits Shirk in the clear matters disbelieves, whether he was ignorant or had a misinterpretation.

Therefore, I repeat. We mentioned the first refrainer, now we will repeat the second refrainer, that he refrains from making Takfīr upon him whilst affirming that what this individual fell into was Kufr, however he refrained from making Takfīr upon the individual due to an impediment which prevented applying the ruling of Kufr upon the doer of Kufr.

Okay, I want to see if you guys are paying attention with me or not, (it seems) you're not paying attention? Is there a difference between the first refrainer and the second refrainer?

Student: Yes, ofcourse.

Shaykh: What is the difference?

Student: The difference, is that the first person refrained due to NOT considering what he fell into was Kufr.

Shaykh: Excellent.

Student: This person has Kufr applied upon him.

Shaykh: Excellent, why?

Student: Because this person has denied the text.

Shaykh: Excellent, and what about the second person?

Student: As for the second person, then it's also established via the text, however he had a Māni' (impediment) with him. And if there was truly a Māni' (preventative upon the doer of Kufr), so he doesn't make Takfīr upon him, then he did nothing wrong.

Shaykh: And this issue will be elaborated further, however right now I have understood your words, yes that's excellent. Because it's not possible to say here that this person didn't apply the ruling of the Sharī'ah upon him (doer of Kufr), for indeed he (the individual) is a doer of Kufr. But he says: Yes, he committed Kufr, however there was something which prevented the ruling (of Kufr) from falling upon him.

For instance, the one who is forced, he says a statement of disbelief, how come we don't call him a Kāfir?

Students: Because he is being forced.

Shaykh: Because this Māni' (of Ikrāh) prevented the ruling (of Kufr) from being applied upon him.

This is why this Māni' repels what's considered present (of Kufr) to being absent, is this clear? (Student replies, "Clear").

And the Mawāni' (preventions of Takfīr) my dear brothers, there are impediments which are taken into consideration in all matters of Ēmān and Kufr, such as Ikrāh for example. And there are impediments which are taken into consideration in some matters, not in others, and here is where mistakes occur, that you bring a Māni' (prevention of Takfīr) which the Scholars accepted in a specific issue, and then generalise it upon the other issues, or vice versa.

Such as ignorance for example, the Scholars take it into consideration in the unclear matters, it's necessary (to take it into consideration) if he was ignorant, so he is excused, and Kufr isn't tagged along with him until the Hujjah is established upon him, and he understands it.

Stipulating 'understanding' (of the hujjah) for example, you will find the Scholars affirming this in the unclear matters, so he generalises this stipulation, that some people amongst us came out and said: That the Tawāghit whose Kufr is known, and their Kufr is perhaps known amongst the young and elderly, he says "Kufr isn't tagged along with him until you establish the Hujjah upon him".

And the understanding of 'Hujjah' according to him is originally faulty, meaning that it's necessary to come, and sit with him, then afterwards show him the proof, and discuss with him concerning every proof, have you understood or not? Understood, so we will go to the other issue, you haven't understood, we will remain at the first until eternity.

The Prophets (عليهم الصلاة والسلام) whom Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) has sent them as a Hujjah to mankind, and they weren't to be considered 'addresses' to begin with, and they are immediately considered a Hujjah to mankind when Allāh sent them, infact the Prophet (ﷺ) said the exact opposite of this (i.e. the Hujjah wasn't to simply address the Mushrikīn) as it's narrated in Sahīh Muslim from the Hadīth of Abī Hurayrah:

"By Him in Whose hand is the life of Muhammad, he who amongst the Ummah {What is meant by Ummah here is Ummat al-Da'wah (those who are invited to the call of Islām)} of Jews or Christians hears about me, {Look at how he hanged the matter, he hanged it on mere 'hearing'}, but does not affirm his belief in that with which I have been sent and dies in this state (of disbelief), he shall be but one of the inhabitants of Hell-Fire"

Yes, therefore there's a difference between the refraining in the 1st situation and the refraining in the 2nd situation, so the Kufr of the 1st situation is clear, and the Kufr of the 2nd situation, we will mention its different circumstances, or in other words, what the 2nd person fell into from refraining has different circumstances.

Student: Shaykh, are the Mawānī' (preventions of Takfīr) able to be counted, or restricted to a specific number?

Shaykh: Yes, the Scholars have still remained mentioning them.

Student: Ya'nī, in every time, it's restricted or?

Shaykh: No, do not say at all times. Rather, some of the matters could become unclear in some societies, whilst being clear in others, and vice versa.

Student: Is it restricted to 4 (preventions), ignorance, misinterpretation, mistake, and coercion?

Shaykh: Yes, like 'mistakes' in this context is like...

Student: "You are my slave, and I am your lord"

Shaykh: Excellent, so here it's called 'slip of the tongue', so this is what's classified as a 'mistake', what does slip of the tongue mean? That you intend a wording or meaning, but what comes out from the tongue is another wording, and from the 'mistakes' is 'not wanting to do an action (but accidentally did it)'.

Look, there's a difference and don't confuse between "intending to do the action in one's heart (i.e. permitting Kufr)" and "intending to do the action (this is what he's judged by, even if he doesn't permit the Kufr act)", ya'nī for example: A man came to break a statue, so his foot slipped over a rock and fell in a position of prostration (towards the statue), this is an example.

This action by apparent is prostration and bending over, and the general basic principle regarding this bending over is that it's one of humbleness, submission and worship!

However what is it that prevents the ruling of Kufr from being applied? Do not include Qasd (intending with one's heart), the intending of the heart is whoever performs the action of prostration, he disbelieves even if didn't intend Kufr in his heart, have you understood the difference?

There is "intending the action" and "intending it by the heart (by permitting it)", what did the Murji'ah fall into? They said, he doesn't become a Kāfir until he intends it (allowed in his heart), and this is encounters the textual evidences of the Shar'ah!

Rather, Ahlus-Sunnah affirm that Kufr consists of different types: It could be through speech, actions, beliefs, doubts, denial, turning away etc...

But as for them, then no! They restricted it to belief in the heart, ya'nī he prostrates: What is this action? Kufr. When does he disbelieves according to them? "Until he believes it's permissible in his heart", and this is the peak of Irjā', Tajahhum (extracted from the term Jahmiyyah), we ask Allāh for good-health and well-being.

This person who prostrates takes the hukm (of Kufr), even if he didn't intend it (to be fine) in his heart. However in this example that I mentioned (of accidentally tripping to bend over to a statue), this is where you mention 'mistakes', no ruling (of Kufr) is tagged along with him. Why is that?

Because it's a mistake, and the action occurred without intending to do the action, pay attention to the difference. (Between) intending it with the heart and intending the action, there's a difference - Go ahead Shaykh.

Student: Such as the man in the desert (who found his camel).

Shaykh: Yes, excellent. We mentioned this, may Allāh bless you.

Yes, excellent. Therefore, this refrainer who affirms that what the specific individual fell into was Kufr has different circumstances:

- The first circumstance: That the Māni' (impediment) he cited is valid and the application is correct, then this person isn't included with us in the Rule (3rd nullifier) to begin with, have you understood this?

Yes, excellent! A valid Māni' (impediment) and a correct application, this person doesn't get tagged with it to begin with, no ruling (of Kufr) gets tagged along with him, in order for us to say: There is someone who doesn't make Takfir upon the Kāfir, this isn't included with us.

So when I mentioned to you right now, by using this scenario. We have affirmed that the ruling (of Kufr) gets tagged along with him or not? It doesn't, so based upon this, he isn't included within the Rule (3rd nullifier) to begin with. But rather our discussion is concerning an individual who gets tagged along with the ruling (of Kufr), so the refraining occurs.

- The second circumstance: That the Māni' (impediment) isn't valid, or that it's valid and the application is incorrect. Ya'nī for instance, what's an example for a Māni' (impediment) which isn't valid:

Student: Ignorance?

Shaykh: No Yā Shaykh, what we say here is that the Māni' (impediment) is valid, but the application is incorrect, because ignorance is a valid Māni' (impediment), however it's only applicable in certain matters, I'm asking you for a Māni' (impediment) which is not valid, ya'nī something which has no proof for it being a Māni' (impediment).

Such as if an individual says "excessive fear" which has no basis for it, or a man who does it for worldly benefit, there's a man who you ask, why did you join the army, the army of the Tāghūt? So a man comes along and says, "O man, this is a strange, poor, weak guy, he has children who he spends upon", right now he is citing a Māni' (impediment) which isn't valid.

What's intended is a valid Māni' (impediment) and the application is incorrect, it's a valid Māni' (impediment), however it isn't to be applied in these matters.

For example, you might come with "Jahl" (ignorance), and consider it a Māni' (impediment) in major Shirk, so we'll say to you, it's a valid Māni' (impediment) and the application is incorrect, because it's taken into consideration in some matters besides others, so what is the ruling upon such a person?

Student: To clarify it to him.

Shaykh: Excellent! We say that this person doesn't get the ruling applied upon him immediately, except after establishing the Hujjah and removing the doubts.

Why didn't we say that the Manāt (what Takfir is hanged upon) is fulfilled with him? Because he didn't deny (the text), he affirms that this action (the person fell into) is Kufr, however he says, there's a Māni' (impediment) which prevented applying the ruling of Kufr upon its doer.

Ya'nī, according to him to begin with, he says: "It hasn't been fulfilled with him to start with", or "the conditions haven't been fulfilled".

So here, we come towards what some of the brothers mentioned, they said "when does the misconception get removed and the Hujjah gets established?"

The Ta'sīl (aforementioned principles) will be brought to us that we mentioned to you, so if the action was clear and the reality of the doer is clear, does the circle of establishing the Hujjah tighten or expand? It tightens! Infact you may not find any loops for it (due to it being clear)

And if the action was clear, however the reality of the doer was unclear, in this case it expands.

Therefore, let no one come and unrestrictedly claim establishing the Hujjah and removing misconceptions is required.

And let no one come and completely abandon establishing the Hujjah and removing misconceptions.

But rather, what we say is that this is according to the action and the reality of the doer.

Right now, an important issue will arise - Pay attention: Applying the rulings upon the individuals is from the matters that require observations and the Ijtihād of the one who is fit to determine the rulings in this topic, so whoever acquired this ability, it's permissible for him to delve and observe further into this matter, and whoever doesn't acquire this ability, then he's not allowed to do so.

Okay, but where is the proof for this?

Student: Doesn't this fall underneath giving Fatwā?

Shaykh: Yes it is issuing a Fatwā without a doubt. What is application? Is it knowledge or not? It's knowledge, and pay attention that we're talking about, "Whoever doesn't make Takfīr upon the Kāfir".

And the confusion within the issue of "Whoever doesn't make Takfīr upon the Kāfir" is more apparent and clearer than the one who actually falls into Kufr.

And what we will address, is that the discussion concerning this nullifier revolves around 3 points. The one who commits Kufr to begin with, the one who refrains from making Takfīr upon him, and the one who refrains from making Takfīr upon the one who refrained (from making Takfīr).

Ahlus-Sunnah do not give the same hukm upon the third person like the second person (the one who refrains on making Takfīr upon the Kāfir), and the words of Imām al-Maltī (رحمه الله تعالى) will come shortly, wherein he spoke about the 'Aqīdah of the Mu'tazilah in Basrah and the Mu'tazilah of Baghdād, and he differentiated between them, and we'll come to it, so don't hasten towards it.

However, understand that the 'Āthir (refrainer) of the 'Āthir (refrainer) doesn't get a ruling (of Kufr) tagged along with him, because according to Ahlus-Sunnah as it will be shown by a valuable precious citation from Imām al-Maltī (رحمه الله تعالى), as the TV hosts say, "in the next episode".

So we mentioned applying rulings upon specific individuals and that it's from the matters that stop at the analysis and Ijtihād of the one suitable to make a judgement concerning this matter, so whoever acquired this ability, it's permissible for him to delve and observe further into this matter, and whoever doesn't acquire this ability, then he's not allowed to do so.

We said, what is the proof for that?

Student: Proof from the 'Aql (intellect) ya'hī...

Shaykh: The 'Aql?! Māshā'Allāh, Yallāh Abū al-'Aql (Shaykh making a joke).

Student 1: Since it returns back to being established via proof (from the text) and removing misconceptions, then this is not to be delved into except by a person who has knowledge surrounding the issue.

Student 2: There's a difference between the Asl (falling into Kufr itself) and the Far' (branch issue of the 3rd nullifier), so it's a condition that he's a person fit to determine rulings in it, such as (surrounding) someone who doesn't make Takfīr (upon the doer of Kufr).

Shaykh: Yes, excellent. That's why whoever delves into other than his field, he will come with strange things, there is a divine command, where Allāh, the Majestic and Exalted says:

"Ask the people of knowledge...", when? "...if you don't know..."

If we come to know that this person acquires this ability and encompassed the knowledge surrounding this issue, there's no blame upon him in an Islamic aspect, however when is he blamed? When a person hasn't encompassed the knowledge surrounding the issue, and delves into it, this is where faults are to be found.

I'll give an example right now: Let's say that there's a man who is suffering from a heart disease - May Allāh give us and you and every muslim well-being - then he faints on the floor quickly between us, and all of the people of this gathering knows that they don't have any ability or knowledge in medicine, nothing close or far to it.

So I rolled up my sleeves and said: "Give me the knife - may Allāh have mercy upon you all - so that I may perform a surgery operation for this man", is it permissible for me to do this or not permissible?

Students: Not permissible!

It's not permissible, SubhānAllāh, all the people condemned this action of mine, despite the fact that it relates to the life of a single human, so how about the case with the religion of an entire Ummah?!

Students: Allāhu Akbar!

So that's why we say, whoever is eloquent in discussion, and possessed the ability then there's no rebuke upon him, however the problem in the matters of application, is when someone who is not suitable to enter into it, delves into it and comes with strange things.

And this issue if ours, why do we say that it's required to make an analysis and the Ijtihād of one fit to determine a judgement?

Because he is the one who knows the islamic ruling and the reality of the matter, because it's stipulated with us at all times in the matters related to Fatwā or matters of application or what's similar to that, that we have knowledge of the islamic ruling in this specific issue and the reality of this issue in and of itself, the reality of the person falling into it etc...

Because for example, at times, and you will even find this in the speech of the early generations, you will find that they possess the ability and are suitable to pass judgements, and they could differ with regards to a specific individual amongst the people, and examples will be brought to us regarding that.

Student: Pardon me Shaykh, I have a question. In a previous lesson, it was about fulfilling the Shurūt (conditions of Takfīr) and removal of Mawānī' (preventatives of Takfīr). So being fit to analyse this topic means you need to know when the conditions are fulfilled and the preventatives are removed.

Shaykh: Yes, excellent. This is concerning the ruling according to the Shari'ah, and likewise the reality (of the matter).

Infact, at times, there could be a Scholar who knows the ruling with its details attached to it, however he is ignorant of the reality, so it becomes Harām for him to apply rulings.

And there could be a person who knows the reality with its edges and specific details, whilst he was ignorant of the islamic ruling, it becomes Harām for him to apply rulings, "He must combine between both", yes, the judgement of Allāh in this issue and the reality of who he will apply the judgement of Allāh and its true state of affairs.

And ofcourse, the one fit to determine that ruling, we said that the matters can expand with regards to applying the Hujjah and removing misconceptions, likewise he must be someone fit to determine rulings (of the issue), and here his opinion is open to being correct and mistaken, so the correct view may be with whoever made Takfīr and the mistaken one may be contrary to that, and it could be the other way around, the correct view may be with whoever gave an excuse, and the mistake is with who made Takfīr, and vice versa, etc...

So by this, we will have finished today's lesson, and I apologise for taking longer, and we'll finish it off in the next lesson tomorrow Inshā'Allāh. All praise belongs to Allāh, and peace and blessings be upon the Messenger of Allāh, and upon all of his household and companions, and those who followed them with excellence till the day of judgement.

The Mujāhid Shaykh Anwar Al 'Awlakī رحمه الله said:

Yahya Ibn Ma'in and Ahmad Ibn Hanbal and some other Scholars say that At-Tāifah Mansūrah, "They are the people of Hadīth (Ahlu Hadīth)." Now, what is meant by the people of Hadīth? It means it is the people who are the closest to following the Sunnah of Rasūlullāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم). It is the people who emphasize on the Sunnah of Rasūlullāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم), that is the Tāifah.

It doesn't necessarily mean Scholars of Hadīth. At-Tāifah, sometimes when it says Ahlu Hadīth we misinterpret it because there is a group named Ahlu Hadīth and their Scholars of Hadīth, we misinterpret the meaning of Ahlu Hadīth to mean Scholars of Hadīth. Does that mean the Scholars of Fiqh are not in the Tāifah? Or the Scholars of Tafsir? So that is not the right understanding of what Ahlu Hadīth means.

Ahlu Hadīth means the people of Hadīth, the people who are following the Hadīth of Rasūlullāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم) and trying to emulate his way in their lives. Which makes the Mujāhidīn the closest to this definition because they are the ones who are trying their best to follow the Sunnah of Rasūlullāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم). Therefore, you would find it's very rare to find amongst the Mujāhidīn people who have a problem with his Sunnah. The whole lifestyle of Jihād brings you على الله) and wanting to be like Rasūlullāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم) closer to the Sunnah of Rasūlullāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم) and wanting to be like Rasūlullāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم).

If you wanted to be like Rasūlullāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم) and the things that preoccupied Rasūlullāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم) for his entire stay in Medīnah, why wouldn't you want to be like him in the way he looked or the way he ate or issues that are much simpler? So Ahlu Hadīth here is the people who are trying to follow the way of Rasūlullāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم) in their life.

That is what is meant by Ahlu Hadīth.

False Preventative (2/12)

The Imām, Shaykh Fāris az-Zahrānī (تقبله الله) said:

2. And it's not from the impediments of Takfīr that the Murtad is from the people of knowledge (Scholar etc..), or that he is a member in a particular committee, or from the people who have beards, or from a particular Islamic Group, or that he carries a Masters (degree) or Doctorate in Sharī'ah and what's similar to that; in which some people assume and conceive.

For indeed, the religion of Allāh is implemented upon everyone, and it doesn't specify a particular group over another, or a particular person over another, or a land over another, for verily Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, said about one of the Major Scholars whom has been mentioned that he knows the name of Allāh, al-A'tham (the most great):

"And recite to them, [O Muhammad ﷺ], the news of him to whom we gave [knowledge of] Our signs, but he detached himself from them; so Satan pursued him, and he became of the deviators - And if We had willed, we could have elevated him thereby, but he adhered [instead] to the earth and followed his own desire. So his example is like that of the dog: if you chase him, he pants, or if you leave him, he [still] pants." [7:175-176]

And Allāh, the Exalted, said in regards to the best of His creation, and they are the Prophets, may Allāh's peace and blessings be upon them:

"Those are the ones to whom We gave the Scripture and authority and prophethood...(till the end of the verses)" [6:89].

And also here is 'Abdullāh Ibn Sa'd Ibn Abī Al-Sarh who was among those that would write the wahī (i.e. revelation), and he was a scribe for the Prophet (ﷺ), then he turned back on his heels (i.e. became an apostate).

So the Messenger of Allāh (ﷺ) ordered for him to be killed, even if they find him hanging onto the carpet of the Ka'bah.

But then he later repented and returned back to Islām on the Year of "al-Fath" (i.e. When Makkah was conquered), so 'Uthmān Ibn 'Affān - and he was his brother through nursing - brought him to the Prophet(ﷺ), so he gave Bay'ah (i.e. Allegiance).

And his story with its various narrations, Shaykh al-Islām (Ibn Taymiyyah) summarised and spoke about its benefits in "Al-Sārim al-Maslūl", and the significance behind it is that him being from those who wrote the wahī (revelation) for the Prophet(ﷺ) didn't prevent Kufr and Apostasy from being applied upon him, when he came with something that caused that.

And also here is Sa'd Ibn 'Ubādah (رضي الله عنه), when he said to Sa'd Ibn Mu'ādh (رضي الله عنه) about someone who outwardly displays Islām, "Don't kill him, and you won't be able to kill him", Usayd Ibn Hudhayr (رضي الله عنه) said (to Sa'd Ibn 'Ubādah):

"You're a Munāfiq who argues on behalf of the Munāfiqeen".

And the Prophet (ﷺ) approved him over this statement as that has been mentioned in the "Sahīhayn" (Bukhārī & Muslim).

And also here is 'Umar Ibn Al-Khattāb (رضي الله عنه), who says to Hātib Ibn Abī Balta'ah (رضي الله عنه):

"Allow me (O Messenger of Allāh) to strike the neck of this Munāfiq" and in another narration "Certainly he has disbelieved".

So the Messenger of Allāh (ﷺ) said: "Verily he has witnessed (and fought) in Badr, who knows, perhaps Allāh has looked at the warriors of Badr and said (to them), 'Do whatever you like, for I have forgiven you..'"

Despite the fact that the door of misinterpretations and justifications is wide open for Sa'd Ibn 'Ubādah and Hātib and others, may Allāh be pleased with them, if it was how the Shaykhs and Murji'ah of our time wanted it to be like, in understanding the establishers of the Islamic State in al-Madīnah:

A) Then why didn't the Sahābah, may Allāh be pleased with them, say "how can you curse Usayd Ibn Hudhayr, a Scholar from the 'Ulamā' of the Sahābah, and a Big Mujāhid, for indeed the flesh of the Scholars is poisonous, and the habitual nature of those who belittle them are well-known?"

B. And why didn't the Sahābah, may Allāh be pleased with them, say that what Sa'd Ibn 'Ubādah did accompanies an enormously great Maslahah (benefit) which fends off a great Mafsadah (harm), how so?

C) And why didn't the Sahābah, may Allāh be pleased with them, say that this man who he (i.e. Sa'd Ibn 'Ubādah) defended is a leader of a tribe, so he is defending him to repel his tribe from being incited against Islām, the Muslims, the Islamic State, and he is safe-guarding the Da'wah and uniting the hearts of the tribe towards the Islamic State?

D) And why didn't the Sahābah, may Allāh be pleased with them, say that this man was outwardly displaying Islām, he prays, fasts, performs Jihād with the Muslims, so (therefore) his situation is ambiguous to the muslims?

E) And why didn't the Sahābah, may Allāh be pleased with them, say that even though Sa'd Ibn 'Ubādah made a mistake, except that he has a mountain of virtuous deeds, and this is a slip of a Scholar, and this statement is invalid & is not allowed to be said against a Scholar who has virtuous deeds, due to 1 non-repetitive mistake he made, and it's not permissible to follow the slips and faults of the Scholars?

F) And why didn't the Sahābah, may Allāh be pleased with them, say that even though Sa'd Ibn 'Ubādah made a mistake, except that he has misinterpretations (in what he did), and ta'wīl (misinterpretation) prevents the legislative description from being applied to the action and punishment?

G) And why didn't the Sahābah, may Allāh be pleased with them, say that it's necessary upon Usayd Ibn Hudhayr to not hasten and rush into Takfīr like this, and rather he must be given 1000 excuses before accusing a great Mujāhid which the Islamic State was established upon through his sacrifices with the likes of this outrageous description?

Why didn't they say all of this? Because they didn't learn the apparent Masālih (benefits) doctrines with its precise superficiality, and their mirror of foresight didn't flip the other way around and become black so that the Haqq is seen as Bātil, and the Bātil is seen as Haqq, and the Bid'ah is seen as a Sunnah, and the Sunnah is seen as a Bid'ah, and Tawhīd is seen as Shirk, and Shirk is seen as Tawhīd and Corruption and Maslahah, and Maslahah is seen as Corruption, for indeed they know that Tawhīd is more pure than purified honey and more finer than الماء الزلال, and clearer than milk from the (cow's) udders, and (they know) that a small drop of allegiance and a blemish of praising the Tāghūt even if it's perhaps for the sake of the Da'wah's Masalah will place dirt on this unblemished pureness and remove its crystal purity.

And as for the Māni' (preventative) of having a beard as some people say, then know that the people in the past would not shave their beards, except for a small bizarre exception of people.

And likewise the Imāms of Kufr were famous by their long beards, so it wasn't an obstacle for the ruling of Kufr to be applied upon them as some intend in this era of strange bizarreness, so do not be deceived by what the Āl Sa'ūd government do, for their ending has approached soon, and the time has come for taking revenge from them, and Allāh has full power and control over His affairs, however most of the people do not know!!

And this is another proof, however it's not with regards to the issue of Takfīr:

Salmān, Bilāl and Suhayb, may Allāh be pleased with them, when they said to Abī Sufyān, "Didn't you see how the sword moved over the neck of the enemy of Allah (i.e. Abū Jahl being slaughtered)?" , Abū Bakr al-Siddīq said: "Are you saying this to the chief of Quraysh??!", so the Messenger of Allāh (ﷺ) said: "If you had enraged them (the 3 companions in the Hadīth), then you have enraged your lord".

So what do the Shaykhs and Students of Knowledge have to say, when we say to a famous big preacher, "Indeed you're a Munāfiq who argues on behalf of the Tawāghūt", or we said to a big Scholar, "If you enrage the believing Mujāhideen, the allies of Allāh, by your praise of the Tāghūt, then you have enraged your Lord"??!!!!

The response to if we said that - AND WE HAVE SAID IT - the world would have erupted upon us, and the schools of demoralisation and hindrance and discouragement would have rushed to make Jihād (upon us) which has been removed intentionally (from the curriculum), including the pre-meditated response and (their monitoring) ready to attack by the sword of the Sharī'ah and executioner from the Millah of infidels in raising the sharp swords to strike our necks [1].

[1] Important Note: It's necessary to differentiate in this topic between what's considered explicitly Kufr that takes one outside the fold of Islām, and what's not considered Kufr derived from a mistaken Ijtihād wherein the mistaken person is rewarded for his Ijtihād or slips of the tongue that could occur with some of the Scholars or its seekers of knowledge.

So one should not be ill-mannered with them due to that (mistake) or be audacious of them because of it, or turn away from their knowledge or diverting the youth from their books, especially if they were from the supporters of the religion, who stand up with disavowal from the Tawāghīt and Murtaddīn.

It's narrated in Saḥīḥ al-Bukhārī, (Chapter: The merits of Al-Ansar), sub-heading of the Prophet's statement:

"And accept from those who do good from them, so forgive those who do wrong from them."

And he mentioned Hadīths from it, such as the Hadīth or Anas regarding the request of the Prophet regarding the Ansār, and it contains his statement:

"I request you to take care of the Ansār..." until he said, "And accept from those who do good from them, so forgive those who do wrong from them."

So the supporters of the religion, they are the Tā'ifah (group) which stands up for the religion of Allāh, who give up their entire life and exert immense efforts in granting victory to the religion of Allāh and His Tawhīd, they have a share of this Prophetic request in every era.

So the advice of the Prophet must be preserved regarding them, and be aware from raising the foolish ones and common people above them, for indeed that would bring sweetness to the eyes of the enemies of Allāh and enemies of this blessed Da'wah, and no one with a sound mind or a Faqeeh would give precedence over the likes of such. (Refer to "Ar-Risālah ath-Thalāthīniyyah" by Abī Muhammad al-Maqdisī).

The Imām, Shaykh Fāris az-Zahrānī (تقيله الله) said:

1. So therefore, it's not from the impediments of Takfīr that the Murtad is a Saudi [1] or from Jazeerat al-'Arab, or an Arab, unless we claim the infallibility of an individual other than our Prophet Muhammad (ﷺ) or for a (specific) people, and whoever claims that has disbelieved, infact history affirms that many of those from Jazeerat al-'Arab after our Prophet Muhammad (ﷺ) passed away, became apostates from the religion of Allāh.

Infact those who were with Musaylamah al-Kathāb were more than 100,000 (Kuffār), as Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah (رحمه الله) mentioned, and we have mentioned that in the "First Proof" (i.e. earlier on in the shaykh's book).

And likewise, a large amount of (people) became apostates from the followers or Al-Aswad al-'Insī.

And likewise those who abstained from giving the Zakāt, the Sahābah ruled upon every single one of them with disbelief, and Shaykh Muhammad Ibn Ibrāhīm Āl al-Shaykh was asked: Was the fighting of those who refused to give Zakāt one of apostasy? So he answered:

"What's correct is that it was a (fighting) of apostasy, because (Abū Bakr) al-Siddīq did not differentiate between them, neither did the rest of the Sahābah, nor those who came after them."

And these stories & narrations aren't hidden from anyone, even from the general people, let alone the students of knowledge among the people, Wallāhul Musta'ān.

Shaykh's Footnotes :

[1] What we always call upon the youth, is to refrain from using the word "Sa'ūdī" due to it being indicative in abhorrent compliance with the family of Āl Sa'ūd, and to replace it - with regards to the country or tribe or city - with "Ahlal Jazeerah".

#Refuting_false_preventatives_of_Takfir

Introduction

The Imām, Shaykh Fāris az-Zahrānī (تقبله الله) said:

The second rule: That the Shurūt (conditions) of Takfīr, and its Mawānī' (preventatives) and Asbāb (causes of Kufr) are not affirmed and taken into consideration except with a valid proof from the Sharī'ah, or in other words:

"The preventatives and what stipulates as a condition (in Takfīr), and likewise the causes (of Kufr) must be affirmed and taken into consideration via a proof from the Sharī'ah"

So the Mawānī' (preventatives) and Shurūt (conditions) and Asbāb (causes), this is all from the Ahkām al-Sharīyyah al-Wad'iyyah (enactments), which the Sharī'ah has placed via Tawqīf (require valid proof from the text). [1]

So everyone who claims a condition or preventative or cause without a proof from the Sharī'ah, then he is among those who fabricate lies against Allāh, and speaks about Allāh without knowledge.

It's not permissible to innovate causes or conditions or preventatives of Takfīr, which Allāh has never sent down any authority for, and whoever does that falls under the general meaning of Allāh's statement:

"Or have they other deities who have ordained for them a religion to which Allāh has not consented?" [42:21]

And Allāh's statement, "They took their monks and rabbis as lords besides Allāh" [9:31]

And Allāh's statement, "And they speak lies about Allāh while they know." [3:78]

So a muslim must be warned from that and know that, "Most of the Usūliyyīn (Scholars of Usūl al-Fiqh) prohibited making Qiyās (analogy) in determining conditions, causes and preventatives" [2].

A story

Shaykh Faris Āl Shuwail Az-Zahrani رحمه الله was known for being a man of a clear Manhaj, he never compromised, always declaring what he believes in; clear as day.

He was once visited in his cell by 'Ali Al 'Afnan may Allah curse him, who told the Shaykh: "Ask for whatever you want and we will fulfill it" and carried on showing off to Sheikh Faris the things they'll give him.

So the Shaykh replied: "I do not want anything, my demands are clear; why are you halting and preventing my marriage?"

Al 'Afnan said: "You want to marry a terrorist"

The Shaykh said: "It's simple, a terrorist will marry a terrorist, what's the problem."

Al 'Afnan continued: "She'll bear another terrorist."

The Shaykh said: "Just like you; a tyrant who marries a tyrant, who will bear another tyrant - Then my son will fight your son, and that's just the Sunnah of the conflict between the Truth and falsehood."

Al 'Afnan couldn't reply back, so he said: "Take this paper and write your demands to Muhammed ibn Nayyef", the Sheikh took it and wrote "Peace upon the one who follows true guidance"

Al 'Afnan asked: "How could you write 'peace upon the one who follows true guidance' is he a Kafir?"

The Shaykh answered: "And do you doubt in his Kufr?"

It was then that Al 'Afnan left with sweat dripping down his forehead.

Short biography of the Imām, Shaykh Musā'id Ibn Bashīr (فك الله أسرته):

"Do you know who is the Shaykh, the Muhaddith, the Faqeeh, Abū Usāmah Ibn Bashīr al-Sadīrah?

All praise belongs to Allāh, the lord of mankind, and peace and blessings be upon the most noble of messengers, our master Muhammad, and upon all of his household and companions, to proceed:

The Shaykh, the Faqeeh, the Muhaddith, Musā'id Ibn Bashīr Ibn 'Alī al-Hassanī al-Sharīf, most famously known as Hāj al-Sadīrah, was born in the year 1944AD which similarly corresponds to the year 1363AH.

He was born in "al-'Aslāt", then his family moved to the western area of "al-Sadīrah", and over there, he met the Shaykh, the Muhaddith, the Faqeeh, the Wara' (devoutly pious), Shaykh al-Fakī 'Umar al-Fannūjī, when he was 9 years old, so he resided with the Shaykh and studied alot from him.

And Shaykh 'Umar travelled around the countries for Da'wah and knowledge, so he travelled to al-Maghrib al-'Arabī, whilst Shaykh Musā'id was at a young age, and he received an Ijāzah from Shaykh al-Kittānī, and he attended his lessons and listened from him.

Moreover, Shaykh 'Umar travelled to Egypt, and he was among those who received knowledge by the hands of Shaykh Muhammad al-Badawī, and Shaykh Musā'id learnt from him 'Ulūm al-Qur'ān (sciences of the Qur'ān), and Fiqh, and Hadīth, and the islamic sciences.

And Shaykh Fakī 'Umar is a man of high enthusiasm in teaching and reading all the way till the end of his life, may Allāh have mercy upon him.

Shaykh Musā'id recited the Qur'ān upon him with the Riwāyah (recitation) of Warsh and ad-Dawrī.

And he recited upon him in the Mālikī Fiqh, "Al-'Ashmāwiyyah", and "Ibn 'Ashūr", and "Akh'dharī", "al-'Uzyah", and "al-Mayārah al-Sughrāh" and "al-Kubrah", and "Ar-Risālah" by Ibn Abī Zayd (Al-Qayrawānī) with its Sharh, and "Mukhtasar Khaleel", and "al-Mudawanah al-Kubrah".

And in the Sunnah, he recited upon him the 6 books of Hadīth, and "Fath al-Bārī", and "al-Mu'jam al-Tabarānī al-Saghīr", and al-Muwatta' through several narrations from it {Al-Qa'nabī, and Ash-Shaybānī, and Al-Laythī}, and "Al-Sunan al-Kubrah", and "Mukhtasar Ibn Hamzah", and "Al-Arba'een al-Nawawiyyah", and "al-'Ajlūniyyah", and other than that, so we don't extend the speech.

And he recited upon him in 'Aqīdah, "al-Wāsitiyyah", and "at-Tahāwiyyah", and (he read) the Ash'arī books of creed.

And in al-Mustalah (al-Hadīth) he recited upon him, "Mizān al-'Itidāl" by al-Dhahabī.

And he also studied under Shaykh 'Abdul Wahhāb al-Sarāj and Shaykh Muhammad Ahmad 'Umar al-'Abbāsī, the Imām of al-Masjid al-Kabīr at the time, and studied under Shaykh Majthūb Mudathir al-Hijāz.

Shaykh Musā'id recited Sahīh al-Bukhārī and Tafsīr upon Shaykh Majthūb Mudathir Al-Hijāz, and he was a Shaykh of the Tījāniyyah sect in Sūdān, Shaykh Musā'id said about him, "He has a concern for narrations and knowledge, except that he was extreme in at-Tījāniyyah (a wicked sect in Africa).

And likewise with Shaykh Ibrāhīm Ibn Inyās al-Kūlakhī, Shaykh Musā'id said, "Shaykh Zuhayr al-Shāwīsh pointed to me to exclude the likes of these from my Ijāzah's (as they are deviant shuyūkh), and there's no need to mention much about the likes of these and their likes".

Also Shaykh Muhammad Najīb al-Mutīrī, who passed away in Madīnah in the year 1986AD, and he resided for a while in Sūdān and he wanted to establish a school for Ahl al-Hadīth, and he wasn't successful in doing that, so he went back to al-Hijāz and appointed a teacher in Jiddah university, Shaykh Musā'id recited upon him the 6 books of Hadīth, except some portions from (sunan) Ibn Mājah, Shaykh Musā'id said about him:

"I recited the 6 books of Hadīth upon him, except some portions from (sunan) Ibn Mājah", and he was zealous to the Ash'arī creed and also zealous to Ibn Taymiyyah (رحمه الله), whilst he had some Tasawwuf (Sūfī inclinations), but he wasn't among the extreme ones.

And he also travelled to al-Hijāz and resided there for years, so he met Shaykh 'Alī al-Hindī and Shaykh Muhammad al-Mukhtār al-Shinqīrī, the father of the Dr. muhammad Mukhtār, and also the Shaykh al-Musnad al-Muhaddith Muhammad Yāsīn al-Fādānī, Shaykh Musā'id heard the 6 books of Hadīth from him, Shaykh Musā'id said:

"I recited and heard the 6 books of Hadīth and many of the Musalsalāt (Hadīths that are narrated from a Shaykh returning all the way back to the Rasūl) under Shaykh Muhammad Yāsīn al-Makki al-Fādānī from the inhabitants of Jāwah."

And Shaykh 'Abdul Fattāh al-Shinqīrī, Shaykh Musā'id said:

"Shaykh 'Abdul Fattāh al-Shinqīrī who resides in al-Hafā'ir in Makkah, I recited upon him, Mustadrak al-Hākim, Alfīyyat Ibn Mālik, Al-Shātibiyyah with at-Taysīr by al-Dānī".

And Shaykh 'Abdullāh al-Lahjī al-Yamanī al-Hadramī al-Makkī: He went through "al-Minhāj" with him and the Shāfi'yyah books, and he gave me an Ijāzah, just as many of the Scholars gave him an Ijāzah, such as Shaykh 'Abdillāh Ibn al-Siddīq al-Ghimārī, and he travelled towards him to al-Maghrib and met him in Cairo in the year 1988AD, Shaykh Musā'id said:

"And he gave me an Ijāzah and I recited upon him Sahīh al-Bukhārī and other than it".

And he (i.e. Shaykh Musā'id Ibn Bashīr) met with Shaykh al-Albānī, the Shaykh heard Sahīh Al-Bukhārī more than 65 times as he narrated to me by his own words, and he heard it one complete time in Kuwait in 8 days with Shaykh 'Abdul Haqq al-Hāshimī, just like he heard the Musnad of Imām Ahmad completely twice, and this is very difficult to occur, may Allāh preserve him and reward him with good.

Just like he heard the books of the Sunnah in Saudi arabia and kuwait and syria and egypt and other places, and he has lessons almost daily in his home, and he had an institute which the government Sūdānī security forces closed down.

After they imprisoned him for a long time, he travelled around Sūdān for Da'wah for the sake of Allāh and spreading the teachings of Hadīth and the Prophetic Sunnah, and reviving the Sunnah of the Salaf in the attentive gatherings.

And the Shaykh has a cartilage disease, and despite this, he is able to bear sitting down for a long time to listen, and I was with him in 1 of the years, when he visited the (saudi) kingdom, and he heard Muwatta' Mālik in al-Madīnah al-Nabawiyyah, a group of students of knowledge gathered around him, and the Shaykh is an aspiration with regards to hospitality and chastity and safe-guarding his tongue and preserving knowledge and understanding it, calm nature, he is a lover of goodness and lover of gatherings of knowledge and its people, he is stern against the people of falsehood.

And after all of this knowledge and virtue and lofty status, he was faced with arrest more than once. One occasion is when he went to egypt on a trip for treatment in the year 2009, he was arrested at the airport prior to his departure to Sūdān {with an order by the Sūdānī government} for 15 days, he was prevented from taking medicine and his eyes were closed, and he was prevented from Salāh, and they would not allow him to pray with a loud voice at all, nor to pray in congregation.

The Shaykh said that he faced beatings by the hands that confined him, and he was once hit by a metal instrument without being struck with an affliction, and he said:

"They stripped me from my clothes naked completely 4 times, and they made me face torture by electricity, however the doctor prevented them from using it with me after they consulted him concerning my health situation".

And he alluded towards the fact that they would only allow him to pray {the way they liked him too}, so loudly reciting was prohibited, and likewise praying in congregation, and at the place of his confinement, he said:

"My eyes were blind-folded from cairo airport and throughout the whole time of my confinement, and my eyes wouldn't open except that I would see a painful view, they threatened to afflict me with it if I do not give in".

And when he was released, the Shaykh said:

"I came to know by the order from the egyptian security offices who apologised to me, under the pretext that they had false information about a Sudanese man {they mentioned his name to me} who was the reason behind my arrest".

Moreover, the Shaykh was arrested after the incident that occurred outside the american embassy in "Khartūm" prior 2 years to when the monotheist muslims came out in defence of their prophet, he was arrested for more than 8 months consecutively, and his eye-sight was almost taken away if it wasn't for Allāh's kindness to him. And he was beaten on his head severely, and he was also imprisoned more than once during his youth days, and for a period of several months consecutively.

This is who the Shaykh, Al-'Allāmah, Al-Muhaddith, al-Faqeeh, Musā'id Ibn Bashīr al-Sadīrah is, O Allāh protect him and free him from the prisons of Sūdān's Tawāghīh.

This is a portion of the Shaykh's biography, may Allāh free him, which was written by one of his students.” [1]

~ It was narrated to you by your brother, Abū Zayd al-Sūdānī. [2]

[1] Translator's Note: The Shaykh was imprisoned on October 2012 and was released mid-2013, and he remained defending the righteous Mujāhideen and speaking the truth until he was arrested again and is still in prison till this day, may Allāh preserve him and hasten his release.

"When you are always late for salah, it says a lot about you and your character. It shows that you lack discipline, internal strength, and integrity to be where you are supposed to be 'on time' for your most important appointments of the day, and you are not dependable.

No one likes to say about themselves that they are not dependable or lack discipline, but actions speak louder than words, and being late for salah is the first warning that you are on a slippery slope towards being chronically late in everything else in your life.

[AR] Excellent book "More than 200 words in the Qur'ān which may be understood incorrectly".

This shows the importance of studying the book of Allāh under the Scholars, as these misunderstandings are widespread among the general masses.

The one who has a problem with his brother after 3 days he has no excuse to forsake him so what should we say about the one who forsakes him over no reason. Many shabab al tawhid have this mentality where they want to keep ignoring their brothers and for years and years they carry on.

The book Al-Mabsoot by Imam As-Sarakhsi is one of the greatest & most important books in the Hanafi Madhab

The amazing thing is not just that it's an amazing book and not that it's 30 volumes. The true amazing thing is the fact that the Imam wrote it while in prison in a well without paper or pen. He would teach his students and they wrote it down for him outside the prison.

SubhanAllah look how our scholars strove to spread knowledge even in the most difficult of circumstances. May Allah have mercy on all the scholars of the Ummah and grant them the highest levels of Jannah.

Ibn Abdīr-Rahmān Al-Atharī *LESSONS FROM THE ANNALS OF MUSLIM HISTORY*

*The Well that gave out Ilm* In the year 466 After the Hijrah, the Muslim Ummah in the land of Naysābur were led by the fearful Amir, the Khāqām of his people. It was mentioned in our history that the Khāqām married a Slave girl after he freed her without allowing her observe the 'Iddah of 'Istibrā'... The Master Imām, the Sun of the Imams, the Hanafī Stalwart and Erudite Shaykh, Abū Bakr Muhammad Ibn Ahmad Ibn Abī Sahl As-Sarakhsī - rahimahullāh - was the shining Star of the city of Sarakhs, in the Khurasān region at that time. He had excelled in the Hanafī Fiqh and the bearers of Ilm in his time and School had surrendered the Imamate to him due to his diligence, intellect and brilliance. The people rushed to As-Sarakhsī to ask him what he held as position on this act of the Khāqām who had proceeded to wed the Slave girl without the 'Istibrā'. Everyone who lived the time knew that going against the Sultan was writing for oneself the sentence of death. But As-Sarakhsī, the Imām he was, refused to bend the text or to misrepresent the seat of Ilm he occupied, he declared to all that what the Khāqām had done was Harām punishable in the Sharī'ah. Khāqām retaliated the Imām's audacity and sentenced him to imprisonment indefinitely in a well that had ran out of water. Imām As-Sarakhsī was patient with life in his dark well where nothing lived except the rodents that move in the land and the insects that crawl. Muhammad 'AbdulQādir Al-Qurashī mentioned in his biographical corpus 'Al-Jawāhiru Al-Mudiyyah Fī Tabaqāti Al-Hanāfiyyah' that As-Sarakhsī spent 15 years of his life in this well in oppression. His food was served to him by the guards. So was his waste attended to. But the Imām was steadfast, patient and resolute. His students came to the opening of his Well and gathered around it to learn. He would dictate to them his Fiqh and his Hadīth and they would write and transmit to others. Thus, even in the depths of the well, As-Sarakhsī remained the Imām that kept teaching and enlightening the Ummah. Of the excellent works he produced from the Well is his book 'Al-Mabsūt Fī Al-Fiqh' in 15 volumes, all dictated from his memory without reference to a writing or a revision from a peer. He also dictated his Sharh of Ash-Shaybānī's 'As-Siyaru Al-Kabīr' of two volumes from this well. It is said that when he was at 'Kitābu Ash-Shurūt' in the Siyar, he was released. He then proceeded to complete the Sharh in the same year. That was 480 years after the Hijrah. As-Sarakhsī - rahimahullāh - passed away 3 years after that, according to some sources. Others said he remained 10 years after his release. O Allāh, illumine the grave of Imām As-Sarakhsī and unite us with him and the elect servants of yours in the Firdaws, āmin. Can our Students of Knowledge today thread in the footsteps of his like? Bārakallāhu fikum Jazākumullāhu Khayran *IslamNode*

Lol, I got kicked out of a Hanbalī Fiqh group just because of the Scholars I promote on my personal page.

Mind you, the rules of this group is that no 'Aqidah discussions are made, only Fiqh, yet they have nothing wrong with Madākhilah, Sūfiyyah, Jahmiyyah and other sects being there, but if someone defends the honour of the Mujāhideen, then that's not acceptable at all.

Alhamdulillah, I'll continue defending the honour of my muslim brothers and sisters, whether people accept me for it or not.

المرأة المتمسكة بدينها في هذا الزمان أشد غربة من الرجل لكثرة المغريات والملهيات وكثرة من يدعوها للفساد، فهي محاربة في حجابها وفي دينها، فما أعظم أجر هذه المرأة المتمسكة بدينها وحجابها ؟

I was watching an interview where they were actually discussing whether youtube should remove all the videos of Imam Anwar al-'Awlaki on December 2016 for the upcoming year, and that the 'freedom of speech laws' of the US govt doesn't apply to youtube, as they are free to censor what they like or keep it on their servers. Well it looks like they went through the plan this year (2017), #Freedom_of_Speech is the biggest lie, oh btw they won't remove the vid by the kafir Yasir Qadhi warning against Imam Anwar al-'Awlaki ^^

I have observed some people on FB who do nothing productive for years, but just like to waste time and hold grudges against others, and falsely accuse other people's intentions.

I was shown a statement by a random person who disagrees with my 'Aqīdah, which is no problem, it's not like I'm not approachable and can't address anything in a calm manner, but just coz he sees a *few* marriage posts out of the 1000's of other posts, he takes it a step further by making a big claim that I'm only here to please women, as if he knows what's in my heart more than myself.

Very beautiful advice

*Three problems solved in three ways:*

*The first one:* If you have too much desires:

*Solution:* Check yourself with your prayers. Are you praying the right way?

*Proof:* Allah Taala Says.

{But there came after them an evil generation, who neglected prayers and followed sensual desires, so they will meet perdition [Hell].} Surah Maryam, 59.

*The second one:* If you feel miserable n lacking success.

*Solution:* Check yourself with your mother. Are you treating your mother good?

*Proof:* Allah Taala Says: {And He has made me dutiful to my mother, and He has not made me insolent (rude), unblessed;} Surah Maryam, 32.

*The third one:* If you feel stressed n depressed.

*Solution:* Check yourself with Qur'an. Are you reciting, studying, understanding and implementing Qur'an in your life?

*Proof:* {And whoever turns away from My remembrance - indeed, he will have a depressed life,} Surah Taha, 124.

May Allah allow us to implement these in our lives.. ameen!

**He swore at him! Lesson of Sabr and intelligence**

Shaykh Sulaymān ibn Nāsir al-'Alwān رحمه الله said that there are conditions that a person must fulfill in order to debate with followers of the bid'ah and atheists, etc., because there may even be scholars who do not and if one can not proclaim the truth clearly, and can not refute falsehood sufficiently, then one has done harm to Islām.

■ The conditions are:

1 You have to be aware of the topic of discussion, and also about other areas of knowledge, because in a discussion, the topic quickly changes from one topic to another, and the topic is often distracted.

2 One has to be able to recall the knowledge quickly from memory, because this is the way of a debate, and in the debate the opponent does not wait for you until you remember the answer.

3 You have to have a strong heart, because if you have a weak heart, you are too awe of your adversary, and you will not be able to convey the knowledge. Therefore, one should not have respect for the Ahl al-Bātil, as Ibn Taymiyyah رحمه الله, which with hundreds (!) At the same time discussed and it did not bother him because he had a strong heart.

4 One should not get upset and become aggressive too fast, because if you do that, a lot of knowledge will be lost and people will think that you are ignorant and therefore resort to anger and insult.

There was a story in which a Jew from the dhimmah people went to the places of the Muslims and wanted to mislead them. He said, "Let us come together in what we agree to do, and let us desist from what we disagree in. The followers of Isās and Muhammad both believe in Mūsā, but the followers of Mūsās believe neither in 'Isā nor in Muhammad, and the followers of 'Isa do not believe in Muhammad, so let us agree only on Mūsā. "

Some people liked this statement and went astray. A scholar of the sect of Mu'tazilah (who, however, could well debate) said:

"I will discuss with him."

So he said to the Jew:

"As for your statement that the followers of 'Īsā do not believe in Muhammad, this is a lie." The 'Īsā, whom we believe in, has delivered the message that a prophet named Muhammad will come and take Mūsā as well, and Allah the pact of every prophet that he believes in Muhammad when he comes in his time (this comes in Sūrah Ālu Imran).

As for your statement that Muhammad's followers believe in Mūsā:

We believe in a mūsā who delivered the message of the coming of Muhammad, and who was commanded to obey Muhammad. But as for a man called Mūsā who does not believe in Muhammad, we do not believe in him and commit Kufr to him.

As for 'Īsā, we believe in 'Īsā, who believes in Muhammad, and will come down at the end of time and judge Sharī'ah Muhammad. A prophet who does not believe in Muhammad we do not believe in. "

The Jew was speechless and did not know how to answer. He said to mu'tazilī, "Come close, I want to tell you a secret." Then he said in his ear:

"Son of a Zāniyah (Lewd)."

He did not answer him, but turned to the people and said:

"O Muslims, this man has no arguments and wants to confuse you." He said in my ear, "You son of a Zāniyah", so that I beat him and then they say, I have no argument and beat him about it, and then go the people apart with doubts in their den. "

Then the people seized the Jew and beat him until he died. "

**The more prayers you send upon your beloved Messenger, the higher his ranks are raised in Jannah, and likewise with you as the prayers get sent back to you in return****

Imām Ibn Hajr al-Haytamī (may Allāh forgive him and have mercy upon him) mentioned in his book "Al-Durr al-Mandūd Fi-Salāt 'Ala Sāhib al-Maqām al-Mahmūd" (Page 49-50):

“Ibn Sīrīn was asked about making duʿā of forgiveness for the deceased child - whilst he has no sins - So he responded by saying, that the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) is forgiven for his past and future sins, and we have been ordered to send salutations upon him, and it's as if he (i.e. Ibn Sīrīn) is alluding that making duʿā of forgiveness doesn't necessitate the presence of sins, but rather it could be an additional supplication to raise his ranks to get closer to Allāh. [1]

Just like as the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) indicates that by his asking of forgiveness in the day and night 100 times (in a single sitting). So this repels the statement of some people: It's possible that what's meant by requesting (duʿā) for the child is their statement in the duʿā of Salāt al-Janāzah, "O Allāh, forgive our young ones and elders", hanging it upon him reaching maturity and committing the sin, or requesting it (forgiveness) for his parents or one of them, or to whoever raised him.”

[1] This is the view that Ibn Hajr al-Haytamī (رحمه الله) adopted in his book "Hawāshī Tuhfat al-Minhāj Bi-Sharh al-Minhāj" (3/137), wherein he said:

“And the child concerning that (concerning the obligation of making duʿā for him) is like anyone else, because even though he is guaranteed to enter paradise, his ranks are raised in it by the duʿā made for him, just like the case with the Prophets, may the peace and salutations of Allāh bestow upon them.”

**A special message to the spouses****

O Ādam, where are you from your Hawā'?!

Ponder over Allāh's statement, "(Allāh has) made for you from yourselves spouses" [16:72].

And Allāh's statement, "who created you from one soul and created from it its spouse" [4:1].

And Allāh's statement, "And of His signs is that He created for you from yourselves spouses that you may find tranquillity in them" [30:21].

If you pondered over all of these verses, you will find the clear sign: That your spouse is from yourself!

So she is from you, for you, by you and a part of you! And if that was the case, then know: That the rights which belong to you belong to her as well, and what duty falls upon you falls upon her as well.

And if you combine to that, the Prophet's statement which is narrated in the Saḥīhayn:

"None of you will truly believe, until you love for your brother, what you love for yourself".

And you have just affirmed that she is from yourself! So how can't you love and wish for her, to have happiness, comfort, and tranquility; Which is what you would love and wish for yourself?!

So do not be heedless to this for as long as you live - and likewise with her: Your husband is from yourself, whatever rights is for her is for you as well, and whatever duty falls upon her falls upon you as well.

By this alone; It would repel the boredom and displeasure between the both of you! And it's well known that boredom can occur for the one living in a pleasurable marriage, so how about the one who is living an unpleasant marriage? (He'll fall into boredom much more often).

The Shī'a Rāfidah have occupied Irān, 'Irāq, Sūriyyah, Lubnān, Yemen, and other places.

For the past 10 + years in speaking to all kinds of people, I have rarely come across the Kuffār amongst the Yahūd, Rāfidah and Kurds condemn their own militias and soldiers, infact they are very proud of them.

Whereas on the other hand, the Mujāhideen who defend the lands of Islām to raise the word of Allāh the highest are not only condemned, but slandered and falsely accused in the most harshest of ways by those oppressors who attribute themselves to the Qur'ān and Sunnah.

Putting aside my Jāhil aspirations for wanting to play professional sport, when I realised there was a huge gap no one was filling in clarifying the truth with regards to these treacherous poisonous sects (in the english world), my dream was to become an expert on comparative sects attributed to Islām, and specialise in refuting the Rāfidah Mushrikīn.

After learning that muslim commanders would need to learn different languages to speak to their brothers & the Hadīth where the Rasūl (صلى الله عليه وسلم) ordered Zayd to learn the language of the jews, this is what pushed me to study different languages to spread the Da'wah, in particular Farsī to refute the Rāfidah from their own books.

However after many years of debating and helping brothers in research/translating and trying to spread material in all the main languages, I realised that there was something much more important than solely focusing on the Rāfidah.

I realised it wasn't simply placing the lamp over this wicked sect for the Sunni's to wake up too, however I realised that the problem in the Ummah was everything to do about Ēmān and Kufr! And the reason people were ignorant about Tawhīd and labelled us people of Fitan was because of the wicked Murji'ah, a sect that was completely unheard of to most people many years ago, and even till this day wallāhul Musta'ān (despite it being the greatest Fitnah - Talk about priorities).

Thus, my intentions and dreams changed to wanting to destroy the main root of all problems in this Ummah, which is Ijrā' (which brings out extremism as a reaction), and the more I learnt about the people of innovation and desires, the more I learnt that all of them have 1 thing in common, which is unjustly twisting truth with falsehood and lying! By Allāh, Ahlus Sunnah never refute Bātil with Bātil and lies in return, rather they only refute Bātil with the Haqq, unlike the distorted sects who explicitly state in their books that it's allowed to lie against the opponents to convince them of their wrong ways.

And in the past few years, I realised what's the best thing to do is remain balanced in addressing issues facing the Ummah and patiently study Islām in a structured fashion, whilst promoting the Scholars of truth for the Muslimeen to return back too.

Now the greatest lesson to be learnt from what I just mentioned, is that this taught me one of the greatest lessons in life, "never rely upon anyone". You must carry out individual obligations and tasks on your own and do it for the sake of Allāh, and leave the rest up to Him. My beloved humble teacher, Imām Anwar al-'Awlakī (تقبله الله) said that you must follow the truth, even if the Scholars are not following it.

And finally, I came to unintentionally realise at this stage of my journey, that this is the path of the Prophets and revivers of the Dīn, that they address and clarify the most important matters of their times, and Ikhlās does wonders.

My brothers and sisters who are carrying on the obligation of spreading the Haqq, keep going lest Allāh replaces you with those who love Him more, and let's always keep in mind that this Dīn doesn't rely upon me or you, the caravan of Lā ilāha ilā Allāh keeps rolling with or without us.

Q. Is it true that Allāh is sitting on the throne?

A. This was mentioned by some of the Scholars, however there's nothing confirmed from the Qur'ān and Sunnah which proves this, infact this interpretation is Munkar and Bātil and contradicts what's affirmed in the authentic Sunnah.

This also contains a severe warning against anyone who thinks they can simply read a few narrations on their own from the books of the Salaf without having firm knowledge in the science of Hadīth and paying attention to what's considered authentic and weak, and the Salaf themselves rebuked blind following.

The Imām, Al-Hāfidh Sulaymān Ibn Nāsir al-'Alwān (فك الله أسرهم) mentioned in this regard:

“The brother asks about the report of Mujāhid (on the Tafsīr of the Āyah), "it is expected that your Lord will resurrect you (i.e. Muhammad) to a praised station." [17:79], he (i.e. Mujāhid) said "He sits with Him on the 'Arsh".

This was narrated by Al-Khallāl and others, and the narrator from Mujāhid is Al-Layth Ibn Abī Sulaym, and Al-Layth Ibn Abī Sulaym is Mukhtalit (mixes up his narrations), and weak in Hadīth, and also Mudtarib in the reports (he's inconsistent in who he narrates his Hadīths from).

He was criticised by (Sufyān) Ibn 'Uyaynah, Ahmad Ibn Hanbal, Abū Hātim, and others amongst the Hufādh (Imāms of Hadīth), because he became muddled up (by mixing up his narrations) so his Hadīths weren't able to be distinguished, so he was abandoned (by the Imāms).

And this report doesn't have an authentic chain, and even if it was authentic (for argument's sake), then it's from the statement of Mujāhid, it's not from the statement of the Sahābah, and it's not from the statement of the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم).

And the (correct) Tafsir of this Āyah has been narrated in Sahīh al-Bukhārī, and that the meaning of Allāh's statement, the Exalted and Majestic, "it is expected that your Lord will resurrect you to a praised station." [17:79], meaning: Al-Shafā'ah (Prophet's intercession), and this is preserved from the Messenger of Allāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم).

So it's not possible to exchange and put aside what's mentioned by the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) for what has been mentioned from the Salaf, whilst what has been mentioned from the Salaf is weak, however there's an important matter to pay heed too.

That there's a group amongst the Salaf who said that whoever rejects the report of Mujāhid is a Jahmī and that he's an innovator - And that is because they used to reject Al-'Uluw (Allāh being above the 'Arsh), so these Salaf considered whoever rejected the 'Uluw as a rejection of this (report).

But as for whoever rejected this report (of Mujāhid), then that's the Haqq, for indeed there's no consideration given whatsoever except to the Sahīh Asānīd (authentic chains of transmission), there's no consideration given to the Da'eef Asānīd (weak chains of transmission).

And at the same time, it's necessary for us to affirm the 'Uluw of Allāh, because this has been taken from Mutawātir (definite and widespread) proofs that are explicitly clear from the Qur'ān and Sunnah, and this is known in the religion of Islām by necessity.

However we take what's known in the religion by necessity through the authentic Hadīths, from the Qur'ān and Sunnah, we don't take that from the fabricated and wrong reports.

And we don't compel the people to believe in the speech of Fulān from the Tābi'een or the speech of Fulān from the A'immah, rather we compel the people to believe in the Qur'ān and Sunnah, and what the Scholars have unanimously agreed upon and verified, and this is what we compel the creation with.

And we do not test the people by some of the statements of the Scholars or by some of the Mujtahideen, while despite the fact that this report (from Mujāhid) is Munkar (rejected) and revolves around Al-Layth Ibn Abī Sulaym, and it was also contradicted by a Hadīth from the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) in Al-Bukhārī."

Lesson 6

Exceptions from the impurities

This lesson will touch on the exceptions from the Najāsāt.

Firstly: We mentioned that the deceased is impure, however is this unrestricted? No, there are exceptions such as:

1. The hair of the deceased is not impure.
2. The deceased animal that only lives in water or in the ocean is not impure.
3. Locusts are not impure, and it is any creature which doesn't have flowing blood which is known in arabic as "ما لا نفس له سائلة".

And every creature which doesn't have blood that flows from it, which includes the fly and what's similar to that, then it's Tāhir (pure).

The Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) also mentioned in the Hadīth:

أَجَلَّتْ لَنَا مِئْتَتَانِ الْخُوثِ وَالْجَرَادُ

"Two kinds of dead meat have been permitted to us: fish and locusts".

4. The human being doesn't become impure by his death.

Secondly: There is an exception given from the impurities which may become pure, and this is only one exception, "alcohol".

By principle, impurities "in and of themselves" do not become pure. For example, if you wash a dog a million times, he will never become pure, this is the Asl (default basic principle).

Yes, if a dog makes something impure, then it's possible to remove the Najāsah from that thing he made impure, however what's considered impure "in and of itself" can never become Tāhir except for one thing, which is alcohol.

Now alcohol is impure, however after a while, it can turn into vinegar. And if its quality of intoxication has been removed from it, then it's not considered impure and has become "pure", but as for the rest of the impurities, then they do not change from being impure > pure.

Thirdly: By principle, impurities are not to be used, however is the deceased animal's skin to be used? There are details attached to this:

1. Does the deceased animal's skin become Tāhir if it is tanned? According to the Madhab of Imām Ahmad (رحمه الله), it doesn't become pure, it's Najis.

Note: Tannage (دُبْع) is making animal skin into leather by treating it with tannin (a reddish acid used in preparing leather or making ink etc...).

2. But despite it being Najis, can we still use it? This is also divided into two categories:

The first situation: Using the animal skin from the Tāhir animal, which we spoke about in the previous lesson, such as the cat and what is smaller than it in its size, and the permissible animals to eat such as cows, sheep, camels etc...

If these animals died and we took their outer skin and tanned it, does it become Tāhir by tanning? We mentioned that it doesn't become pure, however can it be used?

We say that it's permissible to be used for اليابسات (singular: يابسٌ) which are things that are "withered" (dry and shrivelled). For example you can use the tanned animal skin (leather) to keep things in, such as placing nappies in it and what's similar to that, however do not use it for fluids, only dry things. So do not use it for placing water, drinks, yogurt and milk in it, etc...

The second situation: Using the animal skin from Najis animals, such as the fox, monkey, pig, dog, and animals which cannot be eaten that are greater in size than the cat, then its outer-skin is Najis and doesn't become pure, and also it's impermissible to be used, unlike with the previous type which is permissible to be used for things that are withered.

Lesson 6

Exceptions from the impurities

This lesson will touch on the exceptions from the Najāsāt.

Firstly: We mentioned that the deceased is impure, however is this unrestricted? No, there are exceptions such as:

1. The hair of the deceased is not impure.
2. The deceased animal that only lives in water or in the ocean is not impure.
3. Locusts are not impure, and it is any creature which doesn't have flowing blood which is known in arabic as "ما لا نفس له سائلة".

And every creature which doesn't have blood that flows from it, which includes the fly and what's similar to that, then it's Tāhir (pure).

The Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) also mentioned in the Hadīth:

أُجِلَّتْ لَنَا مِثْتَانِ الْخَوْثِ وَالْجَرَادُ

"Two kinds of dead meat have been permitted to us: fish and locusts".

4. The human being doesn't become impure by his death.

Secondly: There is an exception given from the impurities which may become pure, and this is only one exception, "alcohol".

By principle, impurities "in and of themselves" do not become pure. For example, if you wash a dog a million times, he will never become pure, this is the Asl (default basic principle).

Yes, if a dog makes something impure, then it's possible to remove the Najāsah from that thing he made impure, however what's considered impure "in and of itself" can never become Tāhir except for one thing, which is alcohol.

Now alcohol is impure, however after a while, it can turn into vinegar. And if its quality of intoxication has been removed from it, then it's not considered impure and has become "pure", but as for the rest of the impurities, then they do not change from being impure > pure.

1. Does the deceased animal's skin become Tāhir if it is tanned? According to the Madhab of Imām Ahmad (رحمه الله), it doesn't become pure, it's Najis.

Note: Tannage (دَبغ) is making animal skin into leather by treating it with tannin (a reddish acid used in preparing leather or making ink etc...).

2. But despite it being Najis, can we still use it? This is also divided into two categories:

The first situation: Using the animal skin from the Tāhir animal, which we spoke about in the previous lesson, such as the cat and what is smaller than it in its size, and the permissible animals to eat such as cows, sheep, camels etc...

والحالة التي ذكرت، لا تندرج تحت الصّورة المذكورة، فإن كُنْتَ عازماً على الرّواج منها، فذلك بيتها، إدخاله من الباب، ولا تدخله من الجوال، وإثّق الله في نفسك وفي نفسها، فالشيطان يجري من أحدنا مجرى الدّم، فقد عدّ بعض أهل العلم، أن المحادثة بين الشاب والفتاة الأجنبيةّ عبر الجوال؛ هي نوعٌ من أنواع الخلوة.

#Question_8953

Asalāmu 'alaykum wa rahmatullāhi wa barakātuhu, may Allāh reward you brothers with Jannah and its Hūr (al-'Ayn).

Brothers, is it permissible to speak with a woman with the intention of marriage, whilst he hasn't seen anything from her, ya'hī just writing to her, and all the words are in accordance within the boundaries (of the Sharī'ah), I hope you can clarify this my brothers.

#Answer

Wa 'alaykum asalām wa rahmatullāhi wa barakātuhu.

It's not permissible for a muslim to speak to other than his female Mahrams, except for a need which has called upon a necessity, such as taking her to hospital and what's similar to that, and based upon this need, the necessity is judged accordingly, otherwise it's not permissible for a muslim to speak to non-Mahram women for anything else.

And the situation of what you mentioned doesn't fall under the aforementioned necessity, so if you are willing to get married to her, then her house is the right way, enter it through the door, and don't enter it through her phone, and fear Allāh in yourself and in her, for indeed the Shaytān flows in between us like blood (in our body), and some of the Scholars have considered the chatting between a non-Mahram man and woman through the phone as a form of seclusion (between them).

When you read or listen to something from an Imam of Tawheed, it automatically penetrates the soul and you can feel it, especially when you look at the world today, you cannot help but get excited when you see how true their words are coming to life. For example:

When Ahmad Jibril got released, he made du'a for Allah to bring joy to his heart with the downfall of Al-Salul.

Shaykh Nasir al-Fahd, Shaykh Hamad al-Humaydi, Shaykh Faris al-Zahrani all said "The end of this state (Saudi) is very near".

I don't know about you, but I can clearly see that the downfall of the Tawagheet is getting nearer and nearer - Allah is accepting the du'a of the oppressed scholars, widows, orphans and all the silent voices in the Ummah, Allahu Akbar!!

What is Imâm Ibn Hazm's point here? "And about myself, I will tell you that when I was young, I fell in love with a blonde slave girl. Since then, I have never found a brunette to be attractive; even if she looked like the sun, or was the picture of beauty itself. And, since that moment, I've found this to be part of the basis of my very makeup. My character is compatible with none other than them, and does not love any others whatsoever. Abū Muhammad Ibn Hazm al-Andalusī (رحمه الله) is an ocean of knowledge, an Imām of Fiqh, Usūl and Hadīth - However one thing Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah (رحمه الله) found strange in Ibn Hazm (رحمه الله) is how he would blind follow Imām Ahmad (رحمه الله) when it comes to 'Aqidah (Major Fiqh), whilst strongly condemning blind following in (Minor) Fiqh.

Ibn Taymiyyah (رحمه الله) also found it strange how Imām Ibn Hazm (رحمه الله) praises Imām Ahmad (رحمه الله) in 'Aqidah and ascribes to him, but doesn't go along his views. This was due to being mistaken and needing more time in observing the truth, the Mu'tazilah had a strong influence upon him when it came to the Asmā' and Sifāt, may Allāh have mercy upon him.

I was reading something about why people turn towards the same-sex, and it's not just due to their Fitrah (natural disposition) being flipped over and having homosexuality legalized amongst the people.

It might sound strange, but making marriage harder for someone can lead them to turning towards the same-sex, so this is an important lesson for the parents to remember to make Halal easy for their kids, because the Haram is being promoted in a 'beautiful' way in these corrupt societies, wallahul musta'an.

This is why the Prophet Lut ('alayhi salam) said: "O my people, these are my daughters; they are purer for you. So fear Allah and do not disgrace me concerning my guests. Is there not among you a man of reason?" [11:78].

SubhanAllah, he gave them a Halal alternative, and this was also the practice of the Sahabah, who's fathers would offer their daughters to an upright man of good character.

Fear Allah in your children, and protect them from the Kufr and Fisq of this evil brainwashing society, but unfortunately many will realise when it's too late due to their love of Dunya.

Only recently I came to find out that greeting your brother with a kiss is considered 'awkward' amongst the youth. SubhanAllah what happened to the youth who live amongst muslims and holding onto their amazing arab-islamic traditions?!!

I come from an aussie suburb that has no musallah and I rarely ever saw muslims on the streets whilst growing up till this day, and wallahi this is a blessing in a way, coz Allah only put more love in my heart for the muslims and wanting to see them, yet people find it awkward to be passionate about giving salams in the Islamic way? Allahul Musta'an.

When a beloved brother took his Shahaadah, he wanted to find a single muslim just so he can give salams. When you see a muslim and don't give salams, it's like you have wronged him subhanAllah, how can u just walk past each other like that.

Wallahi it's so hard for me to be away from giving da'wah to my brothers and sisters who I love for the sake of Allah, and instead focus on other dunya things :( Shaykh Ahmad Jibril said it's easier for a Da'iyyah to be under the ground than above it if he gets prevented from teaching/preaching.

Teaching others in an exciting motivating way is a sweetness and true passion in the heart, Shaykh Ahmad Jibril also said that the daughter of Imam Muhammad Ibn 'Abdil Wahhab, Fatimah was described as being very beautiful, but never got married because she was focused on teaching men and women, SubhanAllah.

Now this doesn't mean we don't get married (Nikah also encourages us to seek more knowledge), but it just shows how dedicated the people of knowledge before us were.

Also something we should all remember is Ikhlās subhanAllah, the Salaf were knowledgeable and people of 'Ibadah, yet they didn't come on facebook sharing their good deeds with the world, infact at times, their own wives didn't know about them fasting and doing Qiyam!

If you share ur good deeds on social media, what have you left for Allah? This is a self reminder, that we should try hide our good the way we hide our bad, deeds and only mention something that has a lesson behind it (inspired by Shaykh Ahmad Jibril).

I can literally talk all night, Islam is absolutely amazing and everything about our religion is HAQQ!! Wallahi, we can never count the blessings of Allah, the plans of Allah are incredible and proves His Might and Glory, and as Shaykh al-Islam Ibn Taymiyyah said, Ahlus Sunnah are the most merciful of creation, Alhamdulillah we are balanced and fair, may we be more grateful to our Rabb!

May Allāh guide the Ashā'irah back to the Haqq, just like the Imāms of the Ashā'irah repented and died upon the Sunnah, infact even the founder of the Ash'arī sect repented at the end of his life, but his followers and those who came afterwards remained upon their wrong ways.

The founder of the Ash'arī sect who was a Mu'tazilī for 40 years, Abū al-Hassan al-Ash'arī wrote a book at the end of his life called "Al-Ibānah 'An Usūl al-Diyānah".

This book is verified and correctly attributed to the Imām, by giants and legends of this Ummah, such as Imām Ibn 'Asākir (رحمه الله) the author of the 70 volume "Tārīkh Dimashq", and Imām al-Bayhaqī (رحمه الله), Imām al-Dhahabī (رحمه الله), Imām Ibn Kathīr (رحمه الله), and the Shaykh of both al-Dhahabī and Ibn Kathīr, the great Imām Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah (رحمه الله), all of these Muhaqqiqīn have verified the authentic attribution of this book to Imām Abū al-Hassan al-Ash'arī, and this is what Shaykh Ahmad Jibrīl (حفظه الله) mentioned as being most correct in his Sharh of Usūl al-Thalātha.

Among the Imāms of the Ashā'irah that abandoned their old ways and beliefs and died upon the Sunnah as mentioned by the Mujāhid, Shaykh Abū Sufyān al-Sulamī (تقبله الله) in his lecture on the Ashā'irah were:

1. Imām Abū Bakr al-Bāqillānī (رحمه الله) who said, "Whoever went through what I went through, will know very well what my experience was like".
2. Imām Abū Hāmid al-Ghazālī (رحمه الله) abandoned both Sufism and Asha'arism, he was an Imām of Usūl and had gems on the soul, then he followed the path of Ahlu Sunnah wal-Jamā'ah, and he died while Sahīh al-Bukhārī was on his chest.
3. Imām Abū al-Ma'ālī al-Juwaynī (رحمه الله) the one who wrote "al-Waraqāt", one of the most famous texts that is explained in the science of Usūl al-Fiqh.
4. Imām Fakhr al-Dīn al-Rāzī (رحمه الله) who established many principles for the Ash'arī Madhab and author of the well known Tafsīr book, and even authored a book in Major Shirk of worshipping the stars, in which Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah (رحمه الله) said was clear apostasy, except that he may have repented afterwards, which is the case.
5. Imām Abū al-Hassan al-Ash'arī (رحمه الله) who was the founder of the Ash'arī sect, and authored "al-Ibānah 'an Usūl al-Diyānah" explaining the Asmā' and Sifāt according to the Madhab of Ahlu Sunnah wal-Jamā'ah as aforementioned.

Shaykh 'Abdul Rahmān Ibn Hassan (رحمه الله) in ad-Durar as-Saniyyah (1/320) said:

"And many of the Mutakalimeen who delved deep (into the sciences and theology) have returned back to the truth, such as Al-Shahrastānī, the Shaykh of Abī al-Ma'ālī, also Abū al-Ma'ālī (i.e. Al-Juwaynī himself), Al-Ghazālī, and also (Imām) Al-Ash'arī before them all in his book "al-Ibānah" and "Al-Maqālāt", and despite this and other proofs, those who came afterwards remained the way they are, blind followers of individuals amongst the later Scholars, who don't have a clear observation of the words of the 'Ulamā', and they were considered to be from the Scholars."

May Allāh allow the Ashā'irah and those affected by Tasawwuf to return back to the Haqq, Āmīn.

Are we really amongst those who are grateful. Also something for the atheists to ponder over who love to escape and deny Allāh's existence in any way possible, such as saying 'what comes before Allāh'.

Allāh is the one who created time, thus it's inappropriate to ask what's before Allah, since it's the time which makes the past, and Allah is الأول (the first) and الآخر (the last).

They also mock our beloved Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) ascending to the heavens in the night journey (Al-Isrā' wal-Mi'rāj) telling us how is it possible that our Rasūl can go on a mount horse looking animal, and what is their proof that such an animal can't come into existence?

What's astonishing is that these atheists who consider it far-fetched for a horse looking animal to fly, also claim that this whole universe, let alone this Earth, came into existence by a random 'zero point billion' chance without any Messengers sent to mankind to teach us the purpose of life.

Abū Bakr al-Siddīq (رضي الله عنه) gave the best response to the Mushrikīn who questioned him about the Isrā' wal-Mi'rāj by saying:

"If he said it, then it is true. They said: Do you really believe him? He said: Yes, and I believe him in something even more extraordinary than that, that news from heaven comes to him in the morning or in the afternoon".

In any case, this is something that must be reflected upon as well, especially those atheists who say 'how come there are suffering people in this world' and 'how come people go to hellfire', read the following to get further insight and see how incredibly merciful Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) is & how clear the purpose of life is, in order for us to enter paradise, but unfortunately the Kuffār took this world of tests as a paradise.

"We have become so ungrateful that we only think to be grateful if we pass our exams, I'm only grateful if He (Allāh) gives me food, I'm only grateful if He (Allāh) gives me a little bit more money, I'm only grateful if He (Allāh) gives me a house, and a wife and a child, this is a bonus! This is a bonus! Wallāhi my brothers and sisters, this is a bonus! Reflect over the book of Allāh, when Allāh says, "You cannot count the blessings of Allāh", you cannot count them! And I wanted to find an example for people who were sad, suffering or even happy, for everybody!

And what is this blessing? It's life itself, it's so priceless and precious, we don't own it, we don't earn it, we don't deserve it, but we receive every moment of our existence for free, and it's priceless. We receive this gift of life, but even if you were a multi-billionaire and you had 10 minutes left to live, and if I said to you, "give me all your wealth for 10 more years", you will give me all of your wealth. Ask any millionaire who is blind, they'll say, "I'll give you all of my wealth just to see my mother".

We're ungrateful people, we have become ungrateful, and the basis of our life from a physical point of view is our heartbeat. This heartbeat brothers and sisters is the "Asbāb", is the "sabab", is the cause that Allāh has created in order to keep us alive, your heartbeat that you're not even conscious of, just listen to your heartbeat, tell it to stop, it won't stop, tell it to go faster, it won't go faster, it's dependent upon your conscious control.

If this heartbeat were to stop, you won't have life anymore, it's finished. If I said to you, "you have 100 heartbeats left, and in order to get another 1000 heartbeats, you give me a million pounds", you would do whatever it takes to find that money.

Here's a challenge, the challenge from the Qur'ān, you cannot enumerate or count Allāh's blessings, and I dare you to try and compete with this challenge. Count all the heartbeats you've had so far, it's physically impossible, for the first 3 years, you don't even know how to count, you got 3 years' backlog, when you're sleeping, you have backlog, in actual fact it's physically impossible to count and enumerate every single heartbeat they had in their lifetime.

So it's true! You can never count the blessings of Allāh, and this is the 1 small blessing which is the physical reason that Allāh has given us for your own life and existence, the heartbeat. Imagine anything else, and that's why I say to my family, anything about the heartbeat is a bonus, Uqsim Billāh, by Allāh if you had this mindset, you will never be sad, the believer will never be sad if they had this mindset, they will always wake up and be grateful for life, because it's not theirs, it's a gift, they will always be grateful for this heartbeat that they cannot even count!"

Note: To give a simple example of why Allāh created Kuffār when He knew they are going to the hellfire, now Allāh says We could've made the whole world as muslims, but this is part of the test.

When a teacher writes an examination, and you don't study for it, is the teacher who gives you a fail being unjust towards you? Infact, it would be injustice for the teacher to make you pass along with those who exerted so much efforts in studying for that examination.

So likewise with this world, Allāh has clarified the truth for the people of righteousness to follow, and those who reject it or turn away from it will have no excuse except to be punished by Allāh. Infact Allāh is so merciful that those who refuse to worship Him whilst no Messenger came to them won't be punished, despite the fact that they are doing something which deserves punishment, SubhānAllāh!

#Nullifiers_of_Islām #Tawhīd

The Imām, Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tuwaylaī (تقبله الله) said:

The Seventh Nullifier: Sihr.

All praise is due to Allāh, the Lord of Mankind, and peace and blessings be upon the most noble of Messengers, our Prophet Muhammad, and upon all of his household and companions, to proceed:

Indeed, Allāh(عز وجل) has stated, "And they followed [instead] what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon. It was not Solomon who disbelieved, but the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic and that which was revealed to the two angels at Babylon, Harut and Marut. But the two angels do not teach anyone unless they say, "We are a trial, so (ف) do not disbelieve". [2:102].

And the Āyah is apparently clear in making Takfīr upon the Sāhir, due to the (letter) "Fā" (ف) which is indicative of "Ta'qīb", so their statement (i.e. Hārūt & Mārūt) "So do not disbelieve", meaning, "don't learn it so (ف) that you disbelieve" (this is what Ta'qīb means), or (meaning) "don't practise Sihr so (ف) that you disbelieve".

And Shaykh Muhammad Ibn 'Abdul Wahhāb(رحمه الله) mentioned in the treatise "The (10) Nullifiers" this nullifier as being the 7th nullifier which takes the slave outside the fold of Islām, and he used this Āyah as proof.

And a difference of opinion has occurred between the Scholars with regards to the Kufr of the Sāhir, is he a Kāfir unrestrictedly, or unless there is something in his Sihr which takes him outside of Islām, of making Istighātha (seeking aid) by the Shayātīn (devils) & supplicating onto them and the planets, and what's similar to that?

So the vast majority of Scholars went towards the Kufr of the Sāhir unrestrictedly, taking the outward meaning of the Āyah, whereas Al-Shāfi'ī made a differentiation which we just mentioned (above), and he viewed that the Sāhir doesn't disbelieve in all cases, rather clarification is sought and he is asked about his Sihr, so if there was Kufr involved in it, he is ruled upon with Kufr, otherwise no.

And what's most correct, and Allāh knows best, is to say:

Indeed, Sihr has a Sharī Reality, and a Linguistic Reality..

So the Linguistic Reality, is just like what the Scholars have said, it consists of everything that's cause or way or means is hidden and subtle, so it includes "Sihr al-Bayān" (eloquence is a form of Sihr), and it includes the forms of deception and tricks which appears in an unusual manner to the one who doesn't know the details of it, even though it returns back to it being normal properties and reactions of chemical or physical substances, and this is all permissible as long as he didn't use anything prohibited, and what consists of the well-known Sihr and other than that.

As for the Sharī Reality, then it is exclusive to the Sihr which Allāh mentioned in the Āyah that is extracted from the Shayātīn (devils), and it is the Sihr that is founded upon Shirk and dependant upon it, which isn't fulfilled except by Istighāthah (seeking help) from the Jinn and Shayātīn (Devils), and mocking the Dīn, and insulting the Lord of Mankind, and this is a true reality which is welcomed and accepted by all those know about it.

So whatever is included as being Sihr according to the Sharī Reality Sense, of the Sihr performed by the Magicians which is known by signs of very strange Hieroglyphs (i.e. particular symbols) from the Magicians, and the knot which they blow in, and the traces (incurring from it) wherein it becomes know that it's from this (type of) Sihr, such as separating between a man and his wife, which is called "Sarī", and likewise (with the Sāhir) performing 'Atf (which causes a man to dislike what he loves and love what he dislikes) which incurs without any Clear Reason, which affirms that it results from the Sihr of that Sāhir, and the likes of these signs.

So it is Clear & Apparent, it affirms (the taking place of) Sihr, just like the Ahkām (rulings in the Sharī'ah) are affirmed by well-known Proofs, so whatever was from this kind (of Sihr), then it is Kufr which takes one outside the fold of Islām.

But as for what is observed, and it's found to return back to matters from the worldly life and natural properties which is known by every specialist in their own field, such as the modern-day inventions which was assumed to be Sihr, due to the far-distance of the people's minds in perceiving its true nature.

And likewise is the case with some of the well-known allusions and tricks from mixing substances which gives a extraordinary affect than usual due to the unawareness of the one who is ignorant of it, and what's similar to that, so this is permissible, it doesn't contain anything (bad) except using what Allāh has created in a manner that doesn't involve doing something forbidden, as long as it doesn't reach towards the level of it being Harām.

And by this statement, the opinion of Al-Shāfi'ī coincides with the opinion of the Jumhūr (majority of the Scholars), so Al-Shāfi'ī (رحمه الله) broadened the label of "Sihr", and he stipulated the affirmation of the performance of Shirk in every circumstance of the Sihr, since he viewed that Sihr can be performed with Shirk and without Shirk, so he viewed that the Sāhir isn't ruled with Kufr (disbelief) until it's affirmed that his Sihr is from the category which involves Shirk.

Just as the Majority of the Scholars, when they ruled upon the Kufr (disbelief) of the Sāhir, they didn't intend the types that return back to natural substances, and valid chemicals, and what's similar to that from the matters which isn't identified except for its hidden and subtle causes from many people (only very few can realise its true nature).

And we say: Indeed the Sāhir (magician) is judged upon by his Sihr through the mere affirmation of him performing Sihr, and what we intend by Sihr is the Sharī Reality which doesn't come except through the path of Shirk, so whatever Al-Shāfi'ī hanged the ruling upon its affirmation (for Shirk), we come to know about its affirmation, so this suffices us in hanging the ruling (of shirk) based upon this.

And the other type (of Sihr) that Al-Shāfi'ī (رحمه الله) mentioned and considered it below Kufr, which is what has come through the way of not using Shirkī Expressions, for this type (of Sihr) isn't affirmed to be present (in reality), but rather it was assumed (to have existed) due to not knowing about the Hieroglyphs (i.e. particular symbols) of the magicians.

So hanging the judgement (upon the Sāhir) by it isn't valid according to those who know that (Sihr) isn't free from Shirk in any caee whatsoever, even though the deep details of what it entails isn't known. Despite the fact that what it entails today isn't inconceivable, infact in the books of Sihr which is present amongst them, clarifies its meaning & displays that, and many have looked into it, and nothing was found from their Hieroglyphs (i.e. particular symbols) and their writings which is free from Shirk, and something like this with its widespread prevalence is at the same level of Bayyinah (clear proof of being shirk) which Al-Shāfi'ī (رحمه الله) stipulated when judging the Sāhir with Kufr.

And based upon this, Sihr isn't considered a Separate Nullifier on its own from the other Nullifiers, rather in reality it returns back to the other Nullifiers which are Kufr in and of themselves.

And from the established rulings upon the Sāhir whose Kufr has been affirmed by Al-Shāfi'ī and at all cases by the Jumhūr (majority of the 'Ulamā') is:

Striking his neck with the sword, the killing of the Sāhir (magician) has been authentically confirmed from the speech of Jundub Ibn Junādah, 'Umar Ibn al-Khattāb, and from the actions of Hafsa Bint 'Umar Ibn al-Khattāb, may Allāh be pleased with them.

So what was written in the letter of 'Umar Ibn al-Khattāb (رضي الله عنه) that was narrated by Bujālah Ibn 'Abdah:

"Execute every Sāhir and Sāhirah (i.e. Male and Female Magician)."

So Bujālah said, "We killed 3 Sawāhir (i.e.magicians)."

And Al-Bukhārī (رحمه الله) summarised this Hadīth, so he narrated some of it, and others brought the complete the chain, and it is upon his Criterion (of authenticity).

And Jundub (رضي الله عنه) said:

"The punishment for the Sāhir, is to be struck by the sword."

And Hafsa (رضي الله عنها) ordered the execution of a slave girl of hers that made Sihr upon her.

As for Labīd Ibn al-A'sam who performed Sihr upon the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم), and the Prophet didn't kill him, then his ruling is differed, from different angles:

1. That the reason for executing the Sāhir is Apostasy, and Labīd was a Jew who didn't become a Muslim to begin with, so the reason (behind executing a Sāhir) in his case with respect to Sihr is removed, and it remains in the aspect of transgression, and this is a Right which is exclusive to the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم), he is able to drop it, and he is able to request (the punishment), and the invalidity of his covenant through transgression is only when the person doesn't drop off his Haqq (Rights), but if he drops it off, then no, because the Haqq (Rights) in his case (i.e. the Prophet) is an exclusive Haqq (Rights specific to him).

2. That the affirmation of Sihr upon him wasn't by witnesses, but rather it was through the Wahī (revelation), and what's most correct is that the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) doesn't apply the Rulings related to Implementation (of a punishment etc) through the Wahī (revelation), but rather he would apply it by witnesses.

3. That the abandonment of the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) in executing him was before the actions of the Sahābah and the Command of 'Umar Ibn al-Khattāb, so it's possible that the punishment of the Sāhir was only legislated after that, and the actions of the Sahābah is a proof for the final command (of the two).

This, and Allāh knows best, and Peace and Blessings be upon our Prophet Muhammad, and upon all of his Household and Companions.

#Nullifiers_of_Islām #Tawhīd

The Imām, Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tuwayla'ī (تقبله الله) said:

The Seventh Nullifier: Sihr.

All praise is due to Allāh, the Lord of Mankind, and peace and blessings be upon the most noble of Messengers, our Prophet Muhammad, and upon all of his household and companions, to proceed:

Indeed, Allāh (عز وجل) has stated, "And they followed [instead] what the devils had recited during the reign of Solomon who disbelieved, but the devils disbelieved, teaching people magic and that which was revealed to the two angels at Babylon, Harut and Marut. But the two angels do not teach anyone unless they say, "We are a trial, so (ف) do not disbelieve". [2:102].

And the Āyah is apparently clear in making Takfīr upon the Sāhir, due to the (letter) "Fā" (ف) which is indicative of "Ta'qīb", so their statement (i.e. Hārūt & Mārūt) "So do not disbelieve", meaning, "don't learn it so (ف) that you disbelieve" (this is what Ta'qīb means), or (meaning) "don't practise Sihr so (ف) that you disbelieve".

And Shaykh Muhammad Ibn 'Abdul Wahhāb (رحمه الله) mentioned in the treatise "The (10) Nullifiers" this nullifier as being the 7th nullifier which takes the slave outside the fold of Islām, and he used this Āyah as proof.

And a difference of opinion has occurred between the Scholars with regards to the Kufr of the Sāhir, is he a Kāfir unrestrictedly, or unless there is something in his Sihr which takes him outside of Islām, of making Istighātha (seeking aid) by the Shayātīn (devils) & supplicating onto them and the planets, and what's similar to that?

So the vast majority of Scholars went towards the Kufr of the Sāhir unrestrictedly, taking the outward meaning of the Āyah, whereas Al-Shāfi'ī made a differentiation which we just mentioned (above), and he viewed that the Sāhir doesn't disbelieve in all cases, rather clarification is sought and he is asked about his Sihr, so if there was Kufr involved in it, he is ruled upon with Kufr, otherwise no.

And what's most correct, and Allāh knows best, is to say:

Indeed, Sihr has a Sharī Reality, and a Linguistic Reality..

So the Linguistic Reality, is just like what the Scholars have said, it consists of everything that's cause or way or means is hidden and subtle, so it includes "Sihr al-Bayān" (eloquence is a form of Sihr), and it includes the forms of deception and tricks which appears in an unusual manner to the one who doesn't know the details of it, even though it returns back to it being normal properties and reactions of chemical or physical substances, and this is all permissible as long as he didn't use anything prohibited, and what consists of the well-known Sihr and other than that.

As for the Sharī Reality, then it is exclusive to the Sihr which Allāh mentioned in the Āyah that is extracted from the Shayātīn (devils), and it is the Sihr that is founded upon Shirk and dependant upon it, which isn't fulfilled except by Istighāthah (seeking help) from the Jinn and Shayātīn (Devils), and mocking the Dīn, and insulting the Lord of Mankind, and this is a true reality which is welcomed and accepted by all those know about it.

So whatever is included as being Sihr according to the Sharī Reality Sense, of the Sihr performed by the Magicians which is known by signs of very strange Hieroglyphs (i.e. particular symbols) from the Magicians, and the knot which they blow in, and the traces (incurring from it) wherein it becomes know that it's from this (type of) Sihr, such as separating between a man and his wife, which is called "Sarf", and likewise (with the Sāhir) performing 'Atf (which causes a man to dislike what he loves and love what he dislikes) which incurs without any Clear Reason, which affirms that it results from the Sihr of that Sāhir, and the likes of these signs.

So it is Clear & Apparent, it affirms (the taking place of) Sihr, just like the Ahkām (rulings in the Sharī'ah) are affirmed by well-known Proofs, so whatever was from this kind (of Sihr), then it is Kufr which takes one outside the fold of Islām.

But as for what is observed, and it's found to return back to matters from the worldly life and natural properties which is known by every specialist in their own field, such as the modern-day inventions which was assumed to be Sihr, due to the far-distance of the people's minds in perceiving its true nature.

And likewise is the case with some of the well-known allusions and tricks from mixing substances which gives a extraordinary affect than usual due to the unawareness of the one who is ignorant of it, and what's similar to that, so this is permissible, it doesn't contain anything (bad) except using what Allāh has created in a manner that doesn't involve doing something forbidden, as long as it doesn't reach towards the level of it being Harām.

And by this statement, the opinion of Al-Shāfi'ī coincides with the opinion of the Jumhūr (majority of the Scholars), so Al-Shāfi'ī (رحمه الله) broadened the label of "Sihr", and he stipulated the affirmation of the performance of Shirk in every circumstance of the Sihr, since he viewed that Sihr can be performed with Shirk and without Shirk, so he viewed that the Sāhir isn't ruled with Kufr (disbelief) until it's affirmed that his Sihr is from the category which involves Shirk.

Just as the Majority of the Scholars, when they ruled upon the Kufr (disbelief) of the Sāhir, they didn't intend the types that return back to natural substances, and valid chemicals, and what's similar to that from the matters which isn't identified except for its hidden and subtle causes from many people (only very few can realise its true nature).

And we say: Indeed the Sāhir (magician) is judged upon by his Sihr through the mere affirmation of him performing Sihr, and what we intend by Sihr is the Sharī Reality which doesn't come except through the path of Shirk, so whatever Al-Shāfi'ī hanged the ruling upon its affirmation (for Shirk), we come to know about its affirmation, so this suffices us in hanging the ruling (of shirk) based upon this.

And the other type (of Sihr) that Al-Shāfi'ī (رحمه الله) mentioned and considered it below Kufr, which is what has come through the way of not using Shirkī Expressions, for this type (of Sihr) isn't affirmed to be present (in reality), but rather it was assumed (to have existed) due to not knowing about the Hieroglyphs (i.e. particular symbols) of the magicians.

So hanging the judgement (upon the Sāhir) by it isn't valid according to those who know that (Sihr) isn't free from Shirk in any caee whatsoever, even though the deep details of what it entails isn't known. Despite the fact that what it entails today isn't inconceivable, infact in the books of Sihr which is present amongst them, clarifies its meaning & displays that, and many have looked into it, and nothing was found from their Hieroglyphs (i.e. particular symbols) and their writings which is free from Shirk, and something like this with its widespread prevalence is at the same level of Bayyinah (clear proof of being shirk) which Al-Shāfi'ī (رحمه الله) stipulated when judging the Sāhir with Kufr.

And based upon this, Sihr isn't considered a Separate Nullifier on its own from the other Nullifiers, rather in reality it returns back to the other Nullifiers which are Kufr in and of themselves.

And from the established rulings upon the Sāhir whose Kufr has been affirmed by Al-Shāfi'ī and at all cases by the Jumhūr (majority of the 'Ulamā') is:

Striking his neck with the sword, the killing of the Sāhir (magician) has been authentically confirmed from the speech of Jundub Ibn Junādah, 'Umar Ibn al-Khattāb, and from the actions of Hafsa Bint 'Umar Ibn al-Khattāb, may Allāh be pleased with them.

So what was written in the letter of 'Umar Ibn al-Khattāb (رضي الله عنه) that was narrated by Bujālah Ibn 'Abdah:

"Execute every Sāhir and Sāhirah (i.e. Male and Female Magician)."

So Bujālah said, "We killed 3 Sawāhir (i.e.magicians)."

Despite everything happening in the world, I can see life in our Ummah, and the seeds we plant today will be harvested by the future generations - Wallāhi I've never experienced what I am experiencing today of what Allāh has placed in my heart of Tawhīd, happiness and Ēmān, a true sweetness SubhānAllāh.

I can relate so much to these words by Shaykh Walīd al-Sinānī, the Imām of Sabr, may Allāh hasten his release, who has been imprisoned for 23 years, where he said in an interview:

“SubhānAllāh al-'Adheem, the one who Allāh has blessed with Ēmān in his heart, and ofcourse I don't free myself from sins and mistakes, it's there and I am not able to count it (i.e. my sins and mistakes), however I acknowledge the blessings of Allāh upon me.

Alhamdulillah, Allāh has placed in my heart, Tawhīd and Ēmān, love for Islām and its people, love for Tawhid and the Qur'ān, something I wouldn't exchange for the whole world.

If I were given the whole world, of gold, silver, children, women and everything of the world in 1 line, and this blessing that He has given us (love of Tawhīd & Qur'ān) in 1 line, Wallāhi I would choose this over that (i.e. Tawhīd & Qur'ān over the whole world).

The proof for this, and you know as well (referring to the host) is that I myself have been imprisoned for 18.5 years (stated this in 2013), and Alhamdulillah if the whole world was given to me, just so that I return back from the Haqq by a small hair or even by 1/100, I would not do so whatsoever.”

Remember how special we are to Allāh to be His slaves and worshippers, we are Muslimeen! May Allāh keep us steadfast 🤞

Important Rule: The pure Jahmiyyah who negated all of Allāh's names and attributes are Mushrikīn Kuffār according to the Ijmā' of the Salaf, since they denied attributes which are known before the Risālah and fell into Kufr of what's known in the religion by necessity.

Who the Scholars disputed in making Takfir upon were the blind followers of the deviant sects who agreed with several Usūl of the original Jahmiyyah, such as the Mu'tazilah and Ashā'irah, whom didn't fall into the same Shirk the original Jahmiyyah fell into (these are the ones that require Hujjah).

One of the great calamities is applying the words of the Scholars in its incorrect place, and an example of this is the words of Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah (رحمه الله) that Imām Ahmad didn't make individual Takfir upon the Jahmiyyah, except for those whom the Hujjah has been established upon.

Some people applied this upon the original Jahmiyyah wallāhul Musta'an, whereas what's intended are the Mu'tazilah and their likes as aforementioned.

Imām Ahmad (رحمه الله) would classify the Mu'tazilah as being Jahmiyyah as you will clearly find in his book "Ar-Radd 'ala Zanādiqah wal-Jahmiyyah", and likewise with Imām al-Bukhārī (رحمه الله) in his book "Khalq Af'āl al-'Ibād" and other Imāms of the Salaf.

Perfect your Usūl, and don't rely upon some statements from the 'Ulamā' and apply them the way you like too. Especially since many Imāms would classify someone to be from the "Jahmiyyah" and "Khawārij" if he agrees with some of their Usūl and has their characteristics.

For example, Imām Ibn Taymiyyah (رحمه الله) classified those who restrict the Nawāqidh al-Islām to belief in the heart alone (only Kufr if you make it Halāl or deny) as "Al-Jahmiyyatul Ināth".

Likewise we call the wicked Murji'ah of our time who restrict the Nullifiers of Islām to belief in the heart, coming up with Bātil conditions as being Jahmiyyah.

Another issue is classifying someone to a deviant sect simply because he agreed with them over an issue, such as the Asmā' wal-Sifāt. Some people consider Imām Ibn Hajr al-'Asqalānī (رحمه الله), Imām al-Nawawī (رحمه الله), Imām al-'Izz Ibn 'Abdil Salām (رحمه الله) as being "Ashā'irah", and this is not entirely correct. Since many of these Imāms, includinf Ibn Hajr refuted the Ashā'irah on many issues, such as on the topic of Āhād Hadīths, so we cannot classify them as being pure Ash'arīs, but if you want to say they are Ash'arī when it comes to Asmā' wal-Sifāt, this is fine Inshā'Allāh.

Just like the statement of Imām Ahmad (رحمه الله) concerning the Hadīth of "Allāh created Ādam upon his image", he said that whoever claims the pronoun "his" returns back to Ādam is a Jahmī.

Now this doesn't mean a person becomes a Jahmī for agreeing with the Jahmiyyah on this issue, but rather he said a statement from them, since the great Imām of Tawhīd Ibn Khuzaymah (رحمه الله) erred in this specific issue, and among the contemporary Shuyūkh, Imām Anwar al-'Awlākī (تقبله الله) in 'the lives of the Prophets' series erred in this issue.

May Allāh grant us further insight to our religion, and make us people of justice who have mercy & love towards the Ummah.

It's just like seeing a jahil put alcohol in a water bottle and trying to convince us "I'm drinking water" as if that's going to change reality. Her only argument when she gets crushed and humiliated is that we don't have akhlaaq, now this is coming from a religion that believes and practices zina/mut'ah. Atleast some kuffar show akhlaq to their dad on father's day, but that's kind of an impossible mission for the rafidhi minions who are top notch trying to teach us akhlaq, yet are mostly dunya lovers who have no akhlaq with Allah and the Rasul (Commit Shirk) + do wild monkey rituals like matam.

Radwan Dakkak The reason I told Anisa to fear Allah is because she is making takfir upon a sister which is totally unacceptable. As for your Q's sis. Anisa, she's a distant relative, like a 2nd cousin who I remember when I was younger, so I know she's sunni...and this is why we can't assume she's a kafirah so quick based upon her ignorant comments.

Radwan Dakkak No, I will tell you to fear Allah once again and don't have any assumptions about anyone. Since when was it my duty to tell her to wear proper Hijab? If you are so concerned, PM her. I mentioned she's a very distant relative from me, I never see her, I just know her family who I never see as well, like a 2nd cousin or something. I'm gonna drop it here anyway, may Allah forgive me for arguing.

Ohm Omair I think there was a misunderstanding which Radwan Dakkak cleared. Anyone can have a Muslim name or belong to a family of Sunni Muslims but once s/he defends a kaffir against Muslim believers, does that suggest that s/he is still Muslim? Please give your own naseeha about this.

Ohm Omair You can tell me to fear Allah SWT which I will enshaa Allah, but I hope that you will not defend someone on the evidence that s/he is a "distant relative" against a Muslim. You could answer the question instead of stating, "fear Allah".

Ohm Omair If you are a relative, no matter how distant, you have a duty as a Muslim - if you believe that she is also a believer - to tell her to wear hijab properly and to advise her to not defend kaffirs.

Usūl of the Hanbalī Madhab in acting upon weak Hadīth

The Mujāhid, Shaykh Abū Sufyān al-Sulamī (تقبله الله) said:

The 4th Principle:

Accepting Mursal and weak Hadīths if there was nothing that opposes it concerning the matter, and this is what he (Imām Ahmad) gave preference over Qiyās (analogy).

And 'weak' according to him (Imām Ahmad) doesn't mean Bātil (false) or Munkar (rejected) narrations, or that which contains a person accused of lying within the narration, which doesn't permit accepting it and acting upon it.

Rather, the weak Hadīth according to him (Imām Ahmad) is a type of Sahīh and Hassan, and he wouldn't categorize Hadīth into Sahīh, Hassan and Da'eef, but only into Sahih and Da'eef.

Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah (رحمه الله) said:

"As for us (Hanābilah) when we say, the weak Hadīth is preferred over opinion, this doesn't include the abandoned weak narration, but what's intended is the Hassan narration, such as the Hadīth of 'Amr Ibn Shu'ayb from his father from his grandfather, and the Hadīth of Ibrāhīm al-Hijrī, and their likes whom Al-Tirmidhī grades their Hadīths as Hassan (i.e. this is what's considered weak by the early Imāms which may be acted upon) or Sahīh.

And before Al-Tirmidhī's time, the Hadīth was either Sahīh or Da'eef, and Da'eef is two types: An abandoned Da'eef, and a non-abandoned Da'eef, so the Imāms of Hadīth spoke in terms of this terminology.

So some who don't know except the terminology of al-Tirmidhī (Sahīh, Hassan, Da'eef) have come along and heard the statement of some Imāms, that the weak Hadīth is more beloved to me than Qiyās, so he thought that he can use a Hadīth as proof which was weakened from someone like al-Tirmidhī."

~ Refer to "Minhāj al-Sunnah" (4/341) and "Al-Fawā'id al-Hadīthiyyah min Minhāj al-Sunnah" (1/43) and "Ta'sīs Fī Fanni Dirāsāt al-Asānīd" (15-16).

Wallāhi, everything about Islām is perfect and true - Let me summarise a few points which will change your life if you act upon it.

• Patience & Trials - Something that's widespread amongst the Ummah is seeing our beloved brothers and sisters complain about their trials in some way, shape or form. The big irony is that while we complain, Allāh is purifying our souls & expiating our sins for every little affliction we face.

Our beloved Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) said, "No fatigue, nor disease, nor sorrow, nor sadness, nor hurt, nor distress befalls a Muslim, even if it were the prick he receives from a thorn, but that Allah expiates some of his sins for that." [Bukhārī].

Solution: There's no need to complain, since Allāh has everything under control and opening the gates of Paradise for you. If you see a brother or sister expressing some of their feelings, kindly help them out for the sake of Allāh & let them know how blessed they are!

• Qur'ān - We also tend to find many brothers and sisters that feel down, bored and upset most of the time, and this kind of depression only pleases the Shaytān. It's mostly caused due to laziness, hanging around with those that don't remind you about Allāh and pre-occupying yourself with the Dunyā, forgetting about what brings life to your soul.

I take an oath by Allāh, if you constantly recite the words of Allāh, your heart and body will feel at ease, and there is nothing more true than the words of the Salaf when being asked about how much Qur'ān one should recite, they responded by saying, according to how much happiness you want.

Solution: If your tongue is not pre-occupied with the remembrance of Allāh, it will be pre-occupied with other than Allāh. So before complaining about being sad, ask yourself how much Qur'ān you are reciting. Don't use the excuse of being afflicted with trials, because Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah was afflicted with the most harshest of trials, yet Ibn al-Qayyim said he was one of the most happiest of people on the face of the Earth. The Qur'ān is truly a Shifā' (cure) to all your problems, and it will make you feel as the most cheerful and happiest person to walk the face of this Earth.

- Purification - I haven't noticed alot of emphasis on the topic of Tahārah (purification) amongst many of our brothers and sisters who follow the correct 'Aqīdah. One of the reasons is because the sell outs have become famous for speaking about purification, whilst neglecting Tawhīd.

However, we can never undermine anything in Islām or allow the sell outs to hijack this amazing ritual which we have been blessed with. The Rasūl said, "No one maintains wudū' except for a believer".

Many brothers and sisters may find it a burden to maintain wudū', and SubhānAllāh this is the exact opposite of what Allāh tells us in this beautiful Āyah from Sūrat al-Mā'idah:

"O you who have believed, when you rise to [perform] prayer, wash your faces and your forearms to the elbows and wipe over your heads and wash your feet to the ankles. And if you are in a state of janabah, then purify yourselves. But if you are ill or on a journey or one of you comes from the place of relieving himself or you have contacted women and do not find water, then seek clean earth and wipe over your faces and hands with it. Allah does not intend to make difficulty for you, but He intends to purify you and complete His favor upon you that you may be grateful." [5:6]

Allāhu Akbar, look at how our merciful Lord has mentioned the steps of wudū' in this Āyah, then mentioned "Allāh does not intend to make difficulty for you, but He intends to purify you".

And how true is this, wudū' is not just something that is for Salāh, but it's something which makes us purified & cleanses our sins. Wudū' is what incites someone to recite more Qur'ān & seek knowledge!

- Night Prayer - Now this is the gem which only the special believers are worthy of standing up for (inspired by Sh. Ahmad Jibrīl), and to cut it short.

Thābit al-Bunānī said "I do not find anything more delightful to my heart than the Night Prayer".

I only reactivated to warn against the weak coward Abū Maryam al-Balkānī, not to defend myself, but due to his filthy slander against a sister and blank merciless Takfir which I cannot remain silent about.

Just like most of the Extremists in Takfir, they can talk alot, but aren't firmly established in knowledge, thus come with general statements & twist things to support their big ego.

What's astonishing is that Abū Maryam warns against speaking without verifying, yet this lying hypocrite accuses me of writing up an article against him & reporting his page, when I wasn't even on FB to write up anything against him, giving his 1 sided bias.

This wicked filthy individual goes beyond his limits in lying that he slandered a chaste sister and called her a Mushrikah. What's really strange is that this hypocrite even asked Allāh to curse himself if he's a liar (he is clearly affected by arrogance - so he can't admit being wrong let alone a liar), and we know many Scholars have stated that the Muhālah usually takes place within 1 year.

I really have a bad fear that he will be destroyed within that time just like the Sahawāt were. These FB fame seekers never last long.

On the more important note, in the months to come Inshā'Allāh, I hope to finish writing up an important treatise proving that the Ghulāt who make unrestricted chain Takfir are Khawārij and Mu'tazilah, by clarifying all of their main misconceptions which they are spreading between the brothers and sisters.

Finally, after deep research and discussions over the years, I'm also in the process of writing up an important article concerning voting and what surrounds this enormous issue, and also clarifying the strict position of Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān (فك الله أسرهم) concerning voting from his own words which many are unaware of, and Inshā'Allāh this will put an end to the issue.

**A serious message to every brother and sister****

Imām Mālik (رحمه الله) said, "Indeed this knowledge is part of the religion, so look to those who you take your religion from."

There are two critical issues we have amongst us:

Firstly: Taking your Dīn from anyone who sounds good, without taking their 'Aqīdah into consideration.

Secondly: Befriending those upon a Bātil 'Aqīdah.

Has our 'Aqīdah become so cheap that we take our Dīn from those who insult our own 'Aqīdah?!

Has our 'Aqīdah become so cheap that we befriend and love those who follow a Bātil 'Aqīdah?!

Where is your Walā' and Barā' O brother and sister! Why don't you take your Dīn seriously and exert efforts in searching for the truth.

Solution 1: Before you take knowledge from anyone, you must study them deeply and know their 'Aqīdah and who their Scholars are, and whether they fear Allāh (not issue Fatwas on their own).

Solution 2: Make Barā'ah from all innovators that follow a false 'Aqīdah, whether they are Ashā'irah, Murji'ah, Khawārij and the like, and your Walā' to them (in the Sharī'ah) is only due to their Ēmān, and trying to call the sincere amongst them towards the truth, otherwise you must never mingle with them or befriend them.

If you don't take heed to this, then don't be surprised if you end up following the religion of your friend, Wallāhul Musta'ān.

**Obedience to the Tawāghīṭ which constitutes Kufr****

One of the contemporary Scholars said, "So based upon this, obeying the rulers and chiefs in ruling by man-made laws that oppose the rulings of the Sharī'ah in permitting and prohibiting;

Such as permitting Ribā [1], Zinā, drinking alcohol, equalising the inheritance between a man and woman, permitting adorning oneself to strangers and free-mixing, or prohibiting the Halāl;

Such as preventing a man to marry multiple wives and what's similar to that, from changing the rulings of Allāh and substituting it with Shaytānic laws, so whoever agrees with them upon this, is pleased with it, and considered it something good, then he is a Mushrik Kāfir, and we seek refuge in Allāh."

🔖 Footnote of the Noble Shaykh:

[1] "You will find this manifest and apparent in the lands of the Muslims today, of permitting Ribā and opening up (Ribā) Banks and authorising it, and he enforces laws to protect it and defends it, and he places security patrol around it, and this is from the Istihlāl through actions (الإستحلال العملي) which takes one outside the fold of Islām - And the proof for this, is that the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) sent an order to kill the man who married his father's wife and to divide his wealth into 5 portions, and the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) considered it to be Istihlāl through actions (i.e. Declaring it permissible through his actions), so pay attention to this matter."

“What's correct, and Allāh knows best, is that (the word "Ithan") - إِذَنْ - (which means "therefore") is a Harf (connector), and this is the Madhab of most Scholars of Nahw (Arabic Grammar).

So it's written with a "Nūn" (ن), since Tanwīn cannot be tagged on a Harf (connector), and this is what Al-Mabrad (رحمه الله) and most Scholars of Nahw adopted, and it was verified and authenticated by Ibn 'Asfūr.

It has been narrated from al-Mabrad (رحمه الله) that he said: I desire to iron the hand of the one who writes إِذَنْ with an alif (like إِذًا); Because it's similar to (the words) أَنْ (An) and لَنْ (Lan - It's not written as لَا), and Tanwīn doesn't get tagged along with a Harf.”

الصحيح والله أعلم أن -إذن- حرف وهو مذهب جمهور النحاة فتكتب بالنون لأن التنوين لا يدخل على الحروف وإليه ذهب المبرد وأكثر النحاة، وصححه ابن عصفور. وعن المبرد قال: أشتهي أن أكوي يد من يكتب إذن بالالف؛ لأنها مثل أن ولن، ولا يدخل التنوين الحرف.

“What's correct, and Allāh knows best, is that (the word "Ithan") - إِذَنْ - (which means "therefore") is a Harf (connector), and this is the Madhab of most Scholars of Nahw (Arabic Grammar).

So it's written with a "Nūn" (ن), since Tanwīn cannot be tagged on a Harf (connector), and this is what Al-Mabrad (رحمه الله) and most Scholars of Nahw adopted, and it was verified and authenticated by Ibn 'Asfūr.

It has been narrated from al-Mabrad (رحمه الله) that he said: I desire to iron the hand of the one who writes اِذَنْ with an alif (like اِذًا); Because it's similar to (the words) أَنْ (An) and لَنْ (Lan - It's not written as لَا), and Tanwīn doesn't get tagged along with a Harf.”

The Saudi Tāghūtī Govt who imprisoned our dear Sister Hanān al-Hayyāwī from her home, just around a year ago, no visits were allowed & nothing was heard from her, only to find out that the apostates of Āl Salūl are 'willing' and 'determined' to surrender our sister to the Syrian Regime, the country where she's originally from.

Allāhul Mustaʿān, this is the sister I mentioned 2 Eid's ago whom probably no one knows about - Soon the homeland of our beloved Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم and Sahābah will be liberated from these filthy Murtaddīn and their sell out Scholars.

Some of the righteous were asked about how they became so pious and diligent in Allah's service. They said,

"I realized that no one was going to do my work for me (including my religious obligations), so I busied myself doing it. I knew that my rizq (provisions meant and destined for me) were not going to reach anyone else, so my heart felt content. I knew that Allah is ever Watchful over me, so I felt shy that He see me upon disobedience. I knew that death awaits me, so I prepared my provisions for the meeting with my Lord."

The Noble Scholar and Mujāhid, the destroyer of the Wicked misguided Murji'ah, Shaykh Sultān al-'Utaybī (تقبله الله) speaks about his beloved wife, the Mujāhidah Umm Hamzah (تقبلها الله).

Throughout the clip, the Shaykh continuously makes du'ā for her, by saying 'May Allāh reward her', and informs us that she would always advise him & the brothers and encourage him towards the obedience of Allāh, doing everything she can for the Dīn of Allāh.

At the last moments of her life, she would recite Qur'ān and look at the sky and say with a smile, "I can see the high ranks of paradise", and she even mentioned to the ikhwa "I saw my place in the high ranks of al-Firdaws".

The Noble Shaykh ended by saying, she passed away with a smile on her face raising her index finger; May Allāh accept her in the highest ranks of Al-Firdaws.

Lesson (2/28):

#Aslu_Dīn

Aslu Dīn - It's the foundation of everything and the tenet which other things are founded upon, as Al-Rāghib (رحمه الله) said in "al-Mufradāt".

Likewise the foundation (or root) of the tree is its trunk, which by it spreads into branches. And the foundation of the house is its pillar which it's built upon.

And what is meant by "Dīn" here is Islām, therefore we say Aslu Dīn means: Its pillar which it's built upon, and its tenet which other things are founded upon, this is from a linguistic aspect.

As for the (general) technical meaning, Aslū Dīn means: What negates Islām if it's missing.

Now comes our issue, what does Aslu Dīn mean according to the (specific) definition of the Shari'ah? The response: Before giving the answer, there are introductions that are required, so we say:

The first introduction:

Aslu Dīn is a matter which is clear, apparent and manifest, which isn't obscure and confusing to anyone amongst the people.

Thus, every matter which can be unclear, obscure & confusing to the understanding and minds of people, then it's not from Aslu Dīn.

And the basis for that: Is that Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) doesn't burden His creation with that which is above their capability, or what they cannot understand.

Because Allāh wants His slaves to act upon what He has obligated upon them and created them for, so if He burdened them with something which they are not able to understand or their minds and self are unable to cope with, it wouldn't be within their ability to act upon it, let alone understand it.

This is proven in the Shari'ah, by Allāh's statement:

"Allah does not burden a soul except [with that within] its capacity" [2:286].

And the intellect has alluded towards this as well, so everyone who burdens another with something in order to be practised, then it's necessary for the speech to be convenient for his understanding and intellect, so that he's able to implement it in a correct way, and this is why we have a firmly established constant in the Shari'ah, which is:

"There is no burden over that which is unbearable".

This is a Fundamental Principle of Usūl which is agreed upon, thus we say:

Aslu Dīn is something manifest, displayable and clear, which isn't obscure and confusing for anyone to understand, and nor is it difficult for any of the creation to act upon it, and this has no disagreement between the Scholars. So based upon this agreed upon Principle is what follows:

"Every unclear matter which isn't understood except by specific people amongst the Scholars and Students of Knowledge, then it's not from Aslu Dīn, and it's not primarily included within it, i.e.

Ultimately as a foundation"

And this is based upon the Fundamental principle we mentioned, and an example of that is the issue of (Tasalsul al-Hawādith - consecution of creations), do the creations have a consecution in the past and present?

There are three views, Ahlu Sunnah have a view, the Ashā'irah & Mu'tazilah have a view, and the Philosophers have a view.

This is an unclear matter, even for the students of knowledge, let alone the general masses, so that's why it's not from Aslu Dīn.

Likewise, every issue which becomes unclear to understand for the vast majority of the people, then it's not from Aslu Dīn.

And from what falls under this category and this description are some of the matters related to Takfīr and its sub-branches, and this is an important Criterion which must be understood.

And does 'unclearness' have a Criterion? The answer to that is: Yes, or else the tight knot of Aslu Dīn would be loosened and detached, and would be subject to the opinions of men and their desires, and this will shortly be addressed in the future articles Inshā'Allāh.

Lesson (1/28):

#Aslu_Dīn

Introduction:

Under this title, we will begin an important series, which every muslim requires, let alone the students of Islamic Knowledge, because Aslu Dīn is the first thing which is obligatory upon a muslim to perfect and be concerned with, because due to it, the description of Islām is either affirmed or negated from the slave (of Allāh), and salvation in the hereafter is based upon it.

Hence, we say: The discussion here is going to be about the "Islām Nāfi'" (true description of Islām), not the "Islām Hukmī" (outwardly judged with Islām).

Because there is an Islām Nāfi' which is (to be) free from the descriptions of Kufr and Shirk in the Dunyā, and by this (title), he will have salvation in the Ākhirah, and this is the reality of the Da'wah of the Messengers.

And there is an Islām Hukmī, wherein an individual is outwardly judged upon with Islām, but not inwardly, and his affairs will be left to Allāh in the Ākhirah (to judge him).

And the discussion concerning "Aslu Dīn" must be based upon what "Allāh said" and what His "Messenger said", according to the understanding of the first best generations by the textual evidences of the Sharī'ah.

Because there are disputes which were brought up by some boys who read a line of knowledge and didn't go further than it, so he included within Aslu Dīn what is not from it. Thus, we are in need of perfecting and laying out principles and establishing foundations based upon the Major Usūl.

And I draw attention that these writings is simply an enlightenment and guidance for the student of knowledge, so this should not suffice him, rather he should request for more (knowledge) and exert efforts in completing what he needs to search in the topic, but as for other than him (i.e. the laymen), then this should suffice him Inshā'Allāh, for indeed it is adequate.

Then we will mention in the completion of our research, some issues which we all require, such as the issue of "excuse of ignorance" and "Takfīr upon the Ā'ithir" and "Is the Asl (default position) of the people Islām or Kufr?"

We will need to explain and clarify the correct view in these issues, may Allāh give us all success towards what He loves and is pleased with.

الحمد لله رب العالمين، والصلاة والسلام على أشرف المرسلين نبينا محمد وعلى آله وصحابه أجمعين، أما بعد:

والإلهية: مصدر صناعيٌّ من اسم الإله، يُراد به اتِّصافُ الربِّ بكونه إلهًا في نفسه، والمعنى استحقاقُ الربِّ جلَّ وعلا أن يُعبد وتُصرف إليه وجوه القُربة، واتِّصافه بما يُوجب إفراذه بالعبادة من الربوبية وصفات الكمال.

فالإلهية صفة من صفات ربوبية الله سبحانه وتعالى، والألوهية هي صرف أفعال العباد التي يستحقها الله جل وعلا إليه وحده، فالأولى صفة الخالق والثانية القصْدُ إليه بأفعال المخلوقين.

والغلط في هذا الناقص سببه التمسُّك باللفظ والغفلة عن المعنى، فمتى جَرَّد النظر إلى كلمة لا إله إلا الله عن الأدلة التي فسرتها وفضلتها من كتاب الله وسنة نبيه صلى الله عليه وسلم، واقتصَر النظر على حدٍّ وتعريفٍ لها لم يُؤمن هذا الغلط وأمثاله، فينبغي لصاحب العلم والداعية ألا يغفل عند شرح كلمة لا إله إلا الله عن بيانها

بِكَلَامِ اللَّهِ عَزَّ وَجَلَّ، وَتَفْسِيرِهَا بِالْقُرْآنِ وَالسُّنَّةِ فَإِنَّهُ لَا بَيَانَ كَيْفَانَهُمَا وَلَا بُرْهَانَ كِبَرَاهُنَهُمَا، وَاللَّهُ أَعْلَمُ وَصَلَّى اللَّهُ
وَسَلَّمَ عَلَى عَبْدِهِ وَرَسُولِهِ مُحَمَّدٍ وَعَلَى آلِهِ وَصَحْبِهِ أَجْمَعِينَ.

If you walk the path of truth
Then falsehood walks behind you trying to uproot
All the fruitful seeds that you have sown

And Allah asks "Who will give me this goodly loan?"

You stayed constant on the path
Not contemplating the resulting aftermath
The American Army of shaitaan
Never rest until they caused much harm
But how could they uproot seeds embedded deep
In the soul of the followers who took heed

Your greatest concern was the ummah and it's state
With your words did you seek to illuminate
That is why the disbelievers display such hate

The sea of knowledge you passed on in your lectures
Should be gathered like sparkling drops of sweet nectar
That revives any lost heart appealing to all sectors
It's too late to try to rob the ummah of this treasure
Our humble Shaykh has already gained Allah's pleasure
Scattered pieces of pearls
Have reached all over the world

Allah is preparing us for victory beware
For all lives they trample on without care
Oh oppressor wake up from slumber
And realize that your days are numbered

The battle for hearts and minds you won
With that a new life of sunnah was born
The youth began to pledge their allegiance
To him who called to Allah's obedience

Surely his family would walk miles
Just to see another one of his smiles
This was a man who did not desire kingdom
His most sought after deed was martyrdom

When death coiled up around you so near
You made hijrah and did not fear
Only the love of Allah did you hold dear

What a loss of a great scholar
Committed by a people who love the dollar
Please don't grieve for he is not dead
His soul is in a green bird, by Allah's pledge
All over Jannah he may fly
His status we could only desire so high

Now that your mission in life is complete
You will find Allah's promises to be true when you meet
May Allah count you as one of the Prophet's Knights
For your part in the believers fight

Peace and tranquility you will find
Beauty beyond what could cross your mind
May paradise be your final abode
For Allah's toil you carried a heavy load
Jahanum for your enemies will be the last bomb to explode

My only gripe is that they placed you at No 2 'most wanted'
The most befitting position is surely No1

The Messenger of Allaah sallallahu alaihi wasallam said: يَا مُقَلِّبَ الْقُلُوبِ ثَبِّتْ قَلْبِي عَلَى دِينِكَ "O Turner of the hearts, keep my heart firm upon your religion" إن القلوب بين أصبعين من أصابع الرحمن يقلبها "Indeed the hearts are between two fingers from the fingers of The Most Merciful – He turns them however He wills"

The defender of the Sahawāt, the filthy Abū Basīr at-Tartūsī calls the Murtad Al-Jawlānī a 'Khārijī' - Look at how Allāh has exposed these apostates, the Mubāhalah absolutely destroyed them.

I have deleted the post and taken back my words on agreeing with the accusations laid out against the apostate Nou'mān 'Alī Khān.

I did not have explicit evidence for that, and won't accept anyone to spread such things; I should've known better as this has no benefit whatsoever.

I ask Allāh to forgive me for what I said, and not repeat such actions again.

A refutation against the Mu'tazilah Ghulāt who use the example of Zayd Ibn 'Amr Ibn Nufayl to claim that Takfīr is from Aslu Dīn which is known by the 'Aql and fitrah! This results in making unrestricted Takfīr upon the refrainer, and also Takfīr upon the one who refrains from making Takfīr upon the refrainer, a misguided chain Takfīr upon the muwāhiddīn.

Once Allāh guides you to the Scholars of Truth, He will continue to show you the deceitful lies and misguidance of the Scholars of Falsehood. My brothers and sisters, hold onto the very few, and love them without going into extremes - Be consistent in your views without going back and forth. And if you really want to excel, don't only study from the righteous contemporary 'Ulamā', but get really deep in reading books from the Scholars of the past, and teach the most authentic knowledge for the Ummah.

Shaykh Ahmad Jibrīl (حفظه الله) said; A sign of Allāh's love, is paving the path of guidance for you to take, "Whomsoever Allāh wills to guide, He opens his breast to Islām" [6:125].

For many people, it's all about seeking knowledge and having good manners to please the creation. Look at the likes of Muftī Menk, many may think he is 'humble' and 'knowledgeable', but a true believer doesn't become fooled by what an individual shows on the outside.

What matters is true knowledge & character in one's sincere heart, as Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah (رحمه الله) said, "Genuine hearts and devout prayers is an undefeated army."

If we don't keep our selves preoccupied with seeking knowledge and seeking the truth, we will be preoccupied with foolishness and falsehood. Imām Ibn al-Qayyim (رحمه الله) said in al-Wābil as-Sayyib (166-167):

اللسان لا يسكت البتة فإما لسان ذاكِر وإما لسان لاغ ولايد من أحدهما فهي النفس إن لم تشغلها بالحق شغلتك بالباطل وهو القلب إن لم تسكنه محبة الله عز وجل سكنته محبة المخلوقين ولايد وهو اللسان إن لم تشغله بالذكر شغلك باللغو وهو عليك ولايد فاختر لنفسك إحدى الخطتين

“The tongue does not keep quiet at all. It is either a tongue that remembers or a tongue that is senseless and it has to be one of these two. It is the (nature of the) soul; if you do not preoccupy it with truth, it will occupy you with falsehood. It is the (nature of the) heart; if you do not accommodate it with love of Allāh, it will dwell with love of creation and this is a certain reality. It is the (nature of the) tongue; if you do not preoccupy it with remembrance, it will most definitely occupy you with foolishness. Thus, choose for your own self one of the two courses.”

Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān (حفظه الله) was asked: Is it permissible for a Father to force his son into marriage with a girl he doesn't desire?

Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān (حفظه الله) responded by saying: It's not allowed for either parent to compel their son into marriage with someone they don't want or love, because the result of this marriage might end in a divorce or a miserable life for both of them.

And it's not compulsory upon the son to obey them in this, and it wouldn't be considered disobedience in doing so.

However, it's necessary upon the son to be gentle in his rejection and to not raise his voice upon his parents or let them hear any bad words.

A student of Sh. Ahmad Jibrīl (حفظه الله) said, "Amongst the many things I learnt from my great teacher is to keep secrets between yourself and Allāh".

And I believe these words of Sh. Ahmad Jibrīl (حفظه الله) perfectly describe him:

"Imāms didn't become so through knowledge alone! Sincerity, steadfastness during trials & secrets behind closed doors while others are asleep".

The Noble Shaykh isn't simply a memoriser of the 6 books of Hadīth & studied knowledge under the feet of 'Ulamā', but he has proven to be sincere & steadfast during his harsh trials and torture in prison, and ofcourse the secrets behind closed doors while others are asleep. A sweet enjoyment which sinners are unworthy of tasting

“The Scholars have differed in this issue upon two views:

1. The majority of the Scholars adopted the view that removing Najāsah from the clothes, a spot and body is a condition for the validity of Salāh.
2. That it's Wājib, and not a condition (for the acceptance of Salāh), because there's no confirmed proof for it to be considered a condition.

And based upon this (2nd view), if a man prays while his clothes has Najāsah on it, his Salāh would be valid while being sinful.

And based upon the first view, his Salāh would be deemed invalid, as long as he wasn't forgetful or ignorant.

Whoever finds out about a Najāsah on his clothes during the Salāh, then it's obligatory upon him to remove it, even if it requires taking off this piece of clothing, and his Salāh would be valid.

Because when Jibrīl informed the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) that his shoes has Najāsah on it, he took it off while he was praying [1], and he completed his Salāh.

And if he persisted in his Salāh without removing the Najāsah, then the vast majority of the Scholars have said: That his Salāh would be invalid, whether it was an obligatory or voluntary prayer.

And a group of Scholars adopted the view that the Salāh is valid, and the Sahābah used to pray during their injuries (of being wounded), and that a group amongst them would pray while his blood was flowing.

So it's either to be said: That blood is pure, and that there's no proof concerning its impurity, and that the general basic principle of all things is Tahārah [2].

And if we go along with what the Majority of the Scholars have stated: That blood is impure, then this is a proof that Salāh isn't invalidated in this case.

It's necessary to select one of these two things, either adopt the view that blood is pure, or adopt the view that Salāh with impurities (on you) doesn't invalidate (the prayer), as that's the view of a group amongst the Mālikī Fuqahā'.

**The ruling on praying with Najāsah on his clothes, and he didn't know about it except after he finished Salāh****

Whoever prays with Najāsah on his clothes, and he didn't know about it until he finished from the Salāh, then this is differed upon:

It has been said, that he repeats the Salāh.

And it has been said, that he doesn't repeat the Salāh, and this is what's most correct, whether we say he knew about it (having Najāsah) before the Salāh, then forgot about it, or he didn't know about it to begin with until he finished from the Salāh, there's no difference between these two scenarios according to the most correct of the two opinions amongst the Scholars.”

~ Shaykh Sulaymān Ibn Nāsir al-'Alwān (حفظه الله).

[1] It was narrated by Abū Dāwūd (650) on the authority of Abī Sa‘īd al-Khudrī, he said:

While the Messenger of Allah (ﷺ) was leading his Companions in prayer, he took off his sandals and laid them on his left side; so when the people saw this, they removed their sandals. When the Messenger of Allah (ﷺ) finished his prayer, he asked: What made you remove your sandals? The replied: We saw you remove your sandals, so we removed our sandals.

The Messenger of Allah (ﷺ) then said: Gabriel came to me and informed me that there was filth in them. When any of you comes to the mosque, he should see; if he finds filth on his sandals, he should wipe it off and pray in them.

[2] The Muhaddith Sulaymān al-'Alwān (حفظه الله) said: “We have an agreed upon Rule, and it is that the general basic principle with regards to all things is Tahārah until there is confirmed proof (saying otherwise).

And if there's no confirmed proof, then we go by the general basic principle in all things, so the general basic principle with regards to blood is Tahārah, and there's no Ijmā' established except with regards to the blood of menses (being impure).

And from the proofs concerning the purity of blood, is what has been narrated on the authority of Ibn Sirīn, that he said:

"Ibn Mas'ūd (رضي الله عنه) slaughtered a camel, so its blood and food remains (from its stomach) smeared upon him, then the Salāh was called, and he prayed without performing wudū'".

And its chain of narration is strong, so this is a proof that Ibn Mas'ūd (رضي الله عنه) didn't view it being impure, because if he viewed it impure, he would have washed it.”

Wudū' is a wonderful ritual; It makes you feel so clean and pure, increases your Ēmān and actually makes Dhikr on the tongue much easier to do - I know we can feel lazy at times, but remaining upon wudū' has so much benefits (along with wiping away your sins), and this will help you sleep on a clean state with Allāh.

The Hadīth, "Whoever learns the language of a people, he is protected from their plots", this has no basis whatsoever from the Messenger of Allāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم).

Rather, what's confirmed from the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) as it's recorded by At-Tirmidhī (رحمه الله) and others is that the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) ordered Zayd (رضي الله عنه) to learn the language of the jews, and he said "Indeed, I do not have trust in them", and this Hadīth is Sahīh.

حديث (من تعلم لغة قوم آمن مكرهم) هذا لا أصل له عن رسول صلى الله عليه وسلم إنما ثبت عن النبي صلى الله عليه وسلم عند الترمذي وغيره أن النبي صلى الله عليه وسلم أمر زيد أن يتعلم لغة اليهود وقال إني لا آمنهم وهذا حديث صحيح

Zayn Ali the internet is full of so many pages but dont know who actually run them.

Mohammed Akhalwaya The Hanbali Madhhab you block people for speaking haq?

Radwan Dakkak I love you & all my brothers/sisters for the sake of Allāh too (and Allāh knows best if that's sincere). They claim you're sinful for not responding to the Salāms of a Rāfidhī, and that we can't boycott these filthy Mushrikīn - However when it comes to boycotting 'me' and deleting other people's comments, this is 'absolutely fine'. Btw, I'm not defending myself, but rather the Dīn of Allāh - They can call me emotional all they want, but this is the Haqq.
18 September 2017 00:07

Luco Zadee They got some major issues with their understanding of the fiqh of Imam Ahmad rahimahullāh. When people usually challenge such issues of corrupted understanding, it is more often than not that they attack you on personal basis with such attributes. Haqq is Haqq and batil is batil, though most are deluded in their egotistical ignorance

Radwan Dakkak Among the signs of ignorance and cowardliness is deleting and banning anyone who disagrees with you - Look how they misapply the statements within the Madhab, applying the words of Imam Ahmad in reference to unclear 'Kufr' matters upon the Rafidah who fell into immense explicit kufr and major shirk. They are pure Murji'ah who take their deen from sell outs of Al-Salul.
18 September 2017 14:55

KT Karim Is their daleel that this is a sign or ignorance ?

M Fauzi Almasarani Complete version about giving salam to rafidi la'anahumullaah
18 September 2017 19:56

Jamal Ud-Din El-Kiki Are you sure you want to describe it as ignorance and cowardliness when you've done the very same in the past (and I can recall a specific example where someone was merely questioning your arguments)? Don't dig a hole for yourself, bro. Also, where are you getting your distinction between 'clear' and 'unclear' kufr from? Where do you draw the line? And is this a distinction that the scholars of the Hanabilah have agreed upon and adopted? And even if it were as 'clear' as you make it out to be, how does that say anything about the Aqeedah of those abstaining from making mass takfir on all Rafidhi laypeople, much less the Aqeedah of Imam al-Sa'di? Are you even aware that many of the "sell outs of Aal Salul" have themselves declared mass takfir on Rawafidh anyway? Wish you would start speaking with a bit more 'Ilm and less vitriol.

18 September 2017 20:38

Radwan Dakkak Mention 1 instance I ever did that, Fear Allāh akhī. I was speaking about the page quoting Sell outs, not referring to the 'Aqīdah of Shaykh al-Sa'dī, despite the irjā' in it. Clear & Unclear matters have been discussed by the Hanābilah and all the other Madhāhib - What this page did was apply a statement for the people of innovation and applied it upon people of Shirk, this is detrimental and returns back to a fundamental, known as irjā'. Claiming I don't speak with 'ilm is an accusation not to be taken lightly - Enough with the general statements and get into specifics, starting with where I have blocked a person for simply questioning my arguments. Thanks in advance.

18 September 2017 23:18

Jamal Ud-Din El-Kiki I've messaged you privately regarding an instance of that. Regardless of what you think you were speaking about; you have linked views on whether Rafidhi laypeople are kuffar or not with Irja' which is a Aqadi position. While there is no doubt that Shirk is rampant among the Rawafidh, I believe the page has exercised healthy caution in reserving immediate takfir on any Rafidhi for merely being Rafidhi, while maintaining that they are people of Fisq (and Bid'ah) by default. This is called exercising caution and avoiding generalisation and presumption in takfir; it's not Irja'. Also, I didn't say you don't speak with any 'ilm; re-read the sentence. And you're welcome.

“My imprisoned brother, know that in your confinement is enormous benefits, amongst which include:

Your seclusion with Allāh, for how many verses have you reflected upon?

And how many chapters (of the Qur’ān) have you memorised?

And how many books have you read from Ahlu Sunnah?

And how many Sunnah's and Ordainments of Islām have you learnt about, so you implemented?

And how many nights did you bring to life (by Qiyām)?

And how many tears did you shed for the sake of Allāh?

And how many supplications have you invoked, in which you were over-whelmed and raised your hands to your Protector (Allāh), showing Him your insufficiency (and need for Him) between His hands (to answer your call), so He accepted that for you?

And how many brothers of yours for Allāh's sake have followed your path, and were tested just like you were tested.

You got to know them, so you benefitted from them and you benefitted them, by knowledge, manners, experiences, truthfulness, and brotherhood which clarified the meaning of Allāh's statement to you:

"Indeed, the believers are brothers" [49:10].

And the Hadīth of Al-Nu'mān Ibn Bashīr (رضي الله عنه) has revealed to you its (true) description, where he said, the Messenger of Allāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم) said:

"You see the believers as regards their being merciful among themselves and showing love among themselves and being kind, resembling one body, so that, if any part of the body is not well then the whole body shares the sleeplessness (insomnia) and fever with it." [Agreed Upon - This wording belongs to Al-Bukhārī].

So these are practical lessons which you have received in which you were unaware about (from before), so praise Allāh for His Generosity, Favour and Success for you through this (affliction).

And from it, is purification; For indeed, from the wisdoms of tests and hardships is that it purifies His slaves, Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) said:

"And of the people are some who say, "We believe in Allah," but when one [of them] is harmed for [the cause of] Allah, they consider the trial of the people as [if it were] the punishment of Allah." [29:10].

Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) said, "He separates the evil from the good." [3:179].

And Allāh (جل وعلا) said, "And that Allah may purify the believers [through trials] and destroy the disbelievers." [3:141].

And from the benefits, is that it became clear to you who your enemy is from your friend, as Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) said:

"And thus do We detail the verses, and [thus] the way of the criminals will become evident." [6:55].

And other benefits which you gained benefit from, and even if you didn't attain any benefits except what has been narrated in the Hadīth of Abī Hurayrah (it would have been sufficient), where he said, the Messenger of Allāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم) said:

"He whom Allah intends good, He makes him to suffer from some affliction". Narrated by Al-Bukhārī."

A poem written by the Noble Scholar & Mujāhid, 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tuwaylā (تقبله الله) to his beloved Shaykh, the Noble Imām Nāsir al-Fahd (فك الله أسرته):

"Peace be on Najd and whomever descended in Najd,
Even if my greeting increases the passion,

Abā Mus'ab, how difficult is being away, as I Found the delightfulness of water: bitter because of being away.

And I became that if a bitter passes through time,
I say: it was bitterer than honey!

And I have never seen crying as I see now,
And I have never known, before today, what is the grief of loss.

I have cried till my tears decreased and was bored,
And it left me crying, on your farness, alone.

If a criticizer saw my suffering and sadness,
He blames on that little that I show!

Does the one who sleeps know, [what] if he sleeps
To worry, insomnia tortured with insomnia?

I am unlike the one who complains [about] the departure of his beloved,
And sniffs because of yearning to mouth and breast!

But he is a sea of knowledge that flows,
And the parched [in love] was deprived from its abundant water.

Who would provide me with an [exemplary punishment] if a liar stands,
Wanting to lay to the enemy and begs?

And who would refute the suspicions if [by them] they are in clamor
The fronts of army of Shirk, defending its Shirk?

And if some accidents, in the day of battle, are ambiguous,
Where to get a "Tibyān" (clarification - alluding to the amazing book of the Shaykh), for a guidance seeker, that guides?

The eyes of enviers call the commendable acts,
Towards him, but his modesty meets it with avoidance.

He has been modest till the ignorance of him thought:
That he would fall behind, less than the sea of ebb and flow.

And he was strong on the Kuffār, while confined,
So they were despised because of what in their hearts of hatred.

Glory be to you oh Allāh, how much knowledge
You have put, and morals, in that slave?

And no crier have cried, or a supporter have supported,
Or a praiser have praised a brother, like Nāsir Al-Fahd.

Oh you who is mounted, if you [ever] come across his land,

And the travelling white camels have moved you from Najd,

Send my greetings on Najd and whoever descended in Najd,
A greeting that is efficient, and heals the passion.”

The 'Aqīdah of the Mujāhideen has remained the same ever since their establishment. The most recent Bayān simply contained some mistakes (such as classifying those who don't see the ljmā' on the Tā'īfah Mumtani'ah as having Irjā') and un-clarified statements which were misunderstood and even abused by the laymen, such as the issues of making Takfīr upon the Mushrikīn and the Asl of the people in Dār al-Kufr.

Some people couldn't understand the Bayān, especially the term 'Usūl al-Dīn al-Dhāhirah' so they resorted to publishing 'fake' PDF's in the name of noble Mujāhideen that were posted after they received Shahādah, may Allāh accept them.

For example, the so called 'refutation' by Shaykh Abū Sufyān al-Sulamī (تقبله الله) condemned the Bayān for saying Takfīr is from Usūl al-Dīn, speaking about this issue for pages! Coming with emotional arguments that "this necessitates Takfīr upon all these Mujāhideen and Scholars", and Aslu Dīn means to be known by the 'Aql and Fitrah!

So these deceitful people attributed ignorance to Shaykh Abū Sufyān al-Sulamī (تقبله الله), since he himself previously said in a lecture on the Ashā'irah sect that Takfīr is from Usūl al-Dīn.

But due to their ignorance, and inability to comprehend the difference between 'Aslu Dīn' and 'Usūl al-Dīn', they resorted to attributing false 'refutations' to Noble Shuyūkh and Mujāhideen.

The Mujāhid, Shaykh Abū Muhammad al-Furqān (تقبله الله) said, "By principle, Takfīr upon the Mushrikīn is Dhāhirah (clear), however some obscurity can occur in it" (such as with those who attribute themselves to Islām).

So there was no contradiction between this statement and the previous Bayānāt as some of the deceitful people have come up with.

We don't need Fulān and Fulānah to speak on behalf of the Mujāhideen - A compilation of lessons will be recorded to address the issues mentioned in the Bayān, may Allāh increase you all in beneficial knowledge.

Radwan Dakkak وعليكم السلام I'm not sure what u mean by plan an excursion? As for condemning nationalism, yeah we stay away from all the celebrations, practises & traditions related to their national holidays etc... If you get a holiday from work, and avoid involving yourself in any celebrations, you are perfectly fine yaar

Abuomer Abdallah We are planning to go to farm house and do a family gathering because we got an extra day off. But my friend told me that since we condemn nationalism we should also not use the benefits of it. so its better we spend the day as usual without taking advantage of that holiday.

Reminder: Just because we live in a time where the over-whelming majority of the Scholars have sold out their Dīn for a low price in this Dunyā, it does NOT give you the right to speak without knowledge about the religion of Allāh.

How many brothers & sisters are there on the correct 'Aqīdah that rush to answer questions and speak on every issue of the Dīn.

Fear Allāh, and remember that you are upon the correct Manhaj due to the favour and blessing of Allāh upon you - Humble yourself and seek knowledge from the Righteous Scholars, and raise awareness for the Righteous 'Ulamā' in prison and Mujāhideen who acted upon their knowledge.

Bishr Ibn al-Hārith (رحمه الله) said, "Whoever wishes to be asked (Q's), then he is not from the people who should be asked!"

Beware of using truthful statements such as "They are men, and we are men" to incorrectly justify giving Fatāwah without the need of Righteous Scholars to back you up, or even worse start refuting the Righteous Scholars of the past and present!

Ponder over the statement of 'Abdullāh Ibn Mas'ūd (رضي الله عنه) where he said, "Whoever gives verdicts for the people in everything they ask him, then he is insane!"

And the noble Scholar & Mujāhid, Shaykh Abū Mālik at-Tamīmī (تقبله الله) said that context of this statement is referring to those people of knowledge that are supposed to be asked & give Fatāwah, so imagine the state with those who are beneath them who don't have the ability to give Fatwa!

A man once came to Imām Mālik, telling him that he was sent by his village for a 6 month journey, so he had several questions to ask Mālik, in which Imām Mālik said "I am not able to answer".

SubhānAllāh, so the man told Imām Mālik, what can I tell my village who put this responsibility on me, so the great Imām told him to say, "Tell them, Mālik isn't able to answer these issues of yours".

Every single word that you speak about the religion of Allāh is an Amānah - They say, the amount of times Imām Mālik said, "I don't know", they could've compiled volumes of books from Mālik simply saying "I don't know".

Don't get ahead of yourself, be open-minded and share authentic knowledge that you've learnt from your teachers & the Scholars. Continue seeking knowledge on your own which will help you point out the mistakes of Righteous Scholars in certain issues, not to attack them, but to appreciate them more, since they have told us to return back to the Qur'ān and Sunnah over their own mistakes, Alhamdulillah!

Throughout my life, I used to remain unknown in giving Da'wah by studying Dīn in secret & I had no idea about the reality of Sydney and aussie muslims, until a brother invited me to give Da'wah on FB (who's constantly in my du'ā).

And coming onto these FB groups was like entering a totally different world, especially being from a twitter background where the brothers were so concerned with the Ummah and Mujāhideen. Many FB groups were the complete opposite! People knew absolutely nothing about what goes on around the world.

But Alhamdulillah this taught me alot of tolerance & beneficial methods to deal with those who have grown up in an environment of Irjā'.

But what I can say is hold onto those who are true, because you will have unforgettable moments with them (I still get flashbacks ☺), and they are truly a delight to speak too. Only if I could get into details (!!!) of the amount of fun we used to have back in the good old days & on the mic ☺ May Allāh protect the Muwahhiddīn & delightful Mujāhideen 🕌

And coming onto these FB groups was like entering a totally different world, especially being from a twitter background where the brothers were so concerned with the Ummah and Mujāhideen. Many FB groups were the complete opposite! People knew absolutely nothing about what goes on around the world.

But Alhamdulillah this taught me alot of tolerance & beneficial methods to deal with those who have grown up in an environment of Irjā'.

But what I can say is hold onto those who are true, because you will have unforgettable moments with them (I still get flashbacks ☺), and they are truly a delight to speak too. Only if I could get into details (!!!) of the amount of fun we used to have back in the good old days & on the mic ☺ May Allāh protect the Muwahhiddīn & delightful Mujāhideen 🕌

[AR] "Remain firm O prisoner"

Written by the truthful Imām of Tawhīd, Abū 'Abdillāh Hamad al-Humaydī (تقبله الله) who has memorised the 6 books of Hadīth.

This is such an amazing book full of gems & proof, that those who go through afflictions and tests are being purified in so many ways they cannot imagine, Ya Allāh!!!

My brothers & sisters, let's strive hard to be like the righteous who are the most pure & truthful in secret & public instead of simply 'admiring' them - Ensure that your intentions are truly for the sake of Allāh, never to please anyone else, including opposite gender 🕌

Remove the thoughts of desires and whims from your mind, and beware of committing sins, especially during hardships!

This is a du'ā I love to say, "May Allāh place Barakah in your wealth and life and may He return the good you do upon in this dunya and then in firdaws - May Allah make you among those who love Him and those He loves."

May Allāh honour you and free you my dear sister!

Aafia siddiques's biggest passion was helping the oppressed Muslims around the globe. When war in Bosnia broke out, she did not sit back and watch with one knee over the other. Rather, she immediately sought out whatever means were within her grasp to make a difference. She didn't sit in a dreamy bubble thinking all day about how she wished that she could go over to Bosnia and help with relief efforts. She got up and did what she could: she would speak to people to raise awareness, she would ask for donations, she would send e-mails, she would give slideshow presentations – the point I'm trying to make here is that Aafia showed that there is always something we can do to help our brothers and sisters, the least of which is a spoken word to raise awareness to those who are unaware. Sitting back and doing nothing is never an option. She once gave a speech at a local mosque to raise funds for Bosnian orphans, and when the audience was just sitting there watching her, she asked: "How many people in this room own more than one pair of boots?" When half the room raised their hands, she said: "So, donate them to these Bosnians who are about to face a brutal winter!" She was so effective in her plea that even the imam took off his boots and donated them!

FEELING OVERWHELMED WITH SADNESS?

Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah (رحمه الله) mentioned in Majmū' al-Fatāwā 7/493:

ما رأيت شيئاً يغذي العقل والروح ، ويحفظ الجسم ، ويضمن السعادة ، أكثر من ادامة النظر في كتاب الله تعالى."

"I have not seen anything which feeds the intellect and soul, protects the body, and guarantees happiness, more than the constant looking at the Book of Allāh, the Exalted."

"سأل رجل أحد السلف: "كم نقرأ من القرآن؟"

A man asked one of the Salaf:

"How much should we read from the Qur'ān?

"فقال: "على قدر ما تريد من السعادة."

So he said: "According to the amount of happiness that you want."

It made my day to speak with an elderly Muslimah who lost all of her children; She was feeling so down and even shaking, and when I started speaking to her, she couldn't stop laughing loool 😂😂

Btw, not trying to commend myself or anything, but it was just wonderful to see & really made my day to see her happy. I reminded her about Sabr, and that afflictions only make you stronger, so she is like "I have Ēmān in Allāh & the Rasūl Alhamdulillah :))" #Qadar

When you are studying Tawhīd & the Shaykh apologises for a word he said; How wonderful is seeing such Akhlāq while seeking knowledge 😊

Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr (فك الله أسرته) mentioned in the explanation of 'Kitāb al-Haqā'iq Fī-Tawhīd':

"...what's correct according to us..."

Then he immediately corrected himself by saying:

"...Therefore, what's correct, we stated what's correct (according to us), we made a mistake in this word, and we must not say "us", I apologise, what I intended to say was "What's correct according to me in this issue", and we are nothing for us to say "according to us", and so that you all know, a person should not say "according to us" in a way of exaltation, this is something to be mindful about for you and me..."

Remember that following the Salaf is not simply about striving to perfect their pure Methodology, but to also adorn yourself with their Akhlāq

The secularists, the tawāghīt and their murjiah donkeys do not want to talk about the undoubtable nullifiers in Islām

By Ash-Shaykh Al-Muhaddith Sulaymān Ibnu Nāsir Al-'Alwān fakk Allāhu asrah

Ahlus Sunnah do not make takfīr on every sin and they do not do takfīr on those who commit major sins, as long as they do not make permissible those sins which are definitely harām. And those who attribute takfīr on the Muslimīn to the Mujāhidīn fī sabīli llāh or say that they do takfīr on everyone in general or that they do takfīr on those who commit major sins, they are making up nothing but lies against them.

Its unknown that the Mujāhidīn fī sabīli llāh make takfīr on major sins or on any sins and what they say is what the people of Sunnah have said about takfīr in shirk with Allāh and changing the Shari'ah of Allāh and supporting the kuffār over the Muslimīn and all Muslim Aimmah are united that whoever comes with a saying or action or belief that is contrary to the essence of our faith or alienates it and the proof stands against him, without any doubt, then he is a kāfir. And those who consider this to be the mathhab of the khawārij are mu'tadi'yūn, the jahmiyyah and murjiah. And to those who complicate the simple matters of Islām regarding belief, disbelief & Istihlāl, this is nullified in the Book (Qur'ān), the Sunnah and Ijmā'. For the one who's apostasy falls under the shahādātayn, or one of them, his Islām is only confirmed if he (openly) reaffirms the shahādah.

And (for the one) who's apostasy is caused by denying an obligatory act (like Salāh), or by performing one of the nullifiers of ones Islām, like shirk with Allāh, or insulting the Prophet, sall Allāhu 'alayhi wa sallam, or replacing the Islamic Shari'ah, or helping the kuffār against the Muslimīn, he will not enter back into Islām until he confesses that which he has disbelieved in and he repents to Allāh from that nullifier and he (openly) reaffirms the shahādātayn.

He can not be Muslim, even with the shahādātayn, without repentance because he use to profess the shahādātayn without disbelieving in it (the kufr he was doing). The 'Ulamā are in agreement that lā ilāha ill Allāh does not benefit the one who says it if he does not stop contradicting it.

The secularists, the tawāghīt and their murjiah donkeys do not want to talk about the undoubtable nullifiers in Islām. They can't bear Takfīr on (clear) heretics and apostates and they hate listening to Takfīr even against Shayṭān the rejected They don't know Islamic matters and they can't comprehend laws or jurisprudence except "Kufr Dūna Kufr". They protest against the people of Sunnah in every matter and every trial and every heresy and apostasy and those people, I swear by Allāh, live in the darkness of confusion and ignorance.

Those who are saying about the Mujāhidīn fī sabīli llāh, their supporters and the defenders of their property and honor that they don't understand Islām, just want to hide their embarrassment for sitting with the those remaining behind. And by saying this they want to please the tawāghīt and gain their favor. Some of those who said this went to the countries of rāfiḍ and shirk and met with some of their devils for help and cooperation to face the Mujāhidīn fī sabīli llāh. So this man meets with the mushrikīn and cooperates with them against the Muwahhidīn. This is the kind of Islām they understand and call the people to and measure and weigh them with. They label anyone opposing this a fundamentalist, an extremist, a terrorist, a troublemaker.

The Islām that all Messengers agree upon is submission to Allāh and Tawhīd. To be bound to Him in obedience, to openly reject shirk and its people.

And this is what the fighters fī sabīli llāh practice.

You cannot continue shying away from your Dīn. You must have the courage to speak with wisdom about core fundamentals within Islām and remind the Muslims about it.

It's a shame that whenever some influential people ever bring up Jihād by name, it's almost always quoting a Hadīth such as the virtues of Dhul Hijjah being better than Jihād, not explaining the context of these Hadīths (or differentiating between Offensive & Defensive).

When a man came to Imām Ahmad and said that "Fulān" (i.e. So and So) insults you.

Imām Ahmad replied: "He is a Righteous Man."

So he said, "O Abū 'Abdillāh, he insults you!"

Imām Ahmad replied: "What can I make of him, he is a Righteous man."

I remember hearing this from the truthful Imām, Shaykh Sulaymān Ibn Nāsir al-'Alwān (فك الله أسرته).

What we can learn from this, is to always be fair and just. Even if someone has wronged you, it does not give you the right to wrong them back.

Imām Ahmad simply said the man was mistaken in his insult/accusation, yet persisted in viewing him as pious. Ya Allāh how amazing was his Akhlāq - It becomes no wonder why he didn't have a single disagreement with his wife Umm Sāleh (may Allāh have mercy upon her soul).

Our beloved Shaykh Ahmad Jibrīl (حفظه الله) wrote in 1 tweet back in the good old days:

Imām Ahmad (رحمه الله) said, "Umm Sāleh (رحمها الله) lived with me for 30 years. We never had a single disagreement!"

*The effort of {[both]} of them accomplished that!*

SubhānAllāh, and what's amazing is that you can observe so many similarities between Imām Ahmad and the Scholars of Tawhīd and Jihād.

When it comes to their 'Aqīdah, both have been silenced and remained steadfast upon their clear principles (for e.g. Imām Ahmad remaining firm during the Fitnah of the Mu'tazilah enforcing the belief that the Qur'ān is created).

And when it comes to their Akhlāq, both have pure sincerity and truthfulness with their opponents (in clarifying the evidences) and Ghīrah for the Dīn like no other (for e.g. Imām Ahmad not responding to the Salām of his dear friend & great Imām Yahya Ibn Ma'īn, who took the concession of Ikrāh to utter 'Kufr' using the Hadīth of 'Ammār, but Ahmad said 'Ammār was tortured, unlike Yahya who was simply threatened - Note: Being threatened with immediate torture is sufficient Ikrāh according to the vast majority).

May Allāh accept the efforts of the Imāms of Tawhīd (in the prisons and Ribāt) and grant the Mujāhideen the best reward in Jannat al-Firdaws!

*The Noble Mujāhid, Shaykh Abū Sufyān al-Sulamī (تقيله الله) refuting the Murji'ah who use the narration of Hātib to say allying with the Kuffār against the Muslims isn't Major Kufr and only a Sin*

“As for the second of the two types in affirming the accusation: It is affirming that it's Kufr, and how is that done? Also by two affirmations:

1. That Zayd says or performs something that is explicit in Takfīr (being made) or Kufr (being applied), or explicit in Kufr (i.e. not unclear & open to multiple meanings).

You know that in the chapters of Riddah (apostasy), the Scholars mention in it the Manātāt (the reasons and basis to which the ruling is tied too) and the causes for apostasy, however these causes and Manātāt are of various levels.

So some of them would be considered explicitly Kufr, and others wouldn't be like that, so for example this is a wide topic: Mocking the religion, or the symbols of Islām, then we come too 'Amr, and he has prayed the obligatory Salāh without Tahārah (purification) intentionally:

So the Ahnāf (i.e. Hanafis) went towards the view: That this action is Major Kufr which takes one outside the fold of Islām, how so? They said, it is considered mocking the religion.

However the Jumhūr (Majority of the Scholars): Did not agree with them over this, but they rather said, this action isn't explicit in Kufr, it's not explicitly seen as mocking, but rather it could be tied to mocking, if this particular doer intended by his Salāh without Tahārah mocking, then yes in this situation, he becomes a Kāfir, or else he is not a Kāfir, why? Because this action isn't explicitly indicative of being Kufr.

And in this area, those mistaken ones have erred amongst the Murji'ah of our time, especially in using the Hadīth of Hātib Ibn Abī Balta'ah (رضي الله عنه) as proof in abstaining from making Takfīr upon whoever supports the Kuffār against the Muslims according to their claim, why is that? We say:

Firstly: Verily, supporting the Kuffār against the Muslims is Major Kufr which takes one outside the fold of Islām, and this has been affirmed by the many textual evidences of the Shari'ah from the book of Allāh and Sunnah of the Messenger of Allāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم).

And what will come shortly with us Inshā'Allāh in the Sharh of Nawāqidh al-Islām, infact even in this discussion in which they cited as proof, just like Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah (رحمه الله) mentioned about the people of innovation, that every time they cite an evidence as proof, we flip this evidence against them.

Ponder over this!! When Hātib Ibn Abī Balta'ah (رضي الله عنه) came to the Messenger of Allāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم) as it's narrated in the "Sahīhayn", 'Umar Ibn al-Khattāb (رضي الله عنه) said:

"O messenger of Allāh, allow me to strike the neck of this Munāfiq"

And in the narration of Imām al-Hākim, "Certainly he has disbelieved".

Ponder over this, if Hātib (رضي الله عنه) were to commit Zinā, or steal, or murder, or drink alcohol, or disobey his parents, would 'Umar (رضي الله عنه) have said:

"Allow me to strike the neck of this Munāfiq" or "this Kāfir" or (say) "Certainly he has disbelieved" (as the different narrations mention), would he have said that?

No way, because what's affirmed according to the Sharī'ah amongst the Sahābah is that these actions aren't Major Kufr which take one outside the fold of Islām, rather it is from the Major Sins which don't take one outside the fold of Islām.

Therefore, 'Umar wouldn't have said, "Allow me to strike the neck of this Munāfiq" or "this Kāfir" or (say) "for he has disbelieved" if he (i.e. Hātib) committed something which was from the Major Sins that doesn't take an individual outside the fold of Islām.

So when 'Umar said that (statement), it becomes known that what's firmly established in the Sharī'ah amongst the Sahābah is that the action which is Supporting, Supporting the Kuffār, and assisting the Kuffār against the Muslims is from the types of Kufr which takes one outside the fold of Islām.

Moreover, the statement of Hātib (رضي الله عنه) himself when he arrived (to the Prophet), what was the first thing that he said? "By Allāh, O messenger of Allāh, I did not do this action as apostasy from my religion".

Imagine if Hātib (رضي الله عنه) were to commit Zinā or Steal, or Murder, or Drink Alcohol, would he have said, "By Allāh, O messenger of Allāh, I did not do this action as apostasy from my religion"?

He wouldn't have said that, why not? Because these actions and these Major Sins are firmly established amongst the Sahābah as being from the Major Sins, and not from the Nullifiers.

If he had drank alcohol, he wouldn't have said "I did not do this action as apostasy from my religion", from what's well-known is that alcohol is not apostasy.

However when he said this word in this instance, it proves that Munāsarah (supporting the Kuffār against the Muslims) is from the causes of apostasy, it's from the Manātāt (the reasons and basis to which the ruling is tied too) of Kufr, and that is firmly established in the minds of the Sahābah, may Allāh be pleased with them, however if a questioner asks, how come Hātib (رضي الله عنه) didn't become a Kāfir, while he has committed this action? We say:

Firstly: The action of Hātib (رضي الله عنه) doesn't have an explicit indication of being from "Munāsarah" (supporting the Kuffār against the Muslims), but rather it is an implicit indication of being from "Munāsarah", how is that so?

If you ponder over the words in Hātib's Risālah (letter) which didn't even reach (Quraysh) to begin with and didn't lead to anything from the action of Munāsarah, so what you find in this letter which was mentioned by the Scholars of Maghāzī (battles) such as "Al-Wāqīdī" and others, he (i.e. Hātib) said:

"In the name of Allāh, the most Beneficent, the most Merciful, from Hātib Ibn Abī Balta'ah to whomever this letter reaches amongst Quraysh, to proceed:

The Messenger of Allāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم) is approaching you with an army like the night that marches like the torrent, and by Allāh! If he was to come to you all alone, Allāh would most certainly give him victory."

So this may be used in the aspect of throwing fear (in their hearts) and war talks, or what they call as 'terminologies' (war expressions) in this day and age.

Thus, the text or action of Hātib doesn't have an explicit indication of "Munāsarah", but rather it is an implicit indication of "Munāsarah".

The proof for this, is that he said, "By Allāh! If he was to come to you all alone, Allāh would most certainly give him victory."

Therefore, this isn't an explicit indication of "Munāsarah", and this is why the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) asked him, otherwise if it was an explicit indication of "Munāsarah", he wouldn't have asked him.

For instance, a man comes to a judge and tells him that he said to his wife, "go to your family's house". In this situation, the judge would ask about the intention of the doer (man giving divorce), did you intend Talāq or not?

Why is this? Because this phrase isn't explicit on making Talāq (divorce), but rather it is implicit (i.e. open to multiple meanings), it could refer to Talāq (divorce) and it could refer to other than that.

However, another man comes and says to his wife, "You are divorced", so in this situation, the judge will not ask him, what did you intend by your statement "You are divorce", he wouldn't ask him in this circumstance.

Why is that? Because this phrase is explicitly referring to Talāq (divorce).

Likewise with the Mukaffirāt (what constitutes disbelief), there are nullifiers (of Islām) which are cited from the Scholars, however some of these specific Nullifiers, some specific elements of these causes (of Kufr) could be open to different possible meanings, it could be doubtful between two things, so in this case, the individual is asked (about his intention) and clarified from him.

As for what is considered an explicit indication of Kufr, then in this situation, he isn't asked about his intention, nor asked about his action.

For instance, someone - God Forbid - insults the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) with an explicit insult, so this person isn't asked about his intention whatsoever (i.e. He's immediately called a Kāfir).

And when we affirm upon him the original accusation (i.e. of doing such an act) as we have previously discussed; Firstly, by acknowledgement, or by witnesses, or by Ishtihār (i.e. It became widespread & well known amongst the people).

After we have affirmed the original accusation (i.e. That he really fell into this explicit Kufr), then we don't ask about his intentions about that at all.

So this is the second affirmation, and it is affirming that this action or that this 'Kufr' is from the Mukaffirāt (what constitutes Kufr), first of all we say: Affirming that it is an explicit indication of the action (i.e. Not open to multiple meanings).

If we've done this & affirmed that, we can now resort to the second affirmation, which is: Affirming that this action is Kufr (what constitutes disbelief) through the evidences of the Sharī'ah, from the Book of Allāh and Sunnah of the Messenger of Allāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم).

As it's mentioned in the Hadīth of 'Ubādah Ibn al-Sāmat (رضي الله عنه) in the "Sahīhayn" that the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) said:

"...Except if you see clear evident Kufr..." [1].

Here, Kufr being explicit has been affirmed.

"...In which you have clear proof from Allāh..."

What is meant here is, affirmation by evidences.

"...In which you have clear proof from Allāh..."

A man comes and says, "Amr is a Kāfir", we would say to him, "how did you judge him with Kufr?"

He replied: First of all, he admitted himself that he committed that 'Kufr' act, and the witnesses have seen him do it, and perhaps that has become well-known amongst the people about him, and also the action he did is explicit and isn't open to multiple meanings.

Then we will say to him, what is your proof from the Qur'ān and Sunnah that this action is Major Kufr which takes one outside the fold of Islām?

So he replies: The Messenger of Allāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم) said, "Do not return back as Kuffār (disbelievers) after me by striking (cutting) the necks of one another".

What did 'Amr according to him? He killed muslims, he says, he admitted himself that he killed muslims, and the trustworthy upright people have witnessed him kill, and they affirmed this explicit action upon him that he killed, and it's not open to multiple possibilities, he did not direct (someone) to kill or give a gesture or assistance (i.e. he himself killed another person).

And these matters are also tagged along with the one being killed, as mentioned the Hadīth of 'Umar (رضي الله عنه).

But no, this accusation has been affirmed upon him from all sides, but when it comes to the affirmation that this action is from the Mukaffirāt (what constitutes Kufr) from the Qur'ān and Sunnah, he is unable to prove that it's from the category of Major Kufr which takes one outside the fold of Islām.

Why is that? Because killing isn't Major Kufr which takes one outside the fold of Islām, but rather it is Kufr Dūna Kufr (i.e. Minor Kufr), by collecting the proofs and examining them together.

So this man affirmed this action, the original accusation, however he was unable to affirm that this accusation is from the Mukaffirāt (acts of Kufr) by the book of Allāh and Sunnah of the Messenger of Allāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم).

"And if two factions among the believers (should fight)..." [2].

Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) called both groups that fought each other as being amongst the believers, and He did not remove the description of Ēmān from them.

As it's narrated in the "Musnad" of Imām Ahmad, the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) said:

"Indeed, this son of mine is a Sayyid (chief) - (referring to Hassan) - Allāh will make him reconcile between two great groups amongst the Muslims".

So the point of this: Is that this accusation isn't from the Mukaffirāt (acts of Kufr), so the accusation is to be looked at, since the affirmation may be correct - affirming the original accusation - however when it comes to this matter which is affirming that this action is from the Mukaffirāt in the book of Allāh and in the Sunnah of the Messenger of Allāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم), he isn't able to show that.

Therefore, it's necessary to affirm the accusation from all of its sides; To first affirm the original accusation, and to secondly affirm that it's Kufr, and how do we affirm that it's Kufr? By two means:

Firstly: That the Qur'ān and Sunnah have pointed towards it being Major Kufr which takes one outside the fold of Islām.

Secondly: That this individual has indulged in a form of Kufr that is explicit, because there are wide headings in the Mukaffirāt (acts of Kufr), however under these headings are matters which are open to possible meanings.

For example, mocking the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) and belittling the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) is a nullifier from the nullifiers of Islām. How did we come to know about that? We affirmed it by the Qur'ān and Sunnah.

However, if an individual gives a hand gesture when it is said to him & a Hadīth of the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) is narrated to him, then this hand gesture as Al-Qādī 'Iyādh (رحمه الله) mentioned is an implicit (i.e. Unclear) indication of being Kufr, and it's not explicitly Kufr, it's not explicitly mocking, it's not explicit in belittling the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم), therefore if we affirm the accusation to begin with upon 'Zayd' (i.e. any random person) amongst the people, then we are finished from the first step."

"In the name of Allāh, the most Beneficent, the most Merciful, from Hātib Ibn Abī Balta'ah to whomever this letter reaches amongst Quraysh, to proceed:

The Messenger of Allāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم) is approaching you with an army like the night that marches like the torrent, and by Allāh! If he was to come to you all alone, Allāh would most certainly give him victory."

So this may be used in the aspect of throwing fear (in their hearts) and war talks, or what they call as 'terminologies' (war expressions) in this day and age.

Thus, the text or action of Hātib doesn't have an explicit indication of "Munāsarāh", but rather it is an implicit indication of "Munāsarāh".

The proof for this, is that he said, "By Allāh! If he was to come to you all alone, Allāh would most certainly give him victory."

Therefore, this isn't an explicit indication of "Munāsarāh", and this is why the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) asked him, otherwise if it was an explicit indication of "Munāsarāh", he wouldn't have asked him.

For instance, a man comes to a judge and tells him that he said to his wife, "go to your family's house". In this situation, the judge would ask about the intention of the doer (man giving divorce), did you intend Talāq or not?

Why is this? Because this phrase isn't explicit on making Talāq (divorce), but rather it is implicit (i.e. open to multiple meanings), it could refer to Talāq (divorce) and it could refer to other than that.

However, another man comes and says to his wife, "You are divorced", so in this situation, the judge will not ask him, what did you intend by your statement "You are divorce", he wouldn't ask him in this circumstance.

Why is that? Because this phrase is explicitly referring to Talāq (divorce).

Likewise with the Mukaffirāt (what constitutes disbelief), there are nullifiers (of Islām) which are cited from the Scholars, however some of these specific Nullifiers, some specific elements of these causes (of Kufr) could be open to different possible meanings, it could be doubtful between two things, so in this case, the individual is asked (about his intention) and clarified from him.

As for what is considered an explicit indication of Kufr, then in this situation, he isn't asked about his intention, nor asked about his action.

For instance, someone - God Forbid - insults the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) with an explicit insult, so this person isn't asked about his intention whatsoever (i.e. He's immediately called a Kāfir).

And when we affirm upon him the original accusation (i.e. of doing such an act) as we have previously discussed; Firstly, by acknowledgement, or by witnesses, or by Ishtihār (i.e. It became widespread & well known amongst the people).

After we have affirmed the original accusation (i.e. That he really fell into this explicit Kufr), then we don't ask about his intentions about that at all.

So this is the second affirmation, and it is affirming that this action or that this 'Kufr' is from the Mukaffirāt (what constitutes Kufr), first of all we say: Affirming that it is an explicit indication of the action (i.e. Not open to multiple meanings).

If we've done this & affirmed that, we can now resort to the second affirmation, which is: Affirming that this action is Kufr (what constitutes disbelief) through the evidences of the Sharī'ah, from the Book of Allāh and Sunnah of the Messenger of Allāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم).

As it's mentioned in the Hadīth of 'Ubādah Ibn al-Sāmat (رضي الله عنه) in the "Sahīhayn" that the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) said:

"...Except if you see clear evident Kufr..." [1].

Here, Kufr being explicit has been affirmed.

"...In which you have clear proof from Allāh..."

What is meant here is, affirmation by evidences.

"...In which you have clear proof from Allāh..."

A man comes and says, "Amr is a Kāfir", we would say to him, "how did you judge him with Kufr?"

He replied: First of all, he admitted himself that he committed that 'Kufr' act, and the witnesses have seen him do it, and perhaps that has become well-known amongst the people about him, and also the action he did is explicit and isn't open to multiple meanings.

Then we will say to him, what is your proof from the Qur'ān and Sunnah that this action is Major Kufr which takes one outside the fold of Islām?

So he replies: The Messenger of Allāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم) said, "Do not return back as Kuffār (disbelievers) after me by striking (cutting) the necks of one another".

What did 'Amr according to him? He killed muslims, he says, he admitted himself that he killed muslims, and the trustworthy upright people have witnessed him kill, and they affirmed this explicit action upon him that he killed, and it's not open to multiple possibilities, he did not direct (someone) to kill or give a gesture or assistance (i.e. he himself killed another person).

And these matters are also tagged along with the one being killed, as mentioned the Hadīth of 'Umar (رضي الله عنه).

But no, this accusation has been affirmed upon him from all sides, but when it comes to the affirmation that this action is from the Mukaffirāt (what constitutes Kufr) from the Qur'ān and Sunnah, he is unable to prove that it's from the category of Major Kufr which takes one outside the fold of Islām.

Why is that? Because killing isn't Major Kufr which takes one outside the fold of Islām, but rather it is Kufr Dūna Kufr (i.e. Minor Kufr), by collecting the proofs and examining them together.

So this man affirmed this action, the original accusation, however he was unable to affirm that this accusation is from the Mukaffirāt (acts of Kufr) by the book of Allāh and Sunnah of the Messenger of Allāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم).

"And if two factions among the believers (should fight)..." [2].

Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) called both groups that fought each other as being amongst the believers, and He did not remove the description of Ēmān from them.

As it's narrated in the "Musnad" of Imām Ahmad, the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) said:

"Indeed, this son of mine is a Sayyid (chief) - (referring to Hassan) - Allāh will make him reconcile between two great groups amongst the Muslims".

So the point of this: Is that this accusation isn't from the Mukaffirāt (acts of Kufr), so the accusation is to be looked at, since the affirmation may be correct - affirming the original accusation - however when it comes to this matter which is affirming that this action is from the Mukaffirāt in the book of Allāh and in the Sunnah of the Messenger of Allāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم), he isn't able to show that.

Therefore, it's necessary to affirm the accusation from all of its sides; To first affirm the original accusation, and to secondly affirm that it's Kufr, and how do we affirm that it's Kufr? By two means:

Firstly: That the Qur'ān and Sunnah have pointed towards it being Major Kufr which takes one outside the fold of Islām.

Secondly: That this individual has indulged in a form of Kufr that is explicit, because there are wide headings in the Mukaffirāt (acts of Kufr), however under these headings are matters which are open to possible meanings.

For example, mocking the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) and belittling the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) is a nullifier from the nullifiers of Islām. How did we come to know about that? We affirmed it by the Qur'ān and Sunnah.

However, if an individual gives a hand gesture when it is said to him & a Hadīth of the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) is narrated to him, then this hand gesture as Al-Qāḍī 'Iyādh (رحمه الله) mentioned is an implicit (i.e. Unclear) indication of being Kufr, and it's not explicitly Kufr, it's not explicitly mocking, it's not explicit in belittling the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم), therefore if we affirm the accusation to begin with upon 'Zayd' (i.e. any random person) amongst the people, then we are finished from the first step."

"We swore allegiance to Messenger of Allah (ﷺ) to hear and obey; in time of difficulty and in prosperity, in hardship and in ease, to endure being discriminated against and not to dispute about rule with those in power, except in case of evident infidelity regarding which there is a proof from Allah. We swore allegiance to Messenger of Allah (ﷺ) to say what was right wherever we were, and not to fear from anyone's reproach." [Agreed Upon].

[2] Complete Āyah - Allāh سبحانه وتعالى says:

"And if two factions among the believers should fight, then make settlement between the two. But if one of them oppresses the other, then fight against the one that oppresses until it returns to the ordinance of Allah . And if it returns, then make settlement between them in justice and act justly. Indeed, Allah loves those who act justly." [49:9].

Shaykh Ahmad Jibrīl refused to accept the crocodile tears of those 'Saudi Shuyūkh' who got given the green light to cry for the women of Syria and call Bashār a 'dog' on the pulpit, since these were the same people who refused to utter a single word in support for the oppressed women a few miles from their own house (women in Buraydah).

So likewise, I remind you today on behalf of these words from our beloved Shaykh Ahmad Jibrīl (may Allāh bring him back to us soon), don't be deceived by the many heads who are speaking about the Muslims suffering in Burmā, because if they truly loved the Ummah, they wouldn't be coming out with beautiful words when it's popular to speak about it, but rather they would make it their top priority to speak about the Ummah throughout the year (and explain the reality!), while stressing on the important matters of our Dīn that the Muslims are in need of.

People love to talk about 'Māshā'Allāh look at these beautiful "Mosques" teaching Qur'ān' and they 'love' the Ummah, but they tend to forget about these same Mosques kicking out brother Mūsa Cerantonio (may Allāh ease his affairs) coz he made du'ā for the Mujāhideen in Afghānistān, telling him 'you're not welcome to come back!'.

Don't be surprised by the lies of an innovator, when they habitually lie against the religion of Allāh, as the poet said:

الكذاب والميت سوا، لأن فضيلة الحي هي النطق، فإذا لم يوثق بكلام الكذاب فقد بطلت حياته

"The liar and dead are equal, because the virtue of living is to speak, so if the speech of the liar isn't trusted, his life is futile."

Tell a lie to deceive, and you will continue telling lies to defend your lie until your life becomes a lie, and Allāh exposes you.

Du'ā is powerful, but that will not uplift your burden in this life and the next, may Allāh have mercy upon the Shuhadā' of the Ummah, Āmīn.

Issue: How is the Tawbah (repentance) of a Murtad accepted?

The Scholars declare that the Tawbah of a Murtad isn't actualised except by two things:

1. Returning back from the Nullifier which he fell into, and making Barā'ah from it, and believing in the Kufr of whoever falls into it.
2. The utterance of the Shahādatayn to renew his Ēmān.

And Tawbah from apostasy isn't valid except by these two conditions, nor does one of these conditions suffice the other in Tawbah (i.e. You must actualise both, doing 1 is not sufficient).

I have many apparent and hidden shortcomings, so you have to bear patience with me, and forgive me for ever speaking good about myself, I am trying to conceal whatever good I have the same way I conceal the bad.

I can't hide my love for the Dīn, and that's why I get so passionate and excited to speak day & night about it, I really wanna motivate others to feel the same way.

Despite whatever problems I'm going through in life, I can't help but smile all the time & remain positive, infact that's the only way people remember who I am lol...

The environment we live in is so difficult to practise Islām & truly give Allāh His rights, but I like to remind myself and others, that the harder you strive to do anything for the sake of Allāh, the more rewards you get.

May Allāh help us, just be yourself and please none but Allāh.

I'm not here to respond to words being put in my mouth. If someone is sincere, they can politely clarify what they wish from me, and I'll be more than pleased to do so.

I'm far from being a righteous man & have many faults, but I'm not here to expose my sins to people either.

I don't complain about what people say about me, or even like to speak about those I see as deviant, infact I wish the best for them to be guided.

It's ironic when you have "ex-Muslims" giving their "expertise" about Islam. It's like a failed medical student giving advice about medicine. What's even more ironic is that despite these so called "ex-Muslims" despising Islam and being called a Muslim, they still attribute themselves to being a Muslim once upon a time; it is like a reformed thief being proud of being called ex-thief.

"And [mention] when Ibrāhīm was raising the foundations of the House and [with him] Ismā'eel, [saying], "Our Lord, accept [this] from us. Indeed You are the Hearing, the Knowing." [2:127].

When some of the Salaf recited this, he cried saying:

"These are two noble Prophets, who fear that it won't be accepted from them, so how about us and those like us?!"

#Impurities

Najāsāt (impurities) include many types:

1. The urine of an animal which cannot be eaten, such as the dog, pig, monkey, fox etc...So whatever urine comes out of these animals, then it's Najis (impure).

So from the مفهوم المخالفة (the reciprocal understanding), what we learn from this is that the animals which are lawful to eat, such as sheep, camels and cows, then its urine is Tāhir (pure).

And the proof for this, is that the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) told the shepherds to drink the urine of the camel (refer to footnote) [1].

2. The faeces of animals which cannot be eaten are also Najis, just like the case with urine.

3. Blood is also Najis, however blood is excused & pardoned for a little amount. By principle, the impurities are not pardoned for their little amounts, however blood is given an exception of being pardoned according to the Madhab.

4. What is deceased or dead is also Najis, however there are some exceptions to this which will be mentioned in the next post Inshā'Allāh under the topic of "exceptions to impurities".

5. Vomit (القيء) which comes from the stomach is Najis.

6. Mathī (المذي) is Najis - What is a Mathī? It is a thin fluid which comes from the occurrence of a desire by an individual.

7. Wadī (الودي) is Najis, and a "wadī" is a fluid which occurs after urinating. It looks like seminal fluid, however it comes out after urinating, and it doesn't come out all the time, rather "it could occur after urinating".

8. The animal which is unlawful to eat that is bigger than a cat in size is also Najis.

And based upon this, we learn that the animals are two types:

- The animal whose meat is lawful, then its body is Tāhir (pure). When it's alive ofcourse, not when it's dead (which will be discussed in the next post Inshā'Allāh).

- The animal whose meat is unlawful, if it's size is bigger than the cat, then it is Najis (impure), but if it's size is like the cat or smaller, such as the mouse, then it's Tāhir.

The proof for this is that the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) said the cat is not Najis, therefore Qiyās (analogy) is used for whatever is smaller than it to show it's not Najis, but if it's greater in size, it would be Najis.

9. Finally, alcohol is also Najis. So if some alcohol befalls upon an individual, it's necessary to wash it before prayer.

~ [Refer to Sharh Al-Nadhm al-Jalī].

[1] Note: The Hanābilah are of the opinion that the urine and stool of animals that are permissible for us to eat is pure. However, it is established by them via clear texts (from Imām Ahmad himself) that consuming the stool or urine of these animals is Harām unless there is a necessity, as these things are filthy.

Therefore, it is Harām to drink camel urine unless there is a necessity.

It is also important that you know that just because something is "filthy" it doesn't necessitate that it be "impure" in the Shari'ah and just because something is "pure" it does not mean its consumption is "permissible."

Battle of ‘Aqīdah - A Story From ‘Umar al-Mukhtār

The Mujāhid Yūsuf Būrahīl asked his comrade and his commander ‘Umar al-Mukhtār when he entered his room and found him teaching the children the Qur’ān and he said to him:

"Is fighting the Italians not enough for you that you are exerting yourself in teaching the little children to memorize the Qur’ān?!!"

So, ‘Umar replied "Oh Būrahīl, our fight is not a fight of guns, rather it is a fight of ‘Aqīdah. The Italians were only able to gain control over us because of us leaving the teachings of our Qur’ān."

May Allāh grant mercy to the Mujāhid Lion ‘Umar al-Mukhtār. آمين

You know for a fact that the Shaykhs and Scholars have lost respect & betrayed the Ummah when so many brothers tell another layman "I wish I was in your country" or "Please help us, we don't have anyone here speaking about this".

But that's fine, as I have stated before, we don't complain about anything, rather we must make a change ourselves without needing the help & reliance of anyone except Allāh.

I promise you, this is just the beginning, you guys haven't seen anything yet May Allāh allow us to bring coolness to the eyes of the Muwahhiddīn, have Sabr for indeed what's coming إن شاء الله is more exciting than seeing a couple get Married. May Allāh bless the hard work that is being done behind the scenes.

As for whoever wants to label others as "Internet Scholars", either let them step up and start speaking about the important issues which the Ummah is in need of, or else they should remain silent and fear Allāh. Indeed, if you don't ordain the good and forbid the evil, Allāh will replace you with those who love Him & sincerely strive to raise the word of Allāh the highest, اللهم اجعلنا منهم

Sleep a little

The Prophet صلی الله علیه وسلم said, have a napp during the day, that will help you for the prayer during the last third part of the night and also the shaaytan does not napp.

The sahabah (May Allah be pleased with them) used to napp, some before Dhur and some after Dhur because the Prophet commanded them to napp.

Sleep a little during the day, the night is long, spend it in the worship of Allah and sleeping beforehand will help you do that.

If you do not napp then not only will you eventually be forced to give up a big portion of your worship because of your tiredness but you will slumber and lose concentration. Allah loves the deeds which are consistent. Make intention that you are sleeping a little to be able to worship Allah more, then even your sleep becomes a form of worship and you get rewarded for it!

When calling adhan, the prescribed sunnah is to say:

Hayya 'ala Salah on your right once, then say Hayya 'ala Salah on your left once.

Then Hayya 'alal Falah on your right once, then Hayya 'alal Falah on your left once.

As for saying hayya 'ala Salah on your right twice and Hayya 'alal Falah on your left twice, this is permissible.

As for those who say, there's no need to turn left and right during the Hay'alatayn with the presence of loudspeakers, saying "turning is only for people to hear", this has been derived by some Scholars, but there's no clear daleel that this is the 'illa (reasoning) behind the ruling, rather turning left and right is a sunnah in and of itself during the Adhān.

Vowels and Consonants

The prominent view amongst the Grammarians is that the Arabic Alphabet has 28 letters [1], and they are all consonants.

There are 3 short vowels which are separate from the Alphabet (they are the markings on the letters), and vowels are needed to pronounce words.

So a vowel in Arabic is called a حَرَكَه (haraka), and the plural "vowels" is called حَرَكَات (harakāt).

In the English, the vowels are 5 (A, E, I, O, U), whereas in Arabic the vowels are 3:

1. Ḍammah (ضَمَّة) which looks like this َ ُ and that little Dammah is written above the consonants (i.e. Letters of the Arabic Language), which is pronounced as 'o' or 'u' in English, for e.g. بُ = Bu.
2. Faṭḥa (فَتْحَة) which looks like this َ ِ and that little Fatha is also written above the consonants, which is pronounced as 'a' in English.
3. Kasrah (كَسْرَة) which looks like this َ ِ and that little Kasrah is beneath those underscores, which is written under the consonants, and it's pronounced as 'e' or 'i' in English.

We also have something called "Sukūn" (سُكُون) which is an absence of a vowel َ ُ ِ that circle above is how it's written.

So for e.g. The word "Fun", there is a vowel on the letter "F" (by saying Fa), but there is no vowel on the letter "N" (say Fun - you stop at the N, it's just nnn).

So likewise in Arabic, the word سُكُون - The ك & س both have a Dammah ("u" sound), the و is not voweled (it's simply prolonging the Dammah on the ك to get an extended "uu" sound), and the end letter ن has no vowel on it either, it's just "nnn", there's a Sukūn on the ُ, so this letter is Sākin.

Finally, in English when you have a word that has 2 syllables where the first syllable ends in the same consonant that the second syllable begins in, what they do in English is write the letter twice.

For e.g. The word "Funny" or the word "Pretty", so Funny has two N's and Pretty has two T's.

Whereas in Arabic, we would not write the letter twice, we would write it once but with a particular symbol on top of it which is called تَشْدِيد (Tashdīd) or شَدَّة (Shaddah) and it looks like this ّ that little "w" looking symbol written on the top of a consonant.

And what "Shaddah" means is pronounce the letter twice, so look at the word "Shaddah" itself for instance:

شَدَّة

This is pronounced Shad-dah, so there are two D's (as written in English), but when it's written in Arabic, it only has one D (د).

[1] Benefit: The expert grammarian known as Seebawayh (رحمه الله) said that the Arabic Alphabet consists of 29 letters, and he added the letter "Hamza" which is written like this أ - This was also the view adopted by a group of Imāms of Nahw such as Abū 'Amr al-Dānī (رحمه الله), but we are sticking to the Mash'hūr (dominant view) amongst the Scholars of Nahw والله أعلم

That moment when people say 'Everyone is talking about you', like so what?

Alot of people talk the talk, but they don't want to walk the walk. The rule is: Walk the walk, THEN talk the talk.

What are these talkers even talking about, "He's too red hot etc.."

If it's red hot to raise awareness for the Ummah and remind people of their brothers behind bars, or spread the correct 'Aqedah from the Scholars of Tawheed and Noble Mujahideen, whilst clarifying important contemporary controversial matters, then being red hot is an honour Alhamdulillah.

As Shaykh Ahmad Jibril said, some people are so scared to speak the truth, infact even think the truth, and abandon their brothers in times of need, I seek refuge in Allah from such a defeatist coward mentality.

Infact just recently I randomnly came across an Imam of a Mosque that I knew 4 years ago, coz I went with a brother to take his Shahadah.

Anyways, weeks later, the brother wanted to marry a sister, so I went with him to his local Shaykh, and the girl's father came & first thing he asked the Imam when we sat down was "Are you Sunni or Shia", and he replied by saying he's Sunni & said, "I know brother Radwan really well, and he isn't afraid to say anything, and he wouldn't let him (i.e. revert brother) come to me if I was shi'a" or something along those lines.

Anyways, the point is, even though the Imam of that Masjid disagrees with my Manhaj, he commended me for openly speaking what I believe is Haqq.

As Shaykh Ahmad Jibril also mentioned, "At the end, we will remember not the words and torture of our enemies, but the silence and betrayal of our friends."

This is what we see around us, our Ummah would rather raise money for the Kuffar instead of their own brothers and sisters, just ask those who do charity work and try raise money for prisoners, and see how people reject them. But no, I must be too young, and they are the ones with "knowledge" and "wisdom" for remaining silent & neglecting their own Ummah.

There has indeed been an excellent example for you in Ibrāhīm

By ash-Shaykh Hamad Ibn 'Atīq rahimahullāh

His saying;

{There has indeed been an excellent example for you in Ibrāhīm...}

Is just like His commandment;

{Then, We have sent the revelation to you (that): Follow the Millah Ibrāhīm}

So Allāh has ordered us to establish ourselves upon the model of Ibrāhīm al-Khalīl (the intimate friend of Allāh), and those who followed him from the Messengers, in saying;

{Verily, we are free from you...} To the end of the Āyah.

So if this is Wājib (obligatory) for a Muslim to say this to his own people, those in the midst of whom he is living (and thus they are capable of harming him)- Then it is even more apparent and obvious that it is Wājib to say the same to those who are distant (and cannot harm him). And right here, there is a delicate jewel- in the saying;

{Verily, we are free from you and whatever you worship besides Allāh.}

And this jewel is that Allāh (subhānahu wa ta'āla) has commanded Barā'ah from the mushrikīn – those who worship other than Allāh – before commanding Barā'ah from the tawāghīṭ which are worshipped besides Allāh.

This is so, because the first is more essential than the second. Since it is possible that a person rejects the idols, but does not reject the people who are worshipping them; and thus he is not fulfilling the obligation which is upon him. However, if he does reject the mushrikīn, that implies that he has already rejected their tawāghīṭ. And this is similar to the Āyah;

So Allāh ordered to abandon the mushrikīn before abandoning their tawāghīṭ. And likewise in the following Āyah;

{So when he had turned away from them, and from those whom they worshipped besides Allāh.}

And also;

{When you withdraw from them, and that which they worship, except Allāh}

So it is upon you that you grasp this jewel firmly, for it will open the doors for having hostility against the enemies of Allāh. For indeed, how many people there are that do not commit any shirk- but yet they are not hostile against the mushrikīn, and thus they are not really Muslim as they have forsaken the Dīn of all the Messengers.

Then He mentions;

"Has emerged"- means "perceptible, and made visible." And also ponder upon how Allāh has commanded for the 'hostility' before the 'hatred.' And this is because the first is more essential than the second. For it is possible that a person hates the mushrikīn, yet he does not treat them with hostility- and in such a case, he would not be fulfilling the obligation which is upon him; until both conditions, hostility and hatred, are met by him. And it is indisputable that the 'hostility and 'hatred' both have to 'emerge'- meaning that both have to be perceptible and visible.

And know, that even though 'hatred' is connected to the heart, it is of no benefit until its signs are made apparent, and its indications are noticeable. And it cannot be as such, until it is conjoined with 'hostility' and Muqāta'ah (Boycotting) – for only then can hostility and hatred be visible. But if Muwālāt and association exists (between the Muslim and mushrik), then this proves that there is no hatred (in the heart). So it is upon you to comprehend this matter- for it will indeed clarify for you many Shubuhāt (doubts).

(Sabīl An-Najāti Wal-Fikāk p. 43-45)

Around this age, the Shaykh had the Qur'ān memorised, along with Sahīh al-Bukhārī & Sahīh Muslim, including books of Fiqh and 'Aqīdah. Yet, someone who suddenly returns back to the Dīn for a year thinks they have a better understanding of "Tawhīd" than the Shaykh. Respect our intellect for once, if you even have any respect for others!

Note: Before any irrational extremist calls me a "Scholar worshipper", I have never stated that being a Scholar is a preventative of Takfīr, but the issue is that you are making Takfīr upon a Muwahhid for not even committing a Major Sin, let alone Kufr!

**The revival of the Dīn starts with the revival of the Arabic language****

بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم

This is a new channel solely dedicated to learning the language of the Qur'ān, اللغة العربية - Which is from the most important sciences to learn.

The benefits of learning the Arabic Language is greater than one can explain, and the reason I've decided to create this channel is to motivate the brothers and sisters to perfect their Arabic Grammar, as this is a pre-requisite to perfect all the other sciences of Islām.

So this knowledge is a 'means' to perfect our understanding of the Dīn, not to learn it for Dunyā reasons or get really deep into it by forgetting greater priorities, as Imām Ibn Rajab (رحمه الله) said:

“Imām Ahmad disliked getting deep into learning the Arabic Language and its minute details, and he rebuked Abī 'Ubayd for his deep expansion in doing that, and he said "He is pre-occupying himself from what is more important than it", and that's why it is said, the Arabic Language in Speech is like Salt in Food, meaning that you take from it what is suitable for your Speech, just like you take the suitable amount of Salt for your food, and whatever is added on top of that, would corrupt it.”

May Allāh give us the strength in helping the Ummah return back to the Arabic Language, which will surely bring them back to the Qur'ān and pure understanding of Tawhīd.

What is the meaning of the #Hadīth "The Dunyā is a prison for the believer, and a Jannah for the Kāfir".

Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān (حفظه الله) narrates a Story that's spoken about of al-Hāfidh Ibn Hajr (رحمه الله) regarding this Hadīth:

...Ibn Hajr (رحمه الله) & his companions were walking on a road, when a man who sells olives from the people of the book approached him & said: You're the one who's called Shaykh al-Islām. Your Prophet says "The Dunyā is a prison for the believer, and a Jannah for the Kāfir", so what Jannah are we in right now, and what prison are you in? So Ibn Hajr (رحمه الله) said to him: You are in a Jannah for what Allāh has reckoned for you of punishment in the hereafter if you die upon Kufr, and I'm in a prison for what Allāh has reckoned for us of comfort/bliss when we die upon Islām.

So the Kuffār today are considered to be in Jannah, for what Allāh has reckoned for them with punishment [in the hereafter]...

Shaykh Al-'Allāmah Nāsir al-Fahad (فك الله أسره) said:

The people of falsehood use the story of Hātib's (radiy Allāhu 'anhu) writing to the kuffār of the Quraysh and notifying them of the news of the Prophet (sall Allāhu 'alayhi was sallam) as proof that Mudhāharah of the kuffār is not kufr.

The story, as it is in the Saheehayn and others on the authority of 'Alī (radiy Allāhu 'anhu) about the battle of the Fath (the opening of Makkah). He said, "The Messenger of Allāh (sall Allāhu 'alayhi was sallam) sent me, Az-Zubayr and Al Miqdād somewhere saying, 'Go forth until you reach Rawdah Khakh. There you will find a lady with a letter. Take the letter from her.'

So, we set out and our horses ran at full pace till we got at Ar-Rawda where we found the lady and said (to her), 'Take out the letter.' She replied, 'I have no letter with me.' We said, 'You will most certainly take out the letter or else we will take off your clothes.' So, she took it out of her braid. So we took the letter and brought it to the Messenger of Allāh and it contained a statement from Hātib ibnu Abī Balta'ah to some of the mushrikūn of Makkah informing them of some of the intentions of the Messenger of Allāh.

Then the Messenger of Allāh said, 'O Hātib! What is this?' Hātib replied, 'Do not hasten to give your judgment about me. I was a man closely connected with the Quraysh, but I did not belong to them, while the other Muhājirūn with you, had their relatives who would protect their dependents and in Makkah. So, I wanted, because that passed me, by my lack of blood relation to them, to take among them a favor by which to protect my dependents. I did this neither because of kufr apostasy nor out of pleasure with kufr over Islām.'

The Messenger of Allāh said, 'Hātib has told you the truth., 'Umar said, 'O Messenger of Allāh, allow me to chop off the head of this Munāfiq!' The Messenger of Allāh said, 'Verily he witnessed the battle of Badr, and what would make you come to know, perhaps Allāh has already looked at the people of Badr and said, 'Do whatever you like, for I have forgiven you.'"

So Hātib assisted the Kuffār of Makkah, however, along with that, the Prophet (sall Allāhu 'alayhi was sallam) did not declare him a disbeliever so this proves that Mudhāharah and helping the kuffār is not kufr!!!

The Response to this Misconception:

No person of falsehood uses an evidence from the Book and the Sunnah in order to prove his falsehood except that in that proof itself there contains what contradicts his falsehood and makes clear its corruption, as was mentioned by Shaykhul Islām (rahimahullāh), and I shall mention what indicates the opposite of what they wanted from this proof, from the proof itself and that will become clear from various angles.

The First Angle

Verily, this proof is from the clearest of proofs concerning the kufr of the one who performs Mudhāharah and his apostasy from the Dīn of Islām and this is shown clearly from three things in the Hadīth:

The First Thing: The statement of 'Umar in this Hadīth, "Leave me to strike the neck of this Munāfiq." And in another narration (it is reported that he said): "Certainly he has disbelieved." And in another narration, after the Messenger (sall Allāhu 'alayhi was sallam) said,

"Did he not witness Badr?" 'Umar replied, "Yes, however he has gone back and helped your enemies against you." This proves that what was well established with 'Umar and the Companions was that Mudhāharah of the kuffār and assisting them is kufr and apostasy from Islām. He did not say these words except due to what he saw of what apparently was kufr.

The Second Thing: The tacit approval of the Messenger (sall Allāhu 'alayhi was sallam) for what 'Umar understood as he did not censure him for his Takfīr of him (Hātib) rather, he only mentioned the excuse of Hātib.

The Third Thing: Hâtib (radiy Allāhu ‘anhu) said, “And I did not do that out of kufr nor out of apostasy from my Dīn nor out of pleasure with kufr after Islām.”

This proves that it was also established with him that Mudhāharah of the kuffār is kufr, apostasy, and pleasure with kufr, so he only mentioned the reality of his action.

The Second Angle

Hâtib (radiy Allāhu ‘anhu) assisted the Messenger (sall Allāhu ‘alayhi was sallam) against his enemies, helped him with his self, wealth, tongue, and opinion in all of his battles, witnessed Badr and Hdaybiyyah with him, and their people are clearly in the Jannah (promised Jannah).

He also assisted the Messenger (sall Allāhu ‘alayhi was sallam) in this battle (the battle mentioned in this Hadīth – the conquest of Makkah), for he went out in it with the Muslims as a warrior with his life and wealth to wage war against the mushrikūn and he never gave victory to the kuffār against the Muslims; not by body, not by wealth, not by tongue, and not by opinion, and he possess of previous good acts what every one who reads knows.

And with all of this, when he wrote to the mushrikūn, informing them of the departure of the Prophet (sall Allāhu ‘alayhi was sallam) that was not Mudhāharah from him towards them or giving victory because he was going to fight them himself with the Prophet (sall Allāhu ‘alayhi was sallam) and he was already certain of victory and assistance, ‘Umar accused him of Nifāq and the Messenger (sall Allāhu ‘alayhi was sallam) asked about that, after which he negated kufr and apostasy from himself and (then) (parts) of the Qur’ān were revealed concerning him that would be recited until the Day of Judgment and it is the words of the Most High:

{Oh you who believe do not take My enemy and your enemy as allies, extending to them affection while they have disbelieved in what came to you of the truth, having driven out the Prophet and yourselves [only] because you believe in Allāh, your Lord. If you have come out for Jihād in My cause and seeking means to My approval [take them not as friends]. You confide to them affection, but I am most knowing of what you have concealed and what you have declared. And whoever does it among you has certainly strayed from the straight way.}

This is from the most tremendous of evidences that the one who helps the kuffār with his life, wealth, tongue, or opinion and its likes has apostated from the Dīn of Islām and Allāh's refuge is sought.

The Third Angle

The letter of Hâtib to the kuffār of Makkah was not from Mudhāharah and assisting them against the Muslims at all, for it has been narrated by some of the people (scholars) of battles, as it is in Al Fath, that the wording of the letter was, “As for what follows. O assembly of Quraysh. The Messenger of Allāh (sall Allāhu ‘alayhi was sallam) is approaching you with an army like the night that marches like the torrent and by Allāh! If he was to come to you all alone, Allāh would most certainly give him victory and fulfill for him His promise, so look after yourselves and Salām.”

There is not in this what might be understood to be Mudhāharah and giving victory to them, no, he disobeyed the Messenger (sall Allāhu ‘alayhi was sallam) by writing it to them. It was a major sin that was expiated by his previous works.

The Fourth Angle

The action of Hâtib has been differed over, is it kufr or not? If it is said that it is kufr, then this is a proof that benefiting the kuffār with the like of this light matter (what was in the letter) is kufr so it is therefore a notice that what is beyond it such as giving victory with life, wealth or any other than that is kufr more so. If it is said that it is not kufr, then this is only the case because the reality of his action, he was not helping the kuffār or assisting them against the Muslims.

Although, having said that, it is a means to kufr and a path towards it even though it lacks the picture of giving victory to the kuffār due to what has proceeded in the first angle so therefore, this example is not to be used as evidence against this issue of ours and nor does it weaken that basis.

The Fifth Angle

Hâtib only did that out of a faulty interpretation (ta’wīl) thinking that his letter would not harm the Muslims and that Allāh would give victory to His Dīn and Prophet even if the mushrikūn knew of their departure towards them.

There has appeared in some of the wordings of the Hadīth that Hâtib, excusing himself, stated, “I knew that Allāh would assist His Messenger and complete for him his affair.” Al Bukhārī (rahimahullāh) narrated the story of Hâtib in the section, “Seeking the repentance of the apostates and rebellious ones and fighting them.” As well as in the section, “What has been narrated about those who make faulty interpretations.” Al Hāfidh said in Al Fath, “And the excuse of Hâtib is what he himself mentioned for he did that out of a faulty interpretation thinking that there is no harm in it.”

Hence, there is a great difference between what he did whilst being certain that the kuffār would not benefit from his letter in their war with the Messenger (sall Allāhu ‘alayhi was sallam) and the one who gave them victory and assisted them with what they would benefit from in their war against Islām and it's people.

The Sixth Angle

It is to be said to the one who uses this Hadīth to prove the absence of kufr for the one who performs Mudhāharah, does this Hadīth prove that every type of Mudhāharah towards the kuffār and help towards them (against the Muslims) is not kufr and apostasy? If he answers, “Yes,” then he has violated and gone against the Ijmā’ and he has no precedent in that so there is nothing to be said to him. If however, he answers, “No,” then it is to be said, “So what are the examples in which the one who assists the Kuffār has disbelieved?” So this Hadīth of Hātib will counter whatever example he mentions and what answer will he have for this countering? This is our response here.

Allāh blesses some people with Strong Hearts that are firmer than mountains. For example, Imām Ibn Taymiyyah would debate 100's of innovators in 1 gathering, with Sabr and Hikmah.

The Haqq will always rise high, as Allāh mentioned in the Qur'ān, "The Haqq has come, and Bātil has perished, Indeed the Bātil is bound to perish".

Your job in this Dunyā is to deliver the Risālah, which doesn't involve complaining about the actions of people.

Imām Ibn Al-Qayyim also stated that no one becomes pious except that he was afflicted by trials, so how can anyone complain when Allāh is not only making you stronger, but also expiating your sins. "My mercy embraces all things" سبحانه يا رب

Allāh said "We made from amongst them Imāms - when they had Sabr".

Imām Ibn Hazm stated that a person must be crazy if he thinks he can be a believer upon the true path without being tested.

Allāh mentioned in the Qur'ān "Do the people think that they will be left to say "We believe" and not get tested?!"

Be with Allāh and Allāh will be with you, "Indeed Allāh is with us".

And I saw him today, and had a nice chat with him, and tells me that when he went home previously, he told his mum that he's never met anyone like 'this brother" in his life, and she was too amazed to hear it, and he full shows her my profile lol...

Strange to get a positive reaction like that, unlike some who don't allow their kids to be seen with certain brothers, may Allāh forgive them.

The Benefits of publicly condemning the Rulers:

- 1- It leads to the reduction of Evil (deeds being committed).
- 2- In it is Honour and Strength for the Scholars.
- 3- In it is an activity for the People of Good.
- 4- In it is failure and suppression of the people of falsehood and disobedience.

The consequences of secretly condemning the Rulers:

1- It leads to the Scholars being accused of not condemning (them) and not getting involved into those matters.

2- It leads to rulers being more daring (to do bad things they didn't do before).

Q. Are the Rāfidah and Nusayriyyah considered Kuffār Asliyyīn or Kuffār Murtaddīn?

A. Everyone that says the Shahādatayn and ascribes themselves to Islām while believing and committing Nullifiers of Islām from Shirk and Kufr is considered a Kāfir Murtad, not a Kāfir Aslī, even if he was raised upon Shirk and Kufr, and this is according to Consensus.

Shaykh Sulaymān Ibn Nāsir al-'Alwān (حفظه الله) quoted the following text in "Masā'il al-Imām Ahmad":

سئل الإمام أحمد رحمه الله : يهودي يستهزئ يقول أشهد أن لا إله إلا الله محمد رسول الله يستهزئ ما كان يقول ذلك عن قلب قال هو مرتد فروج الإمام أحمد رحمه الله تعالى فيه أنه يستهزئ كيف يدخل في الإسلام ويقول ذلك إستهزاءً فقال الإمام أحمد هو مرتد يعامل معاملة المرتد

Imām Ahmad (رحمه الله) was asked, about a Jew mocking, saying "I bear witness that there's no deity worthy of worship except Allāh, and I testify that Muhammad is the Messenger of Allāh", he didn't truly say it from his heart.

Imām Ahmad replied by saying, "He is a Murtad", so he came back to Imām Ahmad (رحمه الله) and mentioned that he is only mocking, how can he enter into Islām while he says that out of mockery?

So Imām Ahmad replied by saying, "He is a Murtadd, and he is to be dealt with like the Murtaddīn" [End Quote].

So according to the Principles of Islām, the one who says the Shahādatayn, even if it was out of mockery or an individual said it while not abiding by the pillars of Islām, he is considered a Kāfir Murtad. This doesn't mean we considered the "Jew" or those raised upon "Shirk" as Muslims when we call them "Kuffār Murtaddīn", but rather due to them saying the Shahādatayn & Nullifying it, they are given the ruling of Apostasy.

Moreover, this isn't simply the position of Imām Ahmad (رحمه الله), but rather Shaykh Sulaymān al-

'Alwān (حفظه الله) says this is according to the Usūl of the 4 Imāms and other than them, and the the Salaf are unanimously agreed upon this, but rather differences occurred with the Muta'akhireen (later Scholars) which has no significance; Among those who have quoted an Ijmā' is the great Imām of Najd

Imām 'Abdul-Latīf Ibn 'Abdir-Rahmān Ibn Hassan Ibn Muhammad Ibn 'Abdil-Wahhāb, stated:

"The people have spoken about the countries of the Mushrikīn who worship the Prophets and the righteous, such as the extremist grave worshippers. So those people; the people have spoken about their kufr and their shirk. And what is well known (and) agreed upon amongst the people of knowledge is that whoever from amongst them performs that, from amongst those who have stated the Shahādatayn; they are judged upon with kufr and apostasy after the Hujjah has reached them (i.e. The Hujjah is required to apply the hukm of Kufr, not required to apply the Ism of Kufr - since he called them Mushrikīn).

And they did not consider him a Kāfir Aslī (disbeliever of origin). I did not see that except from Muhammad Ibn Ismā'īl (As-San'ānī) in his treatise 'Tajrīd at-Tawhīd' entitled 'Tat'hīr al-l'tiqād'. And he explained the reason for that being that they did not understand what the Word of Ikhlās (i.e. the Shahādah) meant. So they did not enter into Islām by (saying) it and not knowing what it meant. And our Shaykh (Muhammad Ibn 'Abdil-Wahhāb) did not agree with him on this." [End Quote].

Refer to "Misbāhh ath-Thalām Fir-Raddi 'Alā Man Kathaba 'Alash-Shaykh al-Imām", Pg. 22-23.

Shaykh Abū Bakr al-Qahtānī (تقبله الله) stated the Scholars of Islām have always called the Rāfidah & Nusayriyyah as "Kuffār Murtaddīn".

For example, Shaykh Al-Islām Abū al-'Abbās Ibn Taymiyyah (رحمه الله) mentioned:

هؤلاء "الدُّرُزِيَّةُ" و "النصيرية" كُفَّارٌ بِاتِّفَاقِ الْمُسْلِمِينَ لَا يَجِلُّ أَكْلُ دَبَائِحِهِمْ وَلَا نِكَاحُ نِسَائِهِمْ ; بَلْ وَلَا يُقْبَرُونَ بِالْجَزْيَةِ ; فَإِنَّهُمْ مُرْتَدُّونَ عَنْ دِينِ الْإِسْلَامِ لِنِسْوَةِ مُسْلِمِينَ ; وَلَا يَهُودَ وَلَا نَصَارَى

"These Durziyyah (i.e. Drūze) and Nusayriyyah are disbelievers by consensus of the Muslims, it is not permitted to eat from their slaughter, nor to marry their women and nor is jizyah coroborrated for them. For they are apostates from Islām, they are not Muslims, nor [are they] Jews and nor Christians."

Refer to Majmū' al-Fatāwah (35/161).

And to claim that the Nusayriyyah in the beginning were Kuffār Murtaddīn, but those born after them are considered Kuffār Asliyyīn due to being raised upon Shirk is far from the Truth.

Imām Ibn al-Jawzī (رحمه الله) wrote his book "Al-Nasr 'Ala Misr" 300 years after the Nusayriyyah were established, along with their Fātimī Bātinī state, and Imām Ibn Al-Jawzī (رحمه الله) stated all of the Rāfidah & Nusayriyyah are Murtaddīn.

Abū Hāmid al-Ghazālī (رحمه الله) reiterated the same words in his book "Fadā'ih al-Bātinīyyah".

The reason I'm sharing this, is to show what the Shaykh himself really believes, since the Murji'ah in the past have claimed that the Shaykh views "Individual Takfīr" for Scholars only, and just the other day, one of the Ghulāt claimed "Alwan says Takfeer upon Mushrikeen is only for Ulama", so due to the innovators being unable to prove their Bātil principles with clear proof, they resort to accusations.

1. The Shaykh's position on Excuse of Ignorance in Major Shirk is well-known, and he divided it into two types, "acceptable ignorance" and "non-acceptable ignorance" (opposes the truth due to ignorance - no excuse at all), the first type is for someone who the Qur'ān has never reached and he was unable to search for the truth on the matter, and if he knew the truth, he would say "I would reject and disbelieve in what I am doing & come back to the Truth", this ignorant person is excused according to the Shaykh, and this applies to two types of people, "The new revert" and "The one living in a remote area".

2. With regards to Takfīr, the Shaykh doesn't differentiate between the Clear Matters & Major Shirk. We all agree that Clear Matters matters known in the religion by necessity aren't excused for anyone living amongst the Muslims, and he can only be excused if the Qur'ān hasn't reached him and is separated from the Muslims, such as if someone says "Alcohol is Halāl" or "Salāh is not obligatory" (as the Shaykh views), and he states in this audio, if someone says Zinā is Halāl he is a Kāfir, if he read it in the Qur'ān once, he would disbelieve.

With regards to Major Shirk, the Shaykh views it like the Clear Matters, so he says that if a person was given a Fatwa to make Tawāf around a grave, he wouldn't be excused for doing so. Allāh said "and perform Tawaf around the ancient House", He didn't say "and perform Tawāf around the graves".

The Shaykh gives another example of someone (ruler) that replaces the Sharī'ah of Allāh with man-made laws, he says it's impossible that such a person is excused, and he lives amongst muslims and has read the Qur'ān, "because he doesn't live in a remote area and he isn't a recent revert to Islām"

3. Abdul Malik narrates that his father (Al-'Alwān) said: "Every person who falls in to Major Shirk while living in Muslim Lands is a Mushrik."

قال والدي: كل من وقع منه الشرك الأكبر وهو يعيش في بلاد المسلمين فإنه مشرك

And also in the end of his Sharh of Nawāqidh al-Islām, the Shaykh states that we cannot claim the grave worshippers are excused, since not only is the Hujjah established upon them, but most of them would show enmity and harm the Believers for rejecting their Shirk.

4. Finally, as for the slander against the Shaykh by the Murji'ah and Ghulāt who claim "Alwan says Takfeer upon Mushrikeen is only for Ulama", this has no basis whatsoever, for indeed the Shaykh simply stated that the People of Knowledge are the ones that busy themselves in Takfir, responding against a person who claimed "Individual Takfir" is widespread, and this is a calamity in our times where people are issuing Fatwas in Kufr and Shirk left and right without knowledge.

The Shaykh stated, "The third Principle is: The actions, which nullify your Islam, are different from each other. Some of the nullifiers can only be recognized by the scholars, who understand the issue in detail. On the other hand, other Nullifiers are clear, like for example; Shirk and slandering Allah and His Messenger. So the majority of the people know these issues. And there are others that are not known by the Majority."

The Shaykh also stated:

"The Khawārij make Takfir upon whoever fornicates and steals, and they make Takfir upon every Major Sin.

Whereas Ahlus Sunnah don't make Takfir upon Major Sins, they make Takfir upon the Tawāghit and Mushrikīn.

So whoever considers this the Madhab of the Khawārij, then he has made the Sahābah Khawārij".

This is just to fairly show the Shaykh's position on the matter, and this view of Excuse of Ignorance in Major Shirk is a False Misinterpretation, and there are numerous sayings from the Imāms of Najd showing that such a person is excused for adopting it, until the evidences are shown to him & rejects hukm of Allāh, this is by Ijmā'.

While everyone is patiently waiting for detailed explanations on the topic, this is an excellent summary of the 3rd nullifier by Shaykh Maysarah al-Muhājir (حفظه الله) refuting the false understanding of the Ghulāt who unrestrictedly make Takfir upon the "refrainer" due to their false principle that it's from Aslu Deen, and the absurd claim that the refrainer considers "Tawhid" as "Shirk", whereas the refrainer considers what the Mushrikeen that claim Islām do is Clear Shirk, but may refrain from applying Takfir upon some individuals due to a misconception that the Hujjah must be applied.

We do Istighāthah (the du'ā when in a calamity or hardship for support and relief) in difficult times, when we are in distress, when people wronged us and when the Ummah is facing trials. That is all good and that is what we should all do Istighāthah in. We should do Istighāthah to Allāh from our sins. But in days like today, do Istighāthah to Allāh to guide you to the right path, to keep you on the guided path and to show you the truth in the high waves of Fitan that this Ummah goes through. Do Istighāthah to Allāh that He show you the truth during the Fitan. Wallāhil 'Adheem, it needs Istighāthah today.

Do Istighāthah that Allāh show you who the guided 'Ulamā are, who the guided groups are and those who are misguided. Let me repeat. Do Istighāthah so Allāh can show you the guided path and keep you on it, show you the guided 'Ulamā and the guided groups, and show you the misguided so you stay away from them. Do that type of Istighāthah as if you were drowning in an ocean. Listen to this Hadith:

Hudhayfah said there will come a time when no one will be rescued, relieved or free from the Fitan, except one who makes the Istighaathah like the one who is drowning.

No one will be relieved and no one will see the truth in the Fitan, except who? Except one who does the Du'ā of one drowning. What type of Du'ā is the Du'aa of one drowning? We just took it – Du'ā of Istighāthah. Istighāthah to what? To show him the truth from the evil and to keep him firm. Not just any superficial Du'ā like O Allāh guide me, I am a Muslim on the right path.

No, sincere Du'ā as if you were drowning because Wallāhil 'Adheem, drowning in the water on the pure Tawheed is easier than drowning in the Fitān and losing your Deen.

Several of the Salaf were quoted as saying when Fitān come, only very, very, very few will see the truth.

When there is Fitān, only few of the few of the few will know how to analyse them. Make Istighāthah to be amongst them or at least see the reality of the Fitān.

After time passes on Fitān and they end, then everyone will see the reality of what the few were trying to tell them. That is what happens during all Fitān. The problem for many is that after they see the reality, they have already lost their Deen.

~ Shaykh Ahmad Jibrīl (حفظه الله).

**The Biography of Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad, may Allāh free him** [1].

Sub-heading: Mentioning his name and lineage and family's place of residence:

He is Nāsir Ibn Hamad Ibn Humayyin Ibn Hamad Ibn Fahad, from the tribe of Al-Asā'idah al-Rawaqiyyah, and his lineage goes back to Banī Sa'd Ibn Bakr, who were from those that nursed the Messenger (صلى الله عليه وسلم), and today they are known as {Utaybah}, and his mother is Nūra al-Ghazziy, her lineage goes back to the clans of "al-Dawāsir".

His family's place of residence was in "al-Thuwayr", and it is from the villages of "al-Zulfī", and his father Shaykh Hamad Ibn Humayyin moved to "al-Riyādh"; To work with Shaykh al-'Allāmah Muhammad Ibn Ibrāhīm (رحمه الله), so he stayed with him for 18 years until he passed away.

Sub-heading: Mentioning the year he was born in, and a small excerpt from his life and pursuit for knowledge:

He was born in "Riyādh" in the month of Shawwāl 1388 AH, and he was raised in it. After he completed his Secondary education, he began studying Engineering in "Al-Malik Sa'ūd University", and he was outstanding in it and the top student.

And when he reached the 3rd year (of Engineering studies), he discontinued, so he transferred from it to the College of Shari'ah in "The Islamic University of Imām Muhammad Ibn Sa'ūd".

And he memorised the entire Qur'ān in 3 months, and he wrote on the first paper (page) from his Mus'haf that he was memorising from:

"Accomplished - with the Praise of Allāh and His Success - the completion from it (i.e. the Qur'ān) and memorised from cover to cover in a single achievement after 'Asr on Sunday 29/11/1412 from the Hijrah of the Mustafah (صلوات الله وسلامه عليه), and the beginning of its memorisation was in the beginning of Ramadān in the same year, and all Praise belongs to Allāh who by His Praise the righteous deeds have been accomplished".

And in the college of Shari'ah, he graduated under the hands of some of the Mashāyikh, among the most prominent were:

Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Rājihī, Shaykh Zayd Ibn Fayyād (رحمه الله) and Shaykh Ahmad Ma'bad al-Azharī.

And he was given an Ijāzah in the college in the year 1412 AH, finishing the top of his class, and he was requested to study at the College of Shari'ah and Usūl al-Dīn again, so he chose "Principles of the Religion; Department of Creed and Contemporary Sects", and he was appointed as an Ustādh (teacher) in Thailand, and he debated a Jahmī over there, he gained victory over him, and the audience applauded him.

And he exerted efforts at the time in pursuit of stockpiling books, reading and researching, and he was very fond of reading, and I did not see him for a single hour at home without a book (in his hands), and he would take a book with him to the car and read it at the traffic lights, and if I were to say he reads 15 hours a day, I would have grievously wronged him unjustly.

And he excelled & proved to be outmatched in most fields of the Shari'ah; In 'Aqidah and what is connected to it, Hadīth, Rijāl (the science of determining the reliable from the non-reliable narrator), Fiqh according to all of its Schools of Thought, Usūl al-Fiqh, and Farā'idh (inheritance).

And he had a great speculation and ability to derive rulings and reasonings and finalised statements.

He is also a Scholar of History and Genealogy (the study and tracing of lines of descent), and Shaykh Walid al-Sinānī (أحسن الله فكاكه) was asked about some of the genealogies, and he is a expert in Genealogy who is unrivalled, he is famous for that, so he replied, "Ask that As'adī" - in attribution to the Asā'idah (tribe), meaning Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad.

And some professors of 'Aqidah in the Imām (Muhammad Ibn Sa'ūd) University have informed me, they said: "Your father was my peer in studying {Masters Degree}, and he was the most intelligent man among us by heart, and the quickest to memorise and understand, and there's nothing to criticise from him except for his harshness". And this is true, for indeed if he debates someone, he gets heated up, and whenever his anger would cool down, he apologises to his opponent.

And it has reached me that an Ustādh (teacher) in the Creed Department said to his students one day: "There was a man in our department who had alot of misconceptions, and no one was able to stand up to face him except for Nāsir al-Fahad".

And in the year 1415 AH he got arrested and entered "Al-Hā'ir prison", and he remained in prison for 3.5 years, and he was released in the year 1418 AH.

After he was released, he came onto the "Internet", and he would make announcements in which he had Receipts, and he later turned away from it, due to the time restraint.

And the visitors were increasing in numbers, and he wasn't able to make time for it, so he organised a gathering at his house on Saturday and Tuesday every week between Maghrib and 'Ishā', which revolved around mentioning new Hadīths and Reports, and the gathering was getting crowded to the extent that all sides (of the room) was filled up with people, so they would have to make a row right in the mid-point of the gathering (in-line with the Shaykh).

And when Allāh tested the Muslims with America going to war with Afghānistān, the Shaykh exerted efforts to incite the believers to support their brothers and warning them from allying with the Kuffār against the Muslims, and he did not change his stance until he was wanted (by the Saudi Tāghūtī govt), then he was imprisoned in the year 1424 AH.

And since that time till this very hour, he has been in {Solitary Prison}, and he is prevented from seeing his family or speaking to them since 6 years ago.

And Allāh has opened up for him in prison from His blessings, and increased him in an abundance of knowledge, for instance he completed the memorisation of the 9 books of Hadīth from the "Yahya compilation", and he memorised a good number of Books and Mutūn, and he read {Majmū' al-Fatāwah} six times, and he authored 85 Treatises, and he made the Usūl al-Fiqh and Usūl al-Tafsīr of Shaykh Al-Islām (Ibn Taymiyyah) into a poem consisting of more than 800 lines of poetry.

And a brother who recently got released from prison said to me: Verily, some of the soldiers would say, "What is with this brackish guy - {he intends Shaykh Nāsir} - he sleeps for 4 hours, and spends the rest of his time praying and reading!!"

And he was subjected to Fitnah in prison, and was tortured, and they wanted to disgrace him, but he refused, and he has still remained steadfast, patient, wanting the reward of Allāh, may Allāh increase him in steadfastness and free him.

Sub-heading: Mentioning what has been said about him:

I have listed some quotes that I have present with me here, without investigation or demand or selection, and sufficient for you is the pendant necklace that is around the neck.

Shaykh Al-'Allāmah Hamūd Al-Shu'aybī (رحمه الله) said in his commendation for (the book), "The Exposition Regarding the Disbelief of the one that Assists the Americans":

"And the Shaykh, Nāsir al-Fahad, may Allāh grant him success, has many blessed efforts, for he has taken part and expended effort in giving victory to the truth and its people and repelling falsehood and its people. He has confronted them in many well-known books and essays. We ask Allāh to write for him a goodly reward and keep him firm upon that." [End Quote].

And some of our brothers have informed me, stating: "Whenever the brothers would come to Shaykh Hamūd al-Shu'aybī with a misconception for him to respond top, he would reply: Has Shaykh Nāsir responded to it?".

Shaykh Al-Muhaddith Al-'Allāmah Sulaymān Al-'Alwān (فك الله أسرته) said in his commendation for (the book), The Exposition Regarding the Disbelief of the one that Assists the Americans":

"So may Allāh strengthen this Shaykh. How good it is that which his hands have written! It is worthy of a good reception from the People of Knowledge and seekers of the truth. So without further due, this is the book that has actualized 'Aqidah and Fiqh upon the path of those that have passed from the Imāms of guidance and the People of Knowledge and Taqwā"

And Shaykh Sulaymān also mentioned from what his son 'Abdul Malik related with regards to Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad:

"And he is from the expert memorisers of knowledge, and he has vast knowledge in many sciences, and he was oppressed in his prison-cell severely." [End Quote].

And Shaykh Al-Muhaddith 'Abdullāh Al-Sa'd said in his commendation for (the book), "The Methodology of the Early Scholars (of Hadīth) in Tadrīs":

"And I have previously looked at other essays authored by Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad, and I have found all of them to be beneficial, firmly established upon following what the Qur'ān and Sunnah has alluded too, taking a path in accordance with the Methodology of the Righteous Predecessors, this is what we see him to be, and only Allāh, the Exalted, knows his true merits." [End Quote].

*Clarification about At-Tarēfē's stance on the non-Arab Shī'as*

After going through his other lessons on the topic, the clip of At-Tarēfē saying the non-Arab shi'as are excused and Kufr isn't applied upon them was referring to "being excused in the Hukm" (i.e. The rulings related to being punished), so I take this mistake of mine back.

The original point regarding At-Tarēfē is going on TV condemning the actions of the Muwahhiddīn against the Rāfidah in the arab lands (who he believes the Hujjah is established both ism and hukm), and supporting Apostates in Bilād al-Shām, excusing Tawāghīṭ, so this is the fundamental Error in his Manhaj.

So it was a slight misunderstanding of Shaykh At-Tarefe's words, but as for those Ghulāt Mu'tazilah who want to claim I did this out of "deceit", then absolutely not, because I am not like them who truly lie to deceive others by claiming "Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr makes Takfīr upon the 'Ādhir in his Sharh of Nawāqidh al-Islām you Jahmiyyah" and claiming Dwla adopts your position, then as time goes by, you come out making Takfīr upon the Best of Mujāhideen and 'Ulamā' of Tawhīd.

By Allāh, it is more honourable for a believer to accept his sincere mistake & speak the Truth, unlike the Murji'ah and Ghulāt who intentionally lie to support their arguments & never retract their lies, let alone their mistakes.

In any case, what concerns me are the False Beliefs of the Murji'ah & Ghulāt, for indeed what's coming بإذن الله will make them die in their rage ﷻ

**Don't let anyone turn you off from learning the Nullifiers of Islām & how to correctly apply them**

Imām al-Mujaddid Shaykh al-Islām Muhammad Ibn 'Abdul Wahhāb (رحمه الله) said in "Al-Durar al-Saniyyah" (10/84-85):

"So if the Nullifiers of Wudū' are 8, then what is mentioned in "Al-Iqnā'" is that the Nullifiers of Islām are more than 400!" [End Quote].

Refer to "Al-Iqnā'" (4/285).

Brothers, there's no need to mention what the deviants are saying - these are the same people who openly called for a public debate instead of accepting in private. Then, when being unable to refute the Truth directly in front of everyone, resulted in deleting comments and ran away due to the lame excuse of "I don't have time". They took the cowardly way of refuting their opponents where they can speak to their own fanbase, without confrontation.

The greater priority is to refute the core beliefs and principles of أهل البدع (the people of innovation), and to knock out the heads of misguidance. Since these specific individuals are simply a distraction who can't keep to their word & have lied against the Mujāhideen and Scholars of Tawhīd on numerous occasions.

One of them claimed Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz at-Tarēfē adopts the same position of Shaykh Sulaymān Ibn Nāsir al-'Alwān on the issue of "excuse of ignorance". This shows their lack of knowledge regarding the different types of people who hold the position of Excuse of Ignorance in Major Shirk.

For at-Tarēfē holds the position that the Hujjah hasn't been established upon the non-Arabs that are ignorant. Whereas Al-'Alwān clearly stated that the Hujjah is established upon all the Arab and Non-Arab Shī'as (and grave worshippers) who the Qur'ān has reached. 'Alwān has also stated that the one excused in these matters of Usūl is someone living in a remote area who hasn't heard the Qur'ān (if this is present).

Moreover, Shaykh al-'Alwān is not infallible either, and holding this position of excuse of ignorance in Major Shirk is باطل (false). But Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr has stated it's an Unclear Matter and the Sincere Scholar is to be respected & benefited from (until the Hujjah is applied upon him and he stubbornly rejects it).

However, people don't realise the status of Shaykh al-'Alwān who has granted victory for Tahwid and the Mujāhideen throughout his life and never betrayed them. But rather instead, he always defends them (he also refused to go on TV & stated he won't speak Haqq on it, let alone speak Bātil against the Mujāhideen).

Unlike At-Tarēfē who sided with the Sahawāt, and considered the True Mujāhideen as Khawārij, that are more deserving and rewarding to be fought over the Syrian Regime. He also excused Tawāghīṭ & Apostate Funded Groups, so there's no comparison between the two.

I spoke with some Students of Knowledge about translating the beneficial works of Shaykh at-Tarēfē: and they recommended that it's best not to give him an advertisement. But rather share the knowledge I've learnt without mentioning him.

And Shaykh Khālid al-Hāyek stated in private that those who gave a Fatwā to support the Sahawāt are not to be named, but rather warned against and pushed away.

So due to the greater benefit, I've decided to share with everyone whatever I learn from his beneficial works without advertising him. I am taking the advice of other Shuyūkh, just like I am doing in sharing knowledge in Fiqh from other Shaykhs.

4 August 2017 11:19

Radwan Dakkak updated his status.

Reminder: I've been well aware of the deviant positions Shaykh al-Muhaddith 'Abdul 'Azīz at-Tarēfē (may Allāh free him) holds, which is why it's important to clarify this to the masses who may think he is upon the Pure Manhaj of Tawhīd, because this is not the case.

However despite that, this did not stop me from translating his beneficial works over the past years, especially in Fiqh and Hadīth. My position on sharing the works of the 'Ulamā' is clear, whatever I share is not an endorsement of all their other views.

Shaykh Sulaymān Ibn Sahmān said the works of the extreme deviant Ibn Hajr al-Haytamī (who some even refrain from sending Allāh's mercy upon) may be benefited such as the Kabā'ir 'while warning against the other matters', and till this day Ibn Hajr al-Haytamī is quoted for his beneficial works, despite his other shocking views.

So likewise, the works of Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz at-Tarēfē (فك الله أسرہ) may be benefited from (and I'll continue to share those gems with you), while warning against the deviant positions of Irjā' & going on the Saudi TV channels openly condemning the actions of the Muwahhiddīn against the Rāfidah Anjās, while considering those Mujāhideen as Khawārij and the one whom fights them receives a greater reward than fighting the regime. So he has taken the side of the Awliyā' of the Shaytān against the Awliyā' of Allāh, which gave the Murtaddīn a concession to abuse his words and unite with the Kuffār to fight the Believers.

May Allāh forgive us and him, hasten his release and bring him back to the Truth.

#Utensils

There are two types of utensils:

1. #Halāl_Utensil By principle, every Pure Utensil (containers, cups, silverware etc...) is permissible to acquire and use, this is the Asl (general basic principle).
2. #Harām_Utensil There is an exception to this, and that is the utensil made up of Gold and Silver, which is called النقيدين (Al-Naqdayn = Gold & Silver), this is impermissible to acquire and use.

However there is an exception under this 'exception', meaning: The Scholars have stated that using utensils made up of Gold and Silver is Harām, however they have given an exception to this general ruling.

So the Scholars have permitted using a small ضبة (Dabbah), and what is a Dabbah?

Scenario: A utensil broke, so the owner of that utensil needs to place something to fix and solder the broken utensil back together, so this metal piece used to fix the utensil is what's called a Dabbah.

Now is it permissible to use a Dabbah or not? There are conditions that need to be met as mentioned by the Scholars:

Firstly: It must be a silver piece, and cannot be from gold.

Secondly: It must be a small amount of silver used to solder back the utensil, and cannot be a big amount.

Thirdly: This Dabbah must be used for a "Need" (حاجة) and because of the broken utensil, and cannot be used for adornment. So if these conditions are met, it becomes permissible to use a Dabbah.

To sum it all up, the Asl is that pure utensils are permissible to be used and acquired (even if expensive), except for Gold and Silver utensils which is called "al-Naqdayn".

However there is a final exception given to this ruling of using Gold and Silver Utensils:

1. It must be a Dabbah (A metal piece to solder a broken 'pure utensil' which isn't made up of gold & silver).
2. The Dabbah must be a small amount, otherwise it's not allowed to use.
3. The Dabbah must be made up of silver, and it's not allowed to use gold.
4. The Dabbah must be used for a "Need", and cannot be used for adornment and beautification.

Also if someone took a Harām Utensil of Gold and Silver & made Wudū' with it, we would say his Tahārah is valid, but is sinful for using that utensil.

Final Point: The utensils of the Kuffār are permissible to use, whether they were Kuffār Asliyyīn or Kuffār Murtaddīn.

And Shaykh Al-'Allāmah 'Abdul Rahmān Ibn Qāsim (رحمه الله) stated in his "Hāshiyah 'ala Rawdh al-Murbi'" (1/107) about using the utensils of the Kuffār:

That it's only made permissible if it's not known to have Najāsah (impurity) on it, otherwise it's to be washed just like the rest of the Muslim utensils when they get impure based upon the Hadīth that says "So wash it" (paraphrased).

I saw Shaykhul-Islām (Ibn Taymiyyah) when he was faced with difficult issues for which he could not find an answer and it was very hard for him. He would flee from them and repent, pray for forgiveness, ask Allāh for help, turn to Him, ask Him to inspire him to find the right answer and to bestow upon him from the treasures of His mercy. Then divine help would start to reach him persistently, and he would soon find the answer through divine inspiration. Undoubtedly whoever is guided to realise his need for Allāh and express it, and feel that need strongly in his heart, is indeed most fortunate, and whoever is deprived of that will be deprived of any achievement and any help. Once a person combines this sense of need with striving his utmost to find out the truth about an issue, then he is following the straight path. That is the grace of Allāh, which He bestows upon whomever He wills, for Allāh is the Possessor of abundant grace.

#Misconception: You Muslims are barbaric because you brutally slaughter animals who deserve to live and eat them. I'm a proud vegetarian.

Response: There are a few points to address here إن شاء الله for those who spread such misconceptions:

1. It's unfair to single out Muslims as being Barbaric, because according to your own principles, everyone who eats meat is deemed to be 'barbaric', as you have stated "animals who deserve to live", so this is the real reason behind your frustration.

2. If it's the slaughtering that Muslims do, then just so you know, many non-Muslims themselves have affirmed that Muslims slaughter animals in the most Humane way as commanded by our Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) in the authentic Hadīth:

"Verily Allah has prescribed Ihsān (perfection) in all things. Thus if you kill, kill well; and if you slaughter, slaughter well. Let each one of you sharpen his blade and let him spare suffering to the animal he slaughters." [Sahīh Muslim & Al-Arba'een Al-Nawawīyyah].

3. Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) has created our teeth in a way as humans to be able to eat both vegetables and meat, and if it was considered 'barbaric' to eat meat, then why did Allāh design our teeth to eat both vegetables and meat, He could have simply made us like omnivores (who don't eat meat).

4. You stated "You Muslims are barbaric because you brutally slaughter animals who deserve to live and eat them. I'm a proud vegetarian."

Okay, let's just say for argument sake that we Muslims are barbaric because we slaughter animals who 'deserve to live and not be eaten', but let's be fair and re-direct the same question back to you:

Aren't plants also living organisms? They also have a life, so how dare you take away their life & eat vegetables! "I'm a proud vegetarian", may Allāh guide you.

How rare is it to find someone balanced in their Dīn, someone who is between Irjā' and Ghulu, someone who is free from inconsistencies in their Manhaj, may Allāh protect us from deviation.

What is the solution?

Shaykhul-Islam Ibn Taymiyyah narrated that al-Imam Ibn Mubarak and al-Imam Ahmad Ibn Hanbal, rahimahumullah, said: "If the people disagree regarding anything then look to what ahl ath-Thughur (i.e. the Mujahidin on the frontiers...) say – since the truth is with them, because Allah (tabaraka wa ta'ala) says; {As for those who wage Jihād for Us (for Our Cause), We will indeed guide them to Our Ways.}"

And likewise the Mujāhideen of the pen & tongue, that are tortured in the prisons of the Tawāghīṭ, and some have been executed والله المستعان - I have never seen such clarity and purity of Manhaj except from those few Righteous Carriers of Tawhīd.

Know that every trial, oppression and abuse you get coming your way, happened to the best of creation, our Prophet Muhammad صلی الله علیه وسلم - May Allāh use us to bring good for this Ummah. May Allāh forgive our shortcomings, enable us to hide our good deeds the way we hide our bad deeds, in order to purify our Sincerity and Intentions, اللهم آمین.

We are men of 'Aqīdah, built upon Walā' & Barā' - Not Emotions! What is required from every believer is to absorb the Qur'ān into his heart, to live by it! And the main purpose behind Nashīds is not to enjoy listening to them more than the Qur'ān (infact that becomes impermissible), but rather the Nashīds are there to install more energy and emotions to our 'already' firmly established 'Aqīdah to motivate us and push us to our maximum efforts!! This is how the Sahābah went about it, O Allāh how amazing were they.

I don't want any of you to feel a loss of hope, since this contradicts the Fundamental Principle of Sabr!

It's absolutely natural to feel sad, I feel you all the way. But always remember that Allah is the greatest, He has the best plans with His divine wisdom!

Imam Anwar al-'Awlaki said our primary focus needs to be more on the hearts and minds than what occurs on the ground. Trust me (I rarely use this word since most of the times people say 'Trust me' they are lying, but Trust me! lol), we can see an incredible revival in the pure teachings of Islam!! I believe this is true victory!

As for what occurs on the ground, then that victory must come after the Munafiqeen are purified from the ranks of the believers (and look how everyone got exposed today, Allahu Akbar - Raise your head up high O Muwahhideen).

Just wait a little more...Think about the first footsteps into Jannah!! That's when we will rest with the pure souls, may Allah keep us all steadfast!!

Finally, I advise you and recommend my brothers with beneficial 'Ilm inherited from our Prophet (صلی الله علیه وسلم). Constantly read much from the books of the Sunnah, especially the Sahīhayn. Ponder over the Qurʾān, reading Its Tafsīr, especially the one by Ibn Kathīr and Ibn Saʿdī, being careful and diligent to read the books of Shaykhul-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah, ibnul-Qayyim and Muhammad ibn ʿAbdul-Wahhāb with sincerity and devotion. Then after that act on it as is indicated in the Book and Sunnah. Allāh (عز وجل) says;

{..and if you obey him you will be rightly guided...}

{...if you love Allāh then follow me, Allāh will love you...}

And be aware of the order in His saying;

{Allāh will bring forth a people (in place of them) He will love and who will love Him humble toward the believers, powerful against the disbelievers; they strive in the cause of Allāh and do not fear the blame of a critic.}

It is upon you to love for the sake of Allāh, for verily it is from the greatest signs of the people of Īmān, and it is upon you to have enmity towards the enemies of Allāh, be stern with them, to avoid them, dissociate from them, to perform Takfir upon them and strive against them as Allāh and His Messenger (صلى الله عليه وسلم) ordered, and be warned, may Allāh have mercy upon me and you, from sins and munkarāt, such as watching TV and entering pictures and newspapers (in the house) and other kinds of munkarāt, and be warned that your gatherings be gatherings of backbiting and gossip, and let him pre-occupy with himself and his shortcomings, and let him be completely warned from being amazed with himself.

Something many people shy away from, but it was addressed by Shaykh Ahmad Jibrīl (حفظه الله) - These are just some thoughts on the issue:

Living in the west has a very bad impact on our manners and perception.

With regards to our manners: This can be directed back to a flaw in western society and their education systems, wherein they encourage every man and woman to put forth their own opinions regarding every matter, irregardless of how ignorant the person is, whereas in Islām we are taught to speak with knowledge surrounding an issue & refer to the people of knowledge as Allāh has ordered.

Note: It's absolutely fine to test students to answer questions and engage in discussions (or else how are they going to learn), however this is not the case with how people are brought up in the west, they literally hold their 'correct opinions' on matters which a person who specialises in those fields would laugh at.

This has affected our noble manners and morals as Muslims, this has afflicted us with arrogance & we must strive to lower the wing of arrogance as much as possible to develop true humbleness. Moreover, we lack respect to our elders and teachers, whereas the way students would treat their Teachers in the Lands of the Muslims (despite it being considered Dār al-Kufr according to Ijmā' - since the rulings of Kufr are enforced) is much different, carrying their shoes for them, walking right behind them as if they have done something wrong (to an outsider's perception).

And a lack of concern to Tawhīd & Walā' wal Barā' is the reason why Muslim Parents are giving birth to future non-Muslim children and grand-children.

With regards to our perception: Munkar has become normalised to us, and that's why when someone spends time in Makkah (or in a pure place) and comes back to live with the Mushrikīn, he becomes shocked at the lifestyle and how is it possible that he remained living there throughout his life (this is what happens with adapting to residing with the Mushrikīn - your heart becomes hardened and because you are unable to forbid every Munkar, it becomes normal to accept seeing it).

The Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) declared himself innocent & severely rebuked those who reside with the Mushrikīn. Go through the Hadīth of Ka'b who was amongst the most noble of Sahābah, yet the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) and Companions ignored him & rebuked him due to remaining back from a single expedition with the Rasūl (which was offensive, not even defensive), and there is also a difference between the Righteous Scholar who was captured by the Tawāghīth and tortured and the Corrupt Scholar who remains stubborn in his place and doesn't speak the Truth, infact even speaks Falsehood.

My brothers and sisters, there is nothing more important to us than perfecting our Dīn according to the True authentic teachings of Islām.

The Murji'ah used to mock us by saying we cannot ask our 'Ulamā' questions, and despite them using these words to make fun of us, these words are 100% Haqq. All of our Scholars are either silenced or we are unable to get access to them, and that's due to our own faults of clinging to this world...

Alhamdulillah that we have the blessing of the internet, for indeed this Barakah helped revive the pure teachings of Islām & taught us so much! Can you imagine if we didn't have the internet, it would have been a more assured obligation to search & migrate towards the Righteous Scholar to seek knowledge from.

I have been holding my tongue on some issues for a long time, dreaming and dreaming, wishing I can speak to our beloved 'Ulamā' to clarify certain issues for us, but I am unable too :(((

It is reported that Sufyān Al-Thawrī – Allāh have mercy on him – said:

Whoever takes leadership quickly (too early) will harm a lot of [his] knowledge (will not learn what he needs); and whoever does not take leadership can continue to seek knowledge until he reaches [where he needs to be].

Al-Dārimī, Al-Sunan #554.

Wallāhi my brothers & sisters, I shouldn't be speaking to begin with and rather continue seeking & implementing knowledge until I am at a position to speak (like Sufyān al-Thawrī stated), however the problem is, who is there to teach Pure Tawhīd to the Muslimeen...??!

**Update on the Channel Curriculum****

The way I'm running the "Fiqh and Usūl al-Fiqh studies" channel is by going through one of the most concise Hanbalī Fiqh texts called النظم الجلي في الفقه الحنبلي - I have uploaded the PDF above and it consists of 888 lines of Poetry.

I highly recommend for those who know Arabic to memorise it, as you will realise the immense benefits in Hifdh later on.

I am going through Sh. 'Āmir Bahjat's [1] Sharh of this text who broke it down into 296 short concise lessons.

And at the same time, I am going through another book called "Mukhtasar Sharh al-Mumtī" to get wider knowledge surrounding the issues that I'll be going through.

So you guys will structurally learn every issue addressed in this Fiqh text by the Shaykh I'll be translating from + additional knowledge surrounding the topic.

The only difference is that I won't be quoting the original text of the poem for obvious reasons, as that is best to be taught in a class and spoken orally (I won't be getting ahead of myself either).

Inshā'Allāh I'll try my best to get through the explanation of the complete book with you guys (which is excellent for beginners) and post more often, and likewise go through the science of Usūl al-Fiqh and work our way up.

Finally: Something I have noticed amongst many who love to learn Fiqh is their ignorance in 'Aqīdah, so I advise all my brothers and sisters to perfect their Tawhīd first and foremost, since this is the core Fundamental which no one can be ignorant of.

Shaykh Ahmad Jibrīl (حفظه الله) mentioned in this regard:

"Focusing on teaching aspects of minor fiqh to an audience that really needs to understand the major fiqh is ignorance or love of $$ or fame!"

This is the reality of our times والله المستعان

---

[1] Disclaimer: Sh. 'Āmir Bahjat (originally from Yemen) is very knowledgeable in Usūl & Fiqh, however when it comes to 'Aqīdah, he is not upon the pure Methodology of Tawhīd, and he freely openly teaches in Bilād al-Haramayn.

Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad (فك الله أسرته) recommended the student of knowledge to benefit from the works of the Muhaddith Tāriq Ibn 'Awdhillāh in Hadīth, despite his deviations in 'Aqīdah.

So likewise, I do not promote or advise the masses to take knowledge of 'Aqīdah & Walā' wal Barā' from the Shaykh (lest someone deviates as it occurred with Great Scholars of the Past), but his works in Usūl & Hanbalī Fiqh can be benefitted from.

Section 2: The Reality of the Asmā' and Ahkām of the Dīn.

Chapter (8/69) #Translated for Sharh Kitāb al-Haqā'iq Fī-Tawhīd by Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr (حفظه الله):

Chapter 8: What is intended by Asmā' al-Dīn.

(Matn):

“What is intended by Asmā' al-Dīn (i.e. The labels of the religion) is like; Muslim, Mushrik (polytheist), Mu'min (believer), Kāfir (disbeliever), Munāfiq (hypocrite), Fāsiq, 'Āsī (disobedient sinner), Mulhid (atheist), Muḥtadī (innovator), Dhāl (misguided), Mukhtī (mistaken), Muḥtāhid, Muqallid, Jāhil, Yahūdī (jew), Nasrānī (christian), Majūsī (zoroastrian), Tāghī (tyrant), Mufsid (corrupt doer), Kāthib (liar) etc...

Ibn Taymiyyah (رحمه الله) said: "And Allāh has made a distinction between what is before the Risālah (i.e. Message of Islām) and what comes after it, relating to the Asmā' (labels) and Ahkām (rulings), and gathering between the two pertaining the labels and rulings" [Al-Fatāwah 20/37 & Al-Fatāwah 12/468].

And he also said: "Verily, the ism (i.e. Label) of Muslim, Yahūdī (i.e. Jew), Nasrānī (i.e. Christian) and what's similar to that from the Asmā' al-Dīn (i.e. Labels of the religion), is a ruling which relates to itself due to the individual's belief, intention, saying and action - (till he said) - every ruling that hangs under the Asmā' al-Dīn from "Islām", "Ēmān", "Kufr", "Riddah", "Tahawwud" (i.e. Becoming a jew), "Tanassur" (i.e. Becoming a christian), is only affirmed for whomever meets the description which necessitates it, and the nature of a person being from the Mushrikīn or from Ahl al-Kitāb is from this aspect." [Al-Fatāwah 35/226].

And he also said: "Know that the matters of Takfīr (i.e. Declaring a person to be a Kāfir) and Tafsīq (i.e. Declaring a person to be a Fāsiq) is from the matters of the Asmā' and Ahkām which the impending threat (torment) and punishment is related too in the Ākhirah. And the Muwālāt (loyalty and support) and Mu'ādāt (hostility and enmity), and killing and protection (of being killed) and other than that is what is related to the Dunyā, and he (i.e. Ibn Taymiyyah) mentioned that entering Jannah and the forbiddance of (entering) hellfire is from the Inclusive & Comprehensive Rulings of the Religion" [Al-Fatāwah 12/468]."

“Section 2”:

This is the 2nd section or the 2nd book from "Kitāb al-Haqā'iq", and the title is called:

"The reality of the Asmā' (labels) and Ahkām (rulings) of the Dīn".

And we have finished from the 1st section (of the Kitāb) which was:

"The essence of Islām and Shirk".

And the 2nd section is about knowing the essence/reality of the Asmā' and Ahkām, because the book is a Kitāb of Haqā'iq, and everything has a Haqīqah (i.e. Essence & Reality).

“Chapter 8: What is intended by Asmā' al-Dīn”:

We frequently hear of Asmā' al-Dīn, "Ism (Label) of the religion", "this is from the Asmā' (labels)", so what is meant by "al-Asmā'”?

And we mentioned here under this chapter many Asmā', 20 labels, and it is not exclusive (to those labels), because we said at the end "etc..."

So this is all called "Asmā' al-Dīn", Muslim & Mushrik is an Ism (label) of the Dīn (religion), Kāfir, Munāfiq are all labels of the religion, and there's a verse if it was included within the Matn (i.e. Original text), it would've been good, and it is Allāh's statement:

"Allah named you "Muslims" before [in former scriptures] and in this [revelation] that the Messenger may be a witness over you." [22:78].

There are Asmā' (labels) for the world which doesn't concern us (here), the ism (label) "businessman". And there are labels for beauty, and labels for ownership, "King", "Caliph", "Chief", and the labels are according to what they are attributed too, however the Asmā' (labels) of the Dīn such as "Muslim", "Mushrik", "Mu'min" etc...are all labels of the Dīn, irregardless of whether it's praiseworthy or vilified.

“Ibn Taymiyyah said: And Allāh has made a distinction between what is before the Risālah (i.e. Message of Islām) and what comes after it.”:

This text, we have previously mentioned it numerous times due to its importance, so before the Risālah (Prophetic Message), there are Asmā' (Labels) and Ahkām (Rulings), and after the Risālah, and after the Risālah there are Asmā' and Ahkām, so he made "Ahkām" a 'Atf (i.e. Ibn Taymiyyah added the conjunction "and") after "Asmā", so this proves that the Asmā' is different to the Ahkām, because the 'Atf necessitates them to be different.

“Ibn Taymiyyah said: Verily, the ism (i.e. Label) of Muslim, Yahūdī (i.e. Jew), Nasrānī (i.e. Christian) and what's similar to that from the Asmā' al-Dīn (i.e. Labels of the religion).”:

He considered the ism (label) "Muslim" and "Yahūdī" and "Nasrānī" from Asmā' al-Dīn, and “from” here is "al-Tab'eediyyah" (i.e. he only mentioned some labels - Ibn Taymiyyah didn't restrict the labels of the religion to these solely).

Then he said: “Every ruling that hangs under the Asmā' al-Dīn from "Islām"...”:

“from” here is Bayāniyyah (i.e. For clarification), then he started to show examples (such as) Islām, Ēmān, Kufr, Riddah, Tahawwud, Tanassur, so "Riddah" (apostasy) is from the Asmā' al-Dīn, even though we didn't mention it in the original text, because we said "etc..."

And Ibn Taymiyyah's statement: “Is only affirmed”:

Is a Fā'il (doing verb), "affirmed" is referring to the ism (label), meaning that the ism is only affirmed when its description is there to necessitate and cause that (to affirm).

If you find a description, the ism is tagged along with it, if he is described with "Jedausim", he is given the ism of "Jew", and if he is described with Shirk and has fell into the reality of Shirk, he is given the ism of "Shirk", and if he meets the reality of Islām, he is given the ism of "Islām", and likewise with the rest (of the labels), and the speech of Ibn Taymiyyah is clear, and it's present in "al-Fatāwah".

“And the nature of a person being from the Mushrikīn”:

Why did he become from the Mushrikīn? Because he fell into and is described with the ism of "Shirk", so he is given the label of Shirk, and this is explicit in the speech of Ibn Taymiyyah, that he views the ism of Shirk gets tagged along whoever meets the description of Shirk, even if he was Jāhil (ignorant).

And this is from the places where we must mention that if someone says that Ibn Taymiyyah gives excuse of ignorance in Major Shirk, then he cites quotes falling under the chapter of innovation! So (in return) this text is cited to him, and it's said to him that Ibn Taymiyyah views that the Asmā' (labels) are tagged along with whoever is described with it, especially that he specifically mentioned the issue of Shirk.

“Know that the matters of Takfir...”:

Takfir, the ism deducted from it is "Kāfir", and the Ahkām (rulings) is what causes the punishments (for Kufr) to be applied.

This is what relates to the 8th chapter from the complete book, and it is the first chapter discussing the reality of Asmā' al-Dīn.

🔖 Часть (1/69) #Перевод из объяснения книг Аль-Хакайик фи Тавхид от Шейха Аль-Аллама Али Ал-Худайра(حفظه الله):

Заметка:

- = (Матн) который является оригинальным текстом книги.
- = (Шарх) который является комментарием к тексту.

Часть 1: Сущность Ислама.

(#Матн):

Аллах(سبحانه وتعالى) сказал: « Да [нет же], тот, кто предал свое лицо к Аллаху, будучи искренним творящим добро, будет дана его награда у его Господа. И не будет страха над ними, и они не будут печальны» [2:112].

Аллах(سبحانه وتعالى) сказал: И кто (же)(еще) (может быть) лучше по вере, (нежеле) чем тот, кто предал свой лик Аллаху(полностью подчинился Аллахк во всех своих словах и делах) будучи искренним (или добротворящим), и последовал за верой Ибрахима (за единобожием и покорностью Аллаху), будучи единобожником?» [4:125].

И в хадисе: «Ислам был построен на 5 столбах, что свидетельствует о том, что никого нет достойный поклонения кроме Аллаха ... », аль-Хадиф (то есть до конца хадиса), это достоверный подлинность с хадисом Умара (رضي الله عنه) ”.

• (#Объяснения) Шейха Ал-Аламаъ Али Ал-Худайр (حفظه):

Здесь мы упоминали 3 аяты и 1 хадис, разъясняющие суть Ислама. И суть Ислама, которая упоминается в аяте, заключается в том, что ислам означает: Представление Аллаху через Таухид(единобожие) и свободное от Ширка, и Подчинение Ему через «Ат-Tā'ah» (Послушание), и «Алиф и Лам» в слово «ал-та'ах» является общим (то есть абсолютным повиновением Аллаху), и величайшими деяниями повиновения являются 4 столпа (то есть Намаз, Закат, Пост и Хажж), и мы не повторяем пятый столп, который является подчинением Аллаху через Таухид.

“И это упоминается в хадисе,« Ислам построен на 5 столпах ... »аль-Хадис”:

Таким образом, наше утверждение «аль-Хадиса» с фатхой (по последней букве) означает завершить хадис, и это терминология, которую изучающий знания должен знать, поэтому, если автор намеревается завершить аяты или хадисов, он пишет («Аль-Аъя» или «Аль-Хадис»).

(Матн) Подзаголовок:

“Аллах (سبحانه وتعالى) сказал: «Знайте, [О Мухаммад], что нет божества (Достойный поклонения), кроме Аллаха »[47:19]

И Муслим (رحمه الله) передал от хадиса Усмана(رضي الله عنه):
«Кто умрет, пока он знает, что нет божества, достойного поклонения, кроме Аллаха, войдет в Рай(Жанну)».

Аллах (سبحانه وتعالى) сказал: «Скажи:« О верующие»,« Мы уверовали в Аллаха и в то, что ниспослано нам» [2: 136].

И это упоминается в хадисе: «Мне приказано сражаться с людьми до тех пор, пока они свидетельствуют, что нет божества, достойного поклонения, кроме Аллаха, и что Мухаммад является Посланником Аллаха, и установил Намаз (Салах) и дал Закат .. »аль-Хадис (т.е. До конца хадиса), это согласовано с хадисом Аби Хурайра(رضي الله عنه)

Аллах (سبحانه وتعالى) сказал: «(Истинно) верующие - это только те, кто уверовал в Аллаха и Его Посланника, потом не испытывали сомнений» [49:15].

Аллах (سبحانه وتعالى) сказал: «...и Аллах свидетельствует, что Лицимеры (Мунафики) - лжецы» [63:1].

И в хадисе: «Кто умрет, показывая, что нет божества достойного поклонения кроме Аллаха, и что Мухаммад является Посланником Аллаха, искренне и правдиво от его сердца, войдет в Рай (Жанну) », это было рассказано Ахмад из хадиса Муаза (رضي الله عنه).

Аллах (سبحانه وتعالى) сказал: «И [все же] среди людей есть те, которые берут, помимо Аллаха, как равных [приравнивают кого или чего-либо Аллаху]. Они любят их, поскольку они [должны] любить Аллаха. Но те, кто уверовали, сильнее любит Аллаха» [2: 165].

И в хадисе: «Есть три качества, кто имеет их, вкусит сладость Имана: 1. Любить Аллаха и Его посланника (بلى الله عليه وسلم) подробнее чем кто-либо другой ... » аль-Хадис (т.е. до конца хадиса), это согласовано от Хадиса Анаса (رضي الله عنه).

Аллах (سبحانه وتعالى) сказал: «Воистину, они(многобожники), когда им говорили:«Нет Бога, кроме Аллаха» - проявляли высокомерие [37:35].

И в хадисе: «Никто не будут войти в Рай, если у кого то будут гордость с атомическом(малеший) весом ", это было передано Муслим из хадиса Ибн Маъсуда ((رضي الله عنه عنه

Аллах (سبحانه وتعالى) сказал: «Так, призывайте Аллаха, [искренне] к Нему в религии» [40:14].

И в хадисе: «Воистину, Аллах сотворил адский огонь, харам для тех, кто говорит что нет божества, достойного поклонения, кроме Аллаха, стремящегося к тому, чтобы имеет наслаждение Аллаха ", это согласовано с хадисом Иъсбат (رضي الله عنه).

Аллах (سبحانه وتعالى) сказал: «Так, кто отвергает от Тагутов и верует в Аллаха, (значит) ухватился за крепчайшую связь, для который нет сокрушения». [2: 256].

И это упоминается в хадисе: «Кто бы ни утверждал, что нет божества кроме Аллаха, и не верует в то, чему поклоняются, кроме того Аллаха, его собственность и кровь становятся неприкосновенными », это было передано Муслимом от хадиса Аби Малика аль-Ашжаъи от его отца». ”

• (Шарх) Шейх аль-'Алама 'Али-аль-Худейр (حفظه لله):

«Подзаголовок»: Этот подзаголовок присоединяется к (главе) Сущность Ислама, и мы назовем под ним «Шурут» (Условия) для "Lā ilāha ilā Allāh ", и он находится в последовательности (то есть каждое условие упоминается по порядку), и в каждом состоянии есть аяты и хадисов (для поддержки).

• Первое условие - Знание (العلم): «Аллах (سبحانه وتعالى) сказал: «Знайте, [О Мухаммад], что нет божества (достойного поклонения), кроме Аллаха » [47:19]

И Муслим (رحمه لله) передал от хадиса Усмана ((رضي الله عنه))
«Кто умрет, пока он знает, что нет божества, достойного поклонения
Кроме Аллаха войдет в Рай (Жанну) »."

И знание (العلم) является первым условием, а то, что противостоит ему, - это невежество (الجهل), а знание - из речи сердца (قول القلب), потому что сердце в соответствии с юридическими функциями, которые к нему относятся, делится на два типа, некоторые вещи, которые относятся к его действиям, и другие вещи, которые не относятся к действиям, которые являются верой (الإعتقاد), по-этому знание включено в речь от сердца или от того, что называется (также) верой (то есть Аль-Итикад).

• Второе условие - речь (القول): « Аллах (سبحانه وتعالى) сказал: «Скажи: [О Верующие]: «Мы уверовали в Аллаха и то, что ниспослан нам ...» [2: 136] Аль-Ая.

И это упоминается в хадисе: «Мне приказано сражаться с людьми пока они не докажут, что нет божества, достойного поклонения, кроме Аллаха, и что Мухаммад является Посланником Аллаха, и крепко устоит молитву и дают Закат..» аль-Хадис (то есть до конца хадиса), согласно с Хадисом Аби Хурайры (رضي الله عنه) ."

И это - речь языка (قول اللسان), означающая: произносить утверждение Таухида, и то, что противостоит произнесению (утверждение Tawhīd) должен прекратить произносить (утверждение Tawhīd).

• Третье условие - определенность (اليقين): « Аллах (سبحانه وتعالى) сказал: «Верующие - это только те, кто уверовал в Аллаха и Его Посланника и потом не сомневает (в этом)» [49:15].

И в хадисе: «Я свидетельствую, что нет божества, достойного поклонения, кроме Аллаха, и я Его посланник. Раб, который встретил бы Аллаха, если бы у них не возникло какое-либо сомнение по поводу этих (двух основ), вступило бы в Рай (Жанну) », был передан Муслим из хадиса Аби-Хурайры (رضي الله عنه).

И это присоединяется к речи сердца, в том смысле, что вы произносите (т.е. «Шахадатан») с уверенностью своим языком, и что вы это знаете (то есть его значение) с уверенностью, поэтому кто бы скептически или сомнительно неуверенный в Таухиде, то он не мусульманин.

• Четвертое условие - Истина (الصدق): «Аллах (سبحانه وتعالى) сказал:« И Аллах свидетельствует, что Мунафики(Лицимеры) - лгуны » [63: 1].

И в хадисе: «Кто умрет, показывая, что нет божества кроме Аллаха, и что Мухаммад является Посланником Аллаха, искренне и правдивый из своего сердца войдет в Жанну (Рай)», было рассказано от Ахмада от хадиса Му'аза (رضي الله عنه) ."

То, что противостоит правдивости (الصدق), - это ложь (الكذب), поэтому кто бы это ни сказал нечестность (т.е. ложь и обман), его ислам недействительный, как Munāfiqīn (Лицимеры).

• Пятое условие - Любовь (المحبة): «Аллах (سبحانه وتعالى) сказал:« И [еще] среди людей есть те, кто принимает Аллаха как равного [к Нему] они любят их, поскольку они [должны] любить Аллаха. Но те, кто увериволи, сильнее в любви к Аллаху »[2: 165].

И в хадисе: «Есть три качества, кто имеет их, вкусит сладость Имана (Īmān): Любить Аллаха и Его Посланник ( صلى الله عليه و سلم ) больше, чем кто-либо другой ... »аль-Хадис (то есть до конца хадиса), это согласовано с хадисом Анаса (رضي الله عنه).

И то, что противостоит Любви (المحبة) - это Ненависть (البغض), и эта Ненависть происходит от действия сердца (عمل القلب), и это первое условие из действий сердца, и то, что предшествует ему из условий из речи сердца, которое есть Знание, Уверенность и Истина, однако в действительности у правдивости есть Тафсиль (подробности прилагаются), поэтому, время от времени, он присоединяется к действия (сердца), а иногда он подсоединяется к конечностям (из тело), а иногда он подсоединяется к знанию, а контекст, собирая (тексты) и разбивая его, разъясняет это.

Поэтому здесь необходимо знать, что нет божества, достойного поклонения, кроме Аллаха, и что Мухаммад является Посланником Аллаха, с достоверными определенными Знаниями, в котором нет никаких сомнений, и нечестность (то есть ложь или обман) потому что «скорее всего предполагается» иногда называется «Знание», например, если оно скорее всего, предположил, что пришло время для «Иша» (вечерняя молитва после заката), он будет молиться 'Иша'.

Однако в отношении «Lā ilāha ilā Allāh», этого недостаточно для наиболее вероятного предположим, что требуется достоверность и определенность, а Любовь - это первый уровень о действиях сердца, и это в общей перспективе, но в конкретных, прежде всего намерение, в котором он ищет и желает этого (любовь к Аллаху), поэтому, если он пожелает этого, Любовь (المحبة) будет присутствовать вместе с ним, и Любовь не присоединяется к речи сердца, безумный человек не имеет речи (сердца), потому что он не знает, однако у него есть действия сердца, он Любит и Ненавидит (ради Аллаха), и он ищет и пожелает, и в этом разница между ними, человек мог знать что-то, не любя этого, поэтому область, которая имеет дело с речью это сердце отличающий от области, которая имеет дело с действиями сердца.

• Шестое условие - соблюдение (الإنقياد): “Аллах (سبحانه وتعالى) сказал: «Действительно они, когда им сказали: «Нет божества, кроме Аллаха», были высокомерными» [37:35].

И в хадисе: «Никто, у кого вес атома гордости, не войдет в Рай", это было передано от Муслим из хадиса Ибн Масуда (رضي الله عنه).”

А то, что выступает против соблюдения, - это высокомерие, поэтому оно обусловлено тем, который выполнил предыдущие шуруты (условия), чтобы не быть заносчивым, потому что высокомерный не является мусульманином, ибо поистине высокомерие, на которое никто не действует Таухид, ни молиться, ни подчиняться (тому, что приказал Аллах).

И здесь мы предусмотрели два условия, которые являются Принимание (القبول) и Соблюдение (الإنقياد), по-этому тот, кто высокомерно отвергает его знание, и то, что выступает против принятия, является отказом, а то, что выступает против соблюдения, является Отказом, по-этому он предусмотрен для того, кто говорит «Lā ilāha ilā Allāh» что он принимает (повеление Аллаха) в согласии.

• Седьмое условие - Искренность (الإخلاص): И искренность здесь означает Откажитесь от Ширка, “Аллах (سبحانه وتعالى) сказал: «Обращайтесь же (с мольбами) к Аллаху, делая исключительным для Его религии» [40:14].

И в хадисе: «Воистину, Аллах сделал адский огонь Харам для всех, кто говорит нет божества, достойного поклонения, кроме Аллаха, ища этого Наслаждение Аллаха ", это согласуется с хадисом Itbān (رضي الله عنه).”

• Восьмое условие - Неверие в Тагуте (الكفر بالطاغوت): “Аллах (سبحانه وتعالى) сказал: «Так, кто отвергает от Тагутов и верует в Аллаха, (значит) ухватился за крепчайшую связь, для который нет сокрушения» [2: 256].

И это упоминается в хадисе: «Кто бы ни утверждал, что нет божества достойный поклонения кроме Аллаха, и не верит в то, чему поклоняется кроме Аллаха, его собственность и кровь становяся неприкосновенными », - было рассказано от Муслим из хадиса Аби Малика аль-Ашджа'и от своего отца. ”

Итак, человек может сказать «Lā ilāha ilā Allāh» и это утверждение через Знание, Правдивость, Определенность, Отказ от Ширка, Соблюдение и Принятие, с Любовью и ищущи(и.т. любовь Аллаха), однако, те который не делает такфир к Тагуту «Tāghūt», этот человек не называется мусульманином.

И Курф к Тагуту состоит из 5 вещей:

1. Верить в ложь поклонения к Тагуту.
2. Отказ от него.
2. Ненависть к Тагуту и враждебность к нему. И «Это относится к Тагуту и у нас есть две вещи, относящиеся к людям Тагута.
4. Ненависть к народам Тагута
5. Делать отрытый Такфир над народом Тагута.

Например, Демократия - это Тагут, чтобы мы не верили в демократию, мы должны сначала верить в Ложь Демократии, и это – речь сердце, затем отказаться от него, затем ненавидя его и желая его удаления и Проявляя к нему враждебность, и это действия сердца, а затем ненависть народу демократии, а затем совершает такфир над ними.

Подобно Демократии - это секуляризм, потому что Исм (ярлык) Тагута – это тоже отражен к теории, системы, доктрины, неодушевленные предметы и отдельных людей, мужчины и женщины, а также (национализм, батизм, коммунизм и искусственные суды и главы евреев и христиан, которые придерживаются коррумпированные книги, которые они изменили, и их старейшины и лидеры, так что это все Тагуты.

И общая масса среди евреев и христиан - это Куффар, потому что Тагут - тот, кто украшает Ширк.

И это показывает, что Kuffār делятся на два типа:

1. Tawāghīt (Тагуты), и они являются их лидерами.
2. Kuffār, и они все остальные.

Итак, евреи и христиане - это Кафиры по Иджме (консенсус), а наши утверждение, что евреи и христиане и те, кто следует за коррумпированными Книг, мы не намереваемся тем, что понимание наших противоположностей (т.е. тех модернистов) или заключение, которое показывает, что есть евреи, которые следуя испорченной (версии) Таврата и других (евреев) последует не коррумпированный(Версия), а также с христианами, но скорее это ограничение чтобы показать их реальности.

Таким образом, Сущность Ислама: Предоставление Аллаху через Таухид, свободен от Ширка, и подчинение Ему через повиновение, и что это подчиняется к Таухиду(Tawhīd) через знание, уверенность, правдивость, любовь, принятие, отказ от Ширка, исповедуя это своим языком, неверующим и отвергающим от Тагута.

Итак, кто бы ни выполнил эти вопросы, он выполнил Суть Ислама.

Кто-то может сказать, у нас все еще есть (чтобы упомянуть) Намаз(Salāh), Закат(Zakāt) и т.д ...? Мы говорим, что это включено в тему соблюдения.

(Matn) Подзаголовок:

Шейх Сулайман ибн Абдилла ибн Мухаммад ибн Абдиль Ваххаб (رحمه الله) сказал: «Истинно, исповедуя это (то есть Шахадайн), не зная его значения, ни на то, что от нее требуется, от присоединения к Таухиду и отказа от Ширка, и не веря в Тагуты, ибо это действительно бесполезно по консенсусу ", цитируется в его книге (ал-Тайсир).

Шейх Абдулла Аба Бутайн (رحمه الله) сказал: «Свидетельства из Корана, Сунна и Иджма Уммы продемонстрировали, что необходимо оговаривают Искренность за действия и утверждения "

И Аль-Шейх Абдул Рахман ибн Хасан ибн Мухаммад ибн Абдиль Ваххаб (رحمه الله) сказал: «Ученые Салафа и Халафа среди Сахаба, Табиин, имамы и весь Ахлал Сунна единогласно согласились что человек не может быть мусульманином, за исключением отказа от большого Ширка и делаая из этого Бара "(аль-Дурар аль-Сания 11 / 545-546) ."

• (Шарх) Шейх аль-'Аллама 'Али-аль-Худейр (حفظه الله):

“Ибн Хазм (رحمه الله) сказал:« Все жители Ислама сказали ” : «Это:Фраза Иджмы.

“Всякий, верующий” : это означает знание, то есть тот, кто знает.

“В этом нет сомнения” : это условие определенности.

“И он заявляет о своем отречении” : в него входят аль-Куфр Бит-Тагут и Ихлас, потому что аль-Бараа покидает, и Ихлас (Искренность) отказывается от Ширка.

“Шейх Сулейман ибн Абдиллах сказал” : он является автором книги «Тайсир Аль-Азиз аль-Хамид Шарх Китаб аль-Таухид ».

И в его статьи упоминаются условия, знания (العلم), потому что он сказал: «Если он не знает ее значения, это не принесет никакой пользы (то есть Shahādah), по-этому это доказывает, что знание - это условие.

“Высказывания” : и высказывания недостаточно, но это обязательный.

“Принимая во внимание то, что оно требует” : это включает принятие (القبول) и Соблюдение (الإنقياد)

“Куфр Бит-Тагут” : И это понятно (то есть хорошо известно).

И слова Шейха Абдуллы Аба Бутана (رحمه الله) упоминаются среди условия, (имеющих) Ikhhlās в действиях и высказываниях.

И в заявлении шейха Абдул-рахмана Ибн Хасана (رحمه الله) упоминается среди условия:

“Аль-Бара’ах”: это то что такое аль-Куфр Бит-Тагут

“Отказования от Ширка” : Аль-Ихлас (Искренность), который отказывается от (Ширк).

Some lady in my area who knew me growing up saw me on the street, and just had a small convo, and she goes out of nowhere "You literally deserve the best!!" just like that...Then goes, "I have a photo of you in my house when you were a young boy playing with my kids" 🤔

I was really surprised by that...Now the reason she said that is coz I taught her children how to play sport (I used to give da'wah to them at the same time lol, since they're christians), and I used to love justice between people, giving everyone a fair go, and when kids grow older they remember that.

The one thing I really regret though was how many years of my life I wasted in this Duniyā despite the importance of secular knowledge, like my father would give me maths textbooks 7 years above my age where I was basically forbidden to ask any questions and had to solve everything on my own, spending hours a day on a single question for months sometimes. Once my dad prints out hundreds of pages on chess techniques, and just hands it to me saying Russians are the world experts in Chess coz they study hard at maths telling me I must go serious, he is literally stricter than the chinese parents I knew, and he openly admits taking the extreme harsh way (may Allāh forgive him and give him his reward).

And then at the same I took sports to such a extreme, where if I got my work over and done with, I was just spending all my week day and night outside, training training and training, I wouldn't stop even if I get soaked in the rain, I had a passion to just keep going harder and harder with sky-high inspirations, my uncle says I would've been a fast bowler for Australia...

Alhamdulillah that Allāh guided me away from the Duniyā, I always loved the Deen & Da'wah but I wish I had spent more time studying my religion & having this passion that I have today, since our Ummah is full of Scholars who have betrayed us and we don't have real leadership (the real men are silent).

I'm not even a person of knowledge, but Allāh has allowed me to see the deviations of those who have been speaking about the religion for decades, by Allāh they will be questioned for their betrayal to this Dīn.

The biggest obstacle to the Da'wah of Tawhīd is that of Ijrā'. From my experience of speaking to mixed audiences, especially whenever I make specific du'ā cursing the enemies of Allāh, mentioning the "Shi'a Rawāfidh Anjās" who are also listening, including teachers...Generally speaking, they remain silent upon their Shirk & keep to themselves, whereas on the other hand, Sunnis affected by Ijrā' have always felt the need to advise me afterwards to 'not cause fitnah'.

Allāh said, "Verily we have sent to every Ummah a messenger (saying): "Worship Allāh (alone), and keep away from the Tāghūt".

All I've been re-iterating is what every Messenger has come with, teaching the people to reject and disbelieve in the Tāghūt, which is every deity worshipped besides Allāh, and every ism and schism, whether it may be Communism, Hinduism, Socialism, Nationalism, Shi'aism (at this point Murji'ah get mad), Ruling by other than what Allāh has revealed, Man-Made Systems and the Shaytān Al-Rajeem, we are required to disbelieve in all of these Tawāghīt.

Murji'ah having been saying for years way too long, "But Takfir is a huge Fitnah, you need to memorise this much Qur'ān before making Takfir".

Rather this deceptive misconception (which has been refuted in detail by the Scholars of Tawhīd) needs to be changed to, "Rather, not making Takfīr [1] is the true Fitnah, and there's no evidence whatsoever to suggest that it's required to memorise a certain amount of chapters from the Qur'ān to make Takfīr, infact there is immense proof showing otherwise!".

[1] Warning! This is referring to Takfīr upon the Mushrikīn & Murtaddīn which has immense benefits within our Tawhīd and even Fiqh! Clarifications are necessary lest the "copy and paste" experts start firing the 'Khawārij' label.

*A small lesson in Walā' & Barā' from Sūrat al-Kāfirūn*

Allāh said, "For you is your religion, and for me is my religion" [109:6].

This verse affirms the true essence of Barā'ah from Shirk and the Mushrikīn which is from the Principles of the Religion that the Messengers all agreed upon.

However, it's unfortunate that wrong interpretations are widespread for this wonderful verse, so some have wrongly claimed that it has been abrogated by Āyat al-Sayf, and on the other end, many people have claimed that Allāh has allowed the Mushrikīn to remain upon their religion, and this is not what's intended by the verse whatsoever [1].

Imām Ibn al-Qayyim (رحمه الله) commented upon this verse in his amazing book "Badā'i Al-Fawā'id" (1/38) by saying:

“This Sūrah entails absolute pure negation, for indeed it is the Chapter of Barā'ah (disassociation) from Shirk, and its greatest aim is to display the required Barā'ah between the Muwahhiddīn and Mushrikīn, and for this reason it came with a negation on both sides (i.e. For you is your religion, and for me is my religion) to actualise the required Barā'ah.

And this is a noble matter from the most important of matters, and different kinds of people have erred and assumed:

1. That it's abrogated by the Verse of the Sword (9:5) due to them believing that it necessitates allowing them to remain upon their religion.
2. Or that it's specific for whoever can remain upon his religion, and they are the People of the Book (who pay the Jizyah).

And both statements are purely wrong, for indeed there is no abrogation in the Sūrah nor any specification, rather it is Muḥkamah (A clear verse), infact it's impossible for abrogation to occur in it, for indeed there's no way possible that an abrogation can occur within the Rulings of Tawhīd which the Da'wah of the Messengers have unanimously agreed upon.

And God Forbid that the verse necessitated allowing them to remain the way they are or remain fixed upon their religion, absolutely not, infact the Messenger (صلى الله عليه وسلم) has still remained ever since the very beginning (of his Da'wah) intense in his rebuke upon them and belittling their religion and expressing utter criticism of it and forbidding it, but rather the verse necessitates absolute Barā'ah (disassociation from Shirk), and that what you (i.e. the Mushrikīn) are upon of your religion, we will never agree upon it, for indeed it is a false religion.”

Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah (رحمه الله) also stated in his book "Al-Jawāb Al-Sahīh" (2/30):

“Allāh's statement "For you is your religion, and for me is my religion", the (letter) "Lām" [2] is for exclusiveness, so you are the ones specifically tied to your religion, I do not associate with you in it, and I am specifically tied to my religion, you do not associate with me in it.

"For me are my deeds, and for you are your deeds. You are disassociated from what I do, and I am disassociated from what you do." [10:41].

There's nothing in this verse (109:6) which mentions that he is pleased with the religion of the Mushrikīn or the people of the Book, as some of the infidels assume. Nor did it forbid doing Jihād against them as some of those who erred assumed and considered it abrogated. Rather it entails his Barā'ah (disassociation) from their religion, and this command is Muhkam (explicitly clear), it cannot accept abrogation at all.”

🔖 Footnotes ↓

[1] Some have gone to such an extreme to say "It's only Mustahab (recommended) for a Kāfir to enter into Islām", and this goes against the Ijmā' of the Ummah (All of the Muslims! Not just Ahlu Sunnah) & goes against what's known in the religion by Necessity, rather it's obligatory for the Kuffār to enter into Islām, and whoever says otherwise must repent from his statement.

[2] To get a better understanding of what Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah (رحمه الله) means by signifying the letter "Lām" (ل), it's best to read the verse in Arabic:

لَكُمْ دِينُكُمْ وَلِيَ دِينِ

Reflection: When I give a reminder to my brothers, I am really giving it to myself in the past, as I can see myself in their shoes acting in a similar way. How can I deny this fact, I was ignorant just like the 'ignorant' people I may be addressing today (and I'm still ignorant with a little more life experience). Realising this has helped me develop more gentleness, understanding and tolerance for my brothers.

Only give advice if you want the best for someone and love them, not to degrade them - Allāh has blessed you with foresight on matters which others may not have, so use this blessing in goodness and humbleness, not in evil and arrogance (as the one with an atom weight of pride will not enter Jannah SubhānAllāh).

You can kinda say this is an advice to the one giving advice ﷺ

*Less Socialising*

Our time is really precious, so I have decided to delete the Messenger app (I won't be responding to messages).

The best way to contact me is either under my posts or preferably my email (puretawheed1@gmail.com).

Many people delete FB due to it wasting their time, however I have decided that the best thing to do is ignore it (despite the beneficial reminders), and simply come on to share Knowledge & Keep up to Date [1].

Alot of discipline is required. Don't go about your day randomly without a timetable. Rather make yourself a realistic timetable that you're able to stick too.

I ask Allāh to place Barakah in our life.

[1] My advice to the Muslims on FB is to ignore the disputes and discussions online, and stick to following real knowledge from a trustworthy source. Facebook is an amazing source to learn the Dīn if you go about it correctly.

Note: Your primary Dīn studies should be outside of Facebook (Focusing on the Qur'ān and Arabic Language), and hopping onto Facebook (or any social media platform) should be your secondary source of knowledge. Reading occasional reminders are Fine, but don't be a person who simply reads reminders, as you won't go far in your pursuit for knowledge.

It's funny how he also called Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān (فك الله أسرهم) a noble Scholar - Some people claim all the things I share from the 'Ulamā' is just for fun and deception, while I somehow have nothing to do with them.

When people can't confront you, and instead block you and make Takfir upon you due to their ignorance, that shows alot about them.

Yes, the vast majority of people do not like to read long posts & prefer short nice quotes. However, short general reminders aren't going to really teach us the affairs of our religion.

Despite the length of some posts, I do try my best to keep them short & straight to the point, breaking it down so that even a 10 year old brother or sister can understand it.

“And from the strange things to be mentioned here (i.e. about the Jahmiyyah who claim knowing Allāh is by rejecting the Sifāt and 'Uluw and Istiwā') is that Shaykh Ahmad Deedāt, the famous spokesman who debated the christians, may Allāh pardon us and him. In a debate with one of the christians, he was debating him about the 'Uluw (Allāh being above the 'Arsh), so the Christian affirmed it whereas Deedāt rejected it, and he claims that he was debating upon the Fundamental Tenets of Islām, so ponder over this.

And that's why Al-Dārimī and other than him from the Imāms of the Salaf said: The Jews are better than the Jahmiyyah, since when the Jews said: 'The hand of Allāh is chained, the Jahmiyyah replied: Allāh doesn't have a real hand, rather His hands mean Ni'mah (Favour) and Qudrah (power).”

ومن عجيب ما يذكر هنا أن الشيخ أحمد ديدات المشهور بمناظرات النصارى عفا الله عنا وعنه كان في أحد مناظراته لأحد النصارى يناظره في العلو فالنصراني يثبت ويدات ينكره، ويزعم أنه يناظر على مبادئ الإسلام فتأمل، ولذلك قال الدارمي وغيره من أئمة السلف: اليهود خير من الجهمية، حيث قالت اليهود: يد الله مغلولة، وقالت الجهمية: ليس لله يد حقيقة وإنما يداه هي النعمة والقدرة.

#Nikāh What is the ruling on getting married?

This has two situations:

1. If someone has desires, but is doing well without having any issues, and he knows for a high chance that he will avoid the Harām, then Marriage in his case is considered Mustahab (recommended) and not Wājib (obligatory), and the Scholars say that getting married is better for him than remaining single performing Nawāfil (voluntary acts of worship).

2. If someone highly fears that they may fall into Harām, for instance he says, "if I don't get married, I am scared to fall into sin", so the Scholars have said it's Wājib (obligatory) for such a person to get married.

Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah (رحمه الله) also said:

"If one is in need of marriage and he fears committing a sin by leaving it, one may give priority to getting married over performing obligatory Hajj."

Don't concern yourself with what they say about you.

Ash-Shaykh Al-'Allaamah 'Abdur-Rahmaan bin Naasir As-Sa'dee رحمه الله said;

"And from the beneficial matters is that you know that the harm people may cause you, especially in their saying bad things about you, it does not harm you, but rather it harms them. That is unless you busy yourself with giving concern to what they say, and you allow it to control your feelings. In that case their evil speech will harm you, just as it harms them. So if you do not pay any attention to what they say, it cannot harm you at all."

There are some really beloved brothers to me who have been extremely harsh on themselves, i.e. in relation to 'our' neglect to the Ummah.

Notice how I say 'our', we are all in this together, everyone has a huge role to play, both men and women.

Wallāhi we all have a deficiency in applying our knowledge, most probably me having a bigger deficiency.

But don't let the whispering of the Shaytān get to you, I used to have the same thoughts 'why should I speak about Dīn when I've forsaken my Ummah'...

Rather, I had to change my intention to 'Why not do the most I can as a very sinful muslim', and I use the suffering that's happening in this Ummah to motivate myself to do the best I can, knowing that I am not doing enough.

Be among those who are energetic, sharp, shrewd. What benefit do we get for being lazy and doing nothing, infact even worse if me & you remain silent, this opens up a platform for others to take over & take advantage of our brothers & sisters by spreading misguidance.

May Allāh forgive us for our sins, may Allāh forgive us for our sins, may Allāh forgive us for our sins, may Allāh forgive the Ummah of Muhammad (صلى الله عليه وسلم)!

Ya Allāh, it's really sad to see what's happening in Yemen with the millions of children suffering due to this war. They are the true original Arabs, the people I spent most my youth growing up learning my religion from (and still do today), my first Shaykh I listened too online was Imām Anwar al-'Awlakī (تقيله الله), what a blessing from Allāh to direct me to a person who was sincere & true to his word, and even if the whole world united to speak against him, that will not harm him one bit & I will stick by his teachings till I die Bi ithnillāh #Green_Bird 🐦

The Muslims of Yemen are known for treating others in the best of ways, their amazing hospitality, generosity, soft-hearted kindness, wisdom, humble speech that makes you smile, their shyness & modesty, their daughters, mothers and grandmothers covered from top to bottom.

Enough for you are the words of the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم), where he said, "The people of Yemen have come to you. They are tender-hearted and more delicate of soul. The capacity to understand (fiqh) is of the Yemenis and wisdom is that of the Yemenis." [Agreed Upon].

May Allāh elevate the oppression off the people of Yemen, delight our hearts with the downfall of the Houthi Mushrikīn and Āl Salūl, and return the Muslims in the Ummah back to the true teachings of Islām, by disbelieving in the Tāghūt and believing in Allāh.

*Continuously 'being forced' to do Kufr is not Ikrāh*

Shaykh Abū Sufyān al-Sulamī (تقيله الله) said:

"However, an important matter must be drawn attention too; Verily being forced to say a Kufr statement or do a Kufr action is not the same as being forced to always stay upon Kufr, to continuously do Kufr, for indeed this is one thing & the other is something else.

For instance, there's a man who has fulfilled all the conditions of Ikrāh, and was forced to prostrate to an idol, so he prostrated, (or) a man was forced to insult the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم), so he did (this is excusable).

But as for a man being forced to rule by other than what Allāh has revealed forever, then this is not Ikrāh at all.

Ikrāh is to immediately say a word of Kufr or do an action of Kufr, but as for continuity and always doing Kufr, then this is not Ikrāh, just as Imām al-Athram (رحمه الله) mentioned from the Imām of Ahlu Sunnah wal-Jamā'ah, Imām Ahmad (رحمه الله); for instance a man was forced to wear a cross (this is an excuse), but to be forced to continuously remain a christian (i.e. By wearing that cross all the time), then this is not a valid Ikrāh."

Radwan Dakkak updated his status.

*There's no EXCUSE for any individual or govt in allying with the Kuffār* - Shaykh Sulaymān ibn Nāsir al-'Alwān (حفظه الله) said:

But when some of those who claim to be Muslims support the enemies of Allāh to fight the Muslims, then this is apostasy from Islām. And every government and every individual that fights with the Americans against our muslim brothers in Afghānistān or Chechnya, then he's an apostate from Islām & a disbeliever in Allāh, the most high & exalted, because Allāh (جل وعلا) says:

"And whoever is an ally to them among you - then indeed, he is [one] of them".

That was mentioned by Imām Ibn Jarīr al-Tabarī(رحمه الله) in his Tafsīr upon this Āyah, and that was mentioned by Imām Ibn Hazm(رحمه الله) & he stated "No two muslims disagree regarding that", and that was mentioned by Shaykh al-Islām Muhammad ibn 'Abdul Wahhāb(رحمه الله) in the 10 Nullifiers of Islām, he stated in 1 of them: "Assisting the Mushrikeen against the Muslims", and there is no EXCUSE for anyone regarding that!

And the claim of Ikrāh [coercion] regarding that is not correct, because it is not ikrāh that you remain upon the account & settlement of others, and it's not from Ikrāh that you remain in your position (of serving the Kuffār) to remove an Islamic State, Allāh (جل وعلا) says:

"except for one who is forced [to renounce his religion] while his heart is secure in faith"

And these people comply with the Kuffār before Ikrāh is befallen upon them, they comply with the Kuffār in alliance with them in removing the symbols & slogans of Islām, and in fighting the muslims under the pretext of "Terrorism", what is this terrorism?! We do not know of any terrorism in the world except for the terrorism of America who kill the sons of the Muslims, invading & occupying their lands.

There are two extremes:

1. Those who revere their Scholars extravagantly to the extent where they will blind follow them in every issue, and comes across as harsh against whoever disagrees with them in a matter open to Ijtihād (Note: We must be honest, this isn't solely present among the Murji'ah, Sūfiyyah & Rāfidah (etc...), but also among our own brothers & sisters that follow the Haqq).
2. Those who reject every Scholar of Ahlu Sunnah, including the most righteous amongst them, making Takfīr upon the 'Ulamā' of Haqq and Mujāhideen - And whoever defends these Scholars and Mujāhideen, by showing love and gratitude towards their efforts for the Ummah is labeled a "Qitālī" or a "Scholar Worshipper".

What's interesting is that Category #2 also fall under Category #1, since you will see them promoting and blind following their own Shaykhs, and whoever disagrees with their Shaykh's wrong understanding is called a "Kāfir".

*Alhamdulillah I came to the Haqq because of you*

It's amazing that you've come to the Haqq, however we need to use the best of speech Inshā'Allāh.

So you should say instead, "I came to the Haqq because of Allāh and His Guidance alone".

As for the person who helped you reach the guidance of Allāh, you can afterwards thank him or her as well, as our beloved Messenger (صلى الله عليه وسلم) said:

"Whoever doesn't give thanks to the people doesn't give thanks (i.e. Shukr) to Allāh" [Narrated by Imām Ahmad in his Musnad with a Sahīh Isnād according to the Muhaddithīn].

However it doesn't stop there, an important thing we must remember is don't become deceived and arrogant by being upon the Haqq, since how many people have we seen who have even preceded us on "following the Haqq" deviate later on in their life, and this is ofcourse due to their wrong-doings in private, as we all know Allāh doesn't oppress anyone (as He stated in several verses).

Live your life by the principle, "Know the Truth, and you will know its men", so that way you don't get shocked when you see people (even those you used to look up too) deviate off the Path.

The Salaf despised a person who would always change opinions in his religion, our Dīn is no game to play with, where we jump back and forth in it. I ask Allāh to keep me steadfast, and likewise with the Ummah of Muhammad (صلى الله عليه وسلم).

Note: The reason why I start with myself in du'ā before others, is because this is the Sunnah of the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) - It's something I previously learnt from Sh. Sulaymān al-'Alwān's Sharh of Bulūgh al-Marām (Chapter of Funerals), Bārak Allāhu feekum.

#True_Support

True Support is to make du'ā for your brothers day and night, that Allāh removes away their agony, and to substitute their fear for security, and to open for them the part of the Earth that was closed in on them in spite of its vastness.

True Support is to rush towards defending the honour of your brothers which is spewed out by the Media Stations and their minions day and night, and you don't find anyone responding to it or serving as a deterrent against it (deceitful media).

True Support is to unveil the clothes of misguidance and ignorance from the muslim masses, which was sewn upon them by the Misguided Scholars and they adorned it for them with a fake emerald, until they couldn't turn towards anything else...

True Support is to encourage your brothers to strive in the Path of Allāh without forgetting about yourself, so you would aim your speech towards it first, and purify it and exert costly treasurable efforts to reach the goal that you called towards.

True Support is where your main concern is to seek knowledge which is more powerful than weapons, and the most powerful shield against Fitan.. "And Fitnah (i.e. Shirk) is more severe than killing", so what will your help (of the Muslims) or Jihād be of benefit to you if you fell into acts of Kufr, from the cause of your lack of concern to avoid it, only if you had knowledge (of these Nullifiers), you would tremble in your position (be fearful to fall into it).

True Support is to preserve your increase of 'Ibādah so that you do not become a dead ruined heart...and how can you wait for a hardened empty heart from the remembrance of Allāh to be an igniting candle between comrades?!

True Support is to be determined to strive in Allāh's cause against all those who are binding upon you to strive against without exception...your Qareen...the whims of yourself...the enemy of Allāh, and your enemy.

True Support is to rush towards making what's inside of you better than what you show on the outside, for how many supporters (of the Haqq) was upon goodness, then became open to Fitnah (temptation), and was deceived by numerous commends and praise which the people slaughtered him with (metaphorically speaking), until he wore this attire and praised himself from where he did not realise.

True Support is to know your true level, so cure the areas of deficiency in it and to purify it from everything that's blended within its serenity & purity, until you become a person who is sincere to Allāh, so when you would ask your Lord, He would answer your call.

True Support starts from your current situation right now (so make a change today!).

We tend to often remind people "to verify news" (which is a beautiful naseehah) and not to believe the Kuffār Media, such as RT, FOX, CNN, Press TV, Al-'Arabiyyah, Al-Jazeera and name it all...

However my question is, why are muslims watching these news stations to begin with?!

Fulān and Fulānah will say "I don't believe the Kuffār media, they are such and such...", but why do their actions say otherwise? And to top it off, they truly believe it while having zero knowledge about the Mujāhideen.

Let's be honest with ourselves my sisters and brothers, maybe we might get reward for being honest with ourselves (as our beloved Shaykh Sulaymān Anwar said).

*Benefit - the limits of how a woman should speak to a man* ~ Tafsīr of Sūrat al-Ahzāb, Āyah 32-33.

Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tarēfē (فك الله أسره) mentioned the following in his excellent book "Al-Tafsīr wal-Bayān Li-Ahkām il-Qur'ān" (4/323-324) or (Pages 1976-1977):

Allāh's statement: "Then do not be soft in speech [to men]".

Meaning: Do not commiserate with him (i.e. speak in a compassionate remorseful way), even if that was done out of good intentions, for indeed the prohibition is not for her alone, but for the listeners, so it would incline & temp whomever has a veil and sickness in his heart towards them (i.e. women), so they would be the cause of his destruction.

And Allāh's statement: "But speak with appropriate speech".

Meaning: From words of goodness, that if the people were to hear it, they wouldn't rebuke it, so their speech (i.e. women) with a single individual would be similar to their speech with a group of individuals in its goodness and chastity.

And from the signs of acceptable speech which is permissible for a woman to speak with a non-Mahram man: Is that she speaks with words wherein if the people were to hear her speech with that man, they wouldn't rebuke it, and she wouldn't become shy from him (by those words), so the people would know it and wouldn't rebuke it.

This is how chaste & modest her speech must be, if she is in need to speak with a man in which no one else can hear: That she speaks with him in a way that if her husband or child or other people were to hear it, they wouldn't rebuke it, and they would consider it something appropriate & praiseworthy.

And in Allāh's statement: "lest he in whose heart is disease should covet."

He made the covet in the (heart of) man, with the high chances it occurs from the female gender in general, and that (i.e. This command from Allāh to the Prophet's wives) is magnifying & exalting the status of the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) and a purification for his wives, lest any bad assumption is thought about them, and showing the specific nature of men being bolder & more tempted than women.

And Allāh's statement: "And abide in your houses and do not display yourselves as [was] the display of the former times of ignorance".

He commanded them to abide in their houses and not to go out except for a Need, and he forbade them from the Tabarruj of Jāhiliyyah (openly displaying themselves like in the time of ignorance), from the free-mixing between men, and displaying their beauties & charms by their adornments, and He (i.e. Allāh) described that as being "Jāhiliyyah" (ignorance), not to be considered from knowledge and righteousness.

This is one of the most beautiful and amazing advices by the great scholar Imam Ibn al-Qayyim (rahimahullah):

"A friend will not (literally) share your struggles, and a loved one cannot physically take away your pain, and a close one will not stay up the night on your behalf. So look after yourself, protect yourself, nurture yourself and don't give life's events more than what they are really worth. Know for certain that when you break no one will heal you except you, and when you are defeated no one will give you victory except your determination. Your ability to stand up again and carry on is your responsibility. Do not look for your self worth in the eyes of people; look for your worth from within your conscious. If your conscious is at peace then you will ascend high and if you truly know yourself then what is said about you won't harm you.

Do not carry the worries of this life because this is for Allah. And do not carry the worries of sustenance because it is from Allah. And do not carry the anxiety for the future because it is in the Hands of Allah.

Carry one thing: How to Please Allah. Because if you please Him, He Pleases you, fulfils you and enriches you.

Do not weep from a life that made your heart weep. Just say, "Oh Allah compensate me with good in this life and the hereafter."

Sadness departs with a Sajdah. Happiness comes with a sincere Du'a. Allah Does Not forget the good you do. nor Does He Forget the good you did to others and the pain you relieved them from. Nor Will He Forget the eye which was about to cry but you made it laugh.

Live your life with this principle: Be good even if you don't receive good, not because for other's sake but because Allah Loves those who do good."

Let's talk about Ikhlas. Imam al-Bukhari would pray 2 rak'ah before placing a Hadith in his famous "Sahih" & he had to travel long distances to hear a single Hadith - A man, a non-Arab, raised by a striving single mother, became the teacher of the Arabs.

Now the hard part for us, perhaps we can try emulate this great Imam and implement similar actions in what we do? Look, I can't tell anyone to pray 2 rak'ah before making a post (for e.g.) since I don't do that, but it can be some food for thought, Barak Allahu feekum.

We are really living in strange times when those who are truly ordaining the good and forbidding the evil are told "why aren't you ordaining the good and forbidding the evil".

^ That doesn't make any sense right? Let me give an example, if someone has the courage & wisdom to speak the Haqq on rare topics which aren't even heard of, such as Tawhīd, Walā' & Barā' or Jihād, he gets told:

"Fear Allāh akhī, people aren't even praying, go teach them how to pray before u speak about such matters".

Or if he enjoys goodness among the Muslimeen and Muslimāt, and forbids Munkar such as free-mixing, he gets told:

"Why don't you go forbid Munkar elsewhere, you are causing Fitnah here, shame on you".

You have mentioned exactly what Banī Isrā'eel have said, where Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) spoke about their characteristics in Sūrat al-Mā'idah:

لُعِنَ الَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا مِن بَنِي إِسْرَائِيلَ عَلَى لِسَانِ دَاوُودَ وَعِيسَى ابْنِ مَرْيَمَ ذَلِكَ بِمَا عَصَوْا وَكَانُوا يَعْتَدُونَ

"Cursed were those who disbelieved among the Children of Israel by the tongue of David and of Jesus, the son of Mary. That was because they disobeyed and [habitually] transgressed." [5:78].

كَانُوا لَا يَتَنَاهَوْنَ عَن مُّنْكَرٍ فَعَلُوهُ لَبِئْسَ مَا كَانُوا يَفْعَلُونَ

"They used not to prevent one another from wrongdoing that they did. How wretched was that which they were doing." [5:79].

تَرَى كَثِيرًا مِّنْهُمْ يَقُولُونَ الَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا لَيُنْسَنَ مَا قَدَّمَتْ لَهُمْ أَنفُسُهُمْ أَن سَخِطَ اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِمْ وَفِي الْعَذَابِ هُمْ خَالِدُونَ

"You see many of them becoming allies of those who disbelieved. How wretched is that which they have put forth for themselves in that Allah has become angry with them, and in the punishment they will abide eternally." [5:80].

وَلَوْ كَانُوا يُؤْمِنُونَ بِاللَّهِ وَالْيَوْمِ الْآخِرِ مَا أُنْزِلَ إِلَيْهِ مَا اتَّخَذُوهُمْ أَوْلِيَاءَ وَلَكِنَّ كَثِيرًا مِّنْهُمْ فَاسِقُونَ

"And if they had believed in Allah and the Prophet and in what was revealed to him, they would not have taken them as allies; but many of them are defiantly disobedient." [5:81].

Allāh also addresses the arrogant mockers of those who ordain good & forbid Munkar in Sūrat al-Baqarah:

وَإِذَا قِيلَ لَهُ اتَّقِ اللَّهَ أَخَذَتْهُ الْعِزَّةُ بِالْإِثْمِ ۖ فَحَسْبُهُ جَهَنَّمُ ۚ وَلَيُنْسَنَ الْأَمُهَادُ

"And when it is said to him, 'Fear Allah', he is led by arrogance to (more) sin. So enough for him is Hell, and worst indeed is that place to rest!" [2:206].

Now, if someone wants to say "What, are you a Shaykh now? Telling people what's Halāl and Harām, when you're a sinner yourself!", I want to know who stipulated the condition that you must be a Shaykh or "an infallible Imām" to forbid Munkar?!

- By Allāh I don't know anyone except Iblees who would say such a thing.

Some brothers wanted a response to a personal attack from a misguided and arrogant heart so I say:

Shaykh Ahmad Jibrīl (حفظه الله) mentioned some golden words that we need to always remember...

"Sometimes you are on social media, you are giving Da'wah and you get slandered or you get dragged into an argument or a debate. If you merely fear that your reply is in retaliation for your own person and not for the cause that you were giving Da'wah in, then back away and do not send it. Complete silence for Allāh is better than responding and quarreling that ends up being half for Allāh and half for personal gain. Do not worry about your person. Defend the cause, not your person."

The Da'wah is bigger than me and you and our persons should be prepared to be thrown in the mud and also used as a bridge for the people to follow and come to the Haqq. Unfortunately today people defend their own personalities and others' more than the Haqq. They call to their ignorant opinions rather than the Book of Allāh (عز وجل) and the clear pure Sunnah of the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم). They call to their own understanding and manhaj rather than the understanding and Manhaj of the Khulafā ar-Rāshidīn al-Mahdiyyīn (رضي الله عنهم).

If someone brings and spreads misguidance that is refuted and clarified with proof and spreads misguidance then this will be addressed and continues to be addressed. As for personal attacks that have nothing to do with this knowledge and following the correct path, then Allāh (عز وجل) is sufficient.

"Why waste your time with these ignorant people?"

We tend to hear this statement very often, however at the same time, this statement can be extremely dangerous if it's highly over-used incorrectly (despite the sincerity of the one saying it).

For example, if we see innovation spreading in the Ummah, and we ignore it because the people spreading it are "ignorant youth", this can bring so much harm.

Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr mentioned in his Sharh of Kitāb al-Tawhīd, that it's necessary to destroy innovation when it first sprouts up, before it spreads & causes damage!

^ Okay, so usually someone will stop there and keep their message 'general', however we can't stop here, let's get into 'specifics' and apply these words in our times to get a better understanding.

For e.g. the "Hazimi Ghulat", some people think they are only a few 'young' jokers on social media, therefore "There's no need to waste your time with them, simply ignore them".

In response to this, I must sadly mention that the issue is much greater than what you think. Infact for the past decade, I used to say that the worst fitnah in our ummah is "Irja'" (which I still believe is the biggest fitnah), but I have recently started to shift my stance and say "Ghulu in Takfeer is rising much rapidly around the world, as a counter-reaction to the long years of Irjaa'", and those who may not take this seriously are two groups of people:

1. Those who mostly look at the situation of the Ummah by observing their local towns/cities & "ENGLISH" social media only - Therefore they will come to the conclusion that it's a little small fringe group who aren't to be taken seriously. However I advise this group of people to speak to people of different nationalities and without exception, every single one of them will tell you there is a huge problem of ghulu in their countries, especially in the middle east, it's becoming the norm for people to make takfeer upon righteous scholars and shuyukh, such as Imam Anwar al-'Awlaki subhanAllah.

2. Those who don't even know the "Hazimi Ghulat" exist! And most of these people don't even have "social media" to begin with, and despite social media having alot of cons, there are things you will find online (and keeping you up to date) that you will never come across in your life personally except if Allah wills - These people are mostly chasing the Dunya and don't care much about the state of the Ummah, not striving hard enough to search for the Haqq.

This is simply my observation, but at the same time, the blessing of Allah is incredible, He has made Ahlu Sunnah wal-Jama'ah stand right in between all of these deviant sects exceptionally.

Finally, I advise my Muwahhideen and Muwahhidaat to have Sabr, for indeed our day will come soon - May Allah make us apart of those who witness the establishment of Tawhīd in this Dunya & live as honourable Muslims, and grant us the bounty to be resurrected together on the day of judgement with Allah being pleased with us, as the Rasul said, "You will be resurrected with whom you love on Yawm al-Qiyamah", what a huge blessing this is, so ensure you choose the best friends in this Dunya, and never befriend an innovator!

*A reply to those who consider Takfir from Aslu Dīn* (My response to a Hāzimī in which I didn't get a proper reply back).

Bārak Allāhu feek, you have mentioned it yourself:

"Allāh Ta'āla clarified in His Book that there is no excuses for the person who commits Kufr/Shirk al-Akbar except the person who is in a state of ikrāh".

^ This proves my point regarding the differentiation between believing worshipping other than Allāh is {Kufr}, and making {Takfīr} upon whoever worships other than Allāh:

1. Believing worshipping other than Allāh is "Kufr" - This is Aslu Dīn (known by the intellect).
2. Making "Takfīr" upon whoever worships other than Allāh - This is not Aslu Dīn (known by the text), since the Qur'ān has told us that "Ikrāh" is an excuse ('udhr) when it comes to "Takfīr" as you have shared.

Now you are saying "Ikrāh" is the only excuse that Allāh has clarified in His Book, this doesn't matter, the main point is that we came to know that "Ikrāh" is an impediment of "Takfīr" from the text, not our intellect, therefore "Takfīr" is not from Aslu Dīn (like believing in the Kufr of worshipping other than Allāh).

Yes, we can say whoever includes "Darūrah" and "Jahl" as an impediment of "Takfīr" is mistaken and going against the Qur'ān, but we must show him that they are not impediments of Takfīr, and if that is shown to him with his doubts removed, he becomes a Kāfir 'for denying the text' (this is the criterion in Clear/Unclear matters).

- Now if you want to disagree with me and say there's no difference between "Kufr" and "Takfīr" and both of them are from Aslu Dīn, then this necessitates that you must make Takfīr upon Shaykh Al-Hāzimī:

Since Shaykh Al-Hāzimī doesn't make Takfīr upon the one who excuses a Tāghūt Mushrik Ruler due to having 'doubts' of "Kufr Duna Kufr" in the issue of ruling by other than what Allāh has revealed.

^ This makes Shaykh Ahmad al-Hāzimī a 'Āthir, since he didn't make Takfīr upon someone for excusing a Mushrik, and this is Aslu Dīn.

- Now, Al-Hāzimī himself said "It's because the issue of ruling by other than what Allāh has revealed is open to misconceptions and doubts, and there are statements from the salaf, kufr duna kufr..." [paraphrased].

But look what he says next, "However as for calling upon the dead, there is no misconception in this, this is clear-cut known [1] in the religion by necessity..." [paraphrased].

^ Allāhu Akbar! These words completely contradict the concept of "Takfīr" being from Aslu Dīn, since Al-Hāzimī said the Shirk of legislating man-made laws is open to misconceptions (unclear matter), whereas the Shirk of calling upon the dead isn't open to misconceptions (clear matter).

^ And this shows that the "Criterion" for the 3rd Nullifier returns back to "denying the text", and the matter of Takfīr upon the Mushrikīn is originally clear among the Salaf, but unclearness & obscurity can appear depending upon the time and place, like in our times with regards to some of the Mushrikīn that claim Islām, due to the misconceptions and Irjā'.

والله أعلم

[1] What's strange is that Al-Hāzīmī says otherwise in Egypt & commits apostasy (according to his own beliefs) by saying it's permissible to blind follow someone who gives excuse of ignorance - Then after his students wanted clarification from him, since he said Kufr and he was not in the state of Ikrāh, so he released a statement saying that the Shuyūkh of Masr are all Jahmiyyah, they hardly know about this issue (i.e. Excuse of ignorance), it would cause a war over there, so here he is showing that it's an unclear matter, so how could he claim it's clear & known in the religion by necessity?! Infact how can anyone take it a step further & claim it's from Aslu Dīn (must be known once u reach maturity or else ur a mushrik!) - This shows that Al-Hāzīmī himself has contradicting statements on the issue.

Shaykh Al-'Allāmah Nāsir al-Fahad (حفظه الله) said:

It's necessary upon the Student to act upon his knowledge, for indeed this is the purpose of knowledge, not to carry it for the people, so it's necessary for him to strive in performing acts of obedience, and to frequently perform Nawāfil (voluntary acts); From Qiyām (night prayer), Siyām (fasting), Sadaqah (charity), Qirā'ah (recitation of the Qur'ān), Thikr (remembrance of Allāh) and other than that.

And I draw attention here towards two matters:

1. That {merely} diving into reading books and memorising Mutūn (concise texts), and writing knowledge and teaching it causes a hardness in the heart, so the student would find 'Ibādah (worship) difficult, so he must give up some of his time occasionally every once in a while for the voluntary acts of worship during his studies, and let him look at the lives of the Righteous, as it makes one's heart get moved by it, and causes one to perform action (good deeds) by the permission of Allāh.
2. That there's a misconception in this topic which is related by some of the lazy students of knowledge who simply absorb knowledge, and find it difficult to perform 'Ibādah (acts of worship), and it is (their statement): "Verily, seeking knowledge is better than voluntary acts of worship", and this is a misconception which isn't applicable (to what these people claim), for indeed there is no contradiction between the two matters to begin with in order for this to be put forth above the other, and all you need to look at are the Major Scholars of the Ummah, from the Sahābah and Tābi'een and those who came afterwards, you will find them to be well-known for 'Ibādah (worship), but rather knowledge is put forth above 'Ibādah (voluntary acts of worship) when there's a conflict, in the sense that it's not possible to perform both of them together (and that seeking knowledge must be given precedence), and this doesn't happen except in specific rare circumstances.

You can listen to 100's of lectures and read 1000's of pages, but if you don't focus on memorisation, by Allāh you will regret it so much in the future.

The way of the Salaf is to memorise 'with' understanding, this is what gives you proficiency in the sciences you have studied, and this is the reason why Mutūn were written.

#Tahārah The types of Miyāh (plural of water) are 3:

- Tahūr (Pure & Purifies)
- Tāhir (Pure)
- Najis (Impure)

3. Najis, is the water in which Najāsah (filth) has entered into it & has caused the water to change, i.e. A change in terms of its taste, or colour, or smell due to the Najāsah that fell into it.

With regards to a "Small amount" of water (i.e. What's below the Qullatayn), if some Najāsah fell into it, it would automatically render the water Najis, even if it doesn't cause a change in the water, since it's a "Small Amount".

But if it was a "large amount" of water, and some filth entered into it & didn't cause a change in the water, then it is not considered Najis (impure), unlike the case with the "small amount" of water.

So the "large amount" of water only becomes Najis due to a "change in the water", even if the water changed a little tiny bit, it becomes Najis (impure).

As for Urine and Feces (entering "STILL" water), there's a statement directly cited from Imām Ahmad that it makes the water Najis (whether large or small amount of water), even if it doesn't cause a change in the water, and this is the view of most of the Earlier Scholars, whereas the revised & adopted view among most of the Later Scholars within the Madhab is that the "large amount" of water doesn't become Najis except if it causes a change in the water.

- If urine or feces entered "still water", it becomes Najis, unlike the case with "flowing water", since it cleans itself (a separate post will be made on this point Inshā'Allāh).

With regards to the view that large water becomes Najis even if it doesn't cause a change in the water - This doesn't include water which reaches the extent of being classified as "Oceanic", such as river water or ocean water, this doesn't become Najis unless it causes a change in the water, and that is extremely difficult and unlikely to ever change the water.

But we're speaking about "large amount" of water in a 300kg or 500kg or 600kg tank, if a person's urine enters into it or his feces, there's a Riwayah in the Madhab that says it automatically becomes Najis, but what most of the Later Scholars are upon is that it doesn't become Najis except if it causes a change in the water.

So in brief, if Najāsah enters into a "small amount" of water, it becomes Najis (even if there's no change in the water) - And if Najāsah enters into a "large amount" of water, it doesn't become Najis except if there's a change in the water.

Ya Ghurabā', Ya Muwahhiddīn, Ya Muwahhiddāt - "Fear Allāh and Be with the Truthful", we all know that Allāh said "I did not create the Jinn and Ins except to worship me", but how much have we truly & sincerely worshipped Allāh in this Dunyā? Continuously repent from your sins and seek forgiveness from your Lord, He is the Most-Forgiving & more Merciful to you than a mother with her own child, so turn to Him (FIRST) and Fear Him always.

These strange times with the promotion of all types of evil and corruption is a huge calamity, you will find many weak Muslims becoming cowardly in our times, and taking the path of misguidance and apostasy, but you O Muwahhid and O Muwahhiddah must have rock-hard Ēmān firmer than iron and steel with toughness like cannon-fire, continue making the du'ā "O Allāh, turner of the hearts, keep my heart firm upon your Dīn", strive harder and harder to please your Lord.

When you remind people about the Ākhirah, they might say "This person is gonna tell us to forget the Dunya again & strive for the Ākhirah", tell them, YES I am telling you to forget this Dunya and strive for Ākhirah. Abū Dāwūd said, "the gatherings of Imām Ahmad were all about the Ākhirah, he did not mention a single thing from the Dunyā", Allāhu Akbar! Imagine if Abū Dāwūd was living in our times, I would assume his quote would be the exact opposite!

Remember my brothers & sisters, since you are living in strange times, when you explain or teach anything about the Dīn, you must always reference the 'Ulamā' of the past, lest you get accused of extremism or even made Takfīr upon. SubhānAllāh, in this day and age, you must be very careful in 'Aqīdah, since some people are waiting on you to make a single slip just to make Takfīr upon you, that's if they haven't already - Hold onto the principles of the Salaf and enrage the people of innovation, Allāh will protect you.

Finally, I want you all to ponder over this Āyah in Sūrat al-Baqarah, Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) says:

يُخْرِجُهُم مِّنَ الظُّلُمَاتِ إِلَى النُّورِ

"...To remove them from the darkness into the light..." [2:257]

The word "light" النُّور is singular, whereas the word "darkness" الظُّلُمَاتِ is plural - Why is that? Imām Ibn al-Qayyim (رحمه الله) says:

"This is one of the wonders of the Qur'ān, and the reason is that there is only one path of truth, whereas the path of falsehood is numerous".

Ya Allāh, how amazing is the speech of Allāh in the Glorious Qur'ān - It also fits in perfectly with what we can see right in front of our eyes.

You will find many people speaking about the Dīn, many people becoming pre-mature 'Shaykhs' and 'Scholars' - The masses will jump on the bandwagon & crow along with the rooster.

But there's only one path of Truth, and that's not determined by 'fame' or 'numbers' or 'eloquent speech' - Some of the Salaf said, "Follow the Truth, even if you're standing alone".

Imām Mālik said: "Whatever you fool around with, don't fool around with your religion."

May Allāh grant victory to the people of Tawhīd, the Mujāhideen & 'Ulamā' in prison, and grant us sincerity in our love for Allāh, His Messenger and the Believing Men & Women.

Atleast 39 of our sisters have been taken away & thrown into the Saudi Tāghūt prisons unjustly - You won't hear much about them, and I hold myself responsible for not doing enough:

1. Haylah al-Qusayr (18 Eid's behind bars).
2. Miya al-Talq
3. Āminah al-Rāshid
4. Hind al-Qurashī
5. Maryam
6. Afrāh Ādam Ibrāhīm
7. Farah Muhammad Ismā'īl
8. Sārah al-Zāmil
9. Mashā'il Jalūn
10. Afrān al-Dulaymī
11. Maryam Hassan Muhammad 'Atīf
12. Fātimah 'Alī 'Atīf
13. 'Amshām 'Aqīl al-Shimarī
14. Nūra Falāh al-Shahrī
15. Samāh Mansūr al-Nufay'ī
16. Yumnā Dusāy "from south africa"
17. 'Abeer Muhammad al-Harbī
18. Mirām al-Hishāl
19. Āyah al-Thabeetī

20. The wife of 'Abdullāh Qalzār Khān "from Pakistān".
21. The mother of 'Abdullāh Qalzār's wife.
22. Khulūd al-Rukaybī
23-24. Two sisters from al-Su'ayrī in "al-Dammām" prison.
25-31. Seven university students from "Hafr al-Bātin".
32-34. "Three" sisters which the Saudi Tawāghīt claimed they brought back into the country.
35. Fātimah Ramadān al-Balūshī
36. Salamah Jum'ah, the wife of 'Alī al-Balūshī
37. Hind Muhammad Nūr, the wife of 'Abdul Rahmān al-Balūshī
38. Sārah Thāfir al-Shahrī
39. Hanān Mahmūd al-Hayyāwī, "from Syria, and she has been absent since her arrest a year ago".

And there are more sisters, may Allāh preserve them.

I went to the Masjid to recite some Qur'ān, there wasn't much people and since I got a really loud voice (like Ahmad Jibri'l's father), someone asked if I'm able to recite quietly, so I told him I can understand, it's something I've been working on & is difficult for me.

Anyways, so I joined a Qur'ān circle, where we would recite in turns, and when it was my turn to recite, all the men stared at me, and I was advised a couple of times to lower my voice just incase others don't hear me, but the man in charge silenced them and said "No, let this man recite how he wants and let the whole masjid hear!!", then says to me "Recite how u like my son, let it all out", SubhānAllāh that made my night ♥ ♥ ♥ ♥ ♥ ♥ ♥

After we finished, they immediately asked where I was from since they've never seen me before, so I gave Salāms & they were talking with each other about me after I departed

Q. Assalamu alaykum can you elaborate on "a man cannot use the water left behind by a woman (with the condition that no one sees her)", what does this mean?

A. Wa 'Alaykum Asalām, Jazāk Allāh Khayr for the question, I can completely understand that, since this issue has details attached to it, so just to break it down for you:

Let's say a woman used a small bucket in the ablution area, without any Mumayyiz seeing her (Note: "Mumayyiz" is a person that has reached the age of being able to distinguish).

So this woman used this water without anyone seeing her and left the ablution area, a man cannot come and use that water she left behind & make wudū' with it, so it doesn't uplift hadath (ritual impurity).

Shaykh Abū Butayn al-Najdī (رحمه الله) mentions in his "Hāshiyah 'ala al-Rawdh al-Murbi'" (1/19):

"But if another woman was in her presence, it becomes permissible for the man to use, as long as she (i.e. the other woman) didn't participate in using it with her".

So if a Mumayyiz witnessed her use that water, it becomes valid for a man to use that water to uplift hadath (ritual impurity).

Shaykh 'Abdul Rahmān Ibn Qāsim al-Najdī (رحمه الله) mentioned in his "Hāshiyah 'ala al-Rawdh al-Murbi'" (1/80) explaining the 'khalwa' (her being unwitnessed):

"And witnessing with one's eyes is not what's intended, because the blind person affirms the Khalwah (her being in the state of seclusion or not) by his presence (of being in her area), and it doesn't affect (the ruling) if it was by a boy (who can distinguish), a Kāfir or woman".

This means that the "witnessing" doesn't mean to actually see her with one's eyes, but rather "witnessing" means to be present, as the Shaykh said, a blind person can affirm the ruling on that.

Also, in order for the left-over water by a woman to become invalid for the man to use, is if she wasn't seen during the 'complete Tahārah', i.e. for the whole time she purified herself.

So for instance if someone saw her in the beginning of her wudū' and then left, while she completed the rest of her wudū', this water she left behind is valid to be used by a man, since she was seen at a particular stage of her Tahārah.

It's also important to mention that this ruling of a man not being allowed to using that left-over water is specific to a woman using that water to uplift hadath (ritual impurity), unlike if she used it to renew wudū' or what's similar to that.

A very common question might pop up, how do we know this water left behind was used by a woman?

The simple answer to this, is that you must have Yaqīn (certainty) that a woman used it, so for instance if you're certain that your wife used this water (and no Mumayyiz was present to see her), then it's invalid for a man to use it.

But what if you're unsure? Then this returns back to the Asl (general basic principle) with regards to water, and that it's considered "Tahūr", therefore it's valid for a man to use it to uplift hadath.

Note: What I have shared is according to the Official Position of the Hanbalī Madhab, as it's mentioned in "Kashāf al-Qinā'" (1/28).

Even though Shaykh Muhammad Ibn Sālih al-'Uthaymīn (رحمه الله) said what's correct is that the used water left behind by a woman is valid for a man to use and uplift his Hadath, and this is also a narration in the Madhab, refer to "al-Insāf" (1/47) by al-Mardāwī.

And this issue has a long difference of opinion between the Scholars, but that's outside the scope of this channel, I will be simply relating the Mu'tamad Position of the Hanbalī Madhab, without pointing towards differences unless it's necessary & has a benefit.

Q. The book of purification begins with a section about water. Why is it that in the title uses the plural form of water (miyāh) and not its singular (mā')?

A. The plural is used out of considering the types that exist. These are rain, melted ice and hail, river water, sea water, well water, and the water that flowed from between the fingers of the Prophet ﷺ

#Tahārah The types of Miyāh (plural of water) are 3:

- Tahūr (Pure & Purifies)
- Tāhir (Pure)
- Najis (Impure)

2. Tāhir, this is the water which has been changed by being mixed by another Tāhir substance.

Meaning, this water used to be considered Tahūr, however something Tāhir fell into it, such as tea for example.

So if we poured tea into the Tahūr water, and its colour changed to red like the colour of the tea, then this water is now called "Tāhir" and not "Tahūr".

And it's invalid to perform wudū' with the Tāhir water, since only the Tahūr water uplifts Hadath, however it's permissible to drink it (i.e. The Tāhir water).

- Another type of water that's Tāhir is what has been used in a Fardh:

What is meant by "used in a Fardh" is taking some water and using it in wudū' to uplift hadath (ritual impurity).

So the water that has been used drips from the body-parts of your wudū', this is considered "water which has been used in a Fardh".

And this water is considered Tāhir, not Tahūr according to the Majority of the 'Ulamā'.

- Another type of water that's considered Tāhir is someone's hand being placed in it after waking up from a "nullified night sleep".

The Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) said, "If one of you wakes up from his sleep, then he should not place his hand in a cup (of water) until he washes it 3 times".

So if he places his hand in the cup before washing it 3 times, then the water becomes Tāhir & is not "Tahūr", and this Hadīth we just mentioned is the proof.

And this ruling only applies to the small amount of water, and what is meant by "small amount" is what's under the "Qullatayn" (approx. 192.5 kg's) - So if he placed his hand in a large amount of water, or in the ocean, this wouldn't affect the ruling at all.

What is meant by a "Nullified night sleep"? This refers to a deep sleep which nullifies the wudū', where the person had no conscious.

"Night" is mentioned because the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) said "for he does not know where his hand was (باتت - i.e. during the night)".

And the Hadīth mentions the word "Bātat" (بانت), and "Baytūtah" is only mentioned for sleep during the Night, not the day, so if he slept during the dhuhr & then placed his hand in the water, it would not affect it.

Likewise this "sleep" must be a True Sleep that nullifies the wudū' - There is a type of sleep, which is the Minor Sleep from the person sitting or standing, this doesn't nullify the wudū'.

So if a person slept at night for a little bit standing up (where he didn't fully lose his conscious), then placed his hands in the water, this wouldn't affect it, so the water remains "Tahūr" & doesn't change to "Tāhir", since it wasn't a True Sleep.

So in brief, Tāhir water is Pure & permissible to drink, however it cannot be used to uplift hadath (ritual impurity) or remove Najāsah (filth), only Tahūr water can do that, since it has the characteristic of purifying.

#Tahārah The types of Miyāh (plural of water) are 3:

- Tahūr (Pure & Purifies)
- Tāhir (Pure)
- Najis (Impure)

1. Tahūr, this is the water that has remained upon its true form, i.e. What Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) has created it upon.

And we have a Fundamental Rule (Qā'idah) in relation to this, "Water by default is considered Tahūr".

So if we find some water & we don't know whether it's Tahūr or Tāhir or Najis, we say that it's "Tahūr".

As for its Hukm (ruling), "Nothing uplifts Hadath (ritual impurity) or removes Najāsah (filth) except for water that is Tahūr".

And this ruling is specific for the water that is "Tahūr", therefore we learn from this that if the water was not "Tahūr", it would not uplift Hadath (ritual impurity).

Meaning, if you made wudū' with water that's not "Tahūr", your wudū' is invalid, if you use it to wash yourself from Janābah (post-sexual state of impurity), your Ghusl is invalid.

So if a Najāsah falls upon your clothes, can you wash it with any type of water? No, it can only be done with water that is "Tahūr", and that's the Asl (default - or general basic principle) with regards to water, that it is considered "Tahūr".

However there's an exception, yes we say that water that is Tahūr removes Hadath (ritual impurity), whether it was minor or major, but there's an exception:

And the exception is the water that is left-over from a woman, meaning a woman took some water & made Wudū' with it and left the rest behind (with the condition that no one saw her use it)

So it's not valid for a man to make Wudū' or Ghusl with that remaining water which she left behind, and this is according to the Hanbalī Madhab, some Āthār (reports) of the Sahābah & Hadīths were used as proof.

And Imām Ahmad (رحمه الله) says that most of the companions of the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) view this, i.e. that a man doesn't use the water left behind by a woman to uplift Hadath (with the condition that no one saw her use that water).

And what can be understood by the statement that a man cannot use the water left behind by a woman to uplift Hadath (i.e. with the condition that no one saw her use that water- if someone saw her it's fine), is that it's possible for a man to use it to remove Najāsah, this is possible.

So in brief, water that is Tahūr is Pure & has the characteristic of purifying, unlike water that is Tāhir (Pure) which will be discussed in a separate post إن شاء الله.

“Brothers and Sisters, SubhānAllāh even though it is true that many muslims may be deceived by this plan of the US, there were many muslims who were asleep before, and probably by now they can be declared brain-dead.

But on the other hand, it's amazing to see the revival, especially among the youth. The clarity of thought and the maturity of understanding that we find among some youth today is amazing, especially when you're talking about for example some youth in the west, who are 2nd or 3rd generation muslims, and they are carrying on to clear understanding of Islām, it's amazing to see that, it's life coming out of the dead.

These are living in the den of the lion, they are subjected, they are the first line of defence to this war of ideas, and they are subjected to the brunt of it, nevertheless they are holding onto the truth, the understanding that they have of their responsibility as Muslims and their willingness to fulfill these duties. Their understanding of Walā' and Barā', their understanding of the importance of establishing the rule of Allāh on Earth, and establishing Al-Khilāfah Al-Islamiyyah, all of this is amazing to see how many muslims are waking up from their sleep.”

Question: Are there books on Al-Walâ' Wal-Barâ' written before Muhammad Ibn 'Abdil-Wahhâb?

Answer: Yes, there was material written before that time. One of the best books is "Asnâ al-Matâjir Fî Bayân Ahkâm Man Ghalaba 'Alâ Qatanihi an-Nasârâ Wa Lam Yuhâjir Wa Mâ Yatarattaba 'Alâ Thâlika Min al-'Uqûbâti Waz-Zawâjir" by Ahmad Ibn Yahyâ al-Wansharîsî al-Mâlikî (d. 914 H.).

Likewise, lots can be found in the following books:

"Tartîb al-Madârik Wa Taqrîb al-Masâlik Li-Ma'rîfat A'lâm Math'habi Malik" by Al-Qâdhî 'Iyâdh al-Mâlikî (d. 544 H.).

"Iqtidhâ' as-Sirât al-Mustaqîm Mukhâlafati Ahl al-Jahîm" by Shaykh al-Islâm Ibn Taymiyyah (d. 728 H.).

"Ahkâm Ahl ath-Thimmah" by Ibn al-Qayyim (d. 751 H.).

"Al-Mi'yâr al-Mu'rib al-Jâmi' al-Mughrib 'An Fatâwâ Ahli Ifrîqiyah Wal-Andalus Wal-Maghrib" also by Al-Wansharîsî al-Mâlikî.

We need to keep in mind that, historically, the material written in a given era is a reflection of the needs of the Ummah at that time. So for matters of Al-Walâ' wal-Barâ', we find it being written about around the time of the Mongol Invasion, the Crusades, the fall of Al-Andalus, the fall of the Ottoman Empire, and so on.

And Allâh Knows Best.

At the same time, being criticised (even by someone you don't like) can be a great thing to remind you of your mistakes, and acknowledging your own faults is what makes you a better person - This is why true friends and sincere spouses will correct one another if they see something wrong, not just "go with the flow". Give sincere advice to someone because you love them & wish the very best for them, if this is your intention, the politeness and gentleness will follow through.

Q. Can you explain the Fatwa on the difference between Kufr and Takfīr a little further?

A. So basically, Kufr Bit-Tāghūt has an Asl (core foundation) which is to believe the invalidity of worshipping other than Allāh, this is Aslu Dīn, known by the Intellect.

But as for making Takfīr, this isn't known by the intellect alone, rather it requires evidences from the Sharī'ah, therefore there is a difference between Kufr and Takfīr.

So Takfīr upon the Mushrikīn is a Lāzim (necessary implication) of Al-Kufr Bit-Tāghūt, not an Asl (core foundation).

Now whoever the evidence reaches concerning the Kuffār, like Jews, Christians & all other religions, and he doesn't make Takfīr, then we would make Takfīr upon him for excusing them, what is the reason why we make takfīr? Because he has denied the text.

But why do we make a separation between the Kāfir Aslī and Kāfir Murtad?

We believe they are both Kuffār, but the one who excuses the Kāfir Murtad is not unrestricted called a Kāfir before Hujjah like with the Kāfir Aslī, since the ruling upon him is open to misconceptions, misinterpretations and confusion, applying the mānī' of jahl in the wrong area etc.. (so he wouldn't be denying the text).

Even Shaykh al-Hāzimī makes a differentiation between the Kāfir Aslī and Kāfir Murtad when it comes to the Tawāgheet Mushrikeen, so he excuses the one who refrains from making Takfīr upon the Tāghūt that claims Islām due to a strong misconception of "Kufr duna Kufr".

But what's strange is that Al-Hāzimī differentiates between Shirk of Hākimiyyah and Shirk of Ulūhiyyah...that's why he doesn't excuse the person that refrains from takfeer upon the graveworshipper.

Questioner: Wallāhi, Alhamdulillah Allāh opens my heart, Wallāhi Alhamdulillah, Jazāk Allāhu Khayran akhī.

Question: Is Takfir from the Foundations of the Religion or from the Necessary Implications of Lā ilāha ilā Allāh?

Answered by Shaykh Abū Muslim al-Mansūr (حفظه الله):

Firstly:

There's a difference between Kufr and Takfir.

And Al-Kufr Bit-Tāghūt is a fundamental principle from the Foundations of the Religion.

And Takfir is a Legislative Ruling which isn't known by the intellect, but it's rather known through the Legislative Proofs.

Secondly:

Aslu Dīn (the foundation of the religion) is:

Tawhīd and abandoning Shirk, and this is known by the Fitrah.

And Takfir upon the Mushrikīn is a Lāzim (necessary implication) from the implications of Tawhīd, and this is known by the Legislative Proofs, so whoever has the proof reach him regarding the Kufr of the Jews, Christians and Mushrikīn, and he doesn't make Takfir upon them, he would be considered a denier of the Qur'ān and Sunnah - So the Nullifier of not making Takfir is due to "Takthīb" (denying the text).

Thirdly:

Kufr Bit-Tāghūt is a pillar from the pillars of Lā ilāha ilā Allāh, (Allāh) the Exalted said:

"So whoever disbelieves in Taghut and believes in Allah has grasped the most trustworthy handhold with no break in it. And Allah is Hearing and Knowing." [2:256].

So whoever doesn't disbelieve in the Tāghūt, then he hasn't believed in Allāh at all.

But as for making Takfir upon the Tawāghūt and Mushrikīn, then it is from the Lawāzīm (implications) of Al-Kufr Bit-Tāghūt.

So the slave (of Allāh) doesn't achieve Ēmān until he disbelieves in the Tāghūt, and Kufr Bit-Tāghūt isn't actualised and perfected until he makes Takfīr upon the Tāghūt, hates it (inwardly), abandons it, avoids it and shows enmity to it (outwardly). [1]

So ponder over the difference between "Al-Kufr Bit-Tāghūt" and "Takfīr upon the Mushrikīn".

So if you understand this well, it would become clear to you that Aslu Dīn (the foundations of the Religion) is testifying that there's no deity worthy of worship except Allāh, and its meaning is to actualise & perfect Tawhīd and Al-Kufr Bit-Tāghūt, and what necessarily implies from Al-Kufr Bit-Tāghūt is to make Takfīr upon the people of the Tāghūt, its followers and helpers.

Allāh is the Most High, All-Knowing and All-Wise.

[1] Translator's Note: See how Kufr Bit-Tāghūt consists of different levels, so for e.g. outwardly showing enmity and animosity to the Mushrikīn is from the necessary implications of Al-Kufr Bit-Tāghūt, yet no one says that the oppressed and incapable weak Muslims are Kuffār for not disbelieving in the Tāghūt due to "not outwardly displaying animosity to the Mushrikīn", and likewise with Takfīr upon Individual Mushrikīn that claim Islām, like the Apostate Mushrik Rulers or Apostate Mushrik Grave-Worshippers, the one who excuses them due to a misconception or misinterpretation isn't called a Kāfir for "not rejecting the Tāghūt".

Question: Is Takfīr from the Foundations of the Religion or from the Necessary Implications of Lā ilāha ilā Allāh?

Answered by Shaykh Abū Muslim al-Mansūr (حفظه الله):

Firstly:

There's a difference between Kufr and Takfīr.

And Al-Kufr Bit-Tāghūt is a fundamental principle from the Foundations of the Religion.

And Takfīr is a Legislative Ruling which isn't known by the intellect, but it's rather known through the Legislative Proofs.

Secondly:

Aslu Dīn (the foundation of the religion) is:

Tawhīd and abandoning Shirk, and this is known by the Fitrah.

And Takfīr upon the Mushrikīn is a Lāzim (necessary implication) from the implications of Tawhīd, and this is known by the Legislative Proofs, so whoever has the proof reach him regarding the Kufr of the Jews, Christians and Mushrikīn, and he doesn't make Takfīr upon them, he would be considered a denier of the Qur'ān and Sunnah - So the Nullifier of not making Takfīr is due to "Takthīb" (denying the text).

Thirdly:

Kufr Bit-Tāghūt is a pillar from the pillars of Lā ilāha ilā Allāh, (Allāh) the Exalted said:

"So whoever disbelieves in Taghut and believes in Allah has grasped the most trustworthy handhold with no break in it. And Allah is Hearing and Knowing." [2:256].

So whoever doesn't disbelieve in the Tāghūt, then he hasn't believed in Allāh at all.

But as for making Takfīr upon the Tawāghīt and Mushrikīn, then it is from the Lawāzīm (implications) of Al-Kufr Bit-Tāghūt.

So the slave (of Allāh) doesn't achieve Ēmān until he disbelieves in the Tāghūt, and Kufr Bit-Tāghūt isn't actualised and perfected until he makes Takfīr upon the Tāghūt, hates it (inwardly), abandons it, avoids it and shows enmity to it (outwardly). [1]

So ponder over the difference between "Al-Kufr Bit-Tāghūt" and "Takfīr upon the Mushrikīn".

So if you understand this well, it would become clear to you that Aslu Dīn (the foundations of the Religion) is testifying that there's no deity worthy of worship except Allāh, and its meaning is to actualise & perfect Tawhīd and Al-Kufr Bit-Tāghūt, and what necessarily implies from Al-Kufr Bit-Tāghūt is to make Takfīr upon the people of the Tāghūt, its followers and helpers.

Allāh is the Most High, All-Knowing and All-Wise.

Dayyum, the Tabbos (i.e. Tableeghi's lol) were shocked when I told them that I only prayed a single Tarāweeh in Jamā'ah in Ramadān.

I told them I'm a really busy man who works hard, and they started giving me a lecture about the dangers of loving the Dunyā & the importance of learning the Dīn & going to the Mosque ☹

*Imām Ibn Al-Qayyim on following a School of thought (Madhhab) - These words deserve to be written in gold ink*

Imām Ibn Al-Qayyim (رحمه الله) said:

Does the common person (i.e. layman) have to follow one of the well known madhhabs or not? There are two sayings regarding this:

That's it is not obligatory upon him and this is what is correct and absolutely definite since there is nothing obligatory except what Allah, the Most High, and His Messenger have made obligatory. Neither Allah nor His Messenger have made obligatory to follow the school of thought (madhhab) of any person from the ummah and to follow him alone in the Religion. The best generations passed by without anyone doing this. Indeed the common person cannot have a madhhab, even if he thinks that he does, since the common person has no madhhab at all. This is because the madhhab will be either for the one who is able to research to a certain level and understand evidence and also know about the other madhhabs or for the one who has read a book concerning the details of that madhhab and knows the ruling and saying of his Imām.

As for the one who is unable to do any of that but merely says, 'I am a Shāfi'ī...or 'I am Hanbali...etc.', then he does not become that just by saying so, just as would be the case if he said 'I am religious scholar...' or 'I am a scholar of grammar...' then does he become that just by saying so. This is further clarified by the fact that the one who says 'I am Shāfi'ī... or a Mālikī...or a Hanafī...' claiming that he follows that Imaam and his way, would only be truthful if he were to follow his way in acquiring knowledge, understanding and extraction of proof. As for this one, with his ignorance and being far from the manners of the Imām and his knowledge and way, how can it be correct for him to ascribe himself to him except with mere claims and empty words having no meaning?! How can the common person have a madhhab? Even if it could be imagined it would still not be obligatory upon him or anyone else to ever have to follow the madhhab of a certain man from the ummah, to the extent that he accepts all his saying and rejects everyone else's sayings.

This is a filthy innovation introduced into the ummah.

No scholar of Islaam has ever said this and they are higher in station and better knowing about Allah than to order the people about this. Even further from the truth is the saying of those who say that he must stick to the madhhab of a single scholar and further still from the truth is the one who says, he must follow one of the four madhhabs! O Allah, how strange!

(Is it that) the madhhabs of the Companions of Allah's Messenger (صلى الله عليه وسلم) have died out and those of the Tābi'īn and those who came after them and those of the rest of the scholars of Islaam and all have invalidated except for the madhhabs of four men only from amongst all the rest of the scholars and Imāms?!

Rather, that which Allah, the Most High, and His Messenger made obligatory upon the Companions, the Tābi'īn and those who came after them is the same as that which He made obligatory upon those after them until the Day of Resurrection. That which is obligatory does not vary or change, even though how it is achieved may vary or the amount which is obligatory may vary due to varying ability or inability, time, place and condition, but that also follows what Allah and His Messenger have obligated.

Those who say that it is correct for the common person to have a madhhab claim, 'Because he believes that the madhhab which he ascribes himself to is the truth, therefore, he must be sincere to his belief.' If this saying of theirs were true then it would mean that it is forbidden to seek a ruling from anyone other than the people of his own madhhab and likewise that it is forbidden to take the madhhab of anyone equal or greater than than his own Imām and would mean other things which all show the falsity of the belief in the first place. Indeed it would mean that if he saw a text from Allāh's Messenger or a saying from the four Caliphs with other than his own Imām, he would have to abandon the text and the sayings of the Companions and give precedence to the saying of his own Imām.

Rather, he should seek from whom he wishes from the followers of the four madhhabs and others besides them. It is not obligatory upon him or upon the one who delivers verdicts (Muftī) to limit himself to one of the four Imāms. Upon this is the consensus of the ummah, just as it is not obligatory upon the scholar to restrict himself to the hadeeths reported by the people of his land or any land in particular, rather, if any hadeeth is authentic it is obligatory to act upon it, [1] whether it is reported of the people of the Hijāz, 'Irāq, Shām, Egypt or Yemen."

[1] Abū Hanīfah (رحمه الله) said, "When I say something contradicting the Book of Allah, the Exalted, or what is narrated from the Messenger, then ignore my saying," al-Fulānī in Ēqāz al-Himam (p.50), tracing it to Imām Muhammad and then saying, "This does not apply to the mujtahid, for he is not bound to their view anyway, but it applies to blind-following."

Imām Mālik (رحمه الله) said, "Truly I am only a mortal. I make mistakes (sometimes) and I am correct (sometimes). Therefore, look into my opinions, all that agrees with the Book and the Sunnah, accept it. And all that does not agree with the Book and the Sunnah, ignore it," Ibn 'Abdul-Barr in Jaami' Bayaanal-Ilm (2/32).

Imām al-Shāfi'ī (رحمه الله) said, "The sunnahs of the Messenger of Allah reach, as well as escape from, everyone of us. So whenever I voice my opinion or formulate a principle, where something contrary to my view exists on the authority of the Messenger of Allah, then the correct view is what the Messenger of Allah has said- and it is my view," related by al-Hākim with a continuous chain of narration to al-Shāfi'ī, as in Tārikh Dimashq of Ibn 'Asākir (15/1/3), I'lām al-Muwaqqi'een (2/363-364).

And he also said "The Muslim are unanimously agree that if a sunnah of the Messenger of Allah is made clear to someone, it is not permitted for him to leave it for the saying on anyone else." Ibn al-Qayyim (2/361) and Fulānī (p.68).

Imām Ahmad (رحمه الله) said, "The opinion of Awzā'ī, the opinion of Mālik, the opinion of Abū Hanīfah - all of it is opinion, and it is all equal in my eyes. However, the proof is in the narrations (from the Prophet and his Companions)," Ibn 'Abul-Barr in Jāmi' Bayān al-'ilm (2/149).

Side Note: There must be a balance, this doesn't mean any layman ignores what the Scholars say and returns back to the Qur'ān and Sunnah himself without knowledge, that's pure ignorance.

And at the same time, warning against obligating a person to adhere to a specific Madhab or Scholar (Studying a Madhab is encouraged, but Ta'assub is condemned), whoever it may be.

There are details to these points which have been mentioned by the 'Ulamā' and the Preferred Methodology to study Fiqh, so many Scholars say the best way to teach Fiqh is to go through each issue with proof (according to the level of the class, quoting the Sahābah & Tābi'een etc) with full respect to the opinions of the Imāms, and others start teach Fiqh according to 1 Madhab without getting deep into proof except at a later stage, but Shaykh 'Abdul 'Aziz al-Tarēfē says that the latter method can cause troubles such as zealously to the Madhab over the Evidences, and when the statements of the Sahābah are told to him, he wouldn't take it with high consideration.

In any case, the discussion concerning this is long, may Allāh grant us Fiqh in the religion, and Allāh knows best.

*A very beneficial piece about the 2 opinions in Tahākum to the Tāghūt by Shaykh Khālid al-Ghāmīdī (may Allāh guide him)*. [1]

Issue 32: The ruling on the Mudtar (someone in serious need) in committing Kufr, such as Tahākum to the judgement of the Tāghūt.

Whoever cannot find except the judgement of the Tāghūt, such as whoever is residing in countries that don't rule except by man-made laws, and he is not able to find a judge that strictly rules by the Shari'ah to adhere too, and he isn't able to retrieve his right or deter harm from himself or repel evil directed at him, except through the way of these courts, so he makes Tahākum to it while he isn't pleased with it, so what is the ruling upon him?

The Scholars have differed over this issue into two opinions:

The First Opinion: Those who have stated that such an act is prohibited, because Tahākum to the Tāghūti courts is Kufr in and of itself, and nothing permits committing Kufr except Ikrāh (coercion) as the Āyah has stated:

"Except for one who is forced [to renounce his religion - أَكْرَهَ] while his heart is secure in Ēmān." [16:106]

And this opinion is what's correct, for indeed the concession (mentioned in the Āyah) has specified the coerced person, not the Mudtar (the one in serious need), and the Darūrāt (Necessities) only allow one to commit Harām which is beneath Kufr (disbelief), for Kufr isn't permitted by anything other than Ikrāh (coercion).

The Second Opinion: That this (act of) Tahākum is considered permissible, not prohibited.

And their proof: Is that whoever's situation is like this, then he is Mudtar (one in serious need) and the Mudtar (one in serious need) who has reached an Affirmed Darūrah (real necessity) takes the ruling of Ikrāh (coercion), for verily the Darūrāt (Necessities) make lawful the Harām matters, and it's assessed according to the seriousness of the matter.

So if the Darūrah (necessity) reached the level of the Ikrāh (coercion) that's legitimately acceptable according to the Shari'ah, then it takes its ruling (of allowing Shirk & Kufr), but if it didn't reach an Affirmed Darūrah (real necessity), then making Tahākum becomes prohibited in his case, for indeed Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) has permitted for the Mudtar (one in serious need) what He hasn't permitted for other than him:

"Except that to which you are (اضْطُرُّرْتُمْ) compelled." [6:119].

Just as the Manāt (basis) of the Kufr (disbelief) in Tahākum are matters which have been related in the texts, which is wishing to make Tahākum (seek judgement from the Tāghūt), and the Mudtar (one in serious need) doesn't wish to make Tahākum.

And his Kufr (i.e. the one making Tahākum to the Tāghūt) relates to opposing the judgement of Allāh if he is called to it, and this person (in this specific situation) couldn't find anyone to seek judgement by the ruling of Allāh, in order to say that he turned away and opposed it.

So having opposition (to the judgement of Allāh) cannot be pictured (in such a situation) except with the presence of the judgement of Allāh (which is absent here), and likewise with his Tahākum to the Tāghūt, he disbelieves in it, he hasn't opened his chest to it (meaning: he isn't pleased with it), so he would take the ruling of the coerced person who has been given a concession (to make Tahākum).

Just as they used the Hadīth of al-Hajjāj Ibn 'Alāt al-Sulamī recorded in (Musnad) Ahmad as Proof: Regarding the permission he got from the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) to go to Quraysh (to reside in Makkah for a term where he will be kind & sweet talk them, and told the Rasūl that he may have to say ill words about the Prophet), and that was to take back his rights and wealth from them (since he was a very rich merchant), and the Messenger (صلى الله عليه وسلم) permitted him to go, so they (i.e. the Scholars who adopt this opinion) said that taking back his rights and retrieving his wealth (if it was a real necessity) falls under Ikrāh (coercion) in the concession of committing Kufr, just as it was permitted for 'Ammār (to utter Kufr under Ikrāh).

And this can be responded too by saying: That this was exclusive to the Messenger (صلى الله عليه وسلم), for indeed he is the one who gave him permission, and he (i.e. Al-Hajjāj Ibn 'Alāt) sought permission (from the messenger) before doing that, which is indicative of the fact that the default nature of this act is forbidden.

Moreover, there's nothing in the statement of al-Hajjāj which contains abuse or defaming (of the Prophet) and the performance of Shirk, but rather it was false news of the defeat of the Messenger (صلى الله عليه وسلم) and unclear indirect speech and using puns (i.e. a joke exploiting the different possible meanings of a word).

Then those who adopted the Second Opinion differed: What is more preferred for the individuals during a Darūrah (Necessity), to make Tahākum to the man-made laws or to abandon making Tahākum with the loss of their rights and loss of their wealth to the Kuffār?

They differed over that upon two views, and the majority of them obligated putting forth the Maslaha (interest) of Tawhīd & abandoning Tahākum (seeking judgement) from the Tawāghūt, and professing disbelief in it, and openly displaying that, and magnifying the Mafsadah (harm) of falling into Shirk compared to other than it (from the Harām acts).

And the basis behind the difference of opinion surrounding the core of this issue is the essence & reality of "Al-Darūrah":

Does Idtirār (serious necessity) take the same ruling as Ikrāh, and is Qiyās (analogy) used for it or not? And what is the Criterion for Ikrāh (coercion) that's legitimately acceptable according to the Shari'ah.

So some of them restricted it (i.e. Ikrāh) to torture, and the loss of one's life, or (the loss) of some of his body parts, and him being injured such as by being beaten, and some of them included prison and the loss of wealth (into Ikrāh).

Important Remark: With our statement on the prohibition of the Mudtar (one in serious need) in making Tahākum (to the Tāghūt), there are those who have stated that he disbelieves in all cases, and we do not say that, rather we say that the one who judges the Mudtar (one in serious need) seeking judgement (from the Tāghūt) with Kufr without excusing him by Ta'wīl (misinterpretation) is mistaken, just as the person who judges the one who makes Takfīr upon him as being upon the Madhab of the Khawārij is mistaken.

Disastrous Calamity: Some have permitted delegating a lawyer to defend the Muslims Prisoners who are with the Kuffār, by having them make Tahākum to the Tāghūtī courts, and this statement is Bātil (false), because Maslaha doesn't permit committing Kufr.

[1] Translator's Note: Be careful of Sh. Khālid Al-Ghāmīdī (may Allāh guide him), since his works contain a lot of contradictions and Ghuluw in Takfīr, despite the fact that he doesn't make Takfīr upon the 'Ādhir (excuser) of the Mushrikīn that claim Islām before establishing the Hujjah like Sh. Ahmad al-Hāzimī (so Hāzimīs make Takfīr upon him), but he makes Clear "Individual" Takfīr upon anyone that claims there's a difference of opinion on the Shafā'ah issue (discussed previously), which includes making Takfīr upon Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad & Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān (despite them both viewing it as Major Shirk).

Khālid al-Ghāmīdī is well know for making Takfīr upon Imām al-Nawawī, Imām Ibn Hajr al-'Asqalānī, Imām al-Qurtubī & everyone who misinterpreted the 'Uluw of Allāh above His 'Arsh, without taking into consideration the time & place (where the Ashā'irah had authority over the population & ruled by force), and without understanding the realities of "Clear" and "Unclear" matters (which change & are of different levels as the 'Ulamā' have stated), which is indicative of him applying the quotes of the Salaf upon different times & realities, ignoring the immensely strong misconceptions & misinterpretations in the "Asmā' wal-Sifāt" spread by the Mutakalimeen, which results in making Takfīr upon the Imāms of the Ummah.

*A very beneficial piece about the 2 opinions in Tahākum to the Tāghūt by Shaykh Khālid al-Ghāmīdī (may Allāh guide him)*. [1]

Issue 32: The ruling on the Mudtar (someone in serious need) in committing Kufr, such as Tahākum to the judgement of the Tāghūt.

Whoever cannot find except the judgement of the Tāghūt, such as whoever is residing in countries that don't rule except by man-made laws, and he is not able to find a judge that strictly rules by the Shari'ah to adhere too, and he isn't able to retrieve his right or deter harm from himself or repel evil directed at him, except through the way of these courts, so he makes Tahākum to it while he isn't pleased with it, so what is the ruling upon him?

The Scholars have differed over this issue into two opinions:

The First Opinion: Those who have stated that such an act is prohibited, because Tahākum to the Tāghūtī courts is Kufr in and of itself, and nothing permits committing Kufr except Ikrāh (coercion) as the Āyah has stated:

"Except for one who is forced [to renounce his religion - أَكْرَهَ] while his heart is secure in Ēmān." [16:106]

And this opinion is what's correct, for indeed the concession (mentioned in the Āyah) has specified the coerced person, not the Mudtar (the one in serious need), and the Darūrāt (Necessities) only allow one to commit Harām which is beneath Kufr (disbelief), for Kufr isn't permitted by anything other than Ikrāh (coercion).

The Second Opinion: That this (act of) Tahākum is considered permissible, not prohibited.

And their proof: Is that whoever's situation is like this, then he is Mudtar (one in serious need) and the Mudtar (one in serious need) who has reached an Affirmed Darūrah (real necessity) takes the ruling of Ikrāh (coercion), for verily the Darūrāt (Necessities) make lawful the Harām matters, and it's assessed according to the seriousness of the matter.

So if the Darūrah (necessity) reached the level of the Ikrāh (coercion) that's legitimately acceptable according to the Shari'ah, then it takes its ruling (of allowing Shirk & Kufr), but if it didn't reach an Affirmed Darūrah (real necessity), then making Tahākum becomes prohibited in his case, for indeed Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) has permitted for the Mudtar (one in serious need) what He hasn't permitted for other than him:

"Except that to which you are (اضْطُرُّرْتُمْ) compelled." [6:119].

Just as the Manāt (basis) of the Kufr (disbelief) in Tahākum are matters which have been related in the texts, which is wishing to make Tahākum (seek judgement from the Tāghūt), and the Mudtar (one in serious need) doesn't wish to make Tahākum.

And his Kufr (i.e. the one making Tahākum to the Tāghūt) relates to opposing the judgement of Allāh if he is called to it, and this person (in this specific situation) couldn't find anyone to seek judgement by the ruling of Allāh, in order to say that he turned away and opposed it.

So having opposition (to the judgement of Allāh) cannot be pictured (in such a situation) except with the presence of the judgement of Allāh (which is absent here), and likewise with his Tahākum to the Tāghūt, he disbelieves in it, he hasn't opened his chest to it (meaning: he isn't pleased with it), so he would take the ruling of the coerced person who has been given a concession (to make Tahākum).

Just as they used the Hadīth of al-Hajjāj Ibn 'Alāt al-Sulamī recorded in (Musnad) Ahmad as Proof: Regarding the permission he got from the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) to go to Quraysh (to reside in Makkah for a term where he will be kind & sweet talk them, and told the Rasūl that he may have to say ill words about the Prophet), and that was to take back his rights and wealth from them (since he was a very rich merchant), and the Messenger (صلى الله عليه وسلم) permitted him to go, so they (i.e. the Scholars who adopt this opinion) said that taking back his rights and retrieving his wealth (if it was a real necessity) falls under Ikrāh (coercion) in the concession of committing Kufr, just as it was permitted for 'Ammār (to utter Kufr under Ikrāh).

And this can be responded too by saying: That this was exclusive to the Messenger (صلى الله عليه وسلم), for indeed he is the one who gave him permission, and he (i.e. Al-Hajjāj Ibn 'Alāt) sought permission (from the messenger) before doing that, which is indicative of the fact that the default nature of this act is forbidden.

Moreover, there's nothing in the statement of al-Hajjāj which contains abuse or defaming (of the Prophet) and the performance of Shirk, but rather it was false news of the defeat of the Messenger (صلى الله عليه وسلم) and unclear indirect speech and using puns (i.e. a joke exploiting the different possible meanings of a word).

Then those who adopted the Second Opinion differed: What is more preferred for the individuals during a Darūrah (Necessity), to make Tahākum to the man-made laws or to abandon making Tahākum with the loss of their rights and loss of their wealth to the Kuffār?

They differed over that upon two views, and the majority of them obligated putting forth the Maslahah (interest) of Tawhīd & abandoning Tahākum (seeking judgement) from the Tawāghūt, and professing disbelief in it, and openly displaying that, and magnifying the Mafsadah (harm) of falling into Shirk compared to other than it (from the Harām acts).

Even my grandfather said it...

He told me, "For the past 70 years attending Khutbah, the Mashāyikh have made us like sheep, keeping us deep asleep on the important matters of our religion."

Ever since the Arab Spring began in Tūnis and spread into Masr & Sūriyyah, he would listen to the news everyday, making du'ā against those Tawāghīt, حسني & بن علي & بشار...

He was explaining to me how he served in the Syrian Army for 3 years, and the hard work he would do in the old days, and interesting stories in North Africa, but Alhamdulillah he realised that the Scholars didn't do their job in clarifying the Truth, especially when it comes to remaining silent on the Kufr of the Rāfidah & Armies of the Tawāghīt, which he now clearly makes Takfir upon بفضل الله

Now to solve any problem, we must return back to the core-issue, and you will find the poisonous ideology of Irjā' as being the major factor behind almost every calamity in the Ummah.

And to really show you how messed up the priorities of the Scholars of our time are, you will find thousands of books and lectures warning against the Khawārij Sect, even when some of them are teaching the Fiqh of Salāh, Siyām, Zakāt, Hajj, they constantly warn against Ghulu (which has nothing to do with the topic), and Irjā' is completely forgotten in our time or hardly addressed.

But that's okay, we will continue teaching the Ummah their 'Aqidah despite our limited knowledge, Imām Ahmad (رحمه الله) said: "Get closer to Allāh by hating the people of Irjā' (i.e. the Murji'ah)".

Ya Allāh, only if 'Umar Ibn al-Khattāb (رضي الله عنه) was alive in our time, I wonder how many he would hit with his Durra, but we don't have real men in our time who have Gheerah for their Dīn, except those whom Allāh has mercy upon...

May Allāh bless the Mujāhideen during these difficult times of purifying the ranks before victory & protect those who bravely speak the truth.

#Final_Reminder Now in this day and age, you don't ask where's the Shaykh, you ask who's NOT the Shaykh!

~ Shaykh Ahmad Jibrīl (حفظه الله).

Note: I have never cried so much for the Shaykh like last month, by an Amānah I have been entrusted with, related by a close student who knows the Shaykh's family really well, all I can say is never ever forget about the Shaykh in your du'ā - It's so sad to live in a time where the Liars & Deviants are believed & have power, and the Truthful are Blamed & Oppressed. Soon a day will come when we will all stand in front of our Lord, in which the secrets are exposed & we will truly see who are the blamed ones.

#Must_Read !! A shocking and timely essay about the many traits in Manhaj of your local organisations written by Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr (حفظه الله) around "15 years ago" (Allāhu Akbar - look how far ahead our Scholars are) that expounds upon the new movement that seeks to preach Maslaha & Irjā', distort the tenets of the religion, coexist with the west and abandon Jihād - all from within the ranks of the Ahl al-Sunnah wal-Jamā'ah !!

*The Fundamentals of the New Awakening*

In the Name of Allāh, the Most Beneficent, the Most Merciful

Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr (حفظه الله) said:

“ALL PRAISE IS FOR ALLAH the Lord of the worlds, and may the prayers and peace be upon the most noble of the Prophets and Messengers; our Prophet Muhammad, and upon his family and companions...As for what follows:

Indeed the mother (main) Sahwah in these latter times has started to live in a difficult period. It is a must for us to realize that these events that have taken the mother Sahwah by storm and that threaten to split it are not individual acts, and they are not from the realm of slips or a stumbling of the horseman (rare mistakes from one not accustomed or known to err). Rather, indeed it is a viewpoint that carries in its course-fundamentals and focal points that come to us from time to time. So after the Sahwah existed firmly and strongly, there has now split from it two view points, and there is no movement or power except by Allah:

The 'Asrāniyūn (modernists): this is the first group that split and they are secularist with Islamic garb. I have previously written an essay that explains their fundamentals and levels.

The defeatist movement: this movement that has split off from the mother Sahwah is still in its infancy. From time to time it comes up with fundamentals that are "appropriate to the age and current situation", thereafter it is clothed with the garment of Ahl us-Sunnah wal-Jamā'ah and the garb of pardoned and allowed Ijtihāds. The age of this movement is no older than approximately two years.

We shall begin with the second group that has split off from the mother Sahwah and it is what is called: the new Sahwah, or: the second Sahwah, or: the Sahwah of the Wāqi' (current affairs), or: the correction of the Sahwah, or: the moderate Sahwah, or: the movement for a renewed Islamic address, or what they have recently named themselves: the moderate middle course movement. All of these names are synonymous with this movement. They have various proposals and methods that are new. From them:

The first fundamental in the subject of Ēmān and Kufr. In the area of Imān they lean towards Irjā' and in the area of Takfîr they lean towards Tajahhum (the way of the Jahmiyyah).

It is for this reason that they do not declare the one who insults (be it Allah, His Messenger [Sallallahu 'alayhi was sallam], or His Dîn) until he believes, nor the one who rules by the man made laws until he believes, nor the one who allied with the Kuffâr until he believes, nor the one who makes an alliance with the Kuffar until he believes. All of these terms go back to one fundamental and that is Ijrâ'. And from their fundamentals in the area of Takfîr:

a. Unrestricted and general warning from Takfîr without elucidation and detail.

b. A complete generalization of the difference between the speaker and what was spoken, and the doer and what was done- always and in every issue, whether it was in the area of major Shirk or in the open and apparent matters from the one whom the proof was established against-even though the causes (ofTakfîr) were gathered and the preventative factors were been removed. For this reason, there are no personalities that they perform Takfîr of save the ones mentioned in the Qur'ân and the Sunnah (i.e. mentioned explicitly in the divine texts and not individuals of out times who have fallen into Kufr).

c. Abandonment of knowledge and understanding the area of Takfîr while warning (others) from learning it and gaining understanding of it-and not teaching it or writing about it. This, as well as warning from the books of the Imâms of the Najdî Da'wah and considering the study of the fundamentals of Tawhîd and repeating the book Kitâb at-Tawhîd by Shaykh Muhammad Ibn Abdil Wahhâb to be without need- while also abandoning the study of the nullifiers of Islam and considering that to be a Fitnah and prodger toTakfîr.

d. A lack of attention to the issues of al-Walâ' wal-Barâ', and hatred and enmity and a lack of concern with disbelief in the Tâghûts-and they repeat saying that we are not performing worship by doing that and that Allah will not ask about that and there is no benefit in that knowledge.

e. Unrestricted statements concerning the excuse due to ignorance and expansiveness in it even in the ignorance of those who reject and rebel and are shorthanded (in their affair even though knowledge was widely available to them). The affair has reached a point with some of them to where they give excuse to the ignorant ones of the Jews and Christians.

f. The call to mutual pardoning and world peace and constantly repeat that.

g. Warning from Takfîr of the Tâghûts who replaced (the Sharî'ah with man made laws) and throwing out those who perform Takfîr of them and declaring enmity towards them based on this fundamental.

h. Making certain particular personalities from the politically active ones the scale and litmus-so whoever performs Takfîr on them-even if they carried out that which is cause for evident Kufr and the preventing factors are raised-then he is a Harûrî Takfîrî and person of Fitnah and not from Ahl us-Sunnah.

And in the area of Jihad, it (the new Sahwah) it is a group that cancels armed Jihad and it is Mukhdhilah(abandons those performing it) and Murjifah- those who hold back. They place stages of inability in front of the armed Jihad that in reality conclude with a cancellation of Jihad. They replace it with the Jihad of the word or the web- "the internet", or the Jihad of Tarbiyah (cultivation) or the Jihad of side issues by which they have corrupted the people and the youth of the Sahwah. Some of them are of the view that there is no offensive Jihad.

They attack the Mujâhidûn and accuse them of hastiness and extremism and not possessing an understanding of the Wâqî' (current affairs) and that they are Takfîriyûn, Khawârij and reactionaries only. They accuse them of having brought tribulations to the Ummah and not taking Shûrawith the Ulamâ'-and (claimed) that they do not look after the harms and benefits and that they have made waste to the gains made by the Da'wah and dragged the Ummah into a conflict without preparation and being on equal terms-as well as other things of slander and tremendous oppression that they have oppressed their brothers with.

And from their misconceptions in this area is that the Ummah is not adequately prepared for Jihad and that it is not permissible to drag the Ummah into a battle that it is not ready for.

And they make preparation (takâfu') as a condition of Jihad and one that is preceded by cultivation (tarbiyah). They accuse the Mujâhidûn of having wasted the gains of the Sahwah, such as the closing down of the relief groups in the west and the Islamic centers therein.

As well as (accusing them- theMujâhidûn) of a paltry amount of knowledge based classes and authoring (of written works), and the domination of the west over the Internet and so on and so fourth. And they expel the Jihadiyûn from their circles, homes, and groups and perhaps even declare them to be sinners and they negate from them any reward and recompense and acceptance from Allah and they hold that their dead are not Shuhadâ'.

In the area of Fiqh they have opened up the door to concession and invented what is called-falsely and in slander- the Fiqh of making matters easy. It is choosing what agrees with the times and that which contains ease upon the people in what they claim to be from the matters in which the people of knowledge have differed over. This is despite the knowledge that the basis for the likes of this is that whatever is differed over by the people of knowledge then what is correct (in it) is to be declared based on what the textual evidences (the Qur'an and the Sunnah and consensus) indicates and proves.

These people have reversed this whereby they declare matters to be the most correct on the basis of its ease upon the people. And by this false fundamental, they have issued legal verdicts in matters such as Hajj, buying, clothing, issues, what is related to matters pertaining to women, the Hijâb, the beard, prayer in congregation performed in the house, traveling without a Mahram, and extreme leniency in listening to singing and music with the evidence that there is a difference between hearing and actual listening, and traveling for the sake of enjoyment of women with a contract that appears to be permissible where in reality it is a sly way out for the sake of enjoyment only-therefore its reality is that is a marriage of Mut'ah without the intention of remaining with her or having children...and so on and so forth. So, they have become people of desires and concessions in the area of Fiqh.

In the area of the stance with regard to the people of innovation and desires theirs is the practice of weighing and Muwâzanât (counter balancing) between the good and bad.

In the area of the stance with regard to the secularists and politicians theirs is the practice of dialogue and lowering the bridges and abandonment of waging Jihad (effort) against them and commanding and prohibiting them (Ar. Ihtisâb) and (their practice) is abandoning the fundamentals of the Salaf with regard to them.

Focus from the political angle upon particular issues that no one disagrees on in order to earn the pleasure of everyone, while (at the same time) neglecting the issues of importance such as: Tawhîd, the basis of al-Walâ' and al-Barâ', the issues of disbelief in the Tâghût and issues related to the Jihâd and the Mujâhidûn and forbidding (the wrong) and hoping for reward in that.

Employing the style of the parliaments or alliance with the secularist or politicians, or the (people of) cultivation or intellectual pursuits and perceiving and taking that as a path for establishing the Islamic state.

Glorifying the aspect of the benefits (Islamic analysis of the weighing between the harms and benefits before the initiation of a particular action) and Shar'iyah politics-in their minds- even if it went against the legislation. Indeed most of their ways of giving evidence in support of their positions is by way of the benefits.

It is for this reason that they criticized the destruction of the Buddha statues done by the Islamic Emirate of Afghanistan- with the evidence that the benefits necessitates delaying that and not hastening to destroy them.

Then after that, they go on to invent supposed harms-even with the knowledge that the greatest and mightiest of benefits is the establishment of Tawhid and destruction of Shirk. They oppose the actions of the Mujâhidûn in the name of benefit and they compromise in matters of Aqîdah and fundamentals in the name of benefit.

They utilize the political machinations in the name of benefit and Shar'iyah politics. They have particular words that go against the announced words in the name of benefit and Shar'iyah politics. They have abandoned giving clarification of the truth and refuting the mistake in the name of the benefit of gathering-as they claim- and they have abandoned taking back mistakes that they have secretly admitted to having been mistaken in all from the area of benefit and unity-even though the deception by it (the mistake) remains and continues to spread and the people of falsehood continue to utilize it.

Then they invented the issue of coexistence with the Americans in the manner of a shared earth and agreed upon fundamental principles along with removal of violence and terrorism coupled with cooperation upon that. They have invented this fundamental in a time in which the calls for dialogue and coexistence with the west- in particular with the Americans has increased-seeking to make the current events easy. This is in addition to the letter sent to some of the politicians for the sake of pleasing them. And they have promised to distribute and spread this fundamental as well as to write it and it is available.

When the refutations on the issue of coexistence appeared, they turned and watered down (matters) in order to cancel the area of refutations, considering it to be something that divides the Jamâ'ah and splits the ranks and that it is from the cause of separation and waste. They did that, whilst forgetting the path of the Salaf in refutations that clarify the truth and remove the falsehood-even though in the past they themselves refuted many famous legal verdicts and scholars and never did they look at the issue of refutations as being one that divides the Jamâ'ah and splits the ranks!

Based on this O beloved reader, I shall mention to you some samples of the refutations of the Salaf that was with the sole intent of clarifying the truth and rebutting the falsehood:

- Kitâb as-Siyar of al-Awzâ'î and it is a refutation against the Siyar of Abû Hanîfah, as well as the Kitâb ar-Radd ala' Siyar al-Awzâ'î by Abû Yûsuf and the book, Kitâb ar-Radd ala' Muhammad ibn al-Hasan ash-Shâfi'î

- The books entitled: ar-Radd ala' al-Jahmiyyah: Imam Ahmad, ad-Dârimî, Abû Dâwûd in his Sunan, Ibn Mâjah in his Sunan, al-Radd ala' Bishr al-Marîsî of ad-Darimî

- al-Musannaf by Ibn Abî Shaybah in the chapter in refutation against Abû Hanîfah [Rahimahullah], and the chapter in as-Sunnah by Abdullah ibn Ahmad (ibn Hambal) which contains the title: ar-Radd ala' Abî Hanîfa

- The letter of as-Sajazî to the people of Zabîd in refutation upon the one who denied the letter and the voice (as part of Allah's speech)

· The essay of Ibn al-Qudāmah al-Maqdisī in refutation against Ibn Aqīl al-Hanbalī

· The refutations of al-Bayhaqī against those who refuted ash-Shāfiʿī such as the book: Bayān Khataʾ man Akhtaʾ alaʾ ash-Shafiʿī and the book: al-Intiqād alaʾ ash-Shāfiʿī

· The refutations of Abū Yaʿlā such as the book: Kitāb ar-Radd alaʾ ibn al-Libān ash-Shāfiʿī and the book: ar-Radd alaʾ al-Karramiyyah and the book: ar-Radd alaʾ as-Sālimiyyah

· The refutations of Ibn Taymiyah such as: ar-Radd alaʾ al-Akhnaʿī, and the book: ar-Radd alaʾ al-Bakrī, Qāʿidah fi ar-Radd alaʾ al-Ghazalī fit-Tawwakul

· The book as-Sārim al-Munkī fil-Radd alaʾ as-Subkī of Muhammad ibn Ahmad ibn Abdil Hadī

· The books of Ibn al-Qayyim in refutations

· The book: ar-Radd al-Wāfir alaʾ man Zaʾama biʾanna man samma Ibn Taymiyah Shaykh al Islam Kāfir by Ibn Nasiridīn al-Dimashqī

· The refutations of Shaykh Muhammad ibn Abdil Wahhab such as: Kitāb al-Tawhīd al-Mustafid in refutation of his brother Sulaymān, and an essay in refutation against the Rāfidah

· The refutations of Abdul Latīf ibn Abdir Rahmān such as: Minhaj at-Taʾsīs fi kashf Shubuhāt Dāwūd ibn Jurjīs and the book: al-Ithāf fi Radd alaʾ as-Sahhāf and the book: Dalāʾil ar-Rusūkh fi Radd alaʾ al-Manfukh, and the book al-Barahīn al-Islamiyyah fi Radd ash-Shibah al-Fārisiyyah

· The book Intisār li Hizbillah al-Muwahhidīn wal Radd alaʾ al-Mujādīl anil Mushrikīn by Abū Butain

· The book Tanbih an-Nabih wal Ghabī fil Radd alaʾ al-Madārisi was-Sindi wal-Halabi by Ahmad ibn Isaʾ

· The refutations of Ibn Sahman such as: al-Asinnatul-Hidad fil Radd alaʾ al-Alawi Haddad and as-Sawaʿiq al-Mursalah ash-Shihabiyyah ala ash-Shibhil Dahiyah ash-Shamiyyah and Taʿyid Madhʿhab as-Salaf wa Kashf Shubuhāt man Had wanharaf wa Duʿiya bil Yamani ash-Sharaf and al-Bayan al-Mubd li Shanaʿitil Qawl al-Majdi

· The book: Ghayatul Amani fil Radd alaʾ an-Nabahani by Mahmud al-Alusi.

· The book: Naqd al-Mabani fi Fatwa al-Yamani and Tahqiq al-Maram fima Yataʾalq bil-Maqam by Shaykh Sulayman ibn Hamdan

· Abdul Rahman al-Muallami in his book: at-Tankil bi ma fi Tanib al-Kawthari min al-Abatil

· Shaykh Abdullah Ibn Humaid in his book: ar-Radd alaʾ ibn Mahmud

· The books of Shaykh Hamūd at-Tuwaijiri and from them: ar-Radd al-Qawi alaʾ ar-Rafiʿi wal-Majhul wal ibn Alawi wa bayan Akhtaʾihim fil Mawlid an-Nabawi, as-Siraj al-Wahhaj fil-Radd alaʾ ash-Shibli fil Israʾ wal-Miʿraj, and his book in refutation of the astronomers entitled: as-Sawaʿiq ash-Shadidah alaʾ Atbaʾ al-Hayʾatil Jadidah

The second group that has split off from the mother Sahwah:

These are the extremists, and they are called the modernist. The propositions of this group is like that of the secularist with matters related to women, economy, politics, money and wealth, art and acting. They are Murjiʿah in the area of Imān and Jahmiyyah in the area of Takfīr-along with Riqqah (lit; thinness, skinniness, frailty) in the Din and they are secularist when it comes to politics and rulership.

Note: there are some among the people of the Sahwah who agree with the defeatist movement in one or two fundamentals, in this case, he is not from them, nor is he to be considered in their ranks. With that however, it is feared that he will deviate towards their path if he does not catch himself. Concerning this one, it is to be said: he has erred in this (matter) only, and (in the rest) he remains on what he was upon and Allah knows best.

Besides the two previous groups, the mother Sahwah- and to Allah belongs all praise- has remained upon the fundamentals of Ahl us-Sunnah in Imān, Tawhīd, Takfīr, Jihad, politics, its stance towards the Kuffar and the secularists and misguided and innovators as well as in refusing to coexist (with the Kuffar) and the proposals of the secularists and other matters. The are the majority of the Sahwah today-and to Allah belongs all praise-and none have deviated from it save that small group who have brought about separating and division. We ask Allah guide us and them and to return them to the truth and to turn the Muslims away from division and separation and hatred and enmity and opposition to the Shariʿah.

And may Allah send the Salah and Salams upon our Prophet and his companions.”

#Must_Read !! A shocking and timely essay about the many traits in Manhaj of your local organisations written by Shaykh al-ʿAllāmah ʿAlī al-Khudayr (حفظه الله) around "15 years ago" (Allāhu Akbar - look how far ahead our Scholars are) that expounds upon the new movement that seeks to preach Maslahah & Ijrā', distort the tenets of the religion, coexist with the west and abandon Jihād - all from within the ranks of the Ahl al-Sunnah wal-Jamā'ah !!

*The Fundamentals of the New Awakening*

In the Name of Allāh, the Most Beneficent, the Most Merciful

Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr (حفظه الله) said:

“ALL PRAISE IS FOR ALLAH the Lord of the worlds, and may the prayers and peace be upon the most noble of the Prophets and Messengers; our Prophet Muhammad, and upon his family and companions....As for what follows:

Indeed the mother (main) Sahwah in these latter times has started to live in a difficult period. It is a must for us to realize that these events that have taken the mother Sahwah by storm and that threaten to split it are not individual acts, and they are not from the realm of slips or a stumbling of the horseman (rare mistakes from one not accustomed or known to err). Rather, indeed it is a viewpoint that carries in its course-fundamentals and focal points that come to us from time to time. So after the Sahwah existed firmly and strongly, there has now split from it two view points, and there is no movement or power except by Allah:

The 'Asrāniyūn (modernists): this is the first group that split and they are secularist with Islamic garb. I have previously written an essay that explains their fundamentals and levels.

The defeatist movement: this movement that has split off from the mother Sahwah is still in its infancy. From time to time it comes up with fundamentals that are "appropriate to the age and current situation", thereafter it is clothed with the garment of Ahl us-Sunnah wal-Jamā'ah and the garb of pardoned and allowed Ijtihāds. The age of this movement is no older than approximately two years.

We shall begin with the second group that has split off from the mother Sahwah and it is what is called: the new Sahwah, or: the second Sahwah, or: the Sahwah of the Wāqi' (current affairs), or: the correction of the Sahwah, or: the moderate Sahwah, or: the movement for a renewed Islamic address, or what they have recently named themselves: the moderate middle course movement. All of these names are synonymous with this movement. They have various proposals and methods that are new. From them:

The first fundamental in the subject of Ēmān and Kufr. In the area of Imān they lean towards Ijrā' and in the area of Takfīr they lean towards Tajahhum (the way of the Jahmiyyah).

It is for this reason that they do not declare the one who insults (be it Allah, His Messenger [Sallallahu 'alayhi was sallam], or His Dīn) until he believes, nor the one who rules by the man made laws until he believes, nor the one who allied with the Kuffār until he believes, nor the one who makes an alliance with the Kuffar until he believes. All of these terms go back to one fundamental and that is Ijrā'. And from their fundamentals in the area of Takfīr:

a. Unrestricted and general warning from Takfīr without elucidation and detail.

b. A complete generalization of the difference between the speaker and what was spoken, and the doer and what was done- always and in every issue, whether it was in the area of major Shirk or in the open and apparent matters from the one whom the proof was established against-even though the causes (ofTakfīr) were gathered and the preventative factors were been removed. For this reason, there are no personalities that they perform Takfīr of save the ones mentioned in the Qur'ān and the Sunnah (i.e. mentioned explicitly in the divine texts and not individuals of out times who have fallen into Kufr).

c. Abandonment of knowledge and understanding the area of Takfīr while warning (others) from learning it and gaining understanding of it-and not teaching it or writing about it. This, as well as warning from the books of the Imāms of the Najdī Da'wah and considering the study of the fundamentals of Tawhīd and repeating the book Kitāb at-Tawhīd by Shaykh Muhammad Ibn Abdil Wahhāb to be without need- while also abandoning the study of the nullifiers of Islam and considering that to be a Fitnah and prodder toTakfīr.

d. A lack of attention to the issues of al-Walā' wal-Barā', and hatred and enmity and a lack of concern with disbelief in the Tāghūt-and they repeat saying that we are not performing worship by doing that and that Allah will not ask about that and there is no benefit in that knowledge.

e. Unrestricted statements concerning the excuse due to ignorance and expansiveness in it even in the ignorance of those who reject and rebel and are shorthanded (in their affair even though knowledge was widely available to them). The affair has reached a point with some of them to where they give excuse to the ignorant ones of the Jews and Christians.

f. The call to mutual pardoning and world peace and constantly repeat that.

g. Warning from Takfīr of the Tāghûts who replaced (the Sharī'ah with man made laws) and throwing out those who perform Takfīr of them and declaring enmity towards them based on this fundamental.

h. Making certain particular personalities from the politically active ones the scale and litmus-so whoever performs Takfīr on them-even if they carried out that which is cause for evident Kufr and the preventing factors are raised-then he is a Harūrī Takfīrī and person of Fitnah and not from Ahl us-Sunnah.

And in the area of Jihad, it (the new Sahwah) it is a group that cancels armed Jihad and it is Mukhdhilah(abandons those performing it) and Murjifah- those who hold back. They place stages of inability in front of the armed Jihad that in reality conclude with a cancellation of Jihad. They replace it with the Jihad of the word or the web- "the internet", or the Jihad of Tarbiyah (cultivation) or the Jihad of side issues by which they have corrupted the people and the youth of the Sahwah. Some of them are of the view that there is no offensive Jihad.

They attack the Mujâhidûn and accuse them of hastiness and extremism and not possessing an understanding of the Wâqi' (current affairs) and that they are Takfîriyûn, Khawârij and reactionaries only. They accuse them of having brought tribulations to the Ummah and not taking Shûrawith the Ulamâ'-and (claimed) that they do not look after the harms and benefits and that they have made waste to the gains made by the Da'wah and dragged the Ummah into a conflict without preparation and being on equal terms-as well as other things of slander and tremendous oppression that they have oppressed their brothers with.

And from their misconceptions in this area is that the Ummah is not adequately prepared for Jihad and that it is not permissible to drag the Ummah into a battle that it is not ready for.

And they make preparation (takâfu') as a condition of Jihad and one that is preceded by cultivation (tarbiyah). They accuse the Mujâhidûn of having wasted the gains of the Sahwah, such as the closing down of the relief groups in the west and the Islamic centers therein.

As well as (accusing them- theMujâhidûn) of a paltry amount of knowledge based classes and authoring (of written works), and the domination of the west over the Internet and so on and so fourth. And they expel the Jihadiyûn from their circles, homes, and groups and perhaps even declare them to be sinners and they negate from them any reward and recompense and acceptance from Allah and they hold that their dead are not Shuhadâ'.

In the area of Fiqh they have opened up the door to concession and invented what is called-falsely and in slander- the Fiqh of making matters easy. It is choosing what agrees with the times and that which contains ease upon the people in what they claim to be from the matters in which the people of knowledge have differed over. This is despite the knowledge that the basis for the likes of this is that whatever is differed over by the people of knowledge then what is correct (in it) is to be declared based on what the textual evidences (the Qur'an and the Sunnah and consensus) indicates and proves.

These people have reversed this whereby they declare matters to be the most correct on the basis of its ease upon the people. And by this false fundamental, the have issued legal verdicts in matters such as Hajj, buying, clothing, issues, what is related to matters pertaining to women, the Hijâb, the beard, prayer in congregation performed in the house, traveling without a Mahram, and extreme leniency in listening to singing and music with the evidence that there is a difference between hearing and actual listening, and traveling for the sake of enjoyment of women with a contract that appears to be permissible where in reality it is a sly way out for the sake of enjoyment only-therefore its reality is that is a marriage ofMut'ah without the intention of remaining with her or having children...and so on and so fourth. So, they have become people of desires and concessions in the area of Fiqh.

In the area of the stance with regard to the people of innovation and desires theirs is the practice of weighing and Muwâzanât (counter balancing) between the good and bad.

In the area of the stance with regard to the secularists and politicians theirs is the practice of dialogue and lowering the bridges and abandonment of waging Jihad (effort) against them and commanding and prohibiting them (Ar. Ihtisâb) and (their practice) is abandoning the fundamentals of the Salaf with regard to them.

Then they invented the issue of coexistence with the Americans in the manner of a shared earth and agreed upon fundamental principles along with removal of violence and terrorism coupled with cooperation upon that. They have invented this fundamental in a time in which the calls for dialogue and coexistence with the west- in particular with the Americans has increased-seeking to make the current events easy. I upset an old Sūfī man who comes from a family full of hardcore Sūfiyyah Shaykhs coz I considered the grave worship the Rawāfidh Anjās and Sūfiyyah do as disbelief in the Lord of the Heavens and the Earth.

But SubhānAllāh, this is the translation of what he told me "I would have turned away from your likes, but you seem to be a good man with understanding, and I liked you the moment we spoke Ya Radwan, you are Tayyib, and to tell you the truth, you Salafiyyeen Wahnābiyyeen have zealousness and sincerity for the religion which we (i.e. Sufi's) don't have anymore, but the problem is that the Takfeer you are doing is the biggest cause for the division of the Ummah, yes there are those who go to extremes at the graves, but correct them, don't do Takfeer, leave it to the Lord of Mankind".

- I obviously didn't want to take it further, since he was almost gonna cry, but this is my experience with the vast majority of people I have spoken too, from those who call themselves Sūfī's to those who call themselves Salafī's, and as Shaykh Ahmad Jibrīl said, they deal with emotions, while we deal with 'Aqīdah. It also reminds me of the opponents of Imām Muhammad Ibn 'Abdul Wahnāb telling him, "If you had abandoned Takfir and Fighting, you would be upon the religion of Allāh and His Messenger", history repeats itself.

Mankind" .

- I obviously didn't want to take it further, since he was almost gonna cry, but this is my experience with the vast majority of people I have spoken too, from those who call themselves Sūfī's to those who call themselves Salafī's, and as Shaykh Ahmad Jibrīl said, they deal with emotions, while we deal with 'Aqīdah. It also reminds me of the opponents of Imām Muhammad Ibn 'Abdul Wahhāb telling him, "If you had abandoned Takfīr and Fighting, you would be upon the religion of Allāh and His Messenger", history repeats itself.

The honourable Shaykh who enraged the Murji'ah and Ghulāt through his amazing lessons & books in many fields. The man received many Ijāzāt (recommendations) from the 'Ulamā', and most importantly acted upon his knowledge.

I will share some works in Arabic & English, including a book (62 pages) of his Biography and a Video of Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān (فك الله أسرهم) giving him an Ijāzah of a Hadīth al-Musalsal Bil-Awwaliyyah - chain going back to the Prophet - May Allāh accept him Ya Rabb!!

Forget about the Enemies of Islām, why blame the wolf for attacking your sheep, when the shepherd himself is against his own sheep.

You can't wake up for Fajr?

When you cant wake up for Fajr and you set so many alarms and try everything to get up and pray but it still doesnt help. Dont change your volume or alarm of your phone.

But know that you need to change something you do daily in your live in order to get up for Fajr.

When you know you commit a certain sin everyday again; you ask for forgiveness for it. Or you do anything else and you havent done any tawbah. Start doing it, and dont quit doing it. In every salah, every day, every week every month. Ask for His forgiveness and help so you wont do it again.

See how easy Fajr will be then.

Keep one thing in mind:

Its not the sleep thats keeping you away from fajir, but your own sins are keeping you away from it. ///And thats one of the many effects of sins.

Sisters, be warned! Especially my revert sisters! Do not ever marry a Madkhali! These people distort the sayings of the Salaf & claim they can marry with the intention of DIVORCE! This is nothing new, even Madkhali shaykhs in the US have stated that they won't be marrying new Shahadah women to them, because there are many cases of Madkhali's marrying reverts with the intention of Divorce!

These People who marry with the intention of divorce as we call in arabic الطلاق بنية الزواج are even worse than the Shi'a Rāfidhī Mushriks who do Mut'ah prostitution, because it's well known that the religion of the Rāfidah is based upon Zinā, they are open & even proud of being Rāfidhī children of Mut'ah. Whereas the Person who marry's with the intention of divorce is doing it in the name of deceit and betrayal! The Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) has cursed such people who are deceitful!!

Now for you sisters who have never heard of "Marriage with the intention of divorce" and what some filthy low lives are doing, they basically take the sayings of the Salaf out of context.

So in short, I'll explain the issue of "Marriage with the intention of divorce" which was differed upon among the Salaf and the Madhāhib. It's important to mention that some scholars permitted it and others prohibited it, so there are 2 views among the Early Imāms, BUT the circumstance of this would be in a context where a brother is travelling to another land for Business, Seeking proper knowledge, treatment, or for an important need, then afterwards he might be subjected to Fitna, and he fears committing Zinā, so he would marry with the intent of divorce, he might remain with her or not, and they would have a proper marriage with all the conditions, but the husband has this intention, he looks for a woman of deen, good lineage, beauty, and it's not mentioned at all from the Early Scholars that he would marry her for fun, rather he gets married in fear of Zinā, so some scholars permitted it, whereas others prohibited it.

Those that prohibited it say that this goes against the purpose of Marriage, and they say "Why did the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) curse the one who marries a divorced woman with the intention of making her lawful for her former husband and upon the one for whom she is made lawful." [Refer to Sunan Abī Dāwūd - Authentic]. So they use this Hadīth as proof to curse the one that has the intention of divorcing his wife, because this goes against the purpose of Marriage.

The purpose of marriage is 3: Reproduction, Chastity, Love & Mercy as mentioned by Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān(حفظه الله) & he mentioned several Āyāt & Ahādīth. And this person who married with the intent of divorce in such circumstance, even if he said it was in fear of Zinā didn't fulfil any of these 3 purposes, he says he's fearing Zinā, but in reality he's just enjoying and playing around with the daughters of the Muslims. But some scholars said it's permitted, but anyways this is what the Salaf meant when they talked about Marriage with the intent of divorce, this was the scenario. But even in this scenario it's not permissible to do so.

As of our times, this isn't called Marriage with the intent of divorce which was known in the time of the Salaf, rather in our times these Madkhali's and other low lives gather wealth and go on holidays to play around, marrying with the intent of divorce. And they don't care how many they marry or who they marry, they even marry 4,5,6,7,8 because all they think about is their filthy desires, this is their main goal!

So the person must know the reality before they give any Fatwa! Some scholars permitted it in a specific scenario, whereas what you call this is pure filth & playing around, and he marry's with the intent of divorce, and doesn't care which woman he's marrying, she might be improperly dressed, she has bad friends etc, but this idiot doesn't care.

Wallāhi anyone who says that it's allowed to marry with the intent of divorce is a pure Jāhil who doesn't understand anything, may Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) destroy these people!

Allāh has blessed you with guidance, He protected you from the people of Irjā' and Murji'ah who completely warn against learning the Fiqh of Takfīr which is half of 'Lā ilāha ilā Allāh', distort the correct understanding of the Nullifiers of Islām & its application, make a million excuses for Murtaddīn & conceal knowledge like u can never imagine!

And at the same time, Allāh has protected you from falling into the Madhab of the Khawārij and Ghulāt, who became very popular today as a direct result from the decades of Irjā' & concealing of important knowledge.

Always remember the blessings of Allāh upon you, for indeed the Methodology you are upon today is all due to Allāh, say Alhamdulillah. Infact say Alhamdulillah that Allāh has allowed you to say Alhamdulillah, what a great blessing this is!

You will get called names from both sides, they will strive their hardest to strip you away from the pure methodology which is the only solution to the Ummah and causes Muslims to wake up from their sleep.

Infact the deviants and opponents of our beloved Imām Muhammad Ibn 'Abdul Wahhāb (رحمه الله) told him numerous times "If you had abandoned Takfīr and Fighting, you would be upon the religion of Allāh and His Messenger", and you can refer to his Rasā'il to see this.

For decades, the deviants have concealed the rulings of Takfīr and Jihād, they strived to defend the Tawāghīt & their Scholars day and night, and gave Fatāwah based upon their false understanding of 'Masālih' (benefit) and 'Mafāsīd' (harm), while at the same time the wicked 'Salafī' Scholars mocked the Mujāhideen & Scholars of Tawhīd with the worst of names, striving to silence and crush them!

But Alhamdulillah, their cunning lies & oppression has become obvious to many of our brothers & sisters. I don't have to say much, all it requires is you guys & the rest of our beautiful brothers & sisters to continue studying their 'Aqīdah, and they will know what I'm talking about.

May Allāh bless your path of knowledge & reward our beloved 'Ulamā' for explaining all the Major Principles along with its correct application according to the understanding of the Salaf for us.

You know what upsets me alot about so many Muslims is the lack of brotherhood and love for one another.

Wallāhi I have received much more respect throughout my life from Kuffār than many Muslims, especially when these Muslims consider you 'extreme', they show more hatred to you than the actual Kuffār.

That's just generally speaking, otherwise there are some special brothers on the Dīn which you would never replace for anyone.

I had no such thing as Muslim Scripture as a kid or in high school (we tried to have in primary & I would try to be a 'kid' teacher, it was on/off), but SubhānAllāh I was very proud of my Dīn as a kid & give da'wah to teachers & classmates, despite being one of the only few muslims. And during the blessed month of Ramadān, my Kuffār 'mates' would bring me a whole lot of snacks to take home for Iftār, this was the respect & love they gave me as a Muslim.

Now obviously the Kuffār hate the Dīn and we all know this (which is why I separate from all Kuffār, and restrict it solely to da'wah), like for example when I would pray Jum'ah in highschool, at times some idiots would try throw newspapers through the window at only a few of us & run away, but one day we made sure we had 1 brother at the door, and when I started reciting Sūrat al-Fātihah, they threw stuff through the window again, and our big brother grabbed all 3 of them and while we were praying, all we could hear was Kuffār getting bashed so bad making 'Ahh Ohh Ahh' noises, I was smiling too much I had to stop the Salāh, it made me crack up.

Long story short, we must have Barā'ah from the Kuffār & due to the amount of differences between myself as a Muslim and them as Kuffār, obviously there's gonna be a barrier between us, I'm not going to imitate or act like them whatsoever, and the kuffār themselves could see how strong my Barā'ah from them was, yet by Allāh they respected me so much for upholding my religion, coz that's all I was really doing, and they were eager to learn more and ask questions.

For instance, when they wanted to teach us any 'adult education', I refused to look or even attend such classes, and they had a whole semester of 'compulsory' dancing, or else you will get a fail, so I was the only one who refused to touch or dance with any girl, and a few muslim friends would even encourage me to dance, but this is something I could never compromise on, and subhānAllāh those muslims realised what I was doing is right, so they faked a leg injury and skipped dancing classes with me, and not only that, when the Kuffār would ask me why I can't dance, I told them it's against my religion, and then they tell me "It's also against my religion" (lol) and a group of them came with me to avoid dancing (by using religion as an excuse lol), so we can speak about Dīn & Sport

But SubhānAllāh, many muslims these days mock you for upholding your Dīn "Oh what, you're a Shaykh now", you gotta go study 50 years of Usūl al-Fiqh before u speak lol, "You're a Takfeeri, Khārījī, dog of the hellfire", but when it comes to speaking to a Kāfir "aww, so we believe you're mistaken here because...", subhānAllāh and the people of the Haqq are silenced and crushed by everyone, especially those who call themselves in the end of the day as "Salafī Muslims" and those stupid moderate muslims who know absolutely nothing about the religion, yet are giving Fatwas so quick the 4 Imāms would refrain from.

At the same time, there are brothers of Haqq you meet, and you can sense something special in them, those are the truthful souls who wouldn't tell a single lie to your face, and would sincerely correct you if you're wrong.

May Allāh guide this Ummah!! At times I feel like I want to do everything, but then I realise my own level and that I should be patient like Nūh (عليه السلام).

Q. Can a Muslimah wear make-up in front of the potential husband wanting to see her?

A. Yes, it's permissible for her to wear make-up and beautify herself in front of him as it's reported in the Hadīth of Al-Aslamiyyah (quoted by Sh. Al-Tarēfē), under 1 condition (that he knows she's wearing make-up), otherwise it would be considered deceitful, because some women can be 2 different people with & without make up, and deceit is Harām according to Consensus.

Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tarēfē (حفظه الله) mentions that she can make her hair look nice in front of him as well, as long as no deceit is involved.

The majority of the 'Ulamā' say she can only show her face and hands, whereas a statement narrated from Imām Ahmad (رحمه الله) and the opinion of Imām al-Awzā'ī (رحمه الله) is that she can wear what she normally wears at home in the presence of Mahrams and Sisters, and this is what's apparent from 'Umar Ibn al-Khattāb (رضي الله عنه) with the approval of 'Alī Ibn Abī Tālib (رضي الله عنه) [when he didn't condemn 'Umar for looking at the calf of his daughter].

So Inshā'Allāh there's nothing wrong with showing the hair & what she normally wears at home, it's a simple Qā'idah (Rule).

However an important point must be mentioned, it's Harām for a man to look at her (knowingly or unknowingly) with desire, so whenever he has had enough looks to meet the need for attraction, there is no need for him to look furthermore (it's only for a need - this is no game).

And even worse than that are some contemporary Shaykhs who say if a man is hesitant between marrying a Muslimah or her sister, they say he can look at both, and they give Fatwas that he can go find a group of women and look for one that attracts him, and Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tarēfē said this is the practise of the Fussāq (wicked corrupt sinners) & that there is no basis whatsoever to this (in a 20+ min video explaining the Ahkām of meeting & looking before marriage).

والله أعلم

NOTE: This Fatwa is referring to looking at a Muslimah with her walī's permission, and obviously a sister wouldn't uncover on the first visit - This is a knowledge-based Fatwa, and I'll be hoping to translate the 20+ min video discussing the issue in detail by Sh. 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tarēfē (حفظه الله).

narrated from Imām Ahmad (رحمه الله) and the opinion of Imām al-Awzā'ī (رحمه الله) is that she can wear what she normally wears at home in the presence of Mahrams and Sisters, and this is what's apparent from 'Umar Ibn al-Khattāb (رضي الله عنه) with the approval of 'Alī Ibn Abī Tālib (رضي الله عنه) [when he didn't condemn 'Umar for looking at the calf of his daughter].

So Inshā'Allāh there's nothing wrong with showing the hair & what she normally wears at home, it's a simple Qā'idah (Rule).

However an important point must be mentioned, it's Harām for a man to look at her (knowingly or unknowingly) with desire, so whenever he has had enough looks to meet the need for attraction, there is no need for him to look furthermore (it's only for a need - this is no game).

And even worse than that are some contemporary Shaykhs who say if a man is hesitant between marrying a Muslimah or her sister, they say he can look at both, and they give Fatwas that he can go find a group of women and look for one that attracts him, and Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tarēfē said this is the practise of the Fussāq (wicked corrupt sinners) & that there is no basis whatsoever to this (in a 20+ min video explaining the Ahkām of meeting & looking before marriage).

والله أعلم

NOTE: This Fatwa is referring to looking at a Muslimah with her walī's permission, and obviously a sister wouldn't uncover on the first visit - This is a knowledge-based Fatwa, and Inshā'Allāh I'll be hoping to translate the 20+ min video discussing the issue in detail by Sh. 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tarēfē (حفظه الله).

AstaghfirAllāh, does anyone know how I can remove these fake naked women requests that I get around 30 times a day?

I left my FB logged in on my phone, and coz my mum's phone wasn't working, I gave her mine to use for the past month. So she tells me "why are there so many naked rude girls on your phone" (pictures of friend request pop up on home screen), I said they are fake spam accounts, so she's like Ya 'Ayb Ashoom 'Alayhun lol.

The Second Opinion: That it isn't dropped off (i.e. he must pay an expiation), because what gave him the allowance to break his fast was old age and sickness, not travelling, and this (view) is stronger than the First Opinion.

The traveller can break his fast, even if there's no hardship (to fast), Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said:

"So whoever among you is ill or on a journey [during them]...(then an equal amount of days need to be made up)" [2:184]

So He mentioned the unrestricted travelling (i.e. didn't limit it to travels of hardship) and He جل وعلا also said:

"And when you travel throughout the land, there is no blame upon you for shortening the prayer" [4:101].

So He mentioned the unrestricted travelling on the Earth.

- Fasting while travelling is comprised of different levels:

1. That it's difficult upon him to fast while travelling, but it doesn't cause any harm (if he does so), what's correct is that it's recommended for him to break his fast,because Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) loves for you to take His concessions.

2. That it results in harm, then this person is prohibited from fasting (while travelling).

3. That the harm befalls upon others, such as the fasting (of a Mujāhid) in Jihād, wherein it makes him weak in front of the enemy and guarding the frontiers of the Islamic State, then this person would be sinful (if he fasts), because the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) said: "Those are the disobedient ones! Those are the disobedient ones!" and he also said: "It is not righteousness that you fast on a journey."

4. That both sides are equal, breaking the fast & choosing to fast, so there's a difference of opinion in this situation.

A group of Scholars said that breaking the fast is better because Allāh loves for you to take His concessions (given to them).

And another group of Scholars said that this returns back to the condition of the individual, if it would be hard for him in the future to make up the fasts, then fasting is better.

And another group of Scholars said that if it's not difficult upon him, then fasting is better, due to the practise of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) and his companions, but as for the Hadīth, "Indeed, Allāh loves for you to take His concessions", they said that it's a concession which relates to difficulty (in fasting).

So they differentiated between breaking one's fast and shortening the prayer, so they said: Shortening the prayer is the general basic principle while travelling, also nothing has been narrated from the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) that he would pray the complete Salāh in the state of travelling, however it has been narrated that he broke his fast in the state of travelling, and these proofs as it has been shown is Clear and Strong.

#Fasting_Gems #Ramadān_Benefits

Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān(حفظه الله) said:

Linguistically "Sawm" (fasting) means: To abstain from, Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "Verily! I (i.e. Maryam) have vowed unto the Most Beneficent (Allāh) that I'm going to abstain (fast)", i.e. Abstain from speech.

Technically (in the Shari'ah) it means: "(Fasting) to abstain with the intention from specified matters, for specified time, by a specified person."

The statement, "(Fasting) to abstain with the intention":

The Fuqahā' do not disagree that it's compulsory to abstain (from eating, drinking and sexual intercourse) in the obligatory Siyām before the rising of the 2nd Fajr (i.e. Pre-Dawn).

And the Fuqahā', may Allāh have mercy upon them, differed over the optional Siyām, so a group of Scholars said it takes the same ruling as the Obligatory Siyām, whereas the majority of the Scholars said that it's permissible before mid-day (i.e. Dhuhr), and we shall speak about this matter in detail - Inshā'Allāh - under its respected chapter when we reach the ruling of the Niyyah (intention) in the optional Siyām.

The statement, "from specified matters": And these matters are two types:

The first type: What's Harām in and of itself.

The second type: What's Harām to do while fasting, and this is also split up into two categories:

1. What breaks the fast according to consensus, such as eating, drinking and sexual intercourse.
2. What is differed upon (if it breaks the fast or not), such as the release of semen without sexual intercourse, Hijāmah (cupping), vomit and other than that.

The statement: "for specified time", Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "And eat and drink until the white thread of dawn becomes distinct to you from the black thread [of night]." [2:187].

This time is from the rising of the Second Fajr (Pre-Dawn) until the sun sets (Maghrib), the Prophet(ﷺ) said:

"When the night approaches from this side (i.e., the east) and the day retreats from that side (i.e., west) and the sun sets, then it is time for a person observing Saum (fasting) to break his fast." [Its authenticity is Agreed Upon].

There's an exception to this ruling (mentioned in the Hadīth), and that is if he breaks his fast forgetfully or due to ignorance, or he thought the sun set (to break the fast), this will be discussed under its respected chapter Inshā'Allāh, and what's correct is that all of them are given an excuse, Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said:

"Our Lord, do not impose blame upon us if we have forgotten or erred" [2:286].

And the Messenger of Allāh(ﷺ) said: "If somebody eats or drinks forgetfully then he should complete his fast, for what he has eaten or drunk, has been given to him by Allāh." [Its authenticity is Agreed Upon].

The Scholars, may Allāh have mercy upon them, differed over having sexual intercourse (due to forgetfulness or not knowing that it's Harām), and what's correct is that sexual intercourse is tagged along with eating and drinking, because forgetfulness can occur in it (the Shaykh received many Q's to prove this), just as it occurs in eating and drinking, however if he remembers (that he's fasting), he must come out (from the act), and if he continued (knowingly), he is obliged to pay the Major Kaffārah (Expiation for intercourse during Ramadān).

There's an individual who had intercourse during the month of Ramadān, knowing the ruling (of doing so) and did it intentionally, so what is the ruling?

He must free a slave, if he is unable too, then he must fast 2 months consistently, and if he is incapable of doing that, he must feed 60 poor people and for every poor person he must be fed with a "Mudd" (an old measurement) or what's similar, yes what makes him full! And if he can't and doesn't have the ability to feed (60 poor people), it has been said that the Kaffārah (expiation) is dropped from him, and it has been said that it's tied to the Dhimmah (that the Kaffārah must be paid whenever he's able too - It's on his neck).

The statement, "by a specified person": This person is a Sane Muslim, and the Scholars, may Allāh have mercy upon them, do not disagree that Takleef (reaching maturity & being sane) is tied to both the man and woman, and the speech is addressing both the Jinn and Humans:

"O you who have believed, Siyām has been written for you" [2:183].

"Written", meaning "Obligated", and Ramadān was obligated in the 2nd Year (AH).

And was there an "Obligatory" Siyām before Ramadān?

Yes, the Siyām of 'Āshūrā' according to the correct view, so when Ramadān was obligated, it abrogated the (obligation) of the Siyām of 'Āshūrā' (and became Mustahab instead).

And the Fuqahā' do not disagree that the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) fasted 9 Ramadāns.

"So whoever sights [the new moon of] the month, let him fast it" [2:185].

The third condition: Being a resider, because the traveller isn't obliged to fast, however the obligation (of making that fast) remains upon him (to do it whenever he can).

The fourth condition: Tahārah (purification from Nifās and Menses) for a woman.

And is it valid for a woman on her menses to fast? And is her fast accepted?

We say her fast isn't accepted, and it doesn't complete the obligatory (Fast of Ramadān), however is it permissible (for her) to do this action (of fasting while on her menses)?

No, because it is an innovation in the religion, and a newly invented matter which is not from it.

Issue: A woman started her menses in the beginning of the month of Ramadān and she became pure on the 7th day, the Scholars do not disagree that she completes the fast (if she was pure the complete day), however is it compulsory upon her to make up the days she menstruated in or not? And what is the proof?

She must make up these days, an Ijmā' has been mentioned pertaining that, and the proof is the Hadīth of 'Ā'isha(رضي الله عنها) in the "Sahīhayn" and the general textual evidences, and in reality she has reached maturity (so she must make up those days she was on her menses in).

If a Kāfir reverts to Islām on the first day of Ramadān, and he is Mukallāf (i.e. Morally obligated - Sane & Mature), then he became sick, he is pardoned to break his fast, so if he gets cured after 10 days, he must make up these days according to the Agreement of the Scholars, he must make up these 10 (days).

Why is a woman ordered to make up the fast, and not ordered to make up the Salāh (due to her menses)?

The wisdom behind that is a matter of Ijtihād (trying to determine Allāh's judgement on the matter by looking at the evidences), and isn't a direct textual proof, it's not possible to say that there's direct textual evidence concerning this topic.

'Ā'isha(رضي الله عنها) said: "That is how we were ordered", and the report is in the Sahīhayn, there's no dispute over this, however the Fuqahā' generally give off reasons in a matter (for the wisdom behind it), they may be correct and they may be mistaken, so in this situation, many of the 'Ulamā' gave their reasons, of why she is ordered to make up her fasts and not her Salāh?

It has been said that it's due to the hardship, because Salāh is repeated 5 times per day, so therefore if her menses lasted for 10 days, and we multiply 10 by 5, the total would be 50 Salāh (to make up), it has a hardship, unlike fasting, for verily it is not compulsory except for 1 month in the year, and therefore there is no hardship in making up 7 days within 360 days (of the year).

Islām is a condition for the acceptance of Siyām, and whoever reverts to Islām during the day of Ramadān, then he should abstain (from eating and drinking) this day and fast the remainder of it according to Consensus, and does he have to make up this day in which he reverted to Islām in? There are two opinions regarding that:

1. That he makes up this day, and it is a statement narrated from Imām Ahmad, based upon the Hadīth of Salamah Ibn al-Akwa' in the "Sahīhayn" that the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) commanded someone on the day of 'Āshūrā' to call out & announce: "Whoever has eaten (earlier), then he should fast the rest of the day", and it has been narrated in (Sunan) Abī Dāwūd: "And make up a day in its place".

Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān(حفظه الله) said:

Whoever was a resider and had the intention to go travelling, it's not permissible for him to break his fast until he leaves his residential place, and this is the most correct of the two opinions in the issue, and there's no proof showing the permissibility of breaking one's fast before travelling.

And the reported Āthār (narrations) from Anas and others are weak, it is Mudtarib (has inconsistencies) and isn't authentic as a Marfū' or Mawqūf report, nothing from it is used as proof, because perhaps he may not want to go travelling (i.e. Changes his mind), and being in the state of travelling is (only) when the exception is given (to eat & drink), so how can he break his fast when he hasn't travelled?

And as for (being allowed) to join prayers, it is because joining prayers is linked to a "Need", for indeed he could be a traveller and not join his prayers as the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) did while he was in Mina, and at times he would need to join the prayers, so he joins them as that has been narrated in the Hadīth of Mu'ādh in "Muslim" at Tabūk, the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) joined his prayers for 20 days.

Reminder: Everything I write or share is a human effort, which means that it's open to mistakes & Bātil that come from myself and Shaytān.

The main thing we need to perfectly understand is the Usūl (principles) with its correct application - This way, you would be much more consistent in your opinions and continue to learn more without 'changing' your old opinions, except rarely.

It's all about the 'means' to reach the result, which must be in accordance to the Usūl Ahl al-Sunnah wal-Jamā'ah - For e.g. The Khawārij make Takfīr upon Tārik al-Salāh (the one who abandons Salāh) and so do we, however the means & principles we use to reach that conclusion differ with the Khawārij, so this is an important point to keep in mind, Bārak Allāhu feekum.

was asked: What is the ruling on the one who says: "O (حفظه الله) Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad messenger of Allāh, call upon Allāh to forgive me"? And is this like saying: "O messenger of Allāh, intercede for me"? And what's the ruling on the one who says that this saying[#1] is a bid'ah and ?isn't major shirk responded by saying: This issue has Tafsīl[i.e. Requires a (حفظه الله) Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad :detailed explanation], so it's divided into two categories

If he supplicated with this du'ā & he is far away from his grave[i.e. The Prophet's grave], then .1
.this is Major shirk without any doubt, because there's no misconception in that

:If he supplicates near his grave, then he is also upon two categories .2

.A) That he asks for his intercession or help or victory & similar to that, then this is also Major Shirk

B) That he says "Ask Allāh for me" or "Intercede for me by (the permission of) your Lord" and it's from the same type (both sayings are the same), so the people of knowledge have two sayings :regarding this

So the Imāms of the Da'wah al-Najdiyyāh view it as a [Great] Shirk, from among the types of Shirk - that Quraysh used to do "These are our intermediaries with Allāh", "Except that they bring us closer "to Allāh in position

And among the later scholars who viewed it as a [Great] innovation & [Great] evil & a means to - Shirk, however it's not disbelief, because they have a misconception which is his life in the grave (i.e. He's alive in the grave) & that he hears the Salām for whoever gives him Salāms & similar to that, so according to themselves they aren't calling upon the absent (Ghā'ib) or an incapable person[i.e. Dead etc.], and they do not call upon him by anything from the Attributes of Divinity like asking for help, intercession & similar to that, so [according to him] it's just like asking for a supplication from him during his life, and this isn't Shirk by ljmā', and he is right now alive in his .grave, so this is their misconception

And what appears to be most correct in my view is that it's Major Shirk, however he is excused from this by Ignorance & Ta'wīl (misinterpretation), because of their strong Shubha (misconception) .knows best (جل وعلا)in this situation, and Allāh

Translator's Note: He is excused due to the core issue itself being differed upon by many Scholars , near his grave' to ask Allāh - And as Shaykh 'Alī al-' (صلى الله عليه وسلم)i.e. asking the Prophet Khudayr said in Sharh Nawāqidh al-Islām, if a particular nullifier is differed upon (whether it's Kufr or .not), then the individual is excused by Ignorance and Ta'wīl until the Hujjah is applied upon him

also said many Scholars agreed with Shaykh al-Islām Ibn (حفظه الله)Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān Taymiyyah that it's a bid'ah and not Shirk, and he said you will find this in the books such as "Siyānatul Insān" and "Majmū' al-Rasā'il wal-Masā'il" by the great Imām of Najd Shaykh 'Abdul Latīf .Ibn Hassan Āl al-Shaykh

May Allāh purify the Ummah from the extremism of the Ghulāt al-Khawārij, who even went further than the Khawārij of the past that made Takfīr upon major sins, these Ghulāt of our time make !Takfīr upon minor sins (mistakes) and even lawful matters that giants disputed

"Some people are..." - I won't continue.

Even though I may be saying the truth, however it's not from the character of a believer to constantly speak about "some people" while forgetting about myself.

As the wise saying goes: "why do you look at the little speck in your brother's eye and forget the plank in your own eye".

May Allāh protect us from إعجاب (being amazed with ourselves), when in reality the inside of us isn't that amazing.

One of my favourite du'ās I learnt from Imām Anwar al-'Awlakī is:

اللَّهُمَّ اجْعَلْ سَرِيرَتَنَا خَيْرًا مِنْ غَلَابَتِنَا

Translation: "O Allāh, make the inside of us better than the outside."

Transliteration: "Allāhumma ij'al Sareeratanaa Khayran Min 'Alaaniyatinaa"

Du'a Du'a Du'a!!!

14 May 2017 20:10

Radwan Dakkak updated his status.

I take an oath by Allah, some of you will look back to your past and smile so much - The plans and power of Allah is incredible, SubhanAllah! It's mind-boggling and every day that goes past, the more Allah subhanahu wa ta'alah amazes me with His Greatness & Wisdom, it's as if Allah has perfectly written down your tracks in this Dunya, wishing that you follow the correct footsteps until you enter into His Jannah, be with Allah and Allah will be with you.

If there is a personal lesson I would like to share, I would not like to be open about anything and always keep everything inside, but when things intensified over the years, it forced me to complain about the pain I feel, and when brothers would tell me "have Sabr, stay steadfast akhi", I simply took the advice (yeah thanks akhi), but deep down this advice really hurt, and I would think to myself it's impossible to have Sabr, this situation is killing me, but SubhanAllah due to my shortcomings I wasn't able to comprehend Sabr despite listening to soooooo many lectures about Sabr (and the answer was right infront of me!!).

What was I missing? Infact I shouldn't say I was "listening" to lectures about Sabr, I was simply "hearing" lectures, there's a huge difference between the two, because when you "listen" you are actually giving your ear and paying real close attention to the words that come out of the Shaykh's mouth.

But Alhamdulillah, I swear by Allah, even though I read this verse 1000's of times, it finally clicked to me when I heard Shaykh Ahmad Jibril mention it:

وجعلنا منهم أئمة يهدون بأمرنا لما صبروا

"We made amongst them Imāms..." when?

لما صبروا

"...when they were patient..."

So subhanAllah everything just started to fit back together like a puzzle, this made me look at my situation now and compare that to back then before everything got so intense, and I was like no wayyyy, I'm not trying to say that I'm righteous or anything, but comparing myself today to years ago, I have truly realised that this is the reason why Allah afflicts His creation with trials, to bring them closer to Him, to force them to cry in Sujud and du'a, beseeching for help, returning them back to Allah as an expiation of their sins and to raise their ranks, and what greater blessing do we have as Muslims following the Correct Methodology, we can never thank Allah enough.

So in short my brother and sister, if you have a good understanding that life is a test, ofc calamities will hurt, but as Shaykh Ahmad Jibril said, Sabrun Jameel (Beautiful Patience) is where you don't complain to anyone except Allah.

A muslim, especially a stranger on Tawheed is inevitable going to face trials, including on the da'wah field, so don't be "soft" and run away like a chicken, but rather bear everything with a big chest!

And not only have I truly noticed the purpose Allah has blessed me with trials, but also the love of my souls, our righteous Scholars and Mujahideen who have been mocked, accused falsely for decades by the people of Irjaa' and Murji'ah!!

And SubhanAllah, the Murji'ah used to laugh and mock me & our brothers by saying stuff like "Which one of your Scholars are you able to contact and ask questions, haha they are all locked up in prisons".

But SubhanAllah I tell every coward Murji' & Madkhali rat that the ones you laugh at in the prisons of the Tawagheet are going through the same thing that Shaykh al-Islam Ibn Taymiyyah went through, and guess what, I have no hesitation or doubts that Allah will raise their names just like Ibn Taymiyyah (who died in prison) is known today among the muslims.

And you concealers of knowledge and defenders of the Tawagheet won't be remembered just like the ones who executed Ibn Taymiyyah aren't known, infact the deviants who all united against ibn taymiyyah are not known. Infact what's amazing is that if you read the biographies of those names that Ibn Taymiyyah wrote against, the Scholars say there's not much information, and they only became famous by Ibn Taymiyyah refuting them :))

May Allah grant victory to Tawheed and Islam!!!

The Sixth Nullifier: Mocking the Religion.

All praise is due to Allāh, the Lord of Mankind, and Peace and Blessings be upon the Imām of the Messengers, and upon his household and companions, and those who followed them with excellence till the day of judgement, to proceed:

Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, has mentioned that from the characteristics of the Kuffār is their mocking of the religion of Allāh(عز وجل) and His Messenger and His Verses, and He spoke about them pertaining that in several places in His book, so He spoke about their mocking of His verses (here):

"And We send not the messengers except as bringers of good tidings and warners. And those who disbelieve dispute by [using] falsehood to [attempt to] invalidate thereby the truth and have taken My verses, and that of which they are warned, in ridicule." [18:56].

And He said: "Woe to every sinful liar, Who hears the verses of Allah recited to him, then persists arrogantly as if he had not heard them. So give him tidings of a painful punishment. And when he knows anything of Our verses, he takes them in ridicule. Those will have a humiliating punishment."
[45:7-9].

And He mentioned their mocking of His Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم):

"And when those who disbelieve see you, [O Muhammad], they take you not except in ridicule, [saying], "Is this the one who insults your gods?" [21:36].

And He said: "And when they see you, [O Muhammad], they take you not except in ridicule, [saying], "Is this the one whom Allah has sent as a messenger?" [25:41].

And He showed that the mocking of the Kuffār was towards all of the Messengers, not only to Muhammad(صلى الله عليه وسلم), for He said:

"And already were messengers ridiculed before you, but those who mocked them were enveloped by that which they used to ridicule." [6:10].

And He said: "And We had certainly sent [messengers] before you, [O Muhammad], among the sects of the former peoples. And no messenger would come to them except that they ridiculed him." [15:10-11].

And the Verses and Textual Evidences regarding that is much more to be restricted (to a certain number), for verily mocking is Extreme Kufr, the first ones (who came before us) fell into it, so their disbelief was either because of rejection and denial, or refusal and arrogance and abstaining, and they added on top of that, mocking the Messengers and Revelations (they were sent with), and Allāh has mentioned that about all of the disbelieving nations (of the past).

And Imām Muhammad Ibn 'Abdil Wahhāb(رحمه الله تعالى) placed this as the 6th nullifier from the nullifiers that he collected in the treatise "Nawāqidh al-Islām", and it is from the most greatest of nullifies and most severe, and one of the greatest in siding against Allāh and His Messenger.

And this characteristic from the characteristics of the Kuffār {Mocking} is the most common factor which the Murtaddūn of those who ascribe to Islām in the past and present apostate from, and the narrators have preserved a story from the stories of mocking that occurred during the lifetime of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم), so Ibn Jarīr(رحمه الله) has narrated with a good chain of narration on the authority of 'Abdullāh Ibn 'Umar(رضي الله عنه):

"A man during the battle of Tābūk said in a gathering: "We haven't seen anyone who was more than those people who were more fearful when it comes time to fight, and who have bigger bellies".

So a man in the gathering replied: "You have lied, but you're indeed a Munāfiq, I will inform the Messenger of Allāh(صلى الله عليه وسلم)".

So that incident reached the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) and the Qur'ān was revealed, 'Abdillāh Ibn 'Umar(رضي الله عنهما) said:

"For indeed, I saw him (the mocker) holding onto the she-camel of the Messenger of Allāh(صلى الله عليه وسلم) for a very long time, reclining on its girth (a band attached to a saddle and fastened around a horse's belly to keep the saddle in place), while he was saying: "O Messenger of Allāh, we were only idly joking and talking, and the Messenger of Allāh(صلى الله عليه وسلم) recited: "Is it Allah and His verses and His Messenger that you were mocking?" Make no excuse; you have disbelieved after your belief." [End Quote from the Narration].

And due to that event, these verses were revealed:

"They hypocrites are apprehensive lest a surah be revealed about them, informing them of what is in their hearts. Say, "Mock [as you wish]; indeed, Allah will expose that which you fear." And if you ask them, they will surely say, "We were only conversing and playing." Say, "Is it Allah and His verses and His Messenger that you were mocking?" Make no excuse; you have disbelieved after your belief. If We pardon one faction of you - We will punish another faction because they were criminals." [9:64-66].

And that group of people from the Munāfiqeen were believers before that happened, as Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, said:

"you have disbelieved after you had Ēmān" [9:66].

And they were believers both inwardly and outwardly as Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah(رحمه الله) has affirmed and clarified (in detail), however they had weak Ēmān which led them to perform such mocking.

And what we can learn from the story about the one who commits Kufr, is that it's not a condition for his disbelief to know that his action was Kufr, but rather it's a condition for him to know that it's Harām, so these mockers didn't know that this was Kufr, infact they thought it was a sin just like the rest of the sins which doesn't take one outside of Ēmān, yet despite that, Allāh(عز وجل) didn't accept that excuse from them.

And another benefit it contains is that the one who participates in Kufr and being pleased with it, and sitting with the one who says such words in a fashion that accompanies approving of it, (then) all of them are Kuffār, for indeed in the verse Allāh has judged the Kufr of every individual within that group of people who sat by & did not give an exception or excuse to any of them, despite the fact that the one speaking is only 1 person and the rest are simply listeners, and as for "the group that Allāh has pardoned", then it has been said it was a man who rebuked some of their speech, and it has been said, what is meant is that a group among them repented, and Allāh pardoned them, and the other group remained upon its Kufr and Hypocrisy, so that is the one which is punished (as stated in the Āyah).

And what we can also learn from this is that the one who commits Kufr has all of his deeds made void and has left the fold of Islām, even if he was a righteous man, and even if he had enormous deeds which none of the muslims had, so Allāh(عز وجل) has mentioned that these people have Ēmān, and they went out in a difficult battle which was from the greatest trials from Allāh(عز وجل) for His slaves, and the Munāfiqūn remained behind, and the 3 individuals who stayed back, and Allāh(عز وجل) praised the people who fought in that battle:

"Allah has already forgiven the Prophet and the Muhajireen and the Ansar who followed him in the hour of difficulty..." [9:117].

And Jihād is from the greatest of deeds, for Allāh(عز وجل) said:

"Have you made the providing of water for the pilgrim and the maintenance of al-Masjid al-Haram equal to [the deeds of] one who believes in Allah and the Last Day and strives in the cause of Allah ? They are not equal in the sight of Allah..." [9:19].

So if their Ēmān & Jihād during the harsh times before they apostated wasn't considered a preventative for their disbelief, so then how about the one who doesn't have (such enormous deeds) except providing water for the pilgrim and the maintenance of Al-Masjid al-Harām.

And he doesn't perform that (action) with his own wealth or hands (i.e. Sacrifice like the Sahābah who fought) and go through all types of obstacles and harm? Without any Islām which preceded that, nor was Ikhlās the cause for him to perform that, rather it is ungratefulness and wanting the people to see him, and turning away from the path of Allāh.

So the people who hold enormous good deeds, among the 'Ulamā', Mujāhideen, Preachers, Those who Spend their wealth (for Allāh's sake), they are not safe from Kufr, and whatever they performed of enormous deeds will not protect them if they leave the fold of Islām by a Kufr statement or action or belief, rather Allāh will make it into scattered dust particles (so if these people with enormous deeds aren't excused from Kufr, then what about the rest of mankind).

And the proofs for the Kufr of those who mock are numerous within the Qur'ān and Sunnah, from it is what was aforementioned, and from it is Allāh's statement:

"O you who have believed, take not those who have taken your religion in ridicule and amusement among the ones who were given the Scripture before you nor the disbelievers as allies. And fear Allah, if you should [truly] be believers. And when you call to prayer, they take it in ridicule and amusement. That is because they are a people who do not use reason." [5:57-58].

And Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, said:

"Say, [O Muhammad], "Shall we [believers] inform you of the greatest losers as to [their] deeds? [They are] those whose effort is lost in worldly life, while they think that they are doing well in work." Those are the ones who disbelieve in the verses of their Lord and in [their] meeting Him, so their deeds have become worthless; and We will not assign to them on the Day of Resurrection any importance. That is their recompense - Hell - for what they denied and [because] they took My signs and My messengers in ridicule." [18:103-106].

Till He said: "That is because you took the verses of Allah in ridicule, and worldly life deluded you." So that Day they will not be removed from it, nor will they be asked to appease [Allah]." [45:35].

And mocking could be explicit and displayable, and this is Kufr (both) inwardly and outwardly, the one who does it is judged with Kufr without asking him to make Tawbah, and it could be by unclear indirect speech which could give multiple meanings, so the individual would disbelieve inwardly, and isn't judged as a Kāfir outwardly, rather he is required to take an oath to swear upon his intention if he is taken to a judge who rules by the Shari'ah, and the meaning of his Kufr being inwardly is that we judge him by Islām of what has appeared to us, and if he intended to mock (through his unclear speech), then he is a Kāfir in essence (inwardly).

And unclear indirect speech can be speech that may consist of mocking or not.

Or (it can be) speech that is clearly mocking however it's not clear what he mocked, so it could be understood as mocking Allāh, His Messenger and His Verses, and it be understood as mocking other than that.

Or (it can be) clear speech in mocking an individual, however the mocking could be understood as mocking the individual or mocking the religion, and most of the mocking by the Munāfiqeen in the lifetime of the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) was from unclear indirect speech.

And the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) would know them by that, however the hudūd (prescribed punishments) and Ahkām (rulings) aren't carried out, except upon the clear matters which is surrounded by eye-witnesses and affirmed to have occurred (intended mocking) in reality, Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) said:

"And if We willed, We could show them to you, and you would know them by their mark; but you will surely know them by the tone of [their indirect] speech. And Allah knows your deeds." [47:30]

And from the mistakes in judging upon the mockers, is to judge with Kufr (disbelief) the one who mocks the people of the Dīn and its men from the Scholars or Mujāhideen or Charity-Givers, without differentiating between two things:

1. Mocking the Dīn, or a man from the followers of the Dīn BECAUSE of his Dīn, such as whoever mocks the Scholars because they are "Scholars of Shari'ah", and whoever mocks the Islamic Knowledge itself which the 'Ulamā carry, or mocks the Mujāhideen because they are "Mujāhideen", or mocks Jihād in the path of Allāh in and of itself, or the one who mocks ALL the Scholars of Islām without giving exceptions, or (mocks) ALL the Mujāhideen and warfronts of Jihād without giving exceptions, which necessitates that the thing he is mocking is the Dīn (Which makes him a Kāfir).
2. Mocking a person from the followers of the Dīn NOT because of his religion, such as whoever mocks a Scholar or Mujāhid in something that relates to his image or speech and what's similar to that from the customs which doesn't relate to the religion, or he mocks a Scholar who he doesn't view as a True Scholar, or that he is an Evil Scholar from those whom Allāh has warned about in His book, or he mocks a Mujāhid who he views isn't a True Mujāhid or that his Jihād is Bātil, so even though this person has fallen into an enormous sin (if he mocks a true Scholar or Mujāhid) in some aspects, except that he doesn't disbelieve until his mocking is referred back to the Dīn (in this situation he isn't mocking the Dīn, so he is not a Kāfir).

And from the examples of that: Whoever mocks the beard and calls it "a dust sweeper", then this person is a Kāfir without any hesitation.

But as for whoever mocks the beard of a particular man, and his mocking was due to the image (or looks) of his beard in specific, not beards in general or the Islamic ruling pertaining leaving the beard to grow, then this person doesn't become a Kāfir, even though he may become a Fāsiq or Sinner depending upon his situation.

So it's not permissible to hasten in Takfir from merely hearing (a person) mocking without verification and observing what this mocking returns back too? And to what thing it was tied too?

Allāh knows best, and Peace and Blessings be upon Our Prophet Muhammad, and upon all of his Household and Companions.

For e.g. Refusing to marry their daughters to someone who's not from the same Nationality or Arab. Also some people spread rumours that "so and so is extreme" and scare the father, subhānAllāh.

Rhonda Hayek Allahuma Ameen Ya Rabb If a father is righteous and upon the haqq he would never have 'asabiyah towards his own race and he would search for taqwa not nationality and colour, and extreme is what his after.. As for fathers that refuse a brother because of his nationality and because his "extreme" then the only advice I give is to take the matter to a trusted member in the community who fears Allah (won't say a sheikh cause most of our local sheikhs these days are just barred) Allahul Mustaan. Times a tough for the strangers. May Allah Subhanahu Wa Taala make it easy on our youth. Allahuma Ameen Ya Rabb

I only have a problem with silent chickens & snakes who say "don't sit with radwan, he will make you an extremist like Anwar al Awlaki" ☺ Wallah I don't even realise, a few people have come up to me, one of them saying he avoided me for 4+ months for thinking 'I'm too extreme', but then said I was speaking the truth. But this only increases a Muslim in Ēmān and Conviction of being upon the truth.

DQWS RAMADAN FOOD PACK APPEAL

Have you ever had to worry about what you're going to eat for iftar?

No, you've only been thinking about what to eat from all options that are available to you.

OUR MUSLIM BROTHERS AND SISTERS are not so fortunate and some barely have any food to break their fast with!!! Can you imagine that?

DQWS is aiming to distribute food packs to families across the globe this Ramadan and they need YOUR HELP to reach out to the Ummah.

ONLY $50 is needed to feed ONE family!!

So be generous and spend from your wealth, just as you spend on your family to feed them. The Ummah is your family as well. There's no better month to give than the month of Ramadan!

To donate and support the cause, please transfer to this account:

ALLAH ﷻ IS BEAUTIFUL AND HE LOVES BEAUTY

– FEW BENEFITS FROM THIS HADEETH
BY IMAAM IBNUL QAYYIM

The Messenger (salla allahu alayhi-wasallam) said:
"Indeed Allaah is beautiful and He loves beauty".

[Saheeh Muslim 131]

Allah (Glorified be He and free is He from all imperfections) loves to see the manifestation of the blessings bestowed on His slave, for indeed it is among those affairs of beauty beloved to Him – by thanking Him and this (manifests one's) inner beauty (i.e. thankfulness in one's heart) and outer beauty through what He has bestowed (on His slave).

The intent behind this noble Hadeeth is that it combines two great principles: Firstly, 'Knowledge and Awareness' and secondly '(Good) Behaviour'.

To know and acknowledge that Allah is beautiful without comparison (or similarity) to anything else. To worship Allaah (alone) in a beautiful manner through statements, deeds and manners (i.e. those legislated by Allah and His Messenger). Allah loves that the slave beautifies his tongue with truthfulness, his heart with sincerity to (Allah ), love (of Allah ), turning in repentance to Allah, reliance on (Allah) and obedience to Allaah by way of one's limbs.

And (manifestation of beauty from the slave's) body (i.e. physical appearance) -by manifesting the blessings of Allah in his clothing and purifying them from impurities...etc

“SubhānAllāh al-Adheem, the one who Allāh has blessed with Ēmān in his heart, and ofcourse I don't free myself from sins and mistakes, it's there and I am not able to count it (i.e. my sins and mistakes), however I acknowledge the blessings of Allāh upon me.

Alhamdulillah, Allāh has placed in my heart, Tawhīd and Ēmān, love for Islām and its people, love for Tawhīd and the Qur'ān, something I wouldn't exchange for the whole world.

If I were given the whole world, of gold, silver, children, women and everything of the world in 1 line, and this blessing that He has given us (love of Tawhīd & Qur'ān) in 1 line, Wallāhi I would choose this over that (i.e. Tawhīd & Qur'ān over the whole world).

The proof for this, and you know as well (referring to the host) is that I myself have been imprisoned for 18.5 years (stated this in 2013), and Alhamdulillah if the whole world was given to me, just so that I return back from the Haqq by a small hair or even by 1/100, I would not do so whatsoever.”

One of the greatest things I have learnt from seeking knowledge is that I know nothing. Understanding this fact has helped me humble myself, better my character by avoiding arguments, causing Fitnah and solely focus on relating what the truthful righteous Scholars, Shaykhs and Students of Knowledge have mentioned.

Islam is not about my opinion or your opinion, infact our opinions mean nothing and don't deserve to be respected at all, it's the Haqq which solely deserves to be respected.

Shaykh Nasir al-Fahad encourages us all to learn the Principles and the correct application of those Principles according to Ahlal Sunnah, because if you perfect the Usul, the vast majority of misguided Scholars & Preachers in our time won't be able to deceive you.

The purpose of Facebook (and da'wah in general) isn't to call towards ourselves or build a following, but rather it's to grant victory for the Haqq.

And by the permission of Allah, I will continue the Da'wah efforts and do my best in opening treasure chests (of our beloved 'Ulama') that have been locked up and concealed from the English Speaking World.

That is the basis of my Da'wah, to call towards the correct Methodology by translating Audios and Books of the Righteous 'Ulama' following the path of the Salaf - Haters can hate all they want, all the Prophets of Allah had enemies, especially from the 2-faced hypocrites who make up false accusations.

May Allah grant us Ikhlas in what we do (both in public and secret), and allow us to act upon our knowledge, lest it be a proof against us on Yawm al-Qiyamah.

One of the greatest things I have learnt from seeking knowledge is that I know nothing. Understanding this fact has helped me humble myself, better my character by avoiding arguments, causing Fitnah and solely focus on relating what the truthful righteous Scholars, Shaykhs and Students of Knowledge have mentioned.

Islam is not about my opinion or your opinion, infact our opinions mean nothing and don't deserve to be respected at all, it's the Haqq which solely deserves to be respected.

Shaykh Nasir al-Fahad encourages us all to learn the Principles and the correct application of those Principles according to Ahlal Sunnah, because if you perfect the Usul, the vast majority of misguided Scholars & Preachers in our time won't be able to deceive you.

The purpose of Facebook (and da'wah in general) isn't to call towards ourselves or build a following, but rather it's to grant victory for the Haqq.

And by the permission of Allah, I will continue the Da'wah efforts and do my best in opening treasure chests (of our beloved 'Ulama') that have been locked up and concealed from the English Speaking World.

That is the basis of my Da'wah, to call towards the correct Methodology by translating Audios and Books of the Righteous 'Ulama' following the path of the Salaf - Haters can hate all they want, all the Prophets of Allah had enemies, especially from the 2-faced hypocrites who make up false accusations.

So I can say today, from what I know there's no one who follows my classes, who was among my students before I went to prison - Not 1 that I know of, unless they are hiding behind and listening, but someone who interacts and asks questions or that I know of that studies with me, not a single 1.

A brother had a discussion with one of the Khawārij from holland who makes Takfīr upon Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad(حفظه الله), and when our brother showed him that Imām Muhammad Ibn 'Abdul Wahhāb(رحمه الله) said the same thing in "Al-Durar al-Saniyyah" (1/236), where he excused Ibn Hajr al-Haytamī on the Shafā'ah issue, he made Takfīr upon Shaykh al-Islām Muhammad Ibn 'Abdul Wahhāb(رحمه الله).

Dr. Shaykhah Umm al-Barā' al-Filistiniyyah, may Allāh preserve her, was asked:

Asalāmu 'Alaykum wa Rahmatullāhi wa Barakātuh.

I live in the land of Kufr, and I have some friends who call upon some of the Kuffār with the word "brother" or "sir" (master etc).

And I have shown them that this is Harām and isn't permissible, and they replied:

"True, you do have a point".

And when I showed them the proofs, yet despite that, they still call upon them with the same words, so is it obligatory upon me to cut off from them (due to their bad behaviour) and not pray with them??

Your brother: Abū Mus'ab.

Dr. Shaykhah Umm al-Barā' al-Filistiniyyah, may Allāh preserve her, answered by saying:

'Alaykum Asalām wa Rahmatullāhi wa Barakātuh.

The original default relationship with the Kuffār is war and fighting, enmity and hatred, sternness and harshness!

So there's no brotherhood, nor help, nor love, nor friendship, nor allegiance between the Muslims and the Kuffār, and this doesn't debar the permissibility of some interactions with them:

Such as selling and buying with (its) conditions and guidelines, marrying women from the people of the book, giving them gifts and receiving gifts in return, and being just with them, without cheating them etc...

And it's not permissible to praise and commend them, due to what has been narrated from Anas (رضي الله عنه) that he said, the Messenger of Allāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم) said:

"If a Fāsiq is praised, the Lord becomes angry, and the Throne shakes as a result of that".

It was narrated by Ibn Abī al-Dunyā, and al-Bayhaqī in "Shu'b al-Ēmān", and Abū Ya'lah.

And it's not permissible to befriend them and invite them for dining, due to what has been narrated on the authority of Abī Saʿīd al-Khudrī (رضي الله عنه), from the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) that he said:

"Keep only a believer for a companion and let only a pious person eat your food"

It was narrated by Ahmad, Abū Dāwūd and al-Tirmidhī.

And it's not permissible to describe them with attributes of exaltation and honour {such as "Sir"}, due to what has been narrated on the authority of Buraydah (رضي الله عنه) that he said, the Messenger of Allāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم) said to me:

"Do not address a hypocrite with the title of chief, (or similar titles of respect) for even if he deserves this title you will invite Allah's Wrath by using it for him."

It was narrated by Al-Bukhārī in "Al-Adab al-Mufrad", Abū Dāwūd and Al-Nasāʾī.

So what's incumbent upon you is to advise them, teach them, and warn them (i.e. your muslim friends) from having any kind of affection towards the enemies of Allāh, so if they still remained upon what they're doing, then it's prescribed to cut off from them if there was a Maslaha (benefit) in cutting off from them, such as them leaving any kind of affection to them & staying away from them.

But if cutting off from them doesn't bring about any Maslaha (benefit), then it's not prescribed to cut off (from them), and what's incumbent upon you is to continuously persist in giving advice, encouragements and warnings - without despairing - and you will receive your reward Inshā'Allāh.

Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah (رحمه الله) said:

"But as for cutting off by expressive disapproval & criticism, such as the cutting off performed by the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) and his companions with the 3 who remained behind (from fighting), and the cutting off performed by 'Umar and the Muslims to "Subaygh", then this is from the types of punishments, so if a good result or fending off evil were to come out from this (action of) cutting off, then it is prescribed, and if it were to result in greater corruption than the sin itself (committed by that person), then it is not prescribed". [Majmū' al-Fatāwah].

With regards to praying with them, then it's valid, but rather the Salāh is only rendered void behind a Kāfir, and your friends did not commit any nullifier from the nullifiers of Islām, and there's no need to hasten (in Takfīr) in these matters.

And Allāh knows best.

Guys, why do you feel the urge to re-iterate and tell a coconut "You're a coconut" (I don't even like using this term), like how is that helpful in any way? C'mon, as our wise brother Abu Aysha said, why can't we make him a banana?

You know, if you went up to a Kafir and told him "Listen here you Kafir", do you think he's going to listen? He would most likely wanna hit you for being an idiot, let alone be interested in Islam.

Yes we must have Bara'ah from the Kuffar, but some people go to an extreme in Wala' wal Bara' and forget to call people to Islam.

Allah has blessed you with Baseerah, and so many muslims don't have this, we need to help them out and show them the right path with wisdom and manners, *starting with myself first* - It's something we all gotta work on & improve.

*Facing the Qiblah*

Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tarēfē(حفظه الله) said:

“And it's an obligation upon the Imām and Followers (behind the Imām) and the One who Prays alone to face the Qiblah in the obligatory and optional Salāh, and what is excluded from this is the one who isn't able to face the Qiblah, such as someone who prays on the plane, or in a ship which diverges him away from it (i.e. Qiblah), then he is excused, and he starts off his Salāh by facing the Qiblah, so if it changed direction, there's no blame upon him.

*Salāh in the car and elsewhere*

And there's no difference of opinion amongst the Fuqahā': That the optional Salāh is permissible in the car or elsewhere while travelling, and they make the Sujūd lower than the Rukū', and he gestures that by nodding, and it's not compulsory upon him to face the Qiblah, according to the overwhelming majority of the Scholars, and 'Abdullāh Ibn 'Umar would say about Allāh ta'ālah's statement:

"So wherever you [might] turn, there is the Face of Allah (Note: this is the only verse where the "face" of Allāh is diverted to meaning the Qiblah, for indeed Allāh has a face unlike what the innovators claim)" [2:115].

"It was revealed during the Salāh of the Messenger of Allāh(صلى الله عليه وسلم) in his travel while he was on his mount" [1].

And the Scholars differed over the Recommendation of facing the Qiblah to start off in it:

So the Majority of the Scholars don't view it prescribed: Abū Hanīfah, Mālik and Al-Shāfi'.

And Imām Ahmad, and Abū Thawr adopted the view that it's prescribed, and what they used as proof is what Abū Dāwūd narrated on the authority of al-Jārūd Ibn Abī Sabrah in his narration from Anas Ibn Mālik that:

"When the Messenger of Allah (ﷺ) was on a journey and wished to say voluntary prayer, he made his she-camel face the qiblah and uttered the takbir (Allah is most great), then prayed in whatever direction his mount made his face." [2].

And al-Jārūd was alone in reporting this Hadīth, and facing the Qiblah wasn't narrated to begin with, neither in the Hadīth of 'Abdillāh Ibn 'Umar(3) [رضي الله عنه], nor in the Hadīth of Jābir(4) [رضي الله عنه], nor in the Hadīth of 'Abdillāh Ibn 'Āmir(5) [رضي الله عنه];

For it has been narrated from the Messenger of Allāh(صلى الله عليه وسلم) and none of the narrations mention facing the Qiblah in it, but rather al-Jārūd over here was alone in mentioning it, and it was defected by Ibn al-Qayyim(رحمه الله) in his book "Al-Zād" [6], and he said that it's not prescribed to face the Qiblah for the beginning of the optional prayer while travelling upon one's mount, and that he is supposed to pray in whichever direction it faces.

Moreover, indeed the Salāh has been narrated from several companions with Authentic Chains of Transmissions, such as Ibn 'Umar, Anas, Abī Dhar, Al-Zubayr, and it hasn't been confirmed from any one of them: that he faced the Qiblah in the beginning of his prayer.

And the Hadīth of al-Jārūd was acted upon as a means of taking precaution, by Imām Ahmad, as he normally does in going by the weak (narration) which has slight weakness as a precaution to keep safe.

And there's no difference between a long & short travel for praying upon one's mount, and whether he would shorten the Salāh in his travel or not, it's permissible for him to pray upon his mount, and this is according to the Majority of the Scholars, except that Mālik - in 1 opinion - restricted it to travel in which the Salāh is shortened, and no one agreed with him - from what I know - over his statement.

For indeed Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) has made "Tayammum" a concession for the traveller if he didn't carry water with him, and the overwhelming majority of the Scholars are of the view that whoever leaves his city by 1 mile or less, and his intention is to return back to his home, not to make another travel, and he doesn't find water: It's permissible for him to make "Tayammum", and he is included within the general concession given in the Āyah, and just as he is permitted to make Tayammum to this extent, it's permissible for him to change directions while riding on the mount due to them sharing commonalities in the concession.

Moreover, the apparent wisdom from giving a concession for the optional Salāh in the car: Is to ease the ability to perform optional prayers for the worshippers, and to increase in doing it due to its enormous rewards, a mercy from Allāh for them (i.e. his creation), and a completion for their flawed deeds, so the door for the concession given isn't tightened as long as it doesn't contradict an explicit text.

And Al-Tabaī(رحمه الله) said: "I do not know anyone who agreed with Mālik over his statement".

And when residing: The optional prayer isn't prayed upon riding animals: {Or a Boat or Car or Train}, and what falls under its ruling at all times, contrary to Abī Yūsuf, and Abī Saīd al-Istakhri from the Shāfi'iyyah, and others.

As for the obligatory prayer - while travelling or residing - then it is not performed on the riding animal, and Ibn Battāl [7] has mentioned the Ijmā' of the Scholars upon stipulating going down onto the floor in the obligatory Salāh, and that it's not permissible for anyone to pray the obligatory Salāh upon the mount (riding animal) without an excuse.

And there's no difference between a man and woman with regards to performing optional prayers upon the mount in travelling, but as for what has been narrated by Abī Dāwūd [8], from the Hadīth of Muhammad Ibn Shu'ayb, from al-Nu'mān Ibn al-Mundhir, from 'Attā' Ibn Abī Rabāh, that he asked 'Ā'isha(رضي الله عنها):

"Can women offer prayer on a riding beast? She replied: They were not permitted to do so in hardship or comfort."

Muhammad Ibn Shu'ayb (i.e. the narrator) said: "What this refers too: Is the obligatory Salāh".

And as for what Baqī Ibn Makhlad narrated in his "Musnad", from the chain of Yūnus, from 'Anbasah Ibn al-Azhar, from Abī Khirāsh, from 'Ā'isha(رضي الله عنها) that she said:

"Whenever we went travelling with the Messenger of Allāh(صلى الله عليه وسلم), when the time for Salāh came, we were ordered to pray on our mounts".

It is a Hadīth which isn't authentic, and with regards to 'Anbasah Ibn al-Azhar, Abū Hātim al-Rāzī said:

"His Hadīths are to be written down, and he's not used as proof" [9].

And (the narrator) Abū Khirāsh: "Is not known".

And (the narrator) Yūnus, is: Ibn Kathīr, his situation is differed upon [10].

And the general basic principle: Is that there's no difference between a man or woman pertaining that."

And when residing: The optional prayer isn't prayed upon riding animals: {Or a Boat or Car or Train}, and what falls under its ruling at all times, contrary to Abī Yūsuf, and Abī Saīd al-Istakhī from the Shāfi'iyyah, and others.

As for the obligatory prayer - while travelling or residing - then it is not performed on the riding animal, and Ibn Battāl [7] has mentioned the Ijmā' of the Scholars upon stipulating going down onto the floor in the obligatory Salāh, and that it's not permissible for anyone to pray the obligatory Salāh upon the mount (riding animal) without an excuse.

And there's no difference between a man and woman with regards to performing optional prayers upon the mount in travelling, but as for what has been narrated by Abī Dāwūd [8], from the Hadīth of Muhammad Ibn Shu'ayb, from al-Nu'mān Ibn al-Mundhir, from 'Attā' Ibn Abī Rabāh, that he asked 'Ā'isha(رضي الله عنها):

"Can women offer prayer on a riding beast? She replied: They were not permitted to do so in hardship or comfort."

Muhammad Ibn Shu'ayb (i.e. the narrator) said: "What this refers too: Is the obligatory Salāh".

And as for what Baqī Ibn Makhlad narrated in his "Musnad", from the chain of Yūnus, from 'Anbasah Ibn al-Azhar, from Abī Khirāsh, from 'Ā'isha(رضي الله عنها) that she said:

"Whenever we went travelling with the Messenger of Allāh(صلى الله عليه وسلم), when the time for Salāh came, we were ordered to pray on our mounts".

It is a Hadīth which isn't authentic, and with regards to 'Anbasah Ibn al-Azhar, Abū Hātim al-Rāzī said:

"His Hadīths are to be written down, and he's not used as proof" [9].

And (the narrator) Abū Khirāsh: "Is not known".

And (the narrator) Yūnus, is: Ibn Kathīr, his situation is differed upon [10].

And the general basic principle: Is that there's no difference between a man or woman pertaining that."

#Adhān_and_Iqāmah #Fiqh

- The Tenth Matter: Standing up to make the Adhān and Iqāmah.

Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tarēfī(حفظه الله) said: It is from the Sunnah that Mu'adhin calls the Adhān & Iqāmah for the Salāh, while he is standing up, according to the agreement of the Scholars; The Ijmā' pertaining that has been mentioned by Ibn al-Mundhir(رحمه الله), and no one disagreed except for Abū Thawr and Abū al-Faraj Al-Mālikī.

And I do not know of any explicit textual evidence from the Sunnah commanding to stand up while calling the Adhān, however it's mentioned in the "Sahīh":

"Stand up and call the Adhān".

And it's not explicit, however the command is agreed upon as it's aforementioned, and the callers of the Adhān of the Messenger of Allāh(صلى الله عليه وسلم) would (always) call the Adhān standing up, of what is displayable from their situation.

The Adhān and Iqāmah are both valid while sitting down, if there was an excuse, such as being sick and what's similar to that, according to the agreement of the Scholars.

"Al-Bayhaqī" has narrated with a good chain of transmission that Abā Zayd Al-Ansārī(رضي الله عنه) "called the Adhān and Iqāmah while he was sitting down" [1].

And he was crippled, his leg was injured (while fighting) in the path of Allāh, and some of the Fuqahā' have said it's not valid (to call the Adhān sitting down) without an excuse, and this is questionable!

For the 'Ulamā' are in agreement over the permissible of the Adhān of the rider during his travel without it being disliked.

And among those who cited not knowing any difference of opinion is Ibn 'Abdil Barr(رحمه الله) in "Al-Istidhkār" [2].

And "Al-Bayhaqī" narrated from the Hadīth of al-Hassan al-Basrī as a Mursal (narration):

"That the Messenger of Allāh(صلى الله عليه وسلم) commanded Bilāl during the state of travel, so he called the Adhān upon his mount, then they came down, so they prayed 2 Rak'ahs & 2 Rak'ahs, then he commanded him, so he got up, so he led them for the morning (i.e. Fajr) prayer".

And he (i.e. Al-Bayhaqī) also narrated on the authority of 'Abdillāh Ibn 'Umar(رضي الله عنهما):

"That he would call the Adhān upon his mount, then he got down & called the Iqāmah" [3].

Also the Adhān and Iqāmah is valid according to the agreement of the Scholars from the rider who's residing (i.e. not a traveller), even if it was performed without an excuse.

Likewise the Adhān and Iqāmah is valid from the one who's walking, with it being disliked according to the correct view. And the Sunnah is to stand up & keep still.

🔖 Footnotes :

[1] It was narrated by "al-Bayhaqī" (1883).

[2] "Al-Istidhkār" (1/87).

[3] It was narrated by "Al-Bayhaqī" (1/392).

The 'Ulamā', may Allāh have mercy upon them differed over the ruling on performing Ghusl on the day of Jum'ah, and the most correct opinion is that it's compulsory, due to 5 proofs:

1. The Messenger(صلى الله عليه وسلم) commanded: "Whenever one of you come for Jum'ah, he should perform Ghusl (beforehand)".
2. The Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم)'s statement: "It is obligatory (a right of Allāh) for every Muslim that he should take a bath once in every seven days"
3. The Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم)'s statement: "Ghusl on the day of Jum'ah is 'wājib' (compulsory) upon every (male) that has reached the age of puberty".
4. 'Umar (Ibn al-Khattāb) rebuking 'Uthmān (Ibn 'Affān) when he entered the Masjid without having performed Ghusl (on Jum'ah).

Q. With regards to a muslimah marrying a kaffir we all know this is completelty haram. However on a discusion i seen some people making takfir on her saying the action is kufr. I understand if she mad ishtihlal but if a muslimah does it knowing its haram, does she fall under kufr without making ishtihlal

A. Okay, committing Zinā is a Major Sin & only the Khawārij make Takfeer upon such an individual, and Ahlul Sunnah Wal Jamā'ah only make Takfīr upon the Zānī if he declares it lawful (which is called Istihlāl). Now with regards to Istihlāl, this can be indicated through 'actions', so someone who gets 'married' to a Kāfir can fall into Kufr in that sense, however it's not permissible to make this a general blank ruling, as several factors must be taken into consideration (we need to find out whether she makes Istihlāl).

The example mentioned to defend this statement is:

“A man slept with the wife of his father, and he was punished as a Kāfir.”

Now let us look at this particular incident with a tiny bit of detail.

First we should bring the exact narration to see what is said verbatim:

al-Barā Ibn 'Āzib (may Allāh be pleased with him) said:

لَفِئْتُ خَالِي أَبَا بُرْدَةَ وَمَعَهُ الزَّايَةُ فَقَالَ أَرْسَلَنِي رَسُولُ اللَّهِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ إِلَى رَجُلٍ تَرَوَّجَ امْرَأَةً أَبِيهِ أَنْ "أَقْتُلُهُ وَأَخْذَ مَالَهُ".

“I met my (maternal) uncle, Abu Burdah, and with him was the Flag (of Allah's Messenger ﷺ). So he said: Allah's Messenger ﷺ has sent me to a man who has married his step-mother (the wife of his father). He has ordered me to kill him and seize his wealth.”

• This can be found (with slightly different variations) in Abū Dawūd, al-Nasāī, al-Dārimī and Ahmad.

A couple of points to consider and remember here before we proceed:

1. The man MARRIED the wife of his father and not simply fell into the action of Zinā

2. The fact the Prophet ﷺ ordered his wealth to be seized does indicate disbelief (i.e. Seizing 1/5th of his wealth is only to be done to a Kāfir)

al-Imām al-Tahāwī, al-Imām al-Shawkānī and many others الله رحمهم commented on this narration رحمه الله as he summarised and explained clearly and concisely:

'Abdullāh Ibn Ahmad Ibn Hanbal رحمه الله said:

سَأَلْتُ أَبِي عَنْ حَدِيثِ النَّبِيِّ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ أَنَّ رَجُلًا تَزَوَّجَ امْرَأَةً أَبِيهِ فَأَمَرَ النَّبِيُّ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ أَنْ يَقْتُلَهُ وَأَخَذَ مَالَهُ.

“I asked my father regarding the hadīth of the Prophet ﷺ about the man who married his step-mother, so the Prophet ﷺ ordered his killing and the seizing of his wealth.”

“فَقَالَ أَبِي: نَرَى، وَاللَّهِ أَعْلَمُ، أَنَّ ذَلِكَ مِنْهُ عَلَى الْإِسْتِحْلَالِ، فَأَمَرَ بِقَتْلِهِ بِمَنْزِلَةِ وَأَخَذَ مَالَهُ.”

“Then my father said: We view, and Allāh knows best, that this was due to Istihlāl (making lawful that which Allāh prohibited), so he (the Messenger of Allah ﷺ) ordered his execution and the seizing of his wealth (as an apostate).”

• Masā'il al-Imām Ahmad Ibn Hanbal

So the reason why this individual left the Millah was not simply due to the sole action of Zinā with the woman, but because he did Istihlāl by marrying her.

Conclusion: So it's not permissible my dear brother to make an unrestricted statement that everyone who marries a Kāfir or his step-mum (like in this narration) as a Kāfir, even though it could be possible in many circumstances, however each case is judged accordingly, no general ruling is given, some people may be ignorant, and Allāh knows best.

Shaykh Humūd al-'Uqlā' (رحمه الله) also has a nice fatwa about some young brothers who fell into ghulu by making takfeer upon sisters for not wearing proper hijab! How so? Because they said "She wears improperly dressed clothes every day, so it's like she is pleased with it and making it permissible", however the shaykh refuted such claims in his fatwa, by saying this is the madhab of the Khawārij to make takfeer on Major Sins.

Even if someone committed Zina his whole life, but deep down knew it was haram, however out of his wicked desires from the shaytan, he had this habit, he would be among the worst muslimen and major sinners, but we wouldn't declare him a kafir until he is pleased with the act and there is clear indication that he permits it.

A sister marrying a Kāfir is similar in the sense that she can view it "allowed" and "fine to do so", this is clearly Kufr without dispute.

I hope this helps, And Allāh سبحانه وتعالى knows best.

Brothers & Sisters, feeling the pain of the Ummah is a characteristic of the believers, but it's very important to differentiate between feeling 'upset' for the Ummah and feeling 'hopeless & down' as you go about your life.

Keep holding those blessed feelings for your brothers & sisters, but at the same time, there is nothing wrong with being happy, infact despite everything happening in your life and the pain the Ummah is going through, you can still be yourself, be cheerful and exciting, greet each other with a smile & have occasional jokes, don't be 'boring'.

Yes in a time like this, you're very Strange & Unique, but what an honour it is to be strange in a corrupt time like ours, where the Tawāghīt have made 'evil' as good and 'good' as evil. People can say what they want, all that matters is that you're an honourable believer in the eyes of Allāh.

So keep your chin up, be happy and keep striving like you already are, and also don't be deceived, for Allāh can replace you with others who sincerely love Him more & follow his commands, how scary is being replaced, may Allāh forgive us, protect us and allow us to do the best we can.

Keep holding those blessed feelings for your brothers & sisters, but at the same time, there is nothing wrong with being happy, infact despite everything happening in your life and the pain the Ummah is going through, you can still be yourself, be cheerful and exciting, greet each other with a smile & have occasional jokes, don't be 'boring'.

Yes in a time like this, you're very Strange & Unique, but what an honour it is to be strange in a corrupt time like ours, where the Tawāghīt have made 'evil' as good and 'good' as evil. People can say what they want, all that matters is that you're an honourable believer in the eyes of Allāh.

So keep your chin up, be happy and keep striving like you already are, and also don't be deceived, for Allāh can replace you with others who sincerely love Him more & follow his commands, how scary is being replaced, may Allāh forgive us, protect us and allow us to do the best we can.

IMPORTANT ELEMENTS OF FRIENDSHIP: CHEERFULNESS, GENTLENESS, LOVE, AND KINDNESS

When you meet your brother, at the very least you should meet him with a smile and a cheerful face. It is basic Islamic etiquette for a Muslim to meet his brother with a smile every time he meets him. Abu Dharr رضى الله عنه said, "The Prophet ﷺ said to me, 'Do not disparage in the least any good deed, even if it is to meet your brother with a cheerful face.'" Related by Muslim (2626) and At-Tirmidhee (1833)

And this is from the narration of Jaabir رضى الله عنه: "Every good deed is charity (Sadaqah), and indeed, it is good deed to meet your brother with a cheerful face..." Related by Ahmad (14299) and At-Tirmidhee (1970), who said, "This Hadeeth is Hasan Saheeh."

Gentleness, love, compassion, and kindness - these strengthen the ties of brotherhood, for, "Allah loves Ar-Rifq (gentleness and kindness) in all matters (in both worldly and religious matters)." Related by Bukhaaree from the Hadeeth of 'Aaisha (radiAllahu anha) (6024); by Muslim (2165), by

Ahmad (23570), by At-Tirmidhee (2701), and by Ad-Daarimee (2794)

And Allah عز و جل is "Rafeeq (kind, gentle, merciful), and He loves Ar-Rifq (kindness, gentleness, and mercy). He gives for gentleness that which He does not give for harshness and that which He does not give for anything else." Related by Muslim (2593)

Ibn Mas'ood رضي الله عنه related that the Prophet ﷺ said, "Forbidden upon the Hellfire is the easygoing, flexible, easy-to-deal-with, and easy-to-be sociable-with person." Related by Ahmad (3928), and the above-mentioned wording is from his narration of the Hadeeth; and by At-Tirmidhee (2488), who said, "This Hadeeth is Hasan Ghareeb." The commentators of Al-Musnad said, "By virtue of other narrations that attest to it, it is Hasan." (3938) (7/53)

One of the ways of increasing love between brothers and of removing rancor from their hearts is for them to give gifts to one another. In his Muwattah, Maalik related that the Messenger of Allah ﷺ said, "Shake hands with one another: rancor will go away [from your hearts]. And give gifts to one another: you will love one another and [all] enmity [between you] will go away." Al-Muwattah (1685). Ibn 'Abdul-Barr said, "This Hadeeth is connected through various chains, all of which are Hasan." (At-Tamheed 12/21)

Please brothers, I'm not at home all the time to check messages. If I haven't responded to your message in 2-3 days, feel free to remind me, I may forget or be busy at the time. The last thing I want to read is "Akhī, don't you love me anymore?", "Akhī, did I do something wrong?", "Akhī, you broke my heart", "Are you ignoring me?", "Have you blocked me bro?".

I don't mind receiving questions, and I try my best to get back to everyone fairly, but please develop a sense of understanding. Ramadān is coming up shortly, so I'll be focusing more on myself now, Bārak Allāhu feekum.

Clarification: Shaykh Al-'Allāmah Sulaymān Ibn Nāsir al-'Alwān(حفظه الله) is one of the most knowledgeable 'Ulamā' of our time who remained as firm as a mountain upon Tawhid. He didn't step down upon his principles whatsoever, unlike the others who became Sell-Outs, may Allāh protect us from deviating off the right path.

It's also worthy of mentioning that when the Shaykh got released, he was only free from 2012-2013, he wasn't even free for 1 year, and they took him back to prison (any audio from the shaykh is before 2014)!

As for those ignorant people who want to take a 1 min audio and apply it today, his student Sa'd al-Mutlaq wrote a refutation against that audio taken out of context, hiding the question, spreading it without his permission in prison (unable to clarify).

Secondly that audio was in 2013, so those who spread false news need to fear Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى), and these dogs who spread it accuse the Truthful as being "Khawārij" when in the same audio he calls them "Brothers", and look what happened to Ahrār & the Sahwajīs later on, exposed as being puppets of the Tawāghīt.

Also what they don't mention is that in 2013, the Shaykh gave several audios defending the actions of those who are called "Khawārij" by the Murtaddīn, and he gave an 11 min lecture saying what the Muwahhiddīn are doing in dealing with the Apostates (Nusayriyyah & Rāfidah) is in accordance with the Consensus of the Scholars, and those who call them Khawārij are Misguided and Murji'ah, they have a disease in their hearts.

In the end of the day, Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān(حفظه الله) is not infallible, and he makes mistakes just like everyone else, however these Sahwajīs who claim to follow him are among the furthest away from his teachings and even condemn it!

Alhamdulillah that Allāh has shown us those who are upon the correct teachings, who are merciful to the believers and stern against the Kuffār and Apostates.

Q. What is the ruling on taking photos and videos?

A. Our Ustādh, Shaykh Abū Umar(حفظه الله) said:

“There's a big difference of opinion on this issue, can be summarized in the following:

1- Drawing objects with a soul is extremely prohibited and carries a severe punishment.

2- Making objects with a soul (teddy bears, statues/toys in the shape of animals, balloons in the shape of an animal, etc.) also prohibited. There may be an exception for dolls according to some scholars, and for educational purposes according to others.

3- Taking photos with a camera - this is where most of the dispute lies. Some totally prohibit it with the exception of necessity (ID, etc.), others allow it generally. Keeping these photos in an album or hanging them around the house is another issue and is prohibited. Some allow keeping them if they are hidden at all times.

4- Taking videos is allowed.”

Just an additional note: Most of the Scholars from Najd will say it's Harām to take photos (except for Necessity like ID, documenting crimes etc...), and they responded against those who said "there's a difference between a camera taking a photo and a person drawing a photo", so for e.g. In Sharh Kitāb at-Tawhīd, Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr quoted Hamūd al-Tuwayjirī(رحمه الله) who compared that to saying if someone drinks alcohol made by his hands, that's Harām, however if a machine makes it for him, would he be allowed to drink it? No, so likewise in this issue of photography.

So you will find from Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr, Sulaymān al-'Alwān, Shaykh Muhammad Ibn Ibrāhīm all prohibiting taking photos, however it's a disputed matter and I personally lean towards the view that it's not considered imitating or creating an image of the creation of Allāh (to earn the curse of Allāh), and it's like a reflected mirror image.

As for "Emojis", they are fine to use Inshā'Allāh as they don't resemble human faces to begin with, but as for "animé" characters used in kids shows, their features are much different to human faces, and it's really essential that our children watch Islamic Kids Shows that teach Fus'ha instead of being exposed to what's promoted by the west.

Shaykh Ibn 'Uthaymeen (may Allaah have mercy on him) was asked: What is the ruling on cartoons that appear on TV?

He replied: With regard to the cartoons which you say appear on TV, if they are in the form of humans, then the ruling on watching them depends on whether they come under the same ruling as realistic human images or not? It is most likely that they do not come under that ruling.

If they are not in the form of humans, then there is nothing wrong with watching them, so long as they are not accompanied by anything haraam such as music and so on, and they do not distract from obligatory duties. End quote.

Q. Assalamu Alaykum brother brother when u have time can u check if this is authentic regarding shaaban

It is the month is which people's deeds are taken up to the Lord of the Worlds, and I would like my deeds to be taken up whilst I am fasting." Classed as hasan by al-Albaani in Saheeh al-Nasaa'i, 2221.

A. Wa 'Alaykum Asalām wa Rahmatullāhi Wa Barakātuhu, yes it was declared Hassan by Shaykh al-Albānī(رحمه الله), however that reference is not correct - It was also declared authentic by Imām Ibn Khuzaymah(رحمه الله), but what's clear is that this Hadīth is weak & there's nothing authentic whatsoever on this topic, I have translated a good response to what brother Ahmad Abū Anas shared on "Majlis Alūkah" forum, which says:

"There's no Hadīth confirmed from the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) that the deeds are raised up in the month of Sha'bān, and there's nothing authentic concerning this matter, and this is from the matters of the unseen, which isn't affirmed except by an authentic text.

It has been narrated from the Hadīth of Usāmah Ibn Zayd(رضي الله عنه) as it's collected in Al-Nasāī, from the chain of:

'Abdul Rahmān Ibn Mahdī > Thābit Ibn Qays Abū al-Ghasn > Sa'īd al-Maqbarī > from Usāmah Ibn Zayd(رضي الله عنه) that he said:

"It is the month is which people's deeds are taken up to the Lord of the Worlds, and I would like my deeds to be taken up whilst I am fasting." [Sunan al-Nasāī 2327] and it was narrated by Imām Ahmad with a (slightly) longer wording than this (in his Musnad 2327).

And this Hadīth is Weak, "Thābit Ibn Qays Abū al-Ghasn" was alone in reporting it, and he is weak with regards to his precision, and has only narrated a few Hadīths, he isn't well-known.

Imām Ahmad said about him: "Trustworthy". [1]

And Imām al-Nasāī said: "There's nothing wrong with him". [2]

And both of their statements are in relation to his integrity (i.e. he is truthful, doesn't lie), and not in relation to his precision.

This is explained by the statement of Yahya Ibn Ma'in, wherein he said: "He's weak, his Hadīth isn't that good and he is Sālih, there's nothing wrong with him".

So his weakness here is in relation to his precision, and his trustworthiness is in relation to his integrity.

That is why he was weakened in relation to his precision by Imām Abū Dāwūd al-Sijistānī wherein he said: "His Hadīths aren't that good".

So the weakening here is in relation to his Hadīths and Narrations, and not his integrity.

And Abū 'Abdillāh al-Hākim said: "He's not a Hāfidh, nor a Dābit (i.e. he's not someone who's precise)".

And this is also a weakening to his precision and narrations, not to his integrity.

And Ibn Hibbān said: "He makes a lot of errors in what he narrates, his reports are not used as proof if there is no one to support his narration". [3]

And Imām al-Uqaylī mentioned him in "al-Du'afā' al-Kabīr" (i.e. among the weak narrators and rejected his narration).

So these Imāms spoke about him in relation to his poor accuracy & precision, and this is what the "Tawtheeq" (i.e. Declaration of him being reliable) by Ahmad and Al-Nasā'ī is explained as referring to his integrity.

And the weakness of the narration is due to his (poor) precision, not due to his integrity.

So he has gathered between poor accuracy, with narrating only a few Hadīths, along with being alone in reporting this narration, so it's not accepted from him, so the Hadīth is not authentic.

And that is why Ibn 'Adī al-Jarjānī rejected this Hadīth, wherein he mentioned this report of his, and said: "Thābit Ibn Qays is among those who are to have their Hadīths written down (for consideration)." [al-Kāmil Fi Du'afā' al-Rijāl (2/293)].

And this is his Methodology in rejecting the reports of narrators, and what is meant by "among those who are to have their Hadīths written down", i.e. in Shawāhid and Mutāba'āt (supporting evidence from other narrators), however with regards to "al-Tafarrud" (his singular narrations), it's not accepted from him, such as the situation of this report, and that is why he (i.e. Ibn 'Adī) rejected it.

And it was rejected by Al-Hāfidh Ibn al-Qaysarānī, wherein he quoted this Hadīth along with its Isnād, then said: "And Thābit is not that good." [Thakhīrat al-Huffādh - 3807].

And it could be understood from the speech of Al-Hāfidh al-Bayhaqī that he rejected it, wherein he said: "Al-Ghafārī Thābit Ibn Qays was alone in reporting it." [Shu'b al-Ēmān (3/1401)].”

Therefore, the Hadīth is clearly weak due to the Tafarrud of Thābit Ibn Qays, and Allāh knows best.

Footnotes:

[1] "al-Jarh wal-Ta'dīl" (2/456) for Ibn Abī Hātim.

[2] "Tahthīb al-Tahthīb" (2/13).

This is explained by the statement of Yahya Ibn Ma'īn, wherein he said: "He's weak, his Hadīth isn't that good and he is Sālih, there's nothing wrong with him".

So his weakness here is in relation to his precision, and his trustworthiness is in relation to his integrity.

That is why he was weakened in relation to his precision by Imām Abū Dāwūd al-Sijistānī wherein he said: "His Hadīths aren't that good".

So the weakening here is in relation to his Hadīths and Narrations, and not his integrity.

And Abū 'Abdillāh al-Hākim said: "He's not a Hāfidh, nor a Dābit (i.e. he's not someone who's precise)".

And this is also a weakening to his precision and narrations, not to his integrity.

And Ibn Hibbān said: "He makes a lot of errors in what he narrates, his reports are not used as proof if there is no one to support his narration". [3]

And Imām al-Uqaylī mentioned him in "al-Du'afā' al-Kabīr" (i.e. among the weak narrators and rejected his narration).

So these Imāms spoke about him in relation to his poor accuracy & precision, and this is what the "Tawtheeq" (i.e. Declaration of him being reliable) by Ahmad and Al-Nasāī is explained as referring to his integrity.

And the weakness of the narration is due to his (poor) precision, not due to his integrity.

So he has gathered between poor accuracy, with narrating only a few Hadīths, along with being alone in reporting this narration, so it's not accepted from him, so the Hadīth is not authentic.

And that is why Ibn 'Adī al-Jarjānī rejected this Hadīth, wherein he mentioned this report of his, and said: "Thābit Ibn Qays is among those who are to have their Hadīths written down (for consideration)." [al-Kāmil Fi Du'afā' al-Rijāl (2/293)].

And this is his Methodology in rejecting the reports of narrators, and what is meant by "among those who are to have their Hadīths written down", i.e. in Shawāhid and Mutāba'āt (supporting evidence from other narrators), however with regards to "al-Tafarrud" (his singular narrations), it's not accepted from him, such as the situation of this report, and that is why he (i.e. Ibn 'Adī) rejected it.

And it was rejected by Al-Hāfidh Ibn al-Qaysarānī, wherein he quoted this Hadīth along with its Isnād, then said: "And Thābit is not that good." [Thakhīrat al-Huffādh - 3807].

And it could be understood from the speech of Al-Hāfidh al-Bayhaqī that he rejected it, wherein he said: "Al-Ghafārī Thābit Ibn Qays was alone in reporting it." [Shu'b al-Ēmān (3/1401)]."

Therefore, the Hadīth is clearly weak due to the Tafarrud of Thābit Ibn Qays, and Allāh knows best.

:said (ﷺ)The Messenger of Allah

. [After me I have not left any trial (fitnah) more severe to men than women." [Sahih Al-Bukhari"

When this hadith is mentioned, many of us limit our understanding and interpretation of 'fitnah' to only suggesting sexual temptation, free mixing, zina etc, forgetting that a woman can cause a man . 'to enter fire due to being a 'dayooth

:said (ﷺ)The Messenger of Allah

".Each of you is a shepherd and each of you is responsible for his flock"

[Abu Dawood]

From this hadith we learn also that the husband, father or brother will be accountable before Allah on the Day of Resurrection for his wife, daughter and sisters if he fell short in advising them and .teaching them properly how to dress and behave

Unfortunately it has become a common 'fitnah' for brothers to display photos of their wives on facebook and for fathers and brothers to allow their daughters and sisters to leave the house .dressed but naked and covered in makeup said: "There are three who will not enter Paradise and Allah will not look (ﷺ)The Messenger of Allah :at them on the Day of Resurrection, they are ,the one who disobeys his parents-

,the woman who imitates men-and the Dayooth (a man who has no jealousy for the woman in his care regarding their attitude, - [dress and conduct". [Ahmad

Q. What have the Scholars said about the Hadīth where the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) said to someone drinking standing up that the Shaytān has drank with you, does this make drinking while standing up Harām?

A. Yes some of the Scholars have used this as proof to prohibit drinking while standing, and here is the text for the Hadīth.

It's narrated from the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) that he saw a man drinking while standing, so he said to him:

"Vomit it." He asked, "Why?" The Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) replied:

"Would you like that a cat drinks with you? He replied in the negative, so the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) said:

"Indeed someone worse than that has drank with you, the Shaytān." [Ahmad].

- Shaykh al-Muhaddith 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tarēfē(حفظه لله) has beautifully summed up the answer to your question where he said on the Satellite Channel "Safā":

“Even though the Isnād of this Hadīth is Sahīh, except that some of the 'Ulamā' have interpreted it, and their interpretation of it is because an Ijmā' (i.e. Consensus) has been established that a person doesn't have to vomit whatever he drank (i.e. it's not Wājib to vomit according to consensus), but rather what is intended by that is to show the severity of this matter, and some of the 'Ulamā' have stated that it's abrogated, and that is because the practise of the Sahābah - with regards to the majority of them - is contrary to this, and based upon this Imām Mālik(رحمه الله) has narrated in his book "al-Muwatta" that he said:

"A reporter informed me that 'Umar, 'Uthmān and 'Alī Ibn Abī Tālib (i.e. 3 of the Rightly Guided Caliphs) that they drank while standing up."

And this is what has been practised, as it's narrated from 'Alī Ibn Abī Tālib(رضي الله عنه), that he said:

"I will inflict a punishment on those who forbid others to drink while standing, for I have seen the Messenger of Allāh drink while standing up."

So we say that what relates to this, what's most apparent is that this is for Adab (i.e. to drink while sitting), to be in a state of calmness and tranquility, that a person sits down to drink, and that's the place a believer should remain in, but as for him being sinful, then there is no clear proof to show that, so based upon this, this is what the reported Hadīths are held upon."

Conclusion: So that's just a brief explanation, and as it's well known, this issue of drinking while standing is divided into 3 opinions:

1. That it's Harām based upon the Sahīh Hadīth "The Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) forbade a man to drink while standing." - This is the opinion of Imām Ibn Hazm(رحمه الله), Imām Ibn al-Qayyim(رحمه الله) and others.

2. That it's Makrūh (according to the Majority), and they have used the Principle in Usūl where they gather between the "forbiddance" of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) and then the actions of the Prophet (drinking while standing), and he would do this to show that the "forbiddance" is understood as 'Disliked' instead of 'Harām' (so it's not a sin) - This is also 1 of the 2 opinions of Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān(حفظه الله).

3. That it's Mubāh (permissible), and even though I don't have the tools to determine which view is most correct, this is what appears stronger to me from what I have researched as a seeker of knowledge trying to follow the evidences, and this is the 2nd view adopted by Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān(حفظه الله), and held by several 'Ulamā' before him.

And the prohibition of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) being abrogated is very convincing, as 'Abdullāh Ibn 'Abbās(رضي الله عنه) said: "I gave the Messenger of Allāh water from Zamzam, and he drank it while standing." [Agreed Upon].

Also it's narrated that 'Alī Ibn Abī Tālib(رضي الله عنه) came to Bāb al-Ruhba, and he drank while standing, then said: "Some people hate for one of you to drink while standing, and I saw the Prophet do as you saw me just do." [Sahīh al-Bukhārī].

And finally, to strengthen the view that it's abrogated is the practise of the Sahābah (among them, the Rightly Guided Caliphs who are an example for us to follow). As Imām Mālik(رحمه الله) narrated in "al-Muwatta" that he said:

"A reporter informed me that 'Umar, 'Uthmān and 'Alī Ibn Abī Tālib (i.e. 3 of the Rightly Guided Caliphs) that they drank while standing up."

So I'll finish this with what Shaykh al-'Allāmah Sulaymān al-'Alwān(حفظه الله) has stated:

"And it was said that both choices [to stand or sit] are allowed without it being 'disliked', and that drinking while sitting is better because the Prophet did it more, and this is the correct opinion."

This is a giant religion that needs giants to carry it. Giants become giants after they pass tests, that is how they became giants.

You are going to go then to the Ghafoor Al-Raheem and leave them. Everything starts, like some of the 'Ulamā' said, small and grows bigger, except trials - they become big and subhānAllāh as time goes by, they shrink and become smaller. Trials screen and honour believers.”

Misconception: "An-Najāshī Did Not Rule According to What Allāh Revealed?"

Revised and edited by Abū Huthayfah Yūsuf Al-Kanādī & Abū Sulaymān Haythem Ash-Shāmī

"So Khālīd Al-'Anbarī said that An-Najāshī did not rule his people by what Allāh revealed ,and that if this was an action of Kufr Al-Akbar on its own, then the Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم and the Sahābah, would not have prayed the funeral prayer upon him, obviously because this would have made him a Kāfir.

So we ask, "What about the earlier rule?" How can he expect the Prophet and the Sahābah to judge An-Najāshī with Riddah (apostasy) and leaving the Millah without the Hujjah being made to him?! And because we have no knowledge of the Hujjah being made to him, we would have no knowledge of his Kufr and if only Khālīd Al-'Anbarī would have adhered to his own rules, then maybe he would have seen that the ruler who replaces the laws of the Sharī'ah with his own fabricated laws and legislates in the lives of the Muslims with laws which oppose Islām, is a Kāfir.

About this we say:

Firstly: To claim anything in the Sharī'ah, there must be evidence to prove it. This is from the rules within every science of Islām, be it 'Aqīdah, Fiqh, Tafsīr or anything else. So we reply to this with Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى)'s Saying:

قل هاتوا برهانكم إن كنتم صادقين

Say "Produce your proof if you are truthful." [1].

Then, if they do not produce any evidence, then they are not from the truthful ones.

Secondly: Not only are they claiming something without proof, but they are accusing a Muslim who is a Mukhadhram [2], of an action, which even in their false opinion is Kufr Asghar, and they do this without any evidence.

Yet if we say that an individual of our time, said a statement of Irjā', which is only an accusation towards the statement and not the person, as well as Irjā' being less then ruling by other than what Allāh revealed, we are called Khawārij, even if we bring evidence.

Thirdly: He tries to make Qiyās between An-Najāshī and the current rulers. Let us look at this Qiyās.

1. An-Najāshī died before the Sharī'ah was even finished, as mentioned by Ibn Kathīr in al-Bidāyah Wan-Nihāyah [3], while the rulers today have the full Sharī'ah that they can rule with.

2. In the time of An-Najāshī, the methods of communication were few, and they were very slow and not accessible all the time. The new Ahkām that would be revealed and would not reach the people in Al-Habashah for a long time, if they even did reach there.

This is clearly proven in the Hadīth of 'Abdullāh Ibn Mas'ūd رضي الله عنه, who said: "We used to give the Salām to the Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم while he was praying, then he would reply to us. Then when we returned from An-Najāshī, we gave the Salām to him then he did not reply to us. So we said: O Messenger of Allāh, verily we used to give Salām to you, then you would reply to us. He said: ((Verily in the Salāt there is activity))" [4].

3. We know from the statements of Al-'Anbarī, www.salafipublications.com and all those like them, that they would say that the one who doesn't rule by the Sharī'ah is a Thālim/Fāsiq. So here we close this issue with the following. Since An-Najāshī died before the completion of the Sharī'ah, he can only be in one of the following four categories:

* a) The first is that, he had with him, knowledge of all of what was revealed from the Sharī'ah up to that point, and he ruled with all of it. ❖

* b) The second is that he had knowledge of all of what was revealed from the Sharī'ah up to that point and he didn't rule with all of it. ❖

* c) The third is that he didn't have all of what was revealed from the Sharī'ah up to that point, but he ruled with all of what he had. ❖

* d) The fourth is that he didn't have all of what was revealed from the Sharī'ah at that point and he didn't rule with all of what he had. ❖

If An-Najāshī was in the first category, then they cannot use his issue as evidence, because it is totally false, even though him having all of the Sharī'ah at that point is extremely unlikely due to what has passed from the evidence.

Also, if he is in the third category, then his issue cannot be used as evidence, because he did all of what he was knew of, and we know that no one has held upon him more than he knows, and that ignorance is an excuse when someone tries there hardest. If he is in either the second or fourth category, meaning that he didn't rule with all of what he had knowledge of from the Sharī'ah, then these would be the only categories that could be used as evidence, with the condition that it could be proven, which it cant be.

But we know that this wasn't the case due to the following Hadīth. From Jābir Ibn 'Abdullāh, may Allāh be pleased with him, that the Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم said when An-Najāshī died:

((Today a righteous man died, so stand up and pray upon your brother, As'hamah)) [5], and in a narration: ((...A righteous slave of Allāh...)) [6].

So this is proof that he ruled with all of what he had at the time, whether he had all of what was revealed from the Sharī'ah at that time, or only some of it. This is because, if he didn't rule with all of what he had knowledge of, then this action would be Kufr Asghar according to them, and it would be Thulm and Fisq. And since An-Najāshī would have known of these Ahkām, then he would have no excuse, so he himself would have been a Thālim and a Fāsiq.

But we know that he wasn't a Thālim or a Fāsiq, because the Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم called him ((...A righteous man...)) in one narration, and a ((...A righteous slave of Allāh...)) in another narration. And we seek refuge in Allāh from saying that the Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم would call a Thālim or a Fāsiq a righteous man.

So these are some examples of how Khālid Al-'Anbarī has not really understood the issues of Imān, Kufr and Takfir just as we've seen www.salafipublications.com have not either."

IT'S NOT ALLOWED TO TOUCH A WOMAN IN RUQYA

"Likewise, some of those who do Ruqyā have become lenient, he places his hands upon the woman, and this is Harām and isn't permissible, and it's not allowed for a man to touch a woman that isn't lawful for him, and whenever a Rāqī is found placing his hand on a woman, it's compulsory to condemn him and prevent him from doing Ruqyā, except if he repented, and it's not permissible for a man to place his hand upon a woman. Many of those who do Ruqyā have been seduced by the women due to sitting with them and doing Ruqyā on them, and some of the women sit down and don't understand, some women don't understand, she thinks this is from the consequences of the Ruqyā, that even some of the women after making her Tawbah and she admits to this, that some of those who do Ruqyā had illicit unlawful relations with her, she thinks this is from the end-result of the necessity of Ruqyā until she is discharged [from the symptoms and evil effects]..."

Misconception: A grave worshipper can be excused due to ignorance if he doesn't know that du'ā to the dead is considered "worship" because of the environment he was raised in and the wicked Scholars misguiding him.

Answer: In brief, ignorance is only a valid impediment in confusing and unclear matters, not matters such as those that relate to Major Shirk, which is Asl al-Dīn.

As for being ignorant that "du'ā" is considered worship, then this is not an excuse whatsoever, because as it's well known, the Monks and Rabbis diverted legislation (which is worship) to other than Allāh & permitted what Allāh has prohibited and vice versa - And those christians and jews who "obeyed" them in that committed "Shirk al-Tā'ah" (i.e. Shirk in Obedience).

And the christians and jews did not know that their obedience to them was considered worship, as it's narrated from 'Adī Ibn Hātim that he came to the Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم and heard him recite the Āyah,

"they took their rabbis and monks as lords besides Allāh."

In which 'Adi Ibn Hātim replied "But we did not worship them", so the majority of the Jews and Christians who disbelieved were blind followers and didn't know what they did was "Shirk", yet Allāh & the Messenger صلى الله عليه وسلم did not excuse them at all.

And Muhammad Ibn 'Abdil Wahhāb(الله رحمه الله) wrote a separate chapter-heading in Kitāb at-Tawhīd: "The chapter of obeying the Scholars and Leaders in prohibiting what Allāh declared lawful, or permitting what Allāh declared forbidden, then he has taken them as lords besides Allāh".

And just to add a final point, dwla Scholar Abū Mālik al-Tamīmī(الله رحمه الله) has two 1 hour + lectures on the 3rd nullifier refuting the false understanding of the Hāzīmī Ghulāt, in which I would like to take down notes to share with you all:

But the Shaykh gave an example regarding the one who says that someone far away (in a remote area) can be excused because he is Jāhil (ignorant) - Now "ignorance" is a valid Māni', but the application of it in this situation is "wrong", therefore this is called "talbees" (i.e. Confusion), so this person must have the hujjah explained and shown to him that ignorance is not a valid Māni' in Major Shirk, if he is finally shown the evidences and the ruling of Allāh has reached him regarding such an individual, then the Hujjah has been established upon him, so he either returns back from his statement or else if he still insists in excusing him, he becomes a Kāfir.

And this matter of "Excuse of ignorance" has lots of misconceptions, misinterpretations, wrong applications of valid Mawāni', which many Scholars have made a mistake in, let alone the unclearness of the matter to the laymen, may Allāh grant us insight.

Radwan Dakkak There's no trials for these people brother, they simply grab them and throw them in prison, some are in prison for over 20-25 years for speaking the truth. Many factors can be the cause behind the release of our brothers and sisters, no doubt it is from the power of Allāh, and then with the help of the Muslims, pressure from the community and Allāh knows best what other reasons. Alhamdulillah, this is from the favours of Allāh, may Allāh free all of our beloved Scholars, and the rest of our brothers & sisters from the dungeons of the Tawāghit.

You can never count the blessings that Allāh has bestowed upon you. Allāh has shown me many signs & wisdoms just recently, and He is only making me firmer and stronger than I was before.

SubhānAllāh, just when you're about to completely lose hope & think you can never get back up, Allāh comes to aid you. I am struggling, but have started to feel much more at ease during my Salāh, unlike before where I wasn't feeling a close connection with my Lord.

I have been reciting much slower while thinking deeply over the words of Allāh, taking my time in Rukū' and Sujūd, thinking about all those I love and wish the best for.

I have been giving myself more time, trying to hang out with friends to forget about my worries, Inshā'Allāh I would love to do much more, for the sake of Allāh, and for the love of the oppressed Ummah.

What truly motivates me are my brothers & sisters suffering throughout the world, I cannot ever give up on them, and I want to do so much more.

May Allāh make a way out for me, and relieve all my brothers & sisters who are stuck and in harsh conditions.

Allāh has plans for us all ﷻ

One of the scariest things is deviating off the right path, May Allāh keep us all steadfast upon Tawhīd till our last breathe!!!!

Look around you, and look at how many 'appeared' to be firm as mountains, and then later became the worst of people Wallāhul Musta'ān.

This is why we attach our hearts to the truth, not personalities, as we never know what may happen in the future, may Allāh protect us!

Remember, Allāh doesn't oppress anyone, but rather the people oppress themselves - Only Allāh knows your secrets, so fear Allāh at all times, نسأل الله الثبات

“And during the wars of the 'Uthmāniyyūn against the people of Tawhīd, such atrocities were committed that made those of the crusaders pale in comparison. Here are some examples for you:

The 'Uthmānī state wanted to incite its troops to kill the people of Tawhīd, so it issues a decree that every soldier will receive a reward for every one that he killed, and it was necessary that the soldier prove his kill by cutting off the ears of his victim and sending them to the capital al-Astānah (Istānbul). So they did that in al-Madīnah, al-Qunfudhah, al-Qaseem, Dhirmaa, and elsewhere.

[See that in detail in Tārikh al-'Arabiyyah as-Su'ūdiyyah, by the Russian historian Vasiliev, page 173, 183, 176, and 184.]

As for their destruction of villages and cities, and even their burning of masaaqid, then narrate without difficulty.

[See that in 'Unwān al-Majd, 1/157-219, and also in the previous reference.]

And from their crimes is that they took the women and children of the people of Tawhīd as captives, and sold them as slaves. Al-Jabartī said in his Tārikh:

"And the month of Safar began on a Friday in the year 1235H... and during it a group of the Arab and Maghāribah troops arrived, who had been in the land of al-Hijaaz. And they were accompanied by prisoners from the "Wahhābiyyah", women, girls, and boys. They came to al-Hamaayil, and sold them to whoever would buy them, even though they were Muslims and free people." [End of quote.]

[Tārikh 'Ajā'ib al-Āthār, 3/606. But be careful regarding this book, for al-Jabartī, as is apparent from his Tārikh, was a Sūfī khalwati who venerated the graves and the Awliyā', indeed even the heretical deviants such as the Zindīq Ibn 'Arabī.]”

Q. Assaalamu alaykum,

What is the correct saying one should say when they see a animal which is yani cute etc.. is it not subhan alkhalīq ? Or can one say mashallah to a animal for example a dog ?

Tia.

A. Wa 'Alaykum Asalām wa Rahmatullāhi wa Barakātuhu sister, this is an important question and I have spoken about it to numerous people, but I'll try my best to keep it brief Inshā'Allāh.

1. Indeed, the evil eye is Real as our beloved Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم said, and to eliminate the effect of the evil eye, the Rasūl صلى الله عليه وسلم said to make Du'aa of Barakah for your brother (for something you're amazed by)...

So for example, when we see a smart cute child, we say "Allāhumma Bārik Lahu" (boy) or "Allāhumma Bārik Lahā" (girl), or if someone has a nice car, we would tell them "Bārak Allāhu laka Feehā".

We don't say "Mā Shā' Allāh" or "wow" (و) as many people do, this is a big mistake, rather our Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم told us in the Hadīth to make du'ā of Barakah (Allāhumma Bārik, Tabārak Allāh), and remind your sisters to say the same, they shouldn't be offended Inshā'Allāh.

As for the Āyah:

"It was better for you to say, when you entered your garden: "Mā Shā' Allāh, Lā Quwwata ilā Billāh." (Surat al-Kahf: 39).

^ That verse has nothing to do with protection from "Hassad" or "Ayn" as mentioned by Shaykh Ahmad Jibrīl (حفظه الله), It is telling one to admit that which he got is from Allah, to not let his ego and pride get to him and admit it is from Allah, Al-Qurtubi said commenting on this verse, he says it means Allah is telling him whatever you got of wealth is from Allah not from your own power, and this falls under the second category.

2. If you see something amazing from the creation of Allāh, what's prescribed is to make Tasbeeh, Dhikr and Du'ā & if there's no fear of Hassad, you can say "Mā Shā' Allāh" or "Mā Shā' Allāh, Lā Quwwata ilā Billāh".

Also if you see the sky, it is beautiful, you enter your own house and you are not afraid of an evil eye, say Mā Shā' Allāh. However, if you are afraid of an evil eye and you want to prevent it, let him ask Allah for Barakah in that person or in any matter that he has which you think is good. Also, you can recite Qur'an as prevention.

Allāh said: "Who remember Allah while standing or sitting or [lying] on their sides and give thought to the creation of the heavens and the earth, [saying], "Our Lord, You did not create this aimlessly; exalted are You [above such a thing]; then protect us from the punishment of the Fire." [3:191].

^ This verse is saying that the one who gives thought to the creation, makes Tasbeeh (i.e. says Exalted are You) & "who remember Allāh" = Dhikr and the du'ā is mentioned as well "Our Lord..."

So to conclude:

- If you see a cute animal like a dog for instance, if you get amazed by it, what's prescribed is to Glorify and Exalt Allāh, make Dhikr on your tongue and Supplications.

- But if you see a cute animal, and you don't fear giving it any Hassad, then it's perfectly fine to say "Ma Shā' Allāh" or "Ma Shā' Allāh Lā Quwwata ilā Billāh".

This is what the 'Ulamā' have mentioned in brief, and Allāh knows best.

Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr (حفظه الله) said:

“Issue: The ruling on the Kuffār residing in the Arabian Peninsula:

It's not permissible, and it's forbidden for the Kuffār to reside (in the Arabian Peninsula) due to the Prophet's saying which Mālik (رحمه الله) narrated in "al-Muwatta'", under the chapter of "Expelling the Jews from Madīnah"; He said, on the authority of Ismā'īl Ibn Abī Hakīm, that he heard 'Umar Ibn 'Abdul 'Azīz say:

"From the final words that the Messenger of Allāh صلى الله عليه وسلم spoke is that he said: May Allāh destroy the Jews and the Christians, they took the graves of their Prophets as Masājīd, there shall not remain 2 religions that co-exist together in the Land of the Arabs."

And on the authority of Ibn Shihāb (i.e. Al-Zuhri) that the Messenger of Allāh, صلى الله عليه وسلم, said:

"Two deens shall not remain & co-exist in the Arabian Peninsula."

Mālik (رحمه الله) said: "Ibn Shihāb said, 'Umar ibn al-Khattāb searched for information about that until he was absolutely convinced that the Messenger of Allāh, صلى الله عليه وسلم, had said, 'Two deens shall not remain & co-exist in the Arabian Peninsula'"

And in Bukhārī & Muslim on the authority of Ibn 'Abbās (رضي الله عنهما) that he said:

The Prophet (ﷺ) on his death-bed, gave three orders saying, "Expel the Mushrikīn from the Arabian Peninsula".

And on the authority of Jābir Ibn 'Abdillāh, he said I was informed by 'Umar Ibn al-Khattāb that he heard the Messenger of Allāh, صلى الله عليه وسلم, say:

"I will certainly expel the Jews and the Christians from the Arabian Peninsula so as to leave only Muslims in it." [Narrated by Muslim].

So it's compulsory to expel them (from Jazeerat al-'Arab), and it is a general ruling given for all the Kuffār.

(Now) what is the ruling on allowing them to rent homes? It's not permissible, because it is aiding them to remain:

"Help not one another unto sin and transgression." [5:2].

What remains is the issue of the Rāfidah? It is exactly the same, because "al-Rafdh" is a completely different Din & Millah to the religion of Islām, so it is included within the general meaning of the previous Hadīths, whether we call them Murtaddūn or Kuffār Asliyyūn, there's no difference between the two pertaining that (ruling of expelling them), rather either accept Islām or face execution (for Kufr), nothing else.

And the same ruling is given to all the other religions in the Arabian Peninsula, such as the Secularists, Modernists, Progressive Liberalists, Communists and Nationalists.”

*Statements from the People of Knowledge about the ruling on the Rāfidah*

Shaykh al-'Allāmah Abū 'Abdillāh Hamad Al Humaydī(رحمه الله) said:

“Bismillāh Ar-Rahmān Ar-Rahīm

The Rawāfid are a group from the extremists of the shī'ah. They entered into Islām to corrupt the beliefs of the Muslimīn & shake the Īmān inside of them, and to make doubts enter the truths of the Deen, and the truthfulness of the Prophet – Sall Allāhu ‘alayhi wa sallam. They were named with this name for their rejection (rafd) of Zayd bin ‘Alī – Rahimahullāh – when he went to fight Hishām bin ‘Abdul Mālik. So his companions said to him, “Disavow from the Shaykhayn (Abū Bakr and ‘Umar) then we will be with you.” So he said, “No, indeed I have loyalty to them, and I disavow from whoever disavows from them.” So they said, “Then we reject you (narfaduk).” So they were named the rāfidah.

‘Abdullāh bin Ahmad said, “I said to my father: Who are the Rafidah.” He replied, “The one who insults Abū Bakr & ‘Umar.” And this is something they are known by, and their truth is only that they reject Islām from it's root (asl). And that their claim to Islām is like the claim of the jews and the christians to Ibrāhīm – ‘Alayhi salām – and Allāh refuted them with His statement;

{Ibrāhīm was neither a jew nor a christian, but he was one inclining to the truth, a Muslim. And he was not one of the mushrikīn}

Talhah bin Musarrif – Rahimahullāh – said, “The women of the rāfidah are not married, and their sacrifice is not eaten, because they are the people of apostasy.”

Az-Zuhrī – Rahimahullāh – said, “I have not seen a people resembling the christians more than the followers of (‘Abdullāh bin) Saba’.”

Ahmad bin Yūnus – Rahimahullāh – said, “They are the rāfidah.”

Sulaymān bin Qarm Ad-Dabī said, “I was with ‘Abdullāh bin Al-Hasan bin Al-Hasan bin ‘Alī bin Abī Tālib – Rahimahumullāh – so he said, “Man, Allāh rectify your condition, (there is) from the people of our Qiblah that we must testify on him with shirk? He said, ‘Yes, the rāfidah, I testify that they are mmushrikūn, and how can they not be mushrikīn? If you ask them did the Prophet – Sall Allāhu ‘Alayhi wa sallam – sin, they would said yes. And Allāh forgave him what preceded of his sins and what follows. And if you say to him, did ‘Alī sin? They would say no. So who says that he has disbelieved.”

‘Abdullāh bin Mus’ab said, “Amīr Al Mu’minīn Al Mahdī said to me, ‘O Abū Bakr, what do you say in the one who belittles the companions of the Messenger of Allāh – Sall Allāhu ‘Alayhi wa sallam?’ I responded, ‘Zanadiqah (plural of zindeeq – heretic).’ He said, ‘I haven’t heard of this from anyone before you.’ I responded, ‘They want to belittle the Messenger of Allāh, but they didn’t find anyone from the Ummah to follow them in that. So they belittle them in the presence of their children, and them in the presence of their children. It is like they say: The Messenger of Allāh – Sall Allāhu ‘Alayhi wa sallam – kept evil companions. And what is more disgusting for a man than to take evil companions.’ So he (Amīr Al Mu’minīn) said, ‘I don’t see it except like you said.’”

Al-Awzā’ī – Rahimahullāh – said, “Who insults Abū Bakr As-Siddīq – Radiy Allāhu ‘Anhu – has apostated from his deen and his blood has become lawful.”

(Imām) Mālik bin Anas – Rahimahullāh – said, “Who insults the Sahābah of the Messenger of Allāh – Sall Allāhu ‘Alayhi wa sallam – does not have a share (Sahm) – or he said “Naseeb” – in Islām.

Sufyān bin ‘Uyaynah – Rahimahullāh – said, “There is not a heart that resents the Sahābah of the Messenger of Allāh – Sall Allāhu ‘Alayhi wa sallam – except that his heart is resentful of the Muslimīn.”

Abdur-Rahmān bin Mahdī – Rahimahullāh – said, “You don’t examine a rāfidī except that you find him a zindeeq (heretic).”

Abdur-Razzāq As-San’ānī – Rahimahullāh – said, “The rāfidī is a kāfir.”

Muhammad bin Yūsuf Al-Faryabī – Rahimahullāh – said, “I do not see the rāfidah and the jahmiyyah except as zanadiqah (plural of zindeeq – heretic).”

Muhammad bin Yūsuf Al-Faryabī – Rahimahullāh – said, “And a man asked him about the one who insults Abū Bakr? He said, kāfir, he (the man) said, he is prayed over? He said, No.”

Abū ‘Ubayd Al-Qāsim bin Salām – Rahimahullāh – said, “The rāfidī has no share in the Fay’ or Ghanimah (forms of war-booty). Because of Allāh’s statement;

{And those who came after them}

Abū ‘Ubayd said, “That the rāfidah are sābbah (?). And they do not have a right in the Fay’, because they are on other than Islām.”

Ahmad bin Yūnus – Rahimahullāh – said, “We do not eat the sacrifice of a rāfidī, indeed with me he is a murtad.”

Bishr bin Al-Hārith – Rahimahullāh – said, “Whoever insults the Companions of the Messenger of Allāh – Sall Allāhu ‘Alayhi wa sallam – then he is a kāfir, even if he fasts, and prays, and considers he is from the Muslimīn.”

‘Abdullāh bin Ahmad bin Hanbal – Rahimahullāh – said, “I asked my father (Ahmad bin Hanbal) about a man who insults a man from the Companions of the Prophet – Sall Allāhu ‘Alayhi wa sallam –, he said, ‘I do not seem him as being upon Islām.’”

Abū Bakr Al-Marwazī – Rahimahullāh – said, “I asked Abū ‘Abdullāh, Ahmad bin Hanbal – Rahimahullāh – about one who insults Abū Bakr and ‘Umar and ‘Āishah? He said, ‘I do not see him as being upon Islām.’”

Ahmad bin Hanbal – Rahimahullāh – said, “Who insults I fear upon him the kufr, the example of the rawāfid.” Then he said, “Who insults the Companions of the Prophet – Sall Allāhu ‘Alayhi wa sallam – we do not believe that he is included in the Deen.”

Abū Muhammad ‘Abdur Rahmān bin Hātim – Rahimahullāh – said, “I asked my father and Abū Zar’ah about the madhāhib of Ahlus Sunnah in Usoolu Dīn and what they know on the Scholars in every corner and what they believe regarding that? So they both said, ‘We know that the Scholars from every corner – Hijāz, and ‘Irāq, and Shām, and Yemen – that their madhhab is: That the Rāfidah have rejected Islām.’”

Abū Zar’ah – Rahimahullāh – “If you see a man belittling anyone from the Companions of the Messenger of Allāh – Sall Allāhu ‘Alayhi wa sallam – then know that he is a zindeeq (heretic). And that the Messenger – Sall Allāhu ‘Alayhi wa sallam – is with us the truth, and the Qur’ān the truth, and all the Companions of the Messenger of Allāh – Sall Allāhu ‘alayhi wa sallam – did was convey to us this Qur’ān and the Sunnah, and all they (those belittling the Companions) want to do is harm our witnesses to invalidate the Kitāb and the Sunnah, and criticizing them comes first, and they are Zanadiqah (plural of zindeeq – heretic).”

Muhammad bin Al Hussayn Al Ājirī – Rahimahullāh – said in the Sharī’ah, “Indeed he has failed and lost, the one who insults the Companions of the Messenger of Allāh – Sall Allāhu ‘Alayhi wa sallam – because he has differed with Allāh and his Messenger and the right on him is to be cursed by Allāh – ‘Azza wa Jall – and His Messenger, and from the Angels and from every believer. And Allāh will not accept anything at all from him, not an obligatory deed, or a voluntary deed. And he is disgraced in this world, the worst fate. Allāhumma make graves be abundant amongst them (cause them to die), and clear away the roles they play.”

Al-Qādi ‘Iyādh said in Kitāb Ash-Shifā’ – when he mentioned the rāfidah, “Indeed they have disbelieved from multiple angles, because they have invalidated the Sharī’ah in it’s entirety.”

Shaykhul Islām (ibn Taymiyyah) said in As-Sārim Al-Maslūl, “And who combines insulting him (a companion) and making ‘Alī an object of worship, or that he was with the Prophet and Jibreel made a mistake in giving the message (by giving it to the Messenger instead of ‘Alī), then this is no doubt from his kufr (disbelief). And there is no doubt in the one who refuses to make takfīr (declare him a disbeliever) on him.” And he himself (ibn Taymiyyah) said in Al-Masdar, “And whoever believes that they committed apostasy (the Companions) after the Messenger of Allāh except a small group of them (12 individuals), or that in general they were evil-doers. Then that, no doubt, is also from his kufr (disbelief). Because he is denying what is contained in the Qur’ān in it’s apparent meaning from the pleasure (of Allāh) with them and the praise (from Allāh) upon them. Certainly the one who doubts the kufr of this then indeed his kufr has been made apparent.” Then he (ibn Taymiyyah) said, “And this kufr is known by necessity from the Deen of Islām.”

And Muhammad bin ‘Abdul Latīf Āli Shaykh commented on that in Ad-Durar, so he said, “So this is the ruling on the rāfidah from the base. And as for now, their situation is even more hideous and atrocious. Because they added to their beliefs extremism with respect to the Awliyā (saints) and the righteous from ahlul Bayt (the family of the Prophet) and other than them. And believed that they could bring about benefit and harm in times of difficulty and ease. And they consider this a means of coming closer to Allāh, and an aspect of deen that they should adhere to. Therefore, whoever is hesitant concerning their disbelief, with this being their condition, and has doubts about their disbelief, then he is ignorant of the reality of what the Messengers came with, and what the scriptures were revealed with. So let him re-examine his beliefs before entering his grave.”

I (Hamad Al Humaydī) say, “This is in his time, so what if he saw this time and the clarity of their shirk and that they are in the Haramayn and at the Bāqī’ graveyard and other than that. So they are builders of spectacles and graves and not builders of masājid. So it is necessary to purify the Arabian Peninsula from them. Allāh subhānahu wa ta’āla says;

{O you who have believed, indeed the mushrikīn are unclean, so let them not approach Al-Masjid al-Harām after this, their [final] year.}

And the Prophet – Sall Allāhu ‘Alayhi wa sallam – said, ‘Expel the mushrikīn from the Arabian Peninsula.”

Ibn Kathīr – Rahimahullāh – said in his Tafseer regarding the statement of Allāh

{Indeed, those who [falsely] accuse chaste, unaware and believing women are cursed in this world and the Hereafter; and they will have a great punishment.}

“All of the Scholars agree that whoever slanders her or makes accusations against after what has been said in this Āyah, is a disbeliever, because of his being obstinate with the Qur’ān.”

Ibn Rajab – Rahimahullāh – said, “And for this the rāfidah resemble/imitate the jews in about 70 attributes.”

Al-Alusī – Rahimahullāh – said in Kitāb Sabb Al-Azab, “What has been confirmed from the rawāfid today from proclaiming kufr (disbelief) on the Companions who – from what they assume – concealed the texts (of Qur’ān). And not giving bay’ah to ‘Alī – karram Allāhu wajhahu – after the death of the Prophet – Sall Allāhu ‘Alayhi wa sallam – like they gave bay’ah to Abū Bakr – Radiy Allāhu ‘anhu – and also their proclaiming in some of them, and making lawful harming them, and rejecting the Khilāfah of the rightly guided Khulafā. And rushing to insult them (the Companions) and cursing them because of their pursuit to the fire like butterflies, it is a testament of their disbelief.”

Muhammad bin ‘Abdul Wahhāb – Rahimahullāh – said in his book “Ar-Radd ‘alā ar-rāfidah”, “Because they are kuffār. And he clarified they have disbelieved through different means. And the people of the four madhāhib – from the Hanafiyyah, and the Mālikiyyah, and the Shāfi’iyyah, and the Hanabilah – have all agreed on the statement describing kufr with that.”

So this is some of the statements of the Salaf of the Ummah and it’s ‘Ulamā, so how about the one who says about them that the shī’ah are our brothers?! And this is just from his a little knowledge in the Deen of Islām and what Sayyid al-Anām (master of creatures/creation) came with. So these rāfidah are enemies of the Millah and a means to divide the Ummah. For their religion stands on Nifāq (hypocrisy) and worshipping the graves and Awliyā (saints) and on making the forbidden things permissible like the “Furūj” and other than that. So look at that in the scene that is found at the grave of ‘Alī bin Mūsā ar-Ridā in the mushrik state of Iran, And what is mentioned therein of blatant shirk from the practice of istighātha (seeking deliverance) and Du’ā (supplication) and Dhabh (sacrifice) and Sujood (prostration) and shaving (or cutting) the heads and other than that.

And look at the grave of Khominiy – the destroyed – and they have built over him from buildings and a dome which cost them the equivalent of the budget of a state, with the presence of poverty and unemployment and what is with them of ‘Ibādāt.

And also look at Qatīif, and Sayhāt, and Ihsā, and other than them from the areas of the rāfidah in the day of Ashūra. And what they proclaim from Istighātha (seeking deliverance) with Hussayn, and Fātimah, and ‘Alī. So is there after this kufr from kufr? So their men, and women, and the general masses of them, and their scholars are all kuffār for that. So with these it is obligatory to have enmity with them and make disavowal from them and warn the people from them. And there is nothing for them except the sword or Islām. While most people are fooled with them because of their nice behaviour and their taqiyyah (lying – to cover their beliefs). For they are a problematic and deceptive group.

And their lands are numerous. From them is the mushrik state of Iran, and the east coast of the (Arabian) peninsula, and ‘Irāq, and a portion of the city of the Messenger of Allāh – Sall Allāhu ‘Alayhi wa sallam – and in Najran and other than that.

May Allāh be sufficient for the Muslimīn against their evils, and may Allāh send on them calamities and punishments, and may Allāh rid the land and the people of them.”

(Aqwāl Ahli-l-Islām Fil-Hukm ‘Alar-rāfidah).

“The Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) said: "Every one will be resurrected in the condition in which he dies." [Narrated by Muslim].

What a huge difference is there between the one who passes away while singing on stage with corrupt people around him!!! And between the one who passes away while reciting (the Qur’ān) or praying or doing a righteous deed.

The famous Indonesian reciter "Ja'far 'Abdul Rahmān" passed away yesterday on Tuesday, a sudden shock (i.e. silent unexpected death) took place in public for a Qur'ān al-Karīm contest while he was reciting (this verse) from Sūrat al-Mulk:

"[He] who created death and life to test you [as to] which of you is best in deed." [67:2]."

Shaykh al-Muhaddith Abū 'Abdillāh Hamad al-Humaydī, may Allāh accept him amongst the Shuhadā' said:

“Therefore, I say – seeking Allah’s help and asking Him for guidance, correctness, and success – that this will be a general refutation of the fatwa, Allah willing, so that we do not make it too lengthy for the reader seeking guidance and the truth.

The fatwā begins with severe disregard and neglect for Muslim blood, which amounts to great disobedience before Allah, especially if people claiming knowledge are biased in this disobedience and cooperate upon it in sin and transgression. However, the fault becomes even greater and the evil becomes more vile when this is attributed to the pure Shari’ah, and even more serious than that is to attribute it to Allah (may He be glorified).

This is what we saw in the fatwā of the nine individuals, which they issued with the statement of Allah ta’ālā, {And [mention, O Muhammad], when Allah took a covenant from those who were given the Scripture, [saying], “You must make it clear to the people and not conceal it”} [Āli ‘Imrān: 187].

And these nine are

1. Abū Qatādah,
2. Abū Muhammad al-Maqdisī,
3. Sāmī al'Uraydī,
4. Sādiq al-Hāshimī,
5. Muslih al-'Ulyānī,
6. Abū Sulaymān al-Austrālī,
7. Abū 'Azzām al-Jazrāwī,
8. Al-Mu'tasim Billāh al-Madanī,
9. and 'Abdullāh al-Muhaysinī.

And the condition of these nine, who claim to seek to bring about reform and to manifest the truth is as Allah described in His book: {And there were in the city nine family heads causing corruption in the land and not amending [its affairs]. They said, “Take a mutual oath by Allah that we will kill him by night, he and his family. Then we will say to his executor, ‘We did not witness the destruction of his family, and indeed, we are truthful.’” And they planned a plan, and We planned a plan, while they perceived not. Then look how was the outcome of their plan - that We destroyed them and their people, all} [An-Naml: 48-51].

So we say to them, you did not clarify in the truth in this fatwā of yours. Rather, you declared your animosity and hatred towards dwla, and came out when it emerged. This is what your tongues have pronounced and what your fingers have penned in this fatwā and in what came before it of that which has come from you all or from some of you. This is what you have declared to the people.

As for the words of Allah ta’ālā, {And not conceal it} [Āli ‘Imrān: 187], then you, in this fatwā of yours, have attained the most abundant share [with respect to concealing the truth], for you have concealed the millah of Ibrāhīm, which Allah clarified in His book with His statement,

{There has already been for you an excellent pattern in Ibrāhīm and those with him, when they said to their people, “Indeed, we are disassociated from you and from whatever you worship other than Allah. We have denied you, and there has appeared between us and you animosity and hatred forever until you believe in Allah alone”} [Al-Mumtahanah: 4],

And it is the greatest thing that is obligatory to clarify. This is what lost by those factions whose members you call “mujāhidīn.” And how could they be mujāhidīn for the cause of Allah when jihād for the cause of Allah cannot be jihād for His cause except by actualizing His statement, {And fight them until there is no fitnah and [until] the religion, all of it, is for Allah} [Al-Anfāl: 39].

And the meaning of the religion being entirely for Allah is that if a land is liberated, Allah’s law is established therein, the signs of shirk are abolished, the rites of Islam are manifest, and the Shari’ah of Ar-Rahmān is judged with therein. So whoever does this is called a mujāhid for the cause of Allah. When Allah’s Messenger (sallallāhu ‘alayhi wa sallam) was asked about a man who fights out of bravery, or a man who fights to get war booty, or a man who fights for fame, and a man who fights to be seen, and in one narration, a man who fights out of zeal and one who fights to show off, and in one narration, a man who fights out of anger, he was asked which of these is fighting for the cause of Allah. So Allah’s Messenger (sallallāhu ‘alayhi wa sallam) said,

“Whoever fights so that the word of Allah is the highest is fighting for the cause of Allah.” This was reported by Ahmad and the compilers of the six books of hadīth; al-Bukhārī, Abū Dāwūd, and an-Nasā’ī titled each titled the chapter for this hadīth, “Whoever Fights so That the Word of Allah Is the Highest.”

Thus, these factions all have blind banners because they do not fight so that Allah’s word is the highest. We will reveal some aspects of the condition of these factions, which you have claimed are mujāhid factions, for here we see them being exposed by their misguided agreements, and we see the manifestation of kufr therein with their pledge to support the international community in the land of Shām. Where do you stand with regards to those who have pledged to establish the rule of the tāghūt in the land of Shām with a democratic government after the elimination of Bashar’s rule? Where do you stand with regards to those who walk hand-in-hand with the apostate groups backed by America and the tawāghīt of the Gulf region and have sworn their strongest oaths by Allah to fight dwla, thus replacing their allegiance to the believers with allegiance to the apostates? And it is an evil exchange, indeed.

The Prophet (sallallāhu ‘alayhi wa sallam) said to the mushrik, “Go back, for I will not seek help from a mushrik.” And this was in the case of taking help from a mushrik against another mushrik like him, so how then when it comes to taking aid from a mushrik and a kāfir against a Muslim? So have you ever shown enmity and hatred towards the apostates in Shām until they believe in Allah alone? No doubt this is concealment of the truth and leaving off establishing the millah of Ibrāhīm.

So we seek refuge with Allah from becoming blind after having guidance. Everyone knows that among the nine individuals is he who has preceded others in declaring the kufr of some of the tawāghīt and coming forth to expose their falsehood. Then, when the same kufr emerged in the apostate groups in the land of Shām – the land to which Ibrāhīm (‘alayhis-salām) made hijrah – he restrained his pen from the kuffār of Shām. So he showed them neither enmity nor hatred, and did not make takfir of them. On the contrary, his tongue and pen became an unsheathed sword against the allies of Allah.

As for you, in your misguiding fatwā you supported that which Allah censured in His statement, {Every faction rejoicing in what it has} [Ar-Rūm: 32]. And Allah has disassociated His Messenger from it: {Indeed, those who have divided their religion and become sects - you, [O Muhammad], are not [associated] with them in anything} [Al-An‘ām: 159].

As for the statement of the nine individuals in their fatwā, “The defect in their manhaj has become apparent to those with perception,” they mean d. So we ask you to clarify for us this defect which has become apparent to you and has remained hidden from all the Muslims, the commoners among them as well as those with perception. Show us something that is in opposition to the Book, the Sunnah, and ijma’ that has become the methodology of d.

You won’t be able to do so, for a pleasant breeze has come from it, its glimmer has appeared, and the clearness of its path has become apparent to all those with perception. So māshā’allāh, and there is no power except by Allah. How good is it! Its path of defiance is not crossed by an idol except that it destroys it, nor by a cross except that it breaks it, nor by one waging war against Allah and His Messenger except that it wages jihād against him, nor does it tread any land except that it implements therein the Sharī’ah of Allah.

So what an excellent manhaj it is! We ask Allah to strengthen them in following and clinging to the truth. By Allah, they will not be defeated due their small numbers as long as they hold firmly to the book of Allah and the Sunnah of His Messenger, and this is a promise from Allah that is inevitable: {And incumbent upon Us was support of the believers} [Ar-Rūm: 47].

So if you view the destruction of idols, the breaking of crosses, and the implementation of the Sharī’ah of Ar-Rahmān to be a defect in manhaj, then this is clear apostasy, and as such we call you to renew your Islam and repent to your Creator before death reaches you.

Furthermore, this is a message that I direct to everyone who entered into a coalition with the apostates, allied with them, and cut off any allegiance between himself and the Muslims: How can you feel good about remaining with these factions and groups, and on your left and on your right is an apostate who is fighting to establish a civil state or is carrying a secular banner or fighting for the cause of democracy, and you, despite all that, defend his blood and sacrifice yourself for his sake. You are shaded by crusader warplanes and supported the tāghūt states while fighting the Muslims. So is this the Islam that you found in the book of Allah, or is it the kufr that Allah has prohibited and whose people He informed us are disbelievers and not Muslims?

Allah said, {Let not believers take disbelievers as allies rather than believers. And whoever [of you] does that has nothing with Allah} [Āli ‘Imrān: 28].

And remember Allah’s statement, {Indeed, those who reverted back [to disbelief] after guidance had become clear to them - Satan enticed them and prolonged hope for them. That is because they said to those who disliked what Allah sent down, “We will obey you in part of the matter”} [Muhammad: 25-26].

So weep over your sin, repent to Allah, declare your innocence before Him of taking the disbelievers as allies, surrender to Him with tawhīd, yield to Him with obedience, and disassociate yourself from shirk and its people.

Allah ta’ālā said, {And whoever submits his face to Allah while he is a doer of good - then he has grasped the most trustworthy handhold} [Luqmān: 22].

Disassociate yourself from these factions and join the caravan, and reflect on the condition of the repentant fighters who left these factions both in groups and individually, and attested to what they knew and had witnessed of the deeds of kufr, including supporting the disbelievers and other than that. I ask Allah to accept their repentance and conclude their lives with shahādah.

The reality is that in this fatwā there is an imitation of the scholars of Ahlul-Kitāb, whom we were prohibited from following – and indeed, the Prophet (sallallāhu ‘alayhi wa sallam) informed us that from this ummah would be those who follow the way of Ahlul-Kitāb – whereby these muftis placed deception in their fatwā that would mislead those with weak perception, and concealed the truth and manifested deception as if they were manifesting the truth and not concealing it. Allah ta’ālā said, {O People of the Scripture, why do you confuse the truth with falsehood and conceal the truth while you know [it]?} [Āli ‘Imrān: 71].

Therefore, we call to those who issued this fatwā to repent to Allah and renounce this fatwā in affirmation of the statement of Allah ta’ālā, {Indeed, those who conceal what We sent down of clear proofs and guidance after We made it clear for the people in the Scripture - those are cursed by Allah and cursed by those who curse, except for those who repent and correct themselves and make evident [what they concealed]. Those - I will accept their repentance, and I am the Accepting of repentance, the Merciful} [Al-Baqarah: 160]. And is there any threat more severe than this threat?

And I warn all those who have life in their hearts not to follow the likes of these misleading fatwas that deviate from the path of guidance. Indeed, Allah has prohibited us from imitating the Jews and Christians, about whom Allah said, {They have taken their scholars and monks as lords besides Allah} [At-Tawbah: 31].

Hudhayfah (radiyallāhu ‘anh) was asked concerning this āyah, “Did they used to pray to them?” He said, “No, but they would permit for them what Allah had prohibited for them so they would deem it permissible, and they would prohibit for them what Allah had permitted for them so they would deem it prohibited, so they thereby became lords for them}.

This was reported by ‘Abdur-Razzāq and alBayhaqī, and its meaning has come in the marfū’ hadīth of ‘Adiyy as reported by at-Tirmidhī and other than him, but the marfū’ form of this hadīth is not free of defects.

‘Abdullāh Ibn Mas’ūd said, “A man should not blindly follow another man in regards to his religion, believing if he believes and disbelieving if he disbelieves, for one should not take a role model in evil.”

This was reported by al-Bayhaqī, and by Ibn ‘Abdil-Barr in his collection and this is his wording. He also said: “Become a scholar or a student and don’t be a follower instead of becoming one of these two.””

*I have made the effort to write this post, and whoever doesn't like it can shut their mouth and die in their rage*

“They raped, they raped, the 'Alawī Rāfidah raped, they started with the men before the women, how do you know? Because your syrian brothers said so, when your syrian brothers speak today, listen to them, accept and believe, and if everyone wants to deny, then let them shut their mouth. Why did they start with their men? Because they wanted to demoralise them, they wanted to destroy their faith, their ambition and their hope. Let the Syrians tell you the tales of the men rape, the 60 year old man who was raped before his entire family because he was accused of opposing the Nusayrī 'Alawīyah Ba'thī pigs, and if you want to talk about the women being raped, then that's just more horrific!

Do you know my brothers and sisters, your sisers are being raped by the Rāfidah, let me rephrase that, gang raped by Rāfidhī pigs in Sūriyyah, they purposely aim for the Munaqqabāt & ask the people of Sūriyyah, if not the Muhajjabāt, if not, anyone from Ahl al Sunnah will do, those who lost their wives and daughters to such atrocities speak, and when they speak, listen today, in some cases, not only did they rape, but they cut them into pieces and put them on their front yards for their family to wake up to the next day.

Hādī 'Abdullāh with the famous releasers said, they entered a house, a family, full of females, they raped every single one of them, the last female, they raped her one after the other, and in more frank terms, they gang raped, the Rāfidah gang raped your sisters in Sūriyyah!

My brothers, the honourable women of Sūriyyah, even though it's no fault of theirs, there's nothing they should be ashamed of, since they were violated unwillingly, but these honourable, modest, blessed, chaste women of the blessed lands of al-Shām could not conceive living in a body she feels has been violated by a dirty Rāfidhī rapist. She can no longer live in a body she now feels and thinks it's tainted, may Allāh protect them, may Allāh aid them and be with them, the honour of a muslim woman is deeply valued, when it is violated and taken from her, taking her soul becomes a million times easier.

We tell our sisters who face this, it's not dishonour to you, the dishonour, all the dishonour is casting Allāh's books and in this world history on 1.8 billion muslims who were able to stop this and never stopped it, there were days when real believers used to cherish being under ground and it would comfort them to be there, then to be on top of this Earth knowing one of their sisters was raped.

What happened to you my sister is a crown of honour, a madellion of pride in this life and mountains of deeds you're going to see in the Firdaws al-A'lah Inshā'Allāh, because you're the daughter of Sumayyah, you're the daughter of Sumayyah Bint Khabbāt or Khayyāt, Radiy Allāhu 'Anhā, you're her daughter, she met the same destiny as you, Umm 'Ammār, they stripped her out of her clothes, and Abū Jahl may Allāh curse him, stabbed her with his spear in her private parts, and she became who? Out of all male and female, The First Martyr of Islām, out of all Male and Female, The First Martyr of Islām.

A woman tells Shaykh al-Zahrānī when Shaykh al-Zahrānī went to visit the refugees who were running away from Syria on the border of Jordan in the refugee camps, a woman stood up to him, she said:

"Shaykh, we fled but we didn't flee because we fear our lives, but because we fear them raping us and our daughters, Shaykh I was a nurse, and a woman after woman of the honourable women of Syria would come to me asking me for suicide by vaccination".

They want a shot to put them out of their life, why? Because they no longer can live after being raped, they feel that, Wallāhi she said it, and when the Syrians speak, you better listen and believe.

Haytham al-Mālih said on al-Jazeera, the 15 year old his relative who was imprisoned with, his relative was a 60 year old woman, they let her go, probably had no use for her, for their evil purposes, so they let her go, she said:

"Wallāhi I was in prison with a 15 year old who was raped by 60 of the thugs of the Rāfidah".

When they asked another man to get ransom for his wife, his wife told him no, don't pay the ransom to get me out of prison, over 20 of them raped me, I wanna die.

The letter that was sent out from the prisons of the Assad's from your sisters, "Help us, rescue us, we're being raped! If you can't, then atleast send us pills so we don't have to get pregnant from the thugs of the Assad, the Rāfidah."

Yeah, it's not the Jews doing this, nor is it the crusaders, it's who we have been telling you for decades, and Ibn Taymiyyah has been telling you for over 700 years, and the Scholars for many years, now the Syrians uncover the reality of this matter, how many have heard of the cries and the shouts of the women seeking help, but poor women, what were they thinking, what are the shouts for, you're speaking to a dead Ummah, do you think the Mu'tassim is alive, they must be thinking they're talking to an alive Ummah, but they are talking in reality to a dead Ummah, she's speaking to an Ummah that slaughtered jealousy and exterminated it out of their lives, she's speaking to an Ummah who's hearts died lo ago, an Ummah that no longer has a Mu'tassim, when one call came to al-Mu'tassim, and this is a true story, some people put doubts to this story because they can't see something like this happening.

When one woman called al-Khaleef al-'Abbās al-Mu'tassim, one woman, because one christian had dishonoured her, a man heard her, a muslim was hearing her, he responded - the christian who dishonoured the muslim woman told her, O you call the leader al-Mu'tassim, you think he's going to come when he's pre-occupied with his servants and concubines, the man who heard her, the muslim rode the desert for a month to get to al-Mu'tassim, "You're sitting here drinking water and luxury and comfort, and this Muslimah is going through this and that of what just happened"

When he explained the situation, al-Mu'tassim put down the cup and told the servants, "don't touch this cup, I'm gonna to come back and finish it when I'm done".

He goes to 'Āmuriyyah, rescues the girl and captures the one who dishonoured her, and tells him, "Do you really think I'll be pre-occupied with my concubines and wives over the honour of a believing muslim woman?!" and he opened the land of 'Āmuriyyah, 4 different minor versions of this story, but it's as solidly as true as can be.

...how can you sleep knowing your sisters are being raped?!"

Asalāmu 'Alaykum, I'm looking for people who are good at video editing or have experience in adding subtitles onto videos. I just need some people who are seriously keen, since I got so much knowledge to share from our beloved righteous Scholars.

Likewise, I'm looking for people who are interested in translating Sharh Kitāb al-Haqā'iq Fi-Tawhīd into their own language, so we can also spread the knowledge of Tawhīd in other languages too.

If there is anyone who is fluent in Arabic & English, and would love to help out in translating the works of the Scholars, that would be excellent, you can contact me below Inshā'Allāh:

#Nullifiers_of_Islām #Tawhīd

Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tuwaylaī(رحمه الله) said:

The Fifth Nullifier: Whoever hates anything which the Messenger(صلى الله عليه وسلم) came with.

And this is from the nullifiers of Islām that are unanimously agreed upon, so everyone who hates the Dim which Muhammad(صلى الله عليه وسلم) was sent with, or hated one of its rulings, or ones of its ordainments, then he has left the fold of Islām, and the rope that ties him to Islām has been detached from his neck.

And this nullifier is like the one before it; It negates the Shahādah of "Lā ilāha ilā Allāh", as it also negates the Shahādah that "Muhammad is the Messenger of Allāh", due to it accompanying a defaming in Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, and in His Sharī'ah, and in the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) and the perfection of his Risālah (i.e. Message) and guidance and Sunnah, or in his trust and conveyance.

And the proof regarding the disbelief of whoever hates something which the Messenger(صلى الله عليه وسلم) came with is Allāh's statement:

"But those who disbelieve - for them is misery, and He will waste their deeds. That is because they disliked what Allah revealed, so He rendered worthless their deeds." [47:8-9].

So He based the reason for their misery and waste of their deeds and its invalidity for those who disbelieved, because they disliked what Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, has revealed.

And it's not possible to unite hating something from the religion of Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, and love Allāh at the same time, rather the believer in Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, loves him and loves his commands, and the Munāfiq doesn't love Allāh nor love his commands, just as if the believer knows about the perfection of the religion, and its encompassing of (all) benefits in this world and the next, it's impossible that he would hate anything from it, how can he hate something he knows is good and beneficial for him in both this world and the after life?

And from the proofs regarding the disbelief of whoever hates something of what the Messenger(صلى الله عليه وسلم) came with, is Allāh's statement:

So He stipulated 3 things for Ēmān:

1. Putting the Messenger(صلى الله عليه وسلم) as their judge in their disputes.
2. Welcoming his judgement, صلى الله عليه وسلم, and not going against it.
3. Not having any grudges in oneself in the judgements of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم), so whoever finds in himself the lowest of grudges to the legislative ruling, then he's not a believer until he removes this grudge from himself and completely welcomes it (i.e. the ruling) with his heart and limbs, so how about the one who went further from having grudges in himself and reached the point of having hatred to the ruling of Allāh wal-'Iyāthubillāh?!

And attention must be drawn to a particular point in this topic which people make mistakes in (pertaining the nullifier of hating the Dīn), and it is not differentiating between hatred that is intended in the Āyah and these texts, which is that he hates the actual ruling of Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, and between natural hatred due to hardships and discomfort accompanying some of the rulings. So there's a difference between the one who hates the ruling of fighting in the path of Allāh, and the one who hates fighting from the aspect of it being difficult upon oneself, and hopping onto enormous horrors and dangers for oneself.

And I found some who erred (in this topic), so he mixes & confuses between the woman that hates the legislation of polygyny, and disliking this legislative ruling, and between (a woman) that hates her husband to marry another wife in addition to her, which would necessitate natural jealousy, that the Mothers of the Believers were not even free from, may Allāh be pleased with them all.

And the proof for this differentiation that we mentioned, is that Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, said in his Glorious Book:

"Fighting has been enjoined upon you although it is disliked for you." [2:216].

And the speech is addressing the believers, so He affirmed the believer's dislike for fighting, and Allāh said:

"[It is] just as when your Lord brought you out of your home [for the battle of Badr] in truth, while indeed, a party among the believers were unwilling, Arguing with you concerning the truth after it had become clear, as if they were being driven toward death while they were looking on." [8:5-6].

So He informed about them that they dislike to go out, they are arguing over it after having it made clear to them and knowing that it's the truth, i.e. That it's the ruling of Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى), and Allāh compared their situation to those who get driven towards death while looking on.

And dislike in this situation and this instance wasn't considered Kufr, because it is not dislike towards the specifically prescribed ruling, but rather it's a dislike to the matters of hardship upon oneself that accompanies the ruling, and what's well known is that the rulings of the Sharī'ah do accompany things that are disliked for the soul, however it is at the same time consisting of all good, so it's not said that whoever knows of an Islamic ruling which accompanies something that the soul dislikes, then his dislike didn't change to become love, (so) he would be considered a Kāfir.

Rather, everyone who disliked a hardship for himself which is present within a ruling, and despite that submitted to Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, and remained patient of what he dislikes from the command of Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, then he is a believer from the righteous and obeyers of Allāh, and whoever abandoned a ruling that accompanies hardships for oneself, because his soul dislikes hardship that's associated with it, or stepping down from its whims which opposes it, without hating the ruling of Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, so he didn't hate the prescribed legislation of Jihād, and he did not dislike the command of Allāh for it, but rather he hated fighting due to what it contains of hardship, so this person is a disobedient sinner in the eyes of Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, due to his actions, a Fāsiq by abandoning Jihād, however he's a Muslim from the Muslims who isn't taken outside the fold of Islām.

And Allāh knows best, and peace and blessings be upon our Prophet Muhammad, and upon all of his household and companions.

And from the final will of the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) before his death (when he fell sick) was: "Expel the Mushrikīn from Jazeerat ul-'Arab", and this is a command from him, peace and blessings be upon him, which necessitates Wujūb (i.e. Obligation).

And Jazeerat ul-'Arab is Murakkab Idāfī (an additional phrase: i.e. Can have more than 1 Mudāf & Mudāf ilayh) of 2 components: "Jazeerah" & "Al-'Arab".

As for "al-Jazeerah", it's a name given to a land which water surrounds it from every side, and from it is "Jazeerat ul-Irāq", which is between Dajlah and the Furāt.

And Jazeerat ul-'Arab that's mentioned in the Hadīth is: What the Ocean of India, and the Ocean of Shām, then Dajlah and al-Furāt encompasses, as it's stated in the dictionary.

And the ocean of Shām is what's called the Red Sea today, and the ocean of India is called the Indian Ocean, and it's as if the ocean of Fāris (i.e. Persia) is included within it, which is today called "Al-Khaleej al-'Arabī" (i.e. The Arab Gulf).

And the linguists did not mention anything except this statement, despite their various wordings in defining it, and them calling Jazeeratul 'Arab by the name "Jazeerah" (island or peninsula which is surrounded by water from all sides) is either because of letting it slip by, due to it being enclosed by water (ocean) from most of its sides, as it's usual from the arabs in expanding (words) in the likes of this matter, and either because they included "Dajlah" and "Al-Furāt" as an Ocean, as it has been called that when Allāh said:

"And it is He who has released [simultaneously] the two seas, one fresh and sweet and one salty and bitter, and He placed between them a barrier and prohibiting partition." [25:53].

And it's well known that the 'Athb al-Furāt (fresh and sweet) is the ocean.

It's also not acceptable to call an area of the Land as a "Jazeerah" where water doesn't surround it, nor any ocean near it, except from 1 of its sides, this is not present on the tongues of the Arabs (i.e. Arabic Language).

But rather it can be understood that a Jazeerah can become famous by the name "Jazeeratul 'Arab", then the name is applied and what is meant is some of its areas due to its exclusiveness concerning it, and if this was the case, then it's a metaphor which is rarely used, it's not turned towards except that there's some kind of indication which overrides its real meaning, and perhaps this is the founding-point for those (Scholars) who explained "Jazeeratul 'Arab" as being the land of "Hijāz", and it's a False Absurd statement, rationally, textually, linguistically, and islamically, despite the nobleness of some of those (Scholars) who stated that.

And the name "al-Jazeerah" is narrated in the Hadīth, it has been narrated regarding a land which is a Jazeerah that most of those being addressed or some of them, don't know anything other than it, and it is "Jazeeratul 'Arab", and this Jazeerah is the Land of the Arabs:

Qahtān in Yemen is from it, Quraysh, Hawāzin, Ghatafān and those who are neighbouring them from the Arabs and most of them are from Madar in al-Hijāz, and Rabee'ah & Tameem in "Najd", and Hajr & Bahrain, and the outskirts of 'Irāq, and there is no one else other than them included within "al-Jazeerah".

And there's no one from the Arabs who are excluded from this Jazeerah, except a portion from Rabee'ah and Madhar, which entered within the land of Persia, and wasn't a home for them, and some of the Arabs who entered Shām such as al-Ghassāsinah from al-Azd, and they are (very) few under the authority of the romans.

So what's affirmed in this Jazeerah: Is that only the Arabs reside in it, and the arabs do not reside within other than it; So it is (known as) Jazeeratul 'Arab by the senses and observation, and what's also affirmed is that the name "al-Jazeerah" conforms with the tongue, and that its name according to the Arabs is Jazeeratul 'Arab throughout the Countries.

And as for whomever said that "Jazeeratul 'Arab" is "Hijāz", then he has based that upon 'Umar Ibn al-Khattāb(رضي الله عنه) leaving alone some of the Mushrikīn outside of Hijāz such as the Christians of Najrān, and the remainder of the Jews in Yemen, so he (i.e. the scholar who stated it's referring to Hijāz) viewed that this is a deflection which deflects the name of "Jazeerah" to refer to the land of Hijāz alone.

And this reasoning isn't correct, for if there were some Mushrikīn that remained outside of Hijāz, then some of the Mushrikīn also remained within Hijāz during the period of the Khilāfah of Abī Bakr(رضي الله عنه), and the response to this will come shortly by the permission of Allāh, and the Hadīth remains upon its outward & general meaning.

And expelling the Mushrikīn from the Arabian Peninsula is a Command from the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم), in which he did not place any type of medium as a condition, rather it is absolutely unrestricted, and what is intended is expelling them from the Jazeerah (i.e. Peninsula).

~ Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tuwaylaṭī(رحمه الله).

An excellent example to clarify the nature of voting in any system, even if you vote for an Islamic law:

If you ask your son to get you a glass of water, and he tells you he will ask 5 of his friends to vote on whether he should obey you or not; then 3 of them say yes and 2 of them say no, so he gets you the glass of water...

Did he obey you? Or did he actually obey them, not you?

was asked: What is the definition of gheebah and what is (حفظه الله)Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān ?the ruling on it

.responded by saying: Praise be to Allāh (حفظه الله)Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān

Gheebah (backbiting, gossip) means that a person mentions the faults of his Muslim brother in his .absence, which he would not like if he heard about it, when there is no need to mention them

When I say “mentions the faults of his brother”, this excludes cases when the other person says something to praise or commend him

.When I say “Muslim brother”, this excludes the kāfir, for there is no gheebah in the case of a kāfir

When I say, “in his absence”, this excludes things said in his presence, which is not called gheebah according to the more correct of the two scholarly opinions

When I say, “which he would dislike if he heard about it”, this excludes things which he would not mind

When I say, “when there is no need to mention them”, this excludes cases when there is a Sharī reason for doing that, such as warning against an innovator to make people aware of his bid’ah

:It is essential to pay attention to the following in such cases

.Sincerity towards Allāh and seeking His pleasure .\

.Paying attention to the interests being served by such things .ʻ

What is said should be limited to the shortcomings in question and should not go further, to .ʻ matters in which there is no benefit

The Scholars agreed that it is haram (impermissible) to talk behind a person’s back for no legitimate purpose. Most of them stated that this is a major sin and that it varies in degree, some kinds being worse than others. The one who backbites about a Scholar is not like one who backbites about an ignorant person. Allāh (tabāraka wa ta’āla) says neither backbite one another. Would one of you like to eat the flesh of his dead brother? You ...} would hate it (so hate backbiting). And fear Allāh. Verily, Allāh is the One Who forgives and accepts [repentance, Most Merciful [49:12

In Saheeh Muslim it is narrated from al-’Alā Ibn ’Abdur-Rahmān from his father from Abū Hurayrah (may Allāh be pleased with him) that the Prophet (sall Allāhu ’alayhi wa sallam) said: “Do you know what gheebah is?” They said, “Allāh and His Messenger know best.” He said, “That you say something about your brother that he dislikes.” He was asked, “What if what I say about my brother is true?” He said, “If what you say is true then you have gossiped about him, and if it is not true ”.then you have slandered him

Abū Dāwūd narrated in his Sunan via Nawfal Ibn Masāhiq from Sa’eed Ibn Zayd that the Prophet (sall Allāhu ’alayhi wa sallam) said: “The most prevalent kind of usury (ribā) is going to lengths in ”.talking unjustly against a Muslim’s honor

And he (sall Allāhu ’alayhi wa sallam) said: “Your blood, your wealth and your honor are sacred among you, as sacred as this day of yours in this month of yours in this land of yours. Let those who are present convey it to those who are absent; perhaps he will convey it to one who has more .(understanding than he does.” (Agreed upon, from the Hadeeth of Abū Bakrah

One of the worst types of gheebah and one which is most emphatically forbidden is to look down upon a Muslim and do one’s utmost to insult him, show disrespect towards him and cast aspersions upon his honor. This is a blameworthy characteristic and a serious malady; it is one of .the major sins and the one who does this is subject to the warning and a severe punishment

*Khadijah in the time of Jāhiliyyah was known as the Tāhirah (the pure & chaste woman)*

And Khadijah رضي الله عنه submitted herself to the Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم, just as she surrendered her wealth to him, and truly dedicated herself to obey him and serve him, and all means of happiness and comfort was provided for him, صلى الله عليه وسلم, so as a wife, she is considered the ideal, generous and righteous woman.

And, may Allāh be pleased with her, she assumed responsibility of serving the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) on her own, and she wouldn't let anyone else undertake that role, for it has been narrated in the Authentic Noble Prophetic Hadīth: On the authority of Abī Hurayrah(رضي الله عنه) that he said, Jibrīl came to the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) and said:

"O Rasūl Allāh! This is Khadija coming to you with a dish having meat soup (or some food or drink). When she reaches you, greet her on behalf of her Lord (i.e. Allah) and on my behalf, and give her the glad tidings of having a Qasab palace in Paradise wherein there will be neither any noise nor any fatigue (trouble)." didn't spend her life working. She inherited her business from her previous (رضي الله عنها) Khadijah .husbands, & she would then hire people to run it

When Khadijah got married, there was no need for her to work. She settled down & raised a family. . "Stay-at-home mother" isn't an insult

I have been thinking alot lately about the main problem our Ummah is facing in our times, and I really believe it falls back to 1 word our beloved Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم told us:

"Wahn"

And when I say Ummah, it's sad that I used to think about others, but in reality I should only be looking at myself, forget about everyone else, if the Sahābah (real men) of the Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم were here, they wouldn't give me a second look! Infact they would not respond to my Salām!!! Those who have read a bit about the Seerah would understand how bad we are...

It's a shame that our standards are so low these days, but you know what, even though it's nothing special to write up statuses (like this one), I guess we gotta push ourselves to work harder and take away that wahn from our hearts.

These days, knowing or speaking Fus'ha Arabic is considered something amazing, and translating audios or books of the 'Ulamā' is rare. Now even though this is a praiseworthy act (don't get me wrong), but it shouldn't be something special & rare. Khalās, someone knows a bit of arabic and can translate certain things, people raise him above the 'Ulamā' - Welcome to social media.

So what happens now is instead of listening to the elucidation of the Scholars such as Shaykh Hamūd al-'Uqlā' on "Al-Tahāwīyyah" (a very difficult 'Aqīdah book to understand), we are going to listen to Abū Laymūnah or Abū Bateekh give a 'Facebook Live' Sharh on it.

And this is the reason why I don't like to dive into complex mind-boggling books, and stick to the Shurūh (explanations) of the contemporary 'Ulamā' & make my way up.

Going back to the above, a reminder for myself and you, is don't be among those who sit behind with women their whole lives seeking knowledge, without any implementation.

The difference between "Al-Hassan" (الحسن) & "Al-Hassanah" (الحسنة) is that Al-Hassanah is greater in "husn" (goodness), because the (letter) "Hā" is included to signify hyperbole, so therefore we say:

Verily obligatory and optional actions are included within "Al-Hassanah", and what's Mubāh (permissible) isn't included in it, even though it's considered "Hassan" (i.e. Good), because what's Mubāh (permissible) doesn't receive any rewards or praise from it, and that's why "Al-Hassanah" has been requested (to perform) and it's an act of obedience, whereas what's Mubāh (permissible) is included within "Al-Hassan", because every permissible act is "Hassan" (good), however there's no rewards for it, nor any praise, so for that reason, it's not considered a "Hassanah".

So this brother told me that he was thinking about me ever since, and even speaking about me with his friends till this day. SubhanAllah, if it wasn't for his friend who invited me to his facebook group, I probably won't even be on Facebook at all.

I truly learnt a lot by speaking with different kinds of people; Despite all the fake people around, there are some special brothers who only Allah knows how much love I have for them.

responded by saying: Al-Mudārāt is a praiseworthy (حفظه الله) Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān characteristic and is from the Akhlāq of the believers, and its meaning is softness and kindness with the one who does a mistake (sinner) to teach him and join his heart and take him away from the mistake.

And al-Mudāhanah is a despicable characteristic and it is from the Akhlāq of the Munāfiqīn, and its meaning is to be soft with the people of falsehood, mix with them without forbidding evil on them, with no intention of their rectification or taking them away from their falsehood.

He said you can see the strength and power of belief (which means Tawhīd) when you look at how the Roman Empire crumbled on the hands of Bedouins whose hearts were shining with that which Muhammad ﷺ taught them of Ēmān. That is a renowned non Muslim psychologist, while some of our 'Ālims today are trying to distort and downplay it or give a western version of Tawhīd, which is called the Western Islām or Western Tawhīd.

Looking good, having a nice smell, a cheerful character, big smile and humble speech is not something exclusive to our sisters in Islām.

It's mentioned in the Hadīth that Allāh is beautiful and He loves beauty. Allāh has ordered the man to adorn himself with nice clothes and perfume on the day of Jum'ah, 'Īd, the Masājīd and other places.

Yes brother, you want a beautiful wife who adorns herself, smells nice, is easy going, a cheerful character, always smiling in your face and you name it, but she also wants the same from you, and this is not my words.

Allāh has told us in Sūrat al-Baqarah: "And due to the wives is similar to what is expected of them, according to what is reasonable. But the men have a degree over them [in responsibility and authority]. And Allah is Exalted in Might and Wise." [2:228].

Imām Ibn Kathīr has mentioned in his Tafsīr upon this Āyah that Ibn 'Abbās رضي الله عنه said: "I verily adorn myself for my wife the same as she adorns herself for me. Also I would not ask her to fulfill all the rights which she owes me, so that it would become binding upon me to fulfill all the rights which I owe her."

It's all about being fair brother, always think about others, May Allāh have mercy upon you, "And live with them (i.e. your wives) honourably." [Al-Nisā' 4:19].

If someone calls you a dog, it's permissible to call him a dog in Qisās. However if someone calls you a Kāfir, you are not allowed to call him a Kāfir in return, because Takfīr is the Right of Allāh (حق لله); Meaning, that it's a legislative ruling.

Also, anything that's Harām in and of itself, is not permitted in Qisās. For e.g. If someone makes up a lie against you, you are not allowed to lie against them.

If someone does the act of homosexuals (sodomy), and the person dies from it, then it's not allowed to do that in Qisās, rather he is struck with the sword. Likewise with the one who kills someone through drinking wine, the Qisās punishment is the sword.

With regards to burning, drowning etc...There are many evidences from the Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم & Sahābah to show the permissibility of doing that in Qisās, and that's the view of the overwhelming majority of the Scholars as stated by Imām al-Qurtubī in his Tafsīr.

From the (sad) deprivations is that we bind (ourselves), widely spread and frequently send blessings upon the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) on the day of Jum'ah alone!

Whereas the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) said: "He who blesses me once, Allāh would bless him ten times." [Narrated by Muslim].

And this is pertaining the rest of the days (in the week), and during every time, moment, hour and day.

And the one who sends (ten) blessings back upon him, is Allāh(جل وعلا).

This is for a single blessing..so how about the one who frequently (sends blessings upon the Prophet) at all times!

And there are numerous ways of sending blessings upon the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم), and from the best and most authentic of it:

The companions asked, How shall we (ask Allāh to) send blessings upon you? So the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) replied, Say:

(Transliteration): "Allāhumma Salli 'ala Muhammad wa Azwājīhi wa Dhurriyatīhi Kamā Sallayta 'ala Āli Ibrāhīm, wa Bārik 'ala Muhammad wa Azwājīhi wa Dhurriyatīhi, Kamā Bārakta 'ala Āli Ibrāhīm, Innaka Hameedun Majeed" [Agreed Upon].

اللَّهُمَّ صَلِّ عَلَى مُحَمَّدٍ وَأَزْوَاجِهِ وَذُرِّيَّتِهِ، كَمَا صَلَّيْتَ عَلَى آلِ إِبْرَاهِيمَ، وَبَارِكْ عَلَى مُحَمَّدٍ وَأَزْوَاجِهِ وَذُرِّيَّتِهِ، كَمَا بَارَكْتَ عَلَى آلِ إِبْرَاهِيمَ، إِنَّكَ خَيْرُ مَجِيدٍ

(Translation): "O Allāh! Send Your Mercy on Muhammad and on his wives and on his off spring, as You sent Your Mercy on Abraham's family; and send Your Blessings on Muhammad and on his wives and on his offspring, as You sent Your Blessings on Abraham's family, for You are the Most Praiseworthy, the Most Glorious."

And it's narrated from Imām al-Shāfi'ī(رحمه الله):

That he used to send blessings upon the Prophet(20,000 صلى الله عليه وسلم times a day...!!

If your muslim brother falls into a sin, then do not expose him among the people and disgrace him, rather have mercy upon him and cover for him, as the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) said:

"And if anyone covers up a Muslim (his sins), Allah will cover him up (his sins) on the Resurrection Day". [Agreed Upon].

By endorsing it, you will take a share of the sin. And by not covering up (for your brother), Allāh will expose you. And by disgracing (your brother), Allāh will grant him well-being and afflict you (with disgrace).

And it has been narrated that: "If anyone disgraces his brother for a sin, he will not die before committing it himself." - Ahmad(رحمه الله) said: "From a sin which he repented from".

What Subdues Trials and Tribulation

by:UmAmir

(alsalafyoon article)

A Muslim may be challenged with tribulations with regards to the self,family or wealth. The stronger a Muslim's faith in Allah is, the more one will control the self, be patient and await rewards from Allah from that hardship. A Muslim's reward from Allah subhana wa ta'ala will be to the extent of one's patience and one's actions in hope for reward. The following addresses some of the aspects that may soften or lessen the pain of hardship or difficulty.

The foundation of triumph over hardship is patience. Allah has said in the Qur'an "Give glad tidings to those who are patient, who, when disaster strikes them, say, 'Indeed, we belong to Allah, and indeed to Him we will return.'" Those are the ones upon whom are blessings from their Lord and mercy. And it is those who are the rightly guided." (2:155-157)

Rasulullah sallallahu alayhi wa sallam also said with regards to patience: "Some people from the Ansar asked Allah's Apostle (to give them something) and he gave to everyone of them, who asked him, until all that he had was finished. When everything was finished and he had spent all that was in his hand, he said to them, ""(Know) that if I have any wealth, I will not withhold it from you (to keep for somebody else); And (know) that he who refrains from begging others (or doing prohibited deeds), Allah will make him contented and not in need of others; and he who remains patient, Allah will bestow patience upon him, and he who is satisfied with what he has, Allah will make him self-sufficient. And there is no gift better and vast (you may be given) than patience." (Sahih Bukhari:Volume 8, Book 76, Number 477/Narrated Abu Said)

In times of difficulties the Muslim must remind the self that in reality he/she, one's family and one's wealth belong ONLY to Allah. The slave is merely borrowing these from Allah. When Allah takes it back, the situation is comparable to the owner taking back one's property from the one who borrowed it from him. The Muslim must also recall that our journey as servants of Allah subhana wa ta'ala is to depart from this world, and to remember that we are simply returning to Allah, our Lord and guardian in truth.

The Muslim must likewise accept and sincerely hold in certainty that what afflicted him was not going to miss him and what misses him was not going to afflict him. In that process, the Muslim should consider the tribulation one is suffering, and realize that his Lord has left him something similar to what one has lost in store for him. And, if one is patient and pleased with Allah's decree, something that is far greater and superior to anything that one has lost awaits him. One should also realize that If Allah had willed to make the trial much worse, He could have effortlessly done so.

Bliss in this world is really only an oasis. If one laughs a little,one will cry plenty. If one is delighted for a day, one will be sorrowful for a long period of time. If a Muslim enjoys himself a little, he will find an unending period when he is prevented from such elation. No place is filled with excellence except that it is also filled with lessons that one must digest and learn from. A day of blissfulness comes to a Muslim and hidden with it is a day of harm.

The reward for patience, submission and recognizing that we all belong to Allah and are returning to him is greater than the affliction itself.

The Muslim can dampen the fire of affliction by looking to the example of the people that surround him who suffer afflictions. One will then realize that everyone faces some kind of adversity. If one examined the entire world, one will find that everyone is facing a trial. Either someone has lost a loved one or is facing something resented by him. If one looks to the right, one will see that people are facing trials. If one peeks to the left, one will find people in tragedy and loss.

Being impatient and distressed does not deflect the tribulation. It makes it worse. In reality, it is a type of increase in the disease. It only displeases Allah, makes one's enemy rejoice, harms one's friend, pleases the shaytan, erases one's reward and weakens one's soul. If the Muslim is patient and awaits one's reward from Allah, the shaytan will be defeated and censured in despair. Allah subhana wata'ala will be pleased with him. He will relieve others of their worry and burden. Offering others condolences before others offer him condolences is one way to remain patient and consistent in the worship of Allah in times of difficulties. That is what should be done and not striking of the cheek, tearing of the clothes, screams of pain and anguish and anger with what has been decreed.

The bitterness of this world is in fact the sweetness of the Hereafter. Similarly, the sweetness of this world is in fact the bitterness of the next world. The Muslim is really only moving from the temporary bitterness of this life to the eternal sweetness of the life after death that is much better for him. Rasulullah sallallahu alayhi wa sallam has said "Paradise has been surrounded by hardship while the Fire has been surrounded by desires." (Sahih Muslim)

What I have experienced in the past few days has made me forget every single happy moment of my life, and felt as if I was a parent who saw all my children pass away.

What a crazy life full of non-stop trials has it been; The emotional and physical pain is unimaginable, but I truly believe Allāh's wisdom is beyond anything I can think of - Allāh knows best what He has in store for me.

I won't be active on FB for the mean-time.

Okay I have to get 1 thing off me, what pisses me off is seeing so many muslims saying "Did you hear about what happened in Syria, a chemical attack!"

Alright, a chemical attack happened & it was bad, 100+ people died and 500+ injured. But what's the difference between your brothers & sisters dying from chemical attacks & being killed from barrel bombs and airstrikes?

Why do you get all worked up over a chemical attack & ignore everything else?! Infact, some people have said "Bashar has killed lots of people, but he never used chemical attacks, that's fake propaganda".

Okay, so killing the whole population is fine as long as he doesn't use chemicals? Every single idiot that speaks about "fake propaganda" are usually the same retards that share false propaganda against the Mujāhideen.

Look, I'm not gonna judge anyone's intentions or "love for the Ummah", but how can you claim to care for the Ummah, and all you say is "Free Palestine" or "Free Syria", when at the same time, you're living a 'great life', hanging out with cowards, playing games with your dunyā loving mates, talking about chicks and what not.

If you truly cared for the Ummah, why do your speech & actions 364/365 days of the year say otherwise. Infact I wish all you did was say "Free Syria" & kept your filthy poisonous tongue away from the Mujāhideen, but no; you're a barking low life dog sucking up to the Kuffār.

And I don't believe in "Free Syria" if it means replacing Bashār with another Tāghūt apostate like him, which is what many Apostate Funded groups openly claim to want.

And why do you only raise awareness for 1 country going through oppression, look at the cities of Libya and how they are demolished by the Tawāghīt, by Heftar and his allies. Why are you silent about the new Fir'awn of Egypt Sīsī the cross-worshipper, who is bombing the homes of muslims in Sinai?

You're an ignorant sheep, you're a stupid dinosaur who knows absolutely nothing about what's going on, yet you want to talk about whether the actions of the Muwahiddīn is "Beneficial" or "Harmful", give me a break man...

I ask Allāh to wake up the misguided dinosaurs in our Ummah from their deep slumber & keep our hearts steadfast upon the Truth.

<https://ahlutawheed.wordpress.com/2017/04/04/those-who-disbelieve-fight-in-the-path-of-the-taghut/>

The second evidence: (And it is) from the Book of Allāh ta'āla;

{...those who disbelieve, fight in the path of tāghūt. So fight against the allies of shaytān; undoubtedly the plan of shaytān is weak.}

And the meaning of tāghūt is what Ibnul-Qayyim rahimahullāh stated:

"Tāghūt is anything by which the slave transgresses the limits through worship, following, or obedience. Thus, the tāghūt of any people is he whom they seek judgment from other than Allāh and His Messenger (sall Allāhu 'alayhi wa sallam), or whom they worship alongside Allāh, or whom they follow without guidance from Allāh, or whom they obey in what they do not know to be in obedience to Allāh. These are the tawāghīt of the world; if you were to contemplate them and, at the same time, contemplate the condition of the people, you would see that most people have turned from the worship of Allāh to the worship of tāghūt, from seeking judgment from Allāh and His Messenger (sall Allāhu 'alayhi wa sallam) to seeking judgment from tāghūt, and from obeying and following Allāh and His Messenger (sall Allāhu 'alayhi wa sallam), to obeying and following the tāghūt." [1].

And ash-Shaykh Muhammad Ibn ‘Abdul-Wahhāb rahimahullāh said: “The word tāghūt is general. So everything that is worshipped besides Allāh, while being pleased with this worship – whether it is something worshipped, someone followed, or someone obeyed in the absence of obedience to Allāh and His Messenger, then that is considered tāghūt. The tawāghīt are many, but their heads are five:

The First: The shaytān who calls the people to worship other than Allāh. The proof for this is His ta’āla saying;

{Did I not command you O children of Ādam, that you should not worship the shaytān. Verily, he is a plain enemy to you.} [Sūrah Yasin: 60]

The Second: The tyrannical and oppressive ruler who changes the rulings of Allāh. The proof for this is His ta’āla saying;

{Have you not seen those (hypocrites) who claim to believe in that which has been revealed to you, and that which was revealed before you, and they wish to go for judgement (in their disputes) to the taghūt, when they have been ordered to reject them? But the shaytān wishes to lead them far astray.} [Sūrah an-Nisā: 60]

The Third: The one who judges by other than what Allāh has revealed, and the proof for this is His ta’āla saying;

{And whoever does not judge by what Allāh has revealed, then they are the disbelievers.} [Sūrah Al-Mā’idah: 44]

The Fourth: The one who claims to have knowledge of the Unseen, apart from Allāh. The proof for this is His ta’āla saying:

{He alone is the All-Knower of the Unseen, and He does not disclose His Unseen matters to anyone.} [Sūrah Al-Jinn: 26-27]

And He ta’āla says:

{And with Him lie the keys to the Unseen, no one knows them but He. And He knows whatever there is in the land and in the sea; not a leaf falls except that He knows about it. There is not a grain in the darkness of the earth, nor anything fresh or dry, but that it is written in a Clear Record.} [Sūrah Al-An’ām: 59]

The Fifth: The one who is worshipped apart from Allāh, while being pleased with being worshipped. The proof for this is His ta’āla saying;

{And whoever amongst them says: ‘Verily, I am an ilah besides Him (Allāh)’, then this person’s recompense will be the Hellfire. That is the way we recompense the wrongdoers.} [Sūrah Al-Anbiyā: 29]” [2].

And ash-Shaykh Muhammad Hāmid al-Fiqī (rahimahullāh) said: “That which we find in the statements of the Salaf (radiy Allāhu ‘anhum) is that the tāghūt is whatever deviates the slave away and prevents him from the worship of Allāh, being sincere to Him in the Deen, in obeying Allāh and His Messenger (sall Allāhu ‘alayhi wa sallam), whether that is from the shayātīn of Jinn or from the shayātīn of Ins (humans), trees, rocks and other than them. Included in this without any doubt: Judging and ruling by man-made laws that are foreign to Islām and its Shari’ah in all different matters that man has to be placed to judge in such as issues of blood, honor and wealth. Ruling and judging by these laws is the abolishment of the Laws of Allāh; from establishing the Hudūd, forbidding ribā, khamr and others which are allowed in these laws and protected by laws that facilitate its spreading and implementation. Thus, these laws are a tāghūt and those who legislate and spread them are also tawāghīt. This ruling includes all the likes of laws in every book that is man-made as these books divert the people from the truth that the Prophet (sall Allāhu ‘alayhi wa sallam) came with; whether on purpose or not, it is a tāghūt.” [3]

And ‘Abdul-Qādir Ibn ‘Abdul-‘Azīz (shifāhullāh) said: “The general apparent meaning of tāghūt is everything that is worshipped besides Allāh. As for a deeper analysis and explanation then there are two types of tawāghīt mentioned in the Texts of the Qur’ān and Sunnah: the tāghūt in terms of worship and the tāghūt in terms of judgement.

1. The tāghūt in terms of worship is referred to in His ta’āla saying;

{Those who avoid the tāghūt by not worshipping them...}

Which is everything that is worshiped besides Allāh whether it is shaytān or men, alive or dead, an animal, a tree, a stone, or a planet. That is in regards when one offers sacrifices for it, calls upon it, makes Salah for it besides Allāh or obeys and follows it in opposition to the Law of Allāh. But it is restricted from the words, “what is worshipped besides Allāh,” by the words, “and being pleased with that,” to remove those such as ‘Īsā Ibn Maryam (‘alayhis-salām) and others from amongst the Prophets, Angels and righteous who are worshipped besides Allāh but are not pleased with that, not one of them is named a tāghūt. Ibn Taymiyyah (rahimahullāh) said: “And He ta’āla says;

{And the Day when He wll gather them all together, then He will say to the angels: ‘Was it you that these people used to worship?’ They will say: ‘Glorified are You! You are our Walī instead of them. No, but they used to worship the jinn, most of them were believers in them.’}

Meaning that the Angels did not order for that but rather it was the jinn that ordered them to be slaves of these idols, as there are shayātīn for these idols (living inside), similarly to how the shayātīn possess those who worship planets until one of the shayātīn is revealed and speaks to him, and it is a shaytān from the shayātīn. This is why He ta'āla says;

{Did I not command you, O children of Adam, that you should not worship shaytān? Verily, he is a plain enemy to you. And that you should worship Me. That is the straight path. And indeed he did lead astray a great multitude of you, Did you not then understand?}

And He saying;

{Will you then take him and his offspring as protectors and helpers rather than Me while they are enemies to you? What an evil is the exchange for the dhālimūn.}" [4].

2. The tāghūt in terms of judgement, and it is taken from His Saying; ﴿...they wish to go for judgement to the tāghūt...}

And it is everything that is sought judgement from besides Allāh, whether a constitution or systems or ruling by other than what Allāh revealed whether from a ruler or a judge and other than them." [End Quote].

Based upon all that, it is undoubtedly clear that america is a tāghūt, the security council is a tāghūt, the united nations is a tāghūt, international laws set by them is a tāghūt, and that the contemporary governments like what has passed are tawāghīt. In this Āyah He subhānahu clearly shows that those who disbelieve fight in the path of the tāghūt, and are allies of the shaytān.

Whoever fights under the banner of america is a kāfir, whoever fights under the banner of britain is a kāfir, whoever assists in transporting their soldiers is a kāfir, whoever opens airports for them is a kāfir, whoever protects them is a kafir, whoever assists in transporting their ammunition onto trucks is a kāfir etc. Whoever fights with them then he is from them, whether he fits the description by his hand or his tongue or his opinion or his fatāwā or his articles or his positions. The Messenger of Allāh (sall Allāhu 'alayhi wa sallam) said:

"Fight the mushrikīn with your wealth, yourselves, and your tongues." And he (sall Allāhu 'alayhi wa sallam) said: "Allāh will enter three person into Jannah for one arrow: the maker when he has a good motive in making it, the one who shoots it, and the one who hands it..."

The Āyah is proof that those who help this coalition in their fight against the Muslimīn with any kind of aid then he is from the allies of the shayātīn al-kāfirīn.

'Abdul Qādir 'Abdul 'Azīz says after citing this verse [Those who believe fight in the cause of Allah , and those who disbelieve fight in the cause of Taghut. So fight against the allies of Satan. Indeed, the plot of Satan has ever been weak]:

"So everyone who fights to defend a Kāfir ruler or constitution or Kāfir system - as the helpers of the apostate rulers do - then he has fought in the path of the Tāghūt, and everyone who fights in the path of the Tāghūt is a Kāfir.

Allāh said: "And those who disbelieve fight in the path of the Tāghūt"

And what is included within this: is fighting with speech or actions as we have quoted from Ibn Taymiyyah, and ponder over Allāh's statement:

"So fight against the allies of the Shaytān".

For this clarifies to you that the Tāghūt in essence is the Shaytān who calls towards Kufr, and that whoever fights in the path of the Tāghūt, then he is in essence only fighting in the path of the Shaytān, and this is also from the aspect of re-assuring their disbelief, for verily the allies of the Shaytān are the disbelievers, as Allāh said:

"And those who disbelieve, their ally is the Tāghūt" [2:257].

And Allāh said: "Verily, We made the devils allies to those who do not believe" [8:27].

So this is from the most clearest of proofs pertaining the Kufr of the helpers of the Apostate Rulers by speech, such as some of the evil Scholars and journalists, and by action like the soldiers with their various kinds, that they fight in the path of the Tāghūt, and whoever fights in his path is a Kāfir, and ruling upon them all with Kufr doesn't have to necessitate them directly being involved in the fighting, or that fighting occurs, rather everyone who was designated as an intermediary of these rulers for fighting on their behalf, and on behalf of their Kufr ruling systems - which is the path of the Tāghūt - then he is a Kāfir.

And if Allāh has ruled upon the one who seeks judgement to the Tāghūt with disbelief, then how about the one who fights alongside him and in his path?" [5]

I say: Indeed "The Peninsula Shield Force" or other than them whom fight today alongside America, entering within this verse is from the most clearest of matters that no one doubts of, except whomever Allāh has blinded his vision and deafened his ears and deviated his heart, O Allāh keep us firm upon the Haqq until we meet you, O Lord do not deviate our hearts after you have guided us, and bestow upon us from your mercy, verily you are the Wahhāb (All-Bestower).

Radwan Dakkak I agree with you akhī (his words aren't a hujjah alone), it's also the view of other 'Ulamā', and they have brought their evidences ولله الحمد - There's a full translated article to show that.

2 April 2017 22:22

Jamal Ud-Din El-Kiki Our brother Anwar is clearly referring to the making of *takfir* on certain individuals, not understanding matters of *kufr*. Two different things.

2 April 2017 22:40

محمد مستنشد Beneficial discussion. Jazaakumullaah khyran.

2 April 2017 23:14

Jamal Ud-Din El-Kiki Please share the original article. Instead of sharing Maqdisi's tweet, you could have truly benefited your followers by emphasising that whoever was certainly a Muslim does not leave the fold of Islam except with certainty, as mentioned in the hadith: "إلا أن تروا كفراً بواحاً عندكم فيه من الله برهان". That regardless of all accusations of kufr, a Muslim, (such as Ibn Baz, Ibn Uthaymeen) remains a Muslim until their kufr is as clear as day, which it is not here (otherwise Maqdisi himself wouldn't be describing it as an inconclusive, debatable "matter of ijtihad" and resolved to giving a decisive verdict instead). Simply deeming that takfir of such scholars is "not ghuluww" gives any jaahil impunity to declare takfir on scholars and any other Muslim...because worst case scenario is that it is "wrong not ghuluww". Takfir becomes light and easy on the tongue. Think deeply about what you share, and about the consequences it will bring about. May Allah guide you and I to what truly Pleases Him.

2 April 2017 23:15

Jamal Ud-Din El-Kiki You're effectively shifting the discussion from talking about the validity of takfir of individuals (Ibn Baz, Ibn Uthaymeen) which is clearly unresolved (to say the least) to talking about the validity of the stated reasons/ justifications for takfir. You might as well add that it is "not ghulu" to make takfir on the basis of the Ten Nawaqid.

2 April 2017 23:40

Jamal Ud-Din El-Kiki But Br Radwan used the tweet to refer to the ruling on Ibn Baz and Ibn Uthaymeen specifically, which is what I was responding to. Read the title of his post.

3 April 2017 00:15

Jamal Ud-Din El-Kiki Of course the issue in question here is the application of the ruling to these specific scholars. I haven't been discussing anything other than the Hukm upon specific individuals throughout this comment thread, as this is what was intended by the question presented to Maqdisi, along with his response. I should point out that ghuluww is not limited to one degree or form; it is not limited to innovating reasons and justifications for takfir (such as the takfir of al-aadhir as adopted by the followers of Hazimi, or the various usul of takfir adopted by the Khawarij). One may limit themselves to the Ten Nawaqid, or in this case, the argument that giving bay'ah to a kafir is kufr, and still be falling into ghuluww due to reckless and tactless application to individuals. Too many people play with fire thinking that they are not just entitled, but obligated, to do so, as a result of their compounded ignorance (jahil murakkab). If we can agree that the average Muslim should not give themselves the right to make takfir on scholars like Ibn Baz and Ibn Uthaymeen, then we should be able to agree that Maqdisi's tweet was problematic and irresponsible given the suggestion that such takfir is only "incorrect but not ghuluww...in my (Maqdisi's) opinion" and that he was making this response in the unscholarly circle of Twitter. May Allah protect you too, Abu Hamzah.

Radwan Dakkak There's a difference between the Muftī and the situation of the Scholars of Tāghūt nowadays (which is what i was referring too) and back when Al-Sinānī spoke about him. But even if someone views they have an excuse, it doesn't necessitate them being a "deviant" or "Jāhil", I don't agree with such ilzāmāt.

4 April 2017 11:32

Radwan Dakkak Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tuwaylaī makes takfīr upon the Scholars of Tāghūt, just like Al-Zahrānī. Refer to his book; fight the imams of Kufr. There's also a difference between saying "there's no doubt regarding their Kufr" and saying there's a "consensus upon their Kufr". Ofcourse it's a matter of Ijtihād, but the textual evidences strongly show the Muftī being a Kāfir, and Allāh knows best.

4 April 2017 11:38

Radwan Dakkak I have a question: What excuse does the Muftī along with all those Scholars of Āl Salūl who are supporting the alliance with America to bomb muslims? What preventative do they have for their wicked justification of the actions of the Tāghūt and deceiving millions.

4 April 2017 11:45

Radwan Dakkak They're all in prison, and nothing has come out regarding their stance today of the Scholars supporting this Kufr Crusader coalition.

4 April 2017 11:49

Shaykh Abū Muhammad al-Maqdisī (may Allāh cure him) was asked:

“Do you see the issue of making Takfīr upon Ibn Bāz and Ibn 'Uthaymīn from the matters of Ijtihād or is this action of making Takfīr upon them extremism?”

Shaykh Abū Muhammad al-Maqdisī responded by saying:

“Whoever gives bay'ah to a Kāfir has pledged his loyalty (to him) with pure affection from his heart, so his Takfīr (upon Ibn Bāz & Ibn 'Uthaymeen) is not Ghulu, rather it's a matter of Ijtihād, and my Ijtihād regarding Ibn Bāz and Ibn 'Uthaymīn is not to make Takfīr upon them, and that the one who makes Takfīr upon them is mistaken.”

*Building a church in the land of Islām*

1. Building mosques in the west doesn't permit building churches in the lands of Islām, for Allāh permitted (a man) to marry from the people of the book, and prohibited them to marry (from our women), this is the ruling of Allāh, there is no reciprocated allowance.
2. The Muharrar (i.e. Reviser & Editor) of the Madhab of the Hanafiyyah Ibn 'Ābidīn mentioned an agreement (of the Scholars) about the impermissibility of building churches in the land of Islām, and he said: "No heed is given to a Fatwa that gave a verdict in opposition to this, and it's not permissible to adhere to it."
3. Some of the contemporary Scholars cite from Abī Hanīfah the permissibility of building churches in the land of the Muslims unrestrictedly, and this citation is wrong, and what's narrated from Abī Hanīfah is (the permissibility) of building churches in the villages that are exclusive to the Christians (alone).
4. Building churches in the land of Islām is siding against Allāh, and a group of Scholars have mentioned that approving of such a thing is Kufr.

2. Shaykh al-Muhaddith Hamad al-Humaydī, may Allāh accept him amongst the Shuhadā' is an Imām that supports the Haqq, he was executed along with Shaykh Fāris al-Zahrānī & Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tuwaylāī.

He has memorised the 6 books of Hadīth, along with many other Mutūn (i.e. Concise Texts), he studied under Shaykh al-Muhaddith 'Abdullāh al-Sa'd for 7 years, and likewise he studied under Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz Ibn Bāz for 9 years. He also sat with al-Barāk and Sālih al-Fawzān for a long period of time, and they benefited from each other.

But the Shaykh excels many in his firmness and steadfastness to the Truth, and loving the implementation of the Shari'ah & those righteous servants who truly apply it, as it's well known.

AbdurRahman Umar Ibn Bakr Let not the believers take the disbelievers as Auliya (supporters, helpers, etc.) instead of the believers, and whoever does that will never be helped by God in any way, except if you indeed fear a danger from them. And God warns you against Himself (His Punishment), and to God is the final return. Qur'an 3:28

Male/Female Natural Disposition

It is very important for our well-being in this world and the hereafter that we be true and sincere to the very basic natural dispositions males and females were created with (especially in terms of our relationship to each other). The farther we are from these basic natural dispositions (in all males and females), as a result of brainwashing, the less well-being we will have in this world and the hereafter. The more we attempt to come back to these basic natural dispositions, the happier we will be (insha Allah).

Allah says:

وَلَيْسَ الذَّكَرُ كَالْأُنثَى

"And the male is not like the female" (3:36)

I have deleted the news about the church being built in Saudi: I watched the interview by those christians who are based in Riyādh & they stated that a church has been built, but this is not enough confirmation, and there is lots of people saying it might be an "April Fools Joke".

- On a side note, building a church in Riyādh is nothing surprising from the Saudi Kāfir Regime, when they have American Military Bases in the Land of Tawhīd!

*Why are the governments who claim Islām Kuffār?*

“No doubt the Tawāghīt who rule in the heart of the Ummah, Jazīratul ‘Arab, are Kuffār Murtaddūn (i.e. Disbelieving Apostates).”

إن طواغيت الحكم الجاثمين على صدر الأمة في جزيرة العرب , هم كفرة مرتدون

1. “Kuffār for not ruling by what Allāh revealed.”

كفرة لأنهم لا يحكمون بما أنزل الله

2. “Kuffār for seeking judgements from the Kufr Tāghūti legislations, and Qawānīn Wad’iyyah (man-made laws) instead of the Sharī’ah.”

وكفرة لأنهم يحتكمون إلى شرائع الكفر الطاغوتية , والقوانين الوضعية , من دون شرع الله

3. “Kuffār because they themselves make laws for general legislation that rival the Sharī’ah of Allāh, the Exalted.”

وكفرة لأنهم هم أنفسهم يُشرِّعون التشريع المضاهي لشرع الله تعالى

4. “Kuffār for attributing to themselves the attributes of divinity.”

وكفرة لأنهم ينسبون لأنفسهم كثيراً من خصائص وصفات الإلهية

5. “Kuffār for making the Halāl Harām and the Harām Halāl.”

وكفرة لأنهم حللوا الحرام وحرموا الحلال

6. “Kuffār for waging war on Allāh, His Messenger, and the believers.”

وكفرة لأنهم يُحاربون الله ورسوله والمؤمنين

7. “Kuffār for hindering people from the Dīn (religion) of Allāh ta’ālah, Tawhīd and Ēmān.”

وكفرة لأنهم يصدون الناس عن دين الله تعالى , وعن التوحيد والإيمان

8. “Kuffār for hating what Allāh revealed.”

وكفرة لأنهم يكرهون ما أنزل الله

9. “Kuffār because they mock the Dīn of Allāh and His Awliyā’ (i.e. Righteous Servants).”

وكفرة لأنهم يسخرون من دين الله ومن أوليائه

10. “Kuffār because they permit & approve of shirk akbar, don’t change it and don’t allow it to be changed, and the closest example for that is what occurred in al-Madīnah al-Nabawiyyah from the Rawāfīdh al-Anjās (i.e. Saudi govt allows them to do their shirk via loudspeakers, and imprisoned those who condemned them).”

وكفرة لأنهم يُباركون الشرك الأكبر ويُفرونه ولا يُغيرونه ولا يسمحون بتغييره , وأقرب مثال على ذلك ما حدث

في المدينة النبوية من قِبل الروافض الأنجاس

11. “Kuffār because they are allied & loyal to the enemies of the Ummah from the Jews, Crusaders and Apostates.”

وكفرة لأنهم موالون لأعداء الأمة من اليهود والصليبيين والمرتدين

“So they are because of this Kuffār Murtaddūn (i.e. Disbelieving Apostates), no one doubts in their disbelief except for all those who Allāh has obliterated his vision and foresight.”

فهم لأجل هذا كفار مرتدون , لا يشك في كفرهم إلا كل من أعمى الله بصره وبصيرته

“Is "Tark" (i.e. Abandonment) called an action (or deed)? Such as the one who abandons Zinā, can it be said that he did a righteous deed/action?

The answer requires further elaboration, if his abandonment was done in compliance (with the command of Allāh), such as avoiding the means towards Zinā, then this is a righteous deed/action, and if his abandonment was done out of being impotent, then that's not included.

And based upon this, abandoning (something) with a righteous intention is (called) an action/deed, as Allāh(تعالى) said: "and give up what remains [due to you] of Ribā".”

هل الترك يسمى عملاً ؟ كمن ترك الزنا فهل يقال عمل صالحا ؟
الجواب فيه تفصيل ، إن كان تركه امثالاً مثل الابتعاد عن وسائل الزنا فهذا عمل صالح . وإن تركه عجزاً فلا . { يدخل ، وعلى ذلك فالترك مع النية الصالحة عمل قال تعالى : { وذروا ما بقي من الربا

#Nullifiers_of_Islām #Tawhīd

Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tuwaylā(رحمه الله) said:

The Fourth Nullifier: "Whoever believes other than the guidance of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) is more complete than his guidance."

This Nullifier is the 4th nullifier which Shaykh Muhammad Ibn 'Abdil Wahhāb(تعالى) (رحمه الله) mentioned, and it is a "Nāqīdh l'tiqādh", meaning that the disbelief it's about is pertaining belief (in the heart), even though this belief could be known by speech and action, except that the disbelief it contains is the Kufr of l'tiqādh (belief in the heart).

And the complete words of the Shaykh in this nullifier is: "or someone else's judgement is better than his (i.e. the prophet's) judgement, such as the one who prefers the judgement of the Tawāghīth over his judgement, peace and blessings be upon him."

And attention must be drawn to an (important) issue: and it is that what's meant by the guidance of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) is his legislative guidance (which he receives from Allāh), but as for what was from the matters of the dunyā that doesn't have any legislation concerning it, then the guidance that the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) does would be most suitable for his time, besides the times that come after him, or (most suitable) for his place, besides the different places from his.

As for the guidance of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) which is from the revelation of Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, and (from) his Sharī'ah, as Allāh said:

"Nor does he speak from [his own] whims, It is not but a revelation revealed." [53:3-4].

So whoever believes that other than it is more complete, then he has believed that other than the Shari'ah of Allāh is more complete than his Shari'ah, and that other than the judgement of Allāh is better than His judgement, and this nullifier negates the Shahādah of Islām with its 2 parts:

- Tawhīd and the Risālah.

Tawhīd, because it is a defamation of Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, and in his Shari'ah, and in the perfection of His religion, and this is a defamation of the Rubūbiyyah, because legislation is from the qualities of the Rubūbiyyah (of Allāh), so it is attributing a deficiency to Allāh in His Shari'ah, just as if he attributes a deficiency to Allāh in his ability to create, or attributes a deficiency to Him, the Exalted and Majestic, in his power capability & what's similar to that.

And the Risālah, because it is a defamation in the Message of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) and its perfection and correctness, for indeed the one who believes other than the guidance of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) is more complete than his guidance, either believes that it's a guidance coming from Allāh but it has flaws & deficiencies, or that he believes it's from other than Allāh, and based upon that, so the Risālah of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) must either be flawed & deficient in the sense that it came down not complete & deficient, or that it's false in the sense that it's from other than Allāh.

And all of what has surpassed is Major Kufr which emits one from the fold of Islām, and Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, said:

"But who is better than Allah in judgement for a people who are certain [in faith]." [5:50].

And as for whoever believes that other than the guidance of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) is more complete than his guidance, however he meant by that the previous Risālāt (i.e. revelations sent to the previous prophets), so he thought that what Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, revealed to Mūsa and 'Īsa, and others amongst the prophets is better, even only in some aspects in contrast to what has been sent down to Muhammad(صلى الله عليه وسلم), then this person must have the evidence clarified to him, such as the statement of Allāh, the most High:

"And We have revealed to you, [O Muhammad], the Book in truth, confirming that which preceded it of the Scripture and as a criterion over it." [5:48].

And Allāh's statement: "This day I have perfected for you your religion and completed My favor upon you and have approved for you Islam as religion." [5:3].

And perfection/completeness is what doesn't accept addition. So if he still insists after he knows the evidence & it was clarified to him, he has disbelieved and left the fold of Islām, due to his denial of the text of Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, and the words of His Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم).

And this nullifier includes whoever believes that other than the guidance of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) is more complete than his guidance in a general sense, just as it includes whoever believes other than the Prophet's guidance in a specific matter or situation is more complete than his guidance, like the one who believes that the guidance of the Kāfir west in a specific issue is more complete than what the Messenger(صلى الله عليه وسلم) came with, or he believes that what his intellect and whims have reached in a specific matter is more complete than what he finds in the guidance of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم).

And also in the remainder of this Nullifier: "Or someone else's judgement is better than his (i.e. the prophet's) judgement".

So whoever believes that ruling by a particular man-made law, or a religion from the abrogated religions is better than ruling by the Shari'ah of Allāh and the Sunnah of His Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم), then he has left the fold of Islām, and whoever believes that the judgement of the man-made law in a particular issue, such as the issues of Hudūd, cutting (off hands), stoning & other than that, is more complete than the judgement of Allāh and His Messenger, then he has disbelieved.

And preferring someone else's judgement over the judgement of Allāh has 3 scenarios:

1. Believing that other than Allāh's judgement is more complete than His judgement in all matters.
2. Believing that other than Allāh's judgement in a specific matter is more complete than His judgement.
3. Believing that Allāh's judgement is more complete than someone else's judgement in all matters, however not at all times, rather in some periods of time, other than Allāh's judgement is more complete than His judgement, whether it was in a specific issue or the complete Shari'ah.

And all of these 3 scenarios is Major Kufr which takes one outside the fold of Islām, which nullifies the (trustworthy) handhold of Tawhīd, but rather it is different shades & colours for Disbelief, and all of it (i.e. these scenarios) return back to attributing flaws & deficiencies to the Shari'ah of Allāh & His Judgement: Either a deficiency in some legislations, or not applicable in some periods of time, nor being suitable for modern times, and it's as if Allāh(جل وعلا) was ignorant of the modern times, or was distant from having an atom's weight of its knowledge, Exalted with a Great Highness is Allāh from what the Oppressors say.

And from the types of preferring other than Allāh's judgement over His judgement: What is believed by some of those who's hearts have deviated and vision became blinded, that the french man-made legislations pertaining the "work system and workers" that is enforced in Bilād al-Haramayn (i.e. The land of the two sacred mosques), is more complete than the Shari'ah of Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, because it preserves the rights of the worker, and safeguards him from being subject to oppression from his boss (or employer) and what's similar to that.

Wherein if it was something good and rightful and complete and just, the Shari'ah of Allāh(عز وجل) would not be free from it, but rather it is the made-up of the garbage of the Crusader minds, how astonishing is the one who puts it forth above the Shari'ah of Allāh, the All-Mighty, the All-Wise!

And from the types of preferring other than Allāh's judgement over His judgement, is the one who knows the ruling of Allāh regarding the Apostate Rulers, which is to forcefully remove them by the sword with the ability to do so, and fighting them so that all of the religion solely belongs to Allāh, then he believes that something other than fighting which is the ruling of Allāh is more beneficial than fighting, and that fighting consists of more harm outweighing its benefit, while knowing that the ruling of Allāh is Fighting.

And Allāh knows best, and peace & blessings be upon our Prophet, and upon all of his household and companions.

'Abdul Qādir 'Abdul 'Azīz says after citing this verse [Those who believe fight in the cause of Allah , and those who disbelieve fight in the cause of Taghut. So fight against the allies of Satan. Indeed, the plot of Satan has ever been weak]:

“So everyone who fights to defend a Kāfir ruler or constitution or Kāfir system - as the helpers of the apostate rulers do - then he has fought in the path of the Tāghūt, and everyone who fights in the path of the Tāghūt is a Kāfir.

Allāh said: "And those who disbelieve fight in the path of the Tāghūt"

And what is included within this: is fighting with speech or actions as we have quoted from Ibn Taymiyyah, and ponder over Allāh's statement:

"So fight against the allies of the Shaytān".

For this clarifies to you that the Tāghūt in essence is the Shaytān who calls towards Kufr, and that whoever fights in the path of the Tāghūt, then he is in essence only fighting in the path of the Shaytān, and this is also from the aspect of re-assuring their disbelief, for verily the allies of the Shaytān are the disbelievers, as Allāh said:

"And those who disbelieve, their ally is the Tāghūt" [2:257].

And Allāh said: "Verily, We made the devils allies to those who do not believe" [7:27].

So this is from the most clearest of proofs pertaining the Kufr of the helpers of the Apostate Rulers by speech, such as some of the evil Scholars and journalists, and by action like the soldiers with their various kinds, that they fight in the path of the Tāghūt, and whoever fights in his path is a Kāfir, and ruling upon them all with Kufr doesn't have to necessitate them directly being involved in the fighting, or that fighting occurs, rather everyone who was designated as an intermediary of these rulers for fighting on their behalf, and on behalf of their Kufr ruling systems - which is the path of the Tāghūt - then he is a Kāfir.

And if Allāh has ruled upon the one who seeks judgement to the Tāghūt with disbelief, then how about the one who fights alongside him and in his path?" [1]

I say: Indeed "The Peninsula Shield Force" or other than them whom fight today alongside America, entering within this verse is from the most clearest of matters that no one doubts of, except whomever Allāh has blinded his vision and deafened his ears and deviated his heart, O Allāh keep us firm upon the Haqq until we meet you, O Lord do not deviate our hearts after you have guided us, and bestow upon us from your mercy, verily you are the Wahhāb (All-Bestower).

“Our Shaykh, Muhammad Ibn Ibrāhīm Āl al-Shaykh in his commentary upon Allāh's statement:

"But no, by your Lord, they will not [truly] believe until they make you, [O Muhammad], judge concerning that over which they dispute among themselves and then find within themselves no discomfort from what you have judged and submit in [full, willing] submission." [4:65].

He (i.e. Shaykh Muhammad Ibn Ibrāhīm) said: "And Allāh, the Glorified and Exalted, negated Ēmān for those who don't put the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) as their judge in their disputes, this is a repeated certified assurance of the negation (in their Ēmān) with an oath to it."

This is what he said in his commentary upon this Āyah, may Allāh have mercy upon him. And when I sat in his gatherings, may Allāh have mercy upon him, for (many) years, I used to hear from him more than once, really stressing on this issue, and explicitly professing the Kufr of whoever rules by other than the Sharī'ah of Allāh, as he made that really clear in the treatise "Tahkīm al-Qawānīn" (Ruling by man-made laws)."

رابعا: شيخنا الشيخ محمد بن إبراهيم آل الشيخ في تعليقه على قوله تعالى (فلا وربك لا يؤمنون... الآية)، قال: (وقد نفى الله سبحانه وتعالى الإيمان عن من لم يحكموا النبي صلى الله عليه وسلم فيما شجر بينهم، نفياً مؤكداً بتكرار أداة النفي بالقسم). هذا ما قاله رحمه الله في تعليقه على هذه الآية.

وحيث إنني لازمت حلقة رحمه الله سنوات عدة فقد سمعته أكثر من مرة يشدد في هذه المسألة ويصرح بكفر من حكم غير شرع الله، كما أوضح ذلك في رسالة تحكيم القوانين.

~ Shaykh Hamūd al-'Uqlā'(رحمه الله).

“So the conclusion is: That everyone who fights in the ranks of the Kuffār, or supports them through speech and actions - because this support (of speech & actions) takes the ruling of fighting - Then he is judged upon with Kufr on the individual sense (i.e. an apostate), and this is the ruling on the helpers of the Apostate Rulers.”

فالخلاصة: أن كل من قاتل في صف الكفار أو نصرهم بالقول والفعل - لأن هذه النصرة قتال حكماً - فهو محكوم بكفره على التعيين، وهذا هو حكم أنصار الحكام المرتدين.

*There's no authentic Hadīth concerning Rajab*

Al-Hāfidh Ibn Hajr (رحمه الله) said: “There is not a single reported Sahīh Hadīth which can be used as proof regarding the virtues of the month of Rajab, neither about fasting in it, nor about specifying a part of it for fasting, nor about specifying Qiyām al-Layl in it.” [1].

قال الحافظ ابن حجر رحمه الله: "لم يرد في فضل شهر رجب، ولا في صيامه، ولا في صيام شيء منه معين، ولا في قيام ليلة مخصوصة فيه حديث صحيح يصلح للحجة".

And he also said: “The explicit Hadīths narrated pertaining the virtues of Rajab or the virtues of fasting in it or the fasting of a portion from it, is divided into two categories: A category that's weak, and a category that's fabricated.”

و قال أيضاً: "الأحاديث الصريحة الواردة في فضل رجب أو فضل صيامه أو صيام شيء منه تنقسم إلى قسمين:!! "قسم ضعيف، وقسم موضوع

And al-Hāfidh Ibn Hajr (رحمه الله) has gathered the weak narrations which consists of 11 Hadīths, and he gathered the Fabricated narrations which consists of 21 Hadīths!

!!وقد جمع - رحمه الله - الضعيف فكان أحد عشر حديثاً، وجمع الموضوع فكان واحداً وعشرين حديثاً

Here are some of them:

1 - إن في الجنة نهراً يقال له رجب.. إلخ. ضعيف - 1

1. “Verily in Jannah there is a river that is called Rajab...” [Weak].
2. كان رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم إذا دخل رجب قال: «اللهم بارك لنا في رجب وشعبان وبلغنا رمضان» - 2 [ضعيف].
2. Whenever the Messenger of Allāh(صلى الله عليه وسلم) would enter (the month of) Rajab, he would say: “Allāhumma Bārīk Lanā Fi Rajab wa Sha'bān wa Ballighnā Ramadān.” [Weak].
3. لم يصم رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم بعد رمضان إلا رجب وشعبان. ضعيف - 3.
3. “The Messenger of Allāh(صلى الله عليه وسلم) did not (completely) observe fasting after Ramadān, except in Rajab and Sha'bān.” [Weak].
4. رجب شهر الله، وشعبان شهري، ورمضان شهر أمتي. باطل - 4.
4. “Rajab is the Month of Allāh, and Sha'bān is my month (i.e. the prophet's), and Ramadān is the month of my Ummah.” [Bātil - False!].
5. من صام من رجب إيماناً واحتساباً... ومن صام يومين... ومن صام ثلاثة... إلخ.. موضوع - 5.
5. “Whoever observes fast in Rajab with Ēmān & in the hope of earning reward (from Allāh)...and whoever fasts 2 days...and whoever fasts 3 days...(till the end of the Hadīth)...” [Fabricated].
6. فضل رجب على سائر الشهور... إلخ... موضوع - 6.
6. “The virtue of Rajab over all the other months is like (till the end of the Hadīth)...” [Fabricated].
7. رجب شهر الله ويدعى الأصم... إلخ... موضوع - 7.
7. “Rajab is the month of Allāh, and it's also known as the "Deaf Month".” [Fabricated].
8. من فرح عن مؤمن كربة في رجب.... إلخ... موضوع - 8.
8. “Whoever drives away the pain of a believer's worries or grief in Rajab...” [Fabricated].
9. إن أيام رجب مكتوبة على أبواب السماء السادسة، فإن صام الرجل منه يوماً... إلخ. في إسناده كذاب - 9.
9. “Verily, the days of Rajab are written on the doors of the 6 heavens, for indeed if a man fasts from it a single day...” [There is a liar in the chain].
10. الحديث الوارد في صلاة أول ليلة منه.. موضوع - 10.
10. “The reported Hadīth pertaining Salāh in the first night from it.” [is Fabricated]
11. صيام يوم من رجب مع صلاة أربع ركعات فيه على كيفية معينة في القراءة... موضوع - 11.
11. “Fasting a day of Rajab with a Salāh of 4 rak'ah, while reciting (the Qur'ān) in a certain manner.” [is Fabricated]
12. من صلى ليلة سبع وعشرين من رجب اثنتي عشرة ركعة... إلخ.. موضوع - 12.
12. “Whoever prays on the 27th night of Rajab twelve rak'ah...” [Fabricated].
13. من صلى ليلة النصف من رجب أربع عشرة ركعة.. إلخ.. موضوع - 13.

There is no authentic ḥadīth from the Prophet ﷺ concerning Rajab, and it is not prescribed to specify it with worship, like prayer or fasting. However, it is among the sacred months, and sin in it is greater:

{ قَلَّا تَطَلُّمُوا فِيهِنَّ أَنْفُسَكُمْ }

“So do not wrong yourselves therein.” [Al-Tawbah 9:36]

لا يثبت في فضل رجب حديث عن النبي ﷺ، ولا يُشرع تخصيصه بعبادة كصلاة وصيام، إلا أنه من الأشهر الخُرم (والسيئة فيها أعظم) (فلا تظلموا فيهن أنفسكم)

:::Interesting: Horseback Riding & Children:::

Back when 'Umar bin al-Khattab was the Khalifah, he sent to the various governors under his authority the following advice: "Teach your children swimming, horseback riding, delightful proverbs, ".and beautiful poetry

Recently, a study was published by a group of Japanese researchers analyzing the effects of horseback riding on children. The study was authored by Mitsuki Ota. I don't have a copy of the study itself in here, but I read a summary of it in an article published in last week's issue of the :'Mizan' newspaper (no. 316), part of which I've translated below

Japanese researchers believe that sending children to learn horseback riding results in their" enhanced intelligence and improved academic performance. The back and forth movements they .experience while riding a horse stimulates a part of the brain responsible for learning and memory

During the study, children were asked to answer some simple questions and solve some arithmetic problems directly before and after riding a horse. Additionally, the researchers calculated the average change in the children's heart rates as a result of the movements associated with riding the horse

The researchers also discovered that the particular pace of some horses stimulated an improved ability in children to fulfill behavioral tasks

These results indicate that horseback riding improves perceptive and cognitive skills in children, and these skills which depend on the brain can lead to improved learning abilities, memory, and "...problem-solving skills

They say: "If the (media) channel al-'Arabiyyah was present in the time of prophethood, the hypocrites would not gather except in it"

And I say, "If al-'Arabiyyah was present in the time of prophethood, the Sahābah would've demolished it upon the heads of its owners"

'Adnān al-'Ar'ūr, the filthy Surūrī dog of Āl Salūl was happy with the saudi-turkish backed Sahwajī's backstabbing our brothers & sisters, where 500+ muwahiddīn died, and sisters were raped.

So right after, Shaykh Ahmad Jibrīl (حفظه الله) sent this tweet to him, and it reads the following:

"I have known you since 25 years, you stayed in our home, and I published the Tazkiyyah of Al-Albānī's text for you which no one other than I had, on the most popular islamic website at the time, however by Allāh you are wicked filth."

- We will never forget that day, by Allāh! But the sad part is, the preachers of Irjā' in muslim communities world-wide take their Dīn from the likes of 'Adnān al-'Ar'ūr & make excuses for them.

#Weak_Hadīth

Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān (حفظه الله) was asked about the hadīth "O Allāh bless us in Rajab and Sha'bān & allow us to reach Ramadān" & what he thinks of it.

So the Shaykh responded by saying: This hadīth is narrated by Imām Ahmad (رحمه الله) in his Musnad [1/259] and al-Bazzār [616 - Kashf al-Astār] from the chain of Zā'idah ibn Abī al-Ruqād from

Ziyād al-Numayrī from Anas ibn Mālik who said "Whenever Rajab came, the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) would say Allāhumā Bārik lanā fī Rajab wa Sha'bān wa balighnā Ramadān"

And in its chain is Zā'idah ibn Abī al-Ruqād whose hadīth isn't authentic, al-Imām al-Bukhārī(رحمه الله) said about him "His hadīth is Munkar[Denounced]"

And al-Imām al-Nasā'ī(رحمه الله) in Kitāb al-Du'afā' said "His hadīth is Munkar[Denounced]"

Abū Dāwūd(رحمه الله) said "I do not know of his reports"

Ibn Hibbān(رحمه الله) said "He narrates Munkar reports from the well known (Imāms), he's not to be used as proof, nor to be written from, except for analysis (i.e. for when it might be used as a supportive weak narration)."

Al-Hāfidh ibn Rajab(رحمه الله) in Latā'if al-Ma'ārif [234] mentioned this hadīth and said that it's weak.

And refer to Tabyīn al-'Ajab regarding what has been narrated from the virtues of Rajab [page 18] by al-Hāfidh ibn Hajr al-'Asqalānī(رحمه الله), he has indicated towards its weakness because of the Taffarrūd of Zā'idah. [Taffarrūd meaning he was alone in reporting it]

And there's nothing authentic to specify Rajab in performing worship, neither du'ā [supplications], nor Siyām [fasting], nor Sadaqah [Charity], nor 'Umrah upon the correct [view], Verily the 'Umrah's of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) were only performed in Dhil Qa'dah [as we know] from the hadīth of Anas in the Sahīhayn [Bukhārī & Muslim].

And a group of people have claimed that the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) was born in the first night of Rajab, and this isn't to be taken into consideration.

And another group have said that the Isrā' [Night journey] of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) was on the 27th of the month of Rajab.

However, there's nothing authentic concerning all that and Allāh(جل وعلا) knows best.

*Nūr al-Dīn preferred the arrows (du'ā) of the widows and orphans over the arrows of his troops*

A soldier asked Nūr al-Din to give them more (financially), and Nūr al-Din asked him "where would you want me to get the money from?"

and the soldier said: "get some from what you give to the orphans and widows and spend it on the troops", and Nūr al-Din replied: "no, their arrows never miss and yours do." Meaning their du'ā.

“Allāh's statement: "And if you punish [an enemy, O believers], punish with an equivalent of that with which you were harmed." [16:126].

This is from the aspect of "al-Mithliyyah" (i.e. an equivalent recompense), and you are allowed to punish in the way of equivalence, it's permissible in the Sharī'ah.

If he (i.e. the enemy) burns with fire, he is to be burnt with fire, if he rips apart (a believer), he is to be ripped apart, if he kills by doing something something that is impermissible in the Sharī'ah, he is to be killed by what is impermissible to do in the Sharī'ah.

And as for the Prophet's statement: "Do not mutilate", this is from the aspect of "al-Hadd" (i.e. prescribing a penalty) and from the aspect of "al-'Uqūbah" (i.e. applying it as a punishment).

It's not permissible to mutilate from the aspect of a Hadd (i.e. prescribing a penalty), and it's not permissible to mutilate from the aspect of al-'Uqūbah (i.e. applying it as a punishment upon him).

But it's permissible to mutilate (the enemy) with an equivalence of what he has mutilated you, in the aspect of "al-Mithliyyah" (i.e. an equivalent recompense).”

“Excusing the Jāhil amongst the Mushrikīn if he is ascribed to the Muslims.”

Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tuwaylaī(رحمه الله) said:

“All praise is due to Allāh, and Peace & Blessings be upon the Messenger of Allāh, to proceed:

For Indeed, from the matters where differences and wrong mistakes have increased in it, is the issue of "al-'Udhr Bil-Jahl" (i.e. Excuse of Ignorance) in Asl al-Dīn (the foundations of the religion), and many of those who view that the Jāhil who commits Major Shirk is excused, make the basis & reason for that, his affiliation to Islām, and his claim that he's from the Muslims.

So if he worshipped other than Allāh, and made du'ā to him & sacrificed to him, and was raised upon that since his birth till his death, and he would profess with his tongue "I'm a Muslim", he (i.e. Many of those who view excuse of ignorance) would consider him from the Muslims, and if he worshipped other than Allāh, and made du'ā to him, and sacrificed to him, and would profess with his tongue "I'm upon the religion that Allāh has commanded me to be upon", he wouldn't excuse him, and this is from the contradictions, without a doubt.

And if he is cited with the comparison between the grave-worshippers and the idol worshippers, and not excusing either one of them with ignorance, he made the affiliation to Islām the difference (between the two), and due to this affiliation (to Islām), he rules upon the idol worshipper with Kufr, and rules upon the grave worshipper with Islām.

And affiliation to Islām, if it meant solely ascribing to Islām without the rest of the ordainments (like Salāh etc...), then it is a ruling without any proof for it, and if it means ascribing to the religion of Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, whether that affiliation was to Islām which Muhammad(صلى الله عليه وسلم) was sent with, or too Jeaudism or Christianity or other religions which the Messengers were sent with, the one who says this statement must rule the ignorant ones among the jews and christians and other than them with Islām, because they attribute themselves to the religion of Allāh which He ordered them to follow, and they fell into nullifiers due to ignorance, and whoever excuse those (christians & jews) has disbelieved and left fold of Islām, and denied the Authentic & Explicit (text) from the evidences.

Infact, he must rule upon the Polytheists of Quraysh with Islām before the advent of the Messenger of Allāh(صلى الله عليه وسلم), because they are upon the religion of Ibrāhīm(السلام), according to what they claim and assume, and they had some ordainments taken from him, and Ahkām (i.e. Rulings) such as Hajj, Circumcision, Exalting the Sentiments, and they acknowledge that Allāh is the Lord with no partners onto Him in Creating, Sustenance, Bringing to Life, Causing to Die, however they commit Shirk with others besides Allāh, so it can bring them closer to Allāh, believing that Allāh has permitted him to be a mandate on His behalf, and an intermediary between Him and His creation, Allāh is Exalted from what they claim.

And the grave worshippers are exactly like them in all of this, except that the grave worshippers attribute themselves to the seal of the Prophets (Muhammad) صلى الله عليه وسلم, instead of the Jāhiliyyīn who attribute themselves to Ibrāhīm(السلام), moreover they and them are the same in everything, and the grave worshippers will have no benefit in following the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) or adhering to some of his ordainments in the religion, just like the Kuffār of Quraysh had no benefit in following Ibrāhīm(السلام) or adhering to some of his ordainments in the religion.

So affiliation to Islām is in contrast with affiliation to the religion of Ibrāhīm, and some of the ordainments which they abide by in worship is in contrast with ordainments (the Mushrikīn perform), and the more or less (one performs of these ordainments) doesn't make a difference in affirming Ēmān and Kufr, and acknowledging the Rubūbiyyah of Allāh is in contrast with those (Mushriks) who affirm the Rubūbiyyah, and both parties are disbelievers in Allāh, outside the fold of Islām, emitted from the Dīn. And if he was affiliated to the correct Dīn (i.e. upon pure Tawhīd) and apostated when he first grew up, as is the case with many of the Qubūriyyah (i.e. Grave worshippers) and amongst the Jāhiliyyīn. And after that has surpassed of being upon the Fitrah of Islām (they became apostates afterwards) as is the case with some of the Qubūriyyīn (i.e. Grave worshippers) and the early ones who apostated from the Jāhiliyyīn.

Infact, the grave-worshippers even claimed that what they are doing is what Allāh & His Messenger has ordered, in contrast with the statement of the Mushrikīn in al-Jāhiliyyah, as Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic spoke about them:

"And when they commit an immorality, they say, "We found our fathers doing it, and Allah has ordered us to do it." [7:28].

And this is the Hujjah (i.e. Proof) of the over-whelming majority of the Mushrikīn amongst the grave worshippers today, rather I met with one of the major Mashāyikh from the people of Shirk performing 'Umrah, and absolutely uses the same proof of the First (earlier) Kuffār, and he said:

"It's not allowed for you to rebuke what the people (i.e. grave worshippers) are practising, because they took it from their fathers, and there's no doubt that they (also) took it from their fathers, and the Khalaf took it from the Salaf, then it (is taken) from the Messenger of Allāh(صلى الله عليه وسلم)!"

This is exactly what is mentioned in the Āyah from the proofs of the Mushrikīn, for 2 things: That they found their fore-fathers practising it, and that Allāh has ordered them to do it.

Al-Hāfidh Ibn Kathīr(رحمه الله) said: "And they believe that the practise of their fore-fathers is traced back to a command from Allāh and the Sharī'ah".

And even though this is in the context of "al-Fāhisha" (i.e. they found their fore-fathers committing an immorality, so then they said it was an order from Allāh to do so), which was interpreted as being their Tawāf around the Ka'bah naked, except that it's indicative to the practise of their fore-fathers as an evidence (for them), and it's their assumption that the practise of their fore-fathers is stemmed back to a Legislation from Allāh.

And this wrong mistake, just as it occurs with some of the opponents in the issue of "Excuse of Ignorance" from the students of knowledge, for verily it occurs amongst the laymen alot in excusing the stubborn person (who refuses to accept the Hujjah) that ascribes himself to Islām, so they don't make Takfīr upon the one who ascribes himself to Islām at all, rather I heard from some of those who were called "Du'āt al-Sahwa" (i.e. Revivalist Preachers), who flipped and turned so much say:

"I do not make Takfīr upon whoever says I'm Muslim", when he was asked about the likes of Hāfidh al-Assad (i.e. Bashār's father, may Allāh curse his soul) and the Arab Tawāghīt amongst the Apostate Rulers, and this is the exact blind misconception, and only if I knew, if this was the path of guidance and truth, then why did al-Siddīq (i.e. Abū Bakr) bother with fighting Musaylamah (the liar) and those with him, to the extent that the best Sahābah went out and died, and killings intensified among the Reciters, Scholars and people of the Qur'ān?! And the majority of those who the Scholars have ruled upon with Kufr were among the Murtaddīn, even though the over-whelming majority of them attributed themselves to Islām, and refused to be labelled with other than that.

Rather (to the extent that) this statement has ousted: That the one who says "I'm upon the religion of Mūsa" doesn't disbelieve, or "I'm upon the religion of 'Īsa" among the Jews and Christians, and this statement is extravagantly pored in the furthest of misguidance from the religion of Allāh, and the Book of Allāh, and the Sunnah of His Messenger(صلى الله عليه وسلم).

And if it is said: "This is not acceptable, for they disbelieved after the advent of Muhammad(صلى الله عليه وسلم) and the abrogation of their religions", so this necessitates that if they attributed themselves to Islām after the advent of Muhammad(صلى الله عليه وسلم) and remained upon what they are upon, their ignorant ones would be excused and be a Muslim, and it also necessitates that their ignorant ones were all Muslim believers during the advent of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم), and they only disbelieved due to his advent, and this is obviously invalid and false.

And what we just mentioned doesn't mean that we say there's no difference at all between the one who ascribes himself to Islām and the one who doesn't ascribe to it among the Mushrikīn, rather the affiliation of a person to Islām after he has disbelieved has Islām affirmed upon him in the "Dhāhir" (i.e. What's apparent), so if he didn't adhere to its Rulings, or he committed acts of Kufr that nullifier the Asl (i.e. Foundation) of Tawhīd, then he is judged with apostasy.

But as for the disbelieving groups that are raised upon this view (i.e. Of Kufr), then affirming Islām for them due to their affiliation to Islām has 2 statements among the Scholars, so some of them view that Islām is affirmed for them due to the affiliation, and apostasy is affirmed (right after) from what they commit from the acts of Kufr, and others view that they are originally disbelievers (i.e. Kuffār Asliyyīn), and that their affiliation to it is just like the affiliation of the polytheists of Quraysh to the religion of Ibrāhīm, and this is what's correct for what has surpassed of not differentiating between both affiliations, and Allāh knows best.

This, and peace and blessings be upon His slave and messenger Muhammad, and upon all of his household and companions."

Translator's Note: Some Scholars adopt the view that the Mushrikīn who ascribe themselves to Islām are Kuffār Asliyyīn, whereas many other Scholars would say they are Kuffār Murtaddīn, and Shaykh 'Abdul Latīf Āl al-Shaykh from the Imāms of Najd mentioned an ljmā' upon that, they enter into Islām by the Shahādah & nullify it at the same time with Shirk = Kuffār Murtaddīn.

*Part 2: The ruling on the voter and the candidate for entering into Parliament.*

Firstly: The ruling on the candidate (المُرْتَشِّحُ - إسم مفعول) for entering into Parliament is divided into 3 categories:

The 1st category: That he knows there's an oath to take for the constitution, and the matter is all the same for him, then this person is a Kāfir at all times, and what proves this is the following:

- That intending to commit Kufr is disbelief on the spot. Refer to "Muwālāt Ahlal al-Ishrāk" and "Sabil al-Najāṭ wal-Fikāk".

- Allāh's statement: "They wish to refer legislation to Taghut.", and wishing here is the action of the heart and being determined to do that action, and the certified intention necessitates being pre-determined to do that without a doubt, and (also) Allāh's statement: "they had said the word of disbelief and disbelieved after their [pretense of] Islam and planned that which they were not to attain."

- And whoever is intending to commit Kufr, it's like he has permitted Kufr, and viewed it to be a permissible thing to do, in contrast to the Shayṭānic whispering which doesn't remain fixed & isn't affirmed, and the heart is not comfortable with it, and doesn't incline to it.

The 2nd category: That he doesn't know there's an oath to take for the constitution, or that there is a Tāghūtī legislation, then this person is to be notified, so if their falsehood is clarified to him, and was still determined to enter (parliament) after that, he disbelieves with the intention of taking an oath, because whoever defers committing Kufr for the future, disbelieves on the spot, so if he doesn't return from that, he would be like the 1st category, and if he returns from that, then this is what's required, and he doesn't disbelieve before that (i.e. for wanting to enter parliament).

The 3rd category: And he is the one who says, I will not take an oath to respect the constitution, and I do not approve of any Tāghūtī legislation, then this person doesn't disbelieve, and he is sinful. Then which of the 2 (previous) categories he made a misinterpretation in must be observed, and he is ruled with a judgement of the situation he's in, not by the judgement of "consequences" (i.e. Making Takfīr based upon what necessitates), however where can we find this type in the current reality, rather he is not able to enter into parliament and the situation is like this at all, until he agrees with them upon the foundation of the constitution, and approving of Democracy which gives him the "eligibility of the claimant" for whatever he wishes, due to him being a member in parliament and a candidate chosen from the population, and a representative for a group of his, however we mention this (category) as an application (of such a situation) if this type existed in these times.

Secondly: The ruling on the voter (إسم فاعل) - المُرْتَشِّحُ - and he is the one who casts his vote, to choose who he sees most deserving to enter into parliament to represent a group of people, then these voters are also 2 categories:

The 1st category: They are the ones who know that the members in parliament legislate laws with Allāh, the Exalted, and take an oath to oppose the ruling of Allāh, and respecting the rulings of the Tāghūt, and being pleased with it, even when they first enter, so there's no doubt regarding the Kufr of this (voter), due to his acceptance of that, and supporting disbelief with his approval and knowledge of its invalidity.

The 2nd category: And they are those who don't have any awareness regarding that, rather it doesn't even come to their minds or go through their imagination at all, so these (voters) are to have the reality of their situation explained to them, so if they still insisted (to vote for these candidates) after the clarification (of their reality), they disbelieve without any dignity given to them, and if they return back (from voting), then this is what's required, and they don't disbelieve before that, due to the description of Kufr not being established with them (i.e. because of not knowing the reality).

Chapter 5: The ruling on entering into Parliaments and Legislative gatherings, or what is known as "The gathering of the Ummah and people" or "The gathering of the candidates" and other than that from the Kufr names and terminologies, and the ruling on being nominated to enter into it.

*Part 1: The ruling on entering into parliaments according to the general principle is that it's forbidden.*

Firstly: The ruling on entering into parliaments according to the general principle is that it's forbidden, for these gatherings are not free from Kufr and Mockery of the verses of Allāh, and defaming of the Sunnah of the Messenger of Allāh, and abstaining from the ruling or Allāh, and submitting to other than Allāh, infact it is established upon that as it's well known to everyone, and no one disputes regarding that except the one whose Fitrah is corrupt, while his whims and desires have overcome him, among those who gradually acquire their religion and gave their intellect a living mindset which doesn't understand except the language of the Dīnār (Gold) and Dirham (Silver).

Secondly: The ruling on whom enters it differs depending upon the regime and its laws: So some countries stipulate taking an oath for the constitution, or what is known as "al-Yamīn al-Dustūrī" (i.e. right hand oath for the constitution), and some countries do not stipulate it, like Algeria previously, and Turkey in the past, but as for right now, then the matter has changed, so they do accept from them except Kufr and taking an oath for the constitution or what is known as "al-Yamīn al-Dustūriyyah".

And the manner of taking an oath for the constitution: Is that he says, "I take an oath by Allāh to respect the constitution and rule by it" and what's similar to that, which is indicative to the one taking an oath of being pleased with that and adhering to the ruling of the Tāghūt, so the phrase after clarifying the meaning of respecting the constitution, is that it's to take an oath by Allāh to disbelieve in the book of Allāh, and rule by other than the Sharī'ah of Allāh, and being pleased with that, and justifying & permitting to follow other than the Sharī'ah of the Messenger of Allāh, and follow the enemies of Allāh upon the foundation of the constitution which gives him the right to participate in legislations and demanding equal justices as their claim, and the matter is as the poet said:

We patch our Dunyā by ripping apart our Dīn***So our Dīn doesn't remain, nor what we patch (i.e. our dunyā doesn't become fixed or change for the better either).

1. So if the president of parliament or government stipulates taking an oath for the constitution and performing the oath to respect what it consists of, and acting upon implementing it, so whoever does this is a Kāfir, and he is on the same level as the one who takes an oath to respect "al-Lāt" and "al-'Uzza" and the other 3rd "Manāt" (i.e. These are 3 goddesses of pre-Islamic Arabia), and because of that they would be on the same level as the guardians of the idols, and a defender of the statues and those who administer the glasses around it & divining arrows.

Rather if he took an oath to implement the distorted or abrogated Tawrāt or Injīl, and adhering to their rulings in our times, he would be a Kāfir in the sight of Allāh, and Ibn Kathīr(رحمه الله) has mentioned an Ijmā' upon that, so how about the rulings of the christians which is the splinters of their thoughts, and the garbage of their imagination and feeble minds, and how excellent is the poet's statement:

If the crow was an evidence for the people****then it would not direct them except to the mouldy dogs

2. But if the leader of parliament did not stipulate this oath or "Yamīn", then the one who enters (into parliament) doesn't disbelieve if the following conditions are met:

A) The 1st condition: That he doesn't approve of a Tāghūtī ruling.

B) The 2nd condition: That he doesn't legislate a Tāghūtī ruling.

C) The 3rd condition: That he condemns them and openly professes Takfir upon them and displays to them enmity and Barā'ah (i.e. Disavowal) from them & from this Tāghūt, so that his innocent is guaranteed, or he leaves the gathering, since there is no Ikrāh (i.e. Coercion) while choosing to sit with the Kuffār, because not condemning & rebuking them is considered being pleased with their Kufr and approving of it, in accordance with Allāh's statement:

"And it has already come down to you in the Book that when you hear the verses of Allah [recited], they are denied [by them] and ridiculed; so do not sit with them until they enter into another conversation. Indeed, you would then be like them." [4:140].

And in accordance with Allāh's statement: "And when you see those who engage in [offensive] discourse concerning Our verses, then turn away from them." [6:68].

And it's mentioned in the Hadīth: "Whoever believes in Allāh and the Last Day should not sit on a table where alcohol is being drunk."

And in another narration: "The messenger of Allāh forbade one to sit on a table where alcohol is being drunk".

And it's mentioned in the Hadīth: "But whoever is pleased with it and continued (to stay)."

And that's why it's said, the one who remains in the presence of Munkar is like the one doing it (i.e. The Munkar), and the ruling of the silent one regarding that is the ruling of the approver, and being pleased with Kufr is Disbelief.

And the Scholars have obligated Hijrah from a land that has the rulings of Kufr prevailed over it, so that the Muslim doesn't enter within their Kufr rulings, Shaykh Muhammad Ibn Ibrāhīm(رحمه الله) said:

"Verily the land that rules by the (man-made) laws is not a land of Islām, so migrating away from it is obligatory" [Fatāwah al-Shaykh (12/289)].

So how about the one who sits with them in these Tāghūtī gatherings which disbelieves in Allāh day and night, secretly and openly, and it's not possible for the one entering with them to rebuke them at every moment and time, or every hour and minute, infact that is something impossible or a kind of fantasy.

Rather what's obligatory upon him is to rebuke the foundation of the constitution and Democracy, not to request it striving with his self and seeking assistance from his party, knowing that the people of the Tāghūt are not pleased with that, because the first stage of entering into parliament is approving of the Tāghūt's judgement, and committing to it and acting upon what it requires & necessitates, which negates the acceptance of Allāh as a "Rabb" (i.e. Lord) & Islām as a religion & Muhammad as a Messenger and example to follow.

And demanding to change anything (in parliament) cannot be done except from its (Kufr) route, and built upon its foundation which permits him to do so, on the basis that it's done through the constitution, and addressing them with the name of Democracy and Freedom of Speech, and this is putting together 2 opposites, and equalising two different things, Glory to the one who obliterated their hearts, so he made them deaf, and blinded their vision, since how is it possible to imagine a rational person, let alone a believer to gather Kufr and Ēmān within a human-being, then it's said, how does he disbelieve in the Tāghūt while he is believing in it at the same time, SubhānAllāh where did the intellect of these people go, from the statement of Allāh:

"So whoever disbelieves in Taghut and believes in Allah has grasped the most trustworthy handhold." [2:256].

And Allāh's statement: "And We certainly sent into every nation a messenger, [saying], "Worship Allah and avoid Taghut." [16:36].

And Allāh's statement: "But those who have avoided Taghut, lest they worship it, and turned back to Allah" [39:17].

And the Messenger's statement: "Whoever says Lā ilāha ilā Allāh and disbelieves in what's worshipped besides Allāh, then his blood and wealth are protected and his affair is to Allāh" [Narrated by Muslim].

And it can also be said, where is the actualisation of the description of al-Kufr Bit-Tāghūt and standing firm by it, which is the basis of the religion and the foundation of the religion and its greater principle from: Believing in the invalidity of worshipping other than Allāh in all cases, and abandoning it all-together, and hating it with the heart, and openly displaying enmity with the power capability and whenever able too, and openly professing Takfīr upon upon its people and calling upon them with misguidance, and showing enmity & animosity to them for the sake of Allāh, and having Barā'ah from them, as Allāh said:

"There has already been for you an excellent pattern in Abraham and those with him, when they said to their people, "Indeed, we are disassociated from you and from whatever you worship other than Allah . We have denied you, and there has appeared between us and you animosity and hatred forever until you believe in Allah alone." [60:4].

Infact, every legislator is considered a Tāghūt who must be disbelieved in, and he is from the rest of the legislators who have disbelieved on their own, so if the fair rational minded person reflected & ponder of this, he would cry 1 hour and laugh in the other (hour), for I do not know what kind of mind they think with, or with what proof they abide by for guidance:

"May Allah destroy them; how are they deluded?" [63:4]

And how true is the statement of Al-'Allāmah 'Abdul Latīf Ibn 'Abdil Rahmān Ibn Hassan Āl al-Shaykh(رحمه الله) regarding them:

"An intoxicated people, their drunk companion doesn't wake up***At all times, he goes back to failing.

A people you see them race to the (legislative) gatherings***It has wretchedness and embracing every type of disbelief.

Infact, it has the laws of the christians as a judge***instead of the text which came in the Qur'ān

Being defiantly transgressing is an acceptable thing for them***they are impressed by the Shaykhs within who are like young youth (minded).

What's (merely) forbidden in their laws and ways***is the rape of homosexuals, and the same with women (otherwise it's okay).

So look to the rivers, it has gushed forth in kufr***It has stood against the Sharī'ah of al-Rahmāni.”

is an amazing Scholar, and his quotes about the heart and soul are (رحمه الله)Imām Ibn al-Qayyim my favourite. Other scholars have wonderful quotes too, but the best thing about Ibn al- is that he holds firmly onto the Qur'ān & Sunnah according to the understanding (رحمه الله)Qayyim .of our beloved Salaf

The Sūfis go into extremes in spirituality & add alot of innovations to their Dhikr and recitation of ...the Qur'ān at the graves & acting upon fabricated Hadīths etc

But we as Muslims who claim to follow the Salaf must also be spiritual, just as Imām Anwar al- said in his introduction to the Seerah lectures; There are some people who will (رحمه الله)'Awlaki (صلى الله عليه وسلم).like spirituality

Balance is key, and I'm just like you guys, striving along with you, learning alongside you, and I love everyone who is a sinner that is trying to improve, our Ummah is going through tough times, but on the other hand Muslims are waking up, our children are learning Tawhīd alhamdulillah & we .have seen videos on the ground to prove that

I also feel really sad when the oppressors are gaining some dunyā victory, and suffer even more from being stuck in a toxic situation, but Tawakkul is always there, Allāh will make a way out for us & has something in store for His beloved Ummah, remember Allāh is more merciful to you than a mother is with her own child subhānAllāh, so it's just all up to you to turn to Allāh, encourage others to do righteousness & do the best you can. Bear patience for a little bit longer & relief will surely .come soon

Yes "It's true that the cities of Sunnī's are occupied..what's also true is that the hearts and minds# ".of Sunnī's have started to become liberated

صحيح ان مدن السنة احتلت .. الصحيح ايضا ان قلوب وعقول السنة بدأت تتحرر

I love you all for the sake of Allāh my dear brothers & sisters on Tawhīd, we can feel each other's .pain in some way, Allāh can hear us, in my #Duās

How The Heart Becomes Corrupt

- Committing a sin in the hope of repenting.
- Seeking knowledge and not applying it.
- Practice without sincerity.
- Eating the sustenance of Allāh without appreciating Him.
- Not being pleased with Allāh's Will.
- Burying the dead without learning from them.

SubhānAllāh, I was raising awareness on the streets for our brothers & sisters in Somalia, and a woman was extremely passionate saying, "Muslims want to kill everyone and only bring hate" etc...

So I had a really long conversation with her, I think we spoke for about 2 hours, and subhānAllāh I asked what her main concerns were about Islām, and she mostly stressed on the politics, fighting, judging and hatred, so I explained each topic for her concisely, and the wisdoms behind how we view this world and the purpose of life, that she even started loving it so much, she was like "please tell me more & more", and just like many disbelievers, they judge Islām based upon what they see, infact I asked her whether her judgement upon the religion itself is subject to what occurs on the ground, and she said "Well for the most part yeah", so reminded her "judge islām based on what the Qurʾān says, not what muslims say or do, because even I can be deceiving you and lying to you", she smiled & subhānAllāh, from being extremely anti-Islām, she would be start telling me "I truly believe the Qurʾān is beautiful, I have read some verses and it moves me", and "I love Islām, I know it's a wonderful religion".

Now I was surprised by the words she was saying lol, but after that long conversation, she was like, "You have taught me a lot, thank you for being a gentleman" and she had to go. SubhānAllāh, she had so much hatred for Islām & after having a mature discussion, I thought she was so close to wanting to become a Muslim, Allāhu Akbar, but InshāʾAllāh one day she does become a Muslimah, may Allāh guide her & keep us steadfast.

Shaykh Sulaymān ibn Nāsir al-'Alwān(حفظه الله) was asked: There's a person who had sexual intercourse during the day of Ramadān, what is the ruling upon him? And what must he do?

The Shaykh(حفظه الله) responded by saying: Sexual Intercourse during the day of Ramadān is among the transgressions against the sanctity of Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) and it is Harām by the Qur'ān, Sunnāh and Ijmā'.

And the person who had intercourse must pay a Kafārah [Expiation], which is to free a Slave, if he's not able to do so, then he must fast 2 months in a row, if he's not able to do so, then he must feed 60 poor people, and the proof for this is what Imām al-Bukhārī(1936) and Imām Muslim(1111) narrated from the chain of al-Zuhrī(رحمه الله), he said: I was informed by Humayd ibn 'Abdūl Rahmān(رحمه الله) that Abā Hurayrah(رضي الله عنه) said:

"While we were sitting with the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) a man came to him and said O Messenger of Allāh(صلى الله عليه وسلم), I am ruined, he(صلى الله عليه وسلم) said "Why are you ruined", he said "I have had intercourse with my wife while I was fasting", so the Messenger of Allāh(صلى الله عليه وسلم) said: "Do you have a slave to set free", he said No. He(صلى الله عليه وسلم) said: "Then are you able to fast two months in a row", he said No. So he(صلى الله عليه وسلم) said "Do you have enough to feed 60 poor people", he said no - The Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) stayed silent and while we were in that state, a big basket full of dates was brought to the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم). He(صلى الله عليه وسلم) asked, "Where is the questioner?" he replied, "I [am here]." The Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) said to him "Take this [basket of dates] and give it in Sadaqāh." The man said, "Should I give it to a person poorer than me? By Allah, there is no family between its two mountains [of Madīnah] who are poorer than me." The Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) smiled till his premolar teeth became visible and then said, "Feed your family with it."

And this is the ruling regarding the person who knows and did so intentionally according to the correct view among the sayings of the Scholars.

Because the one who is Forgetful and Ignorant of the ruling, and the coerced, do not have to make up a day nor pay the Kafārah [Expiation], since Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) has raised the blame off this Ummāh and has forgiven mistake & forgetfulness;

Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) says: {Our Lord, do not hold us accountable if we forget or make mistakes}.

And in Sahīh Muslim (126) on the authority of 'Abdullāh ibn 'Abbās(رضي الله عنهما) from the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) that he said:

Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said "I have already done so" [i.e. Forgiven the mistakes of this Ummāh]

And this is the Madhab of Abī Hanīfah(رحمه الله) and al-Shāfi'ī(رحمه الله) regarding the forgetful one, and Ishāq(رحمه الله) & Ahmad(رحمه الله) in a Narration said the Forgetful and Ignorant one is excused, and this was chosen by Shaykh al-Islām ibn Taymiyyāh(رحمه الله) and ibn al-Qayyīm(رحمه الله).

Mālik(رحمه الله), Layth ibn Sa'd(رحمه الله) and a group of Scholars have said, he must make up that day without paying the Kafārah [Expiation], and Ahmad ibn Hanbal(رحمه الله) in what's most popular in his Madhab said, he must make up that day and pay the Kafārah [Expiation], whether he had sexual intercourse in the state of Forgetfulness or Ignorance [of the ruling], and this was chosen by Ahlāl Dhāhir [The Dhāhiriyyāh].

And this is disputable, because sexual intercourse is on the same level as food and drink, and the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) said:

"Whoever forgets that he is Fasting, so he ate or drank, let him continue his fast, because it is Allāh(جل وعلا) who has fed him and given him drink"

It was narrated by al-Bukhārī(1933) and Muslim(1155) from the chain of Hishām(رحمه الله) from Muḥammād ibn Sīrīn(رحمه الله) from Abī Hurayrah(رضي الله عنه).

And 'Abdūl Razzāq(رحمه الله) has narrated in al-Musannāf(7375) with an authentic chain from Mujāhid(رحمه الله) that he said:

"If a man had sexual intercourse with his wife while he was fasting in a state of forgetfulness during Ramadān, there is nothing upon him" and al-Bukhārī(رحمه الله) also narrated it in his Sahīh Mu'allāqan [as a Hanging Narration].

And 'Abdūl Razzāq(رحمه الله) narrated in al-Musannāf(7377) from al-Thawrī(رحمه الله) from a man from al-Hassan(رحمه الله) that he said:

"It is on the same level as eating and drinking in the state of forgetfulness". And al-Bukhārī(رحمه الله) has Hanged it in his Sahīh.

And Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) knows best.

*Does my wife become a Kāfirah for hating polygyny?*

“And attention must be drawn to a particular point in this topic which people make mistakes in (pertaining the nullifier of hating the Din), and it is not differentiating between hatred that is intended in the Āyah and these texts, which is that he hates the actual ruling of Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, and between natural hatred due to hardships and discomfort accompanying some of the rulings. So there's a difference between the one who hates the ruling of fighting in the path of Allāh, and the one who hates fighting from the aspect of it being difficult upon oneself, and hopping onto enormous horrors and dangers for oneself.

And I found some who erred (in this topic), so he mixes & confuses between the woman that hates the legislation of polygyny, and disliking this legislative ruling, and between (a woman) that hates her husband to marry another wife in addition to her, which would necessitate natural jealousy, that the Mothers of the Believers were not even free from, may Allāh be pleased with them all.”

ويجب الانتباه إلى موضع من مواضع الزلل في هذا الباب، وهو عدم التفريق بين البغض المقصود في الآية وهذه النصوص، وهو أن يبغض ذات حكم الله عز وجل، وبين البغض الطبيعي للمشقة المصاحبة لبعض الأحكام، فهناك فرق بين من يبغض حكم القتال في سبيل الله، ومن يكره القتال من حيث هو مشقة على النفس وركوب أهوالٍ عظيمَةٍ ومخاطرٍ بالنفس، وقد حدث من يغلط فيخلط بين المرأة التي تبغض مشروعيتها تعدد الزوجات، وتكره هذا الحكم الشرعي، وبين التي تبغض أن يتزوج زوجها عليها امرأةً أخرى مما هو مقتضى الغيرة القطرية التي لم تخل منها أمهات المؤمنين رضوان الله عليهنّ.

A very common mistake is when the Muslim tells the revert brother/sister taking their Shahadah to say "There's no God, except Allah", however this is incorrect.

"La ilaha" is a nafi (negation), which means "La Ma'buda Bi Haqqin ila Allah", so instead a person should tell the revert to recite "No one has the right to be worshipped, except Allah".

This is simply a piece of advice which I hope may be beneficial to some people. The reason why the latter is more correct is because it consists of "Tawhid al-Uluhiyyah" (i.e. directing all your acts of worship to Allah alone), whereas saying "There's no God except Allah" is simply affirming "Tawhid al-Rububiyyah".

May Allah keep you steadfast upon Islam & make "La ilaha ila Allah" the final words come out of your blessed tongue.

#Nullifiers_of_Islām #Tawhīd

Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tuwaylaṭī(رحمه الله) said:

The Third Nullifier: Whoever doesn't make Takfīr upon the Disbelievers, or doubts in their Kufr, or corrects their way or beliefs.

This is the 3rd Nullifier that Shaykh Muhammad Ibn 'Abdil Wahhāb(رحمه الله) mentioned in "Nawāqidh al-Islām", and the Scholars have unanimously agreed upon it, in entirety.

And the Criterion returns back to affirming the texts, and accepting the ruling of Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, so whoever doesn't make Takfīr upon whom Allāh has made Takfīr upon, then he has rejected Allāh's ruling, and abstained from acting upon it, and denied His text and displayed arrogance to His command.

And the Scholars have mentioned this Principle in numerous matters, such as whoever doesn't make Takfīr upon the one that calls upon 'Alī Ibn Abī Tālib(رضي الله عنه), and whoever doesn't make Takfīr upon the Nusayriyyah, and whoever doesn't make Takfīr upon the Jews and Christians, and what's similar to that.

And the one who doesn't understand the Framework & Criterion for this Nullifier would fall into Chain Takfīr, and this is what occurred with groups from the Ghulāt, the most famous example is "al-Jamā'ah al-Islāmiyyah al-Musallaha" (i.e. The Armed Islamic Group) in Algeria after the deviation of its path, and it made peace-treaties with the Tawāghīṭ, so it could branch out to fight the Mujāhideen Fi Sabeelillāh.

And the one who doesn't make Takfīr upon the Kāfir, could be someone who doesn't know his reality, such as not knowing that the so-called "Turkī al-Hamad" uttered what he uttered from Kufr (i.e. He Insulted Allāh & the Prophet), so this person is excused and isn't included within the Principle (i.e. 3rd Nullifier).

But as for the one who knows his reality, then the Kāfir who he didn't make Takfīr upon or doubted in his Kufr or correct his religion must be observed case by case, and this is divided into several categories:

1. That the disbelief of this Kāfir is from what's known in the religion by Necessity, and whoever doesn't know that, then he is not from the people of Islām, such as the one who doubts in the Kufr of the idol worshippers, buddhists, jews, christians in their entirety, so whoever doubts in the Kufr of some of these Kuffār, then he is a Kāfir just like them.

2. That his disbelief is not from what's known in the religion by Necessity, however the textual evidences explicitly indicate that, so whoever doubts in his disbelief is to have the textual evidences (from the Qur'ān & Sunnah) shown & clarified to him, so if he doesn't accept it, he disbelieves, and an example of that: Are the grave worshippers who make du'ā to it, vow to it, and perform Hajj around it (i.e. for the dead person), from those who ascribe to Islām, so whoever doubts in their disbelief, the evidences (from the Qur'ān & Sunnah) must be shown and clarified to him regarding that, so if he doesn't make Takfir upon them (after that), he disbelieves.

3. That his disbelief is subject to a misconception, such as the rulers who rule by other than what Allāh has revealed, and what's similar to that, so these (rulers) even though their Kufr is explicit with the one who has precisely understood the issue, for indeed the occurrence of misconceptions are possible, so the one who doesn't make Takfir upon them doesn't disbelieve, except if the Hujjah is established upon him, and the misconception has been exposed and removed (from him), and he knows that the judgement of Allāh regarding them (i.e. The rulers) is making Takfir upon them.

4. That his disbelief is a matter of Ijtihād (i.e. Subject to determining Allāh's judgement on the matter - not explicit) and it has a difference of opinion between the Muslims.

And Shaykh Muhammad Ibn 'Abdil Wahhāb(رحمه الله) has mentioned 3 images in this Nullifier:

1. Whoever doesn't make Takfir upon the Kuffār, and it is what has surpassed.
2. Whoever doubts in their disbelief, and it returns back to what has surpassed, (solely) restricted to the Criterion itself, so whoever doesn't make Takfir upon a Kāfir disbelieves due to denying the text of Allāh and opposing it, and whoever doubts in the disbelief of the Kāfir disbelieves due to having doubts in the text of Allāh and refusing to accept it.
3. Whoever corrects their way or beliefs, and in reality, this image falls under the 4th nullifier, following this (3rd) nullifier, but the Imām rather mentioned it here for its resemblance of the issue, not due to it being an image from its images, and the discussion regarding it will come shortly by the permission of Allāh.

عذر الجاهل من المشركين إذا كان منتسباً إلى المسلمين

قال الشيخ العلامة عبد العزيز الطويلعي تقبله الله:

الحمد لله، والصلاة والسلام على رسول الله، أما بعد:

فإنَّ من المسائل التي كثر فيها الاختلاف والغلط، مسألة العذر بالجهل في أصل الدين، وكثير ممن يرى عذر الجاهل الذي يرتكب الشرك الأكبر، يجعل العلة في ذلك انتسابه إلى الإسلام، ودعواه أنَّه من المسلمين.

فإذا عبد غير الله، ودعاه وذبح له، ونشأ على ذلك من مولده إلى مماته، وكان يقول بلسانه إنني مسلم، عده من المسلمين، وإذا عبد غير الله ودعاه وذبح له، وكان يقول بلسانه إنِّي على الدين الذي أمرني الله به لم يعذره، وهذا من التناقض ولا شك.

وإذا أُورِد عليه التسوية بين عباد القبور وعباد الأوثان وعدم عذر أحد منهم بالجهل، جعل الفرق الانتساب إلى الإسلام، وبسبب هذا الانتساب يحكم بكفر عابد الوثن، وبإسلام عابد القبر.

والإنتساب إلى الإسلام إن أُريد به الانتساب إلى الإسلام وحده دون سائر الشرائع، فهو حكم لا دليل عليه، وإن أُريد به الانتساب إلى دين الله عز وجل، سواء كان الانتساب إلى الإسلام الذي بُعث به محمد صلى الله عليه وسلم، أو إلى اليهودية أو النصرانية أو غيرها من الأديان التي بُعث بها الرسل، لزم صاحب هذه المقالة أن يحكم بإسلام جهال اليهود والنصارى وغيرهم لأنهم منتسبون إلى دين الله الذي أمرهم باتباعه، ووقعوا في نواقض له عن جهل، ومن عذر هؤلاء كفر وخرج من الملة، وكذَّب الصحيح الصريح من الأدلة.

بل يلزمه أن يحكم بإسلام مشركي قريش قبل بعثة رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم، لأنهم على دين إبراهيم فيما يزعمون ويظنون، وكان عندهم بعض الشعائر منه والأحكام كالحج والختان وتعظيم المشاعر، ويقولون بالله ربًّا لا شريك له في الخلق والرزق والإحياء والإماتة، ولكنهم يشركون مع الله غيره لتقريبهم إلى الله معتقدين أن الله أذن له بالنباية عنه والوساطة بينه وبين خلقه تعالى الله عما يزعمون، وعباد القبور مثلهم في كل هذا، إلا أن عباد القبور ينتسبون إلى خاتم النبيين صلى الله عليه وسلم بدل انتساب الجاهليين إلى إبراهيم، ثم هم وإياهم سواء في كل شيء، ولا ينفع عباد القبور اتباعهم النبي صلى الله عليه وسلم أو التزامهم بعض شرائع دينه، كما لا ينفع كفار قريش اتباعهم إبراهيم أو التزامهم بعض شرائع دينه.

فالانتساب إلى الإسلام يُقابلة الانتساب إلى ملة إبراهيم، وبعض الشرائع التي يتعبدون بها تقابلها شرائع، والكثرة والقلة لا تؤثر في ثبوت الإيمان والكفر، والإقرار بالربوبية لله يُقابلة إقرار أولئك بالربوبية، وكل من الفريقين كافئ بالله خارج من الملة مارق من الدين، وإن كان انتسب إلى دين صحيح وارتد عنه من أول نشأته كما هو حال كثير من القبورية ومن الجاهليين، وبعد أن سبق ذلك إسلام الفطرة كما هو حال بعض القبوريين وأوائل من ارتد من الجاهليين.

بل حتى زعم القبوريين أنَّ ما يفعلونه من أمر الله ورسوله، يُقابلة قول المشركين في الجاهلية كما حكى الله عز وجل عنهم: (وَإِذَا قِيلُوا قَاجِبَةً قَالُوا وَجَدْنَا عَلَيْهَا آبَاءَنَا وَاللَّهُ أَمَرَنَا بِهَا)، وهذا حجة غالب المشركين من عباد القبور اليوم، بل قد لقيت من كبار مشايخ أهل الشرك المعمرين، من يحتج بحجة الكفار الأولين بعينها، ويقول ليس لك أن تنكر ما عليه الناس لأنَّهم أخذوه عن آبائهم، وآباؤهم لا شك أنَّهم أخذوه عن آبائهم، وأخذ الخلف

عن السلف، ثم هو عن رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم !، وهذا عين ما في الآية من احتجاج المشركين بأمرين: أنهم وجدوا عليه آباءهم، وأن الله أمرهم به قال الحافظ ابن كثير في تفسير الآية: ”ويعتقدون أن فعل آبائهم مستند إلى أمر من الله وشرع“، وهذا وإن كان ورد في سياق الفاحشة التي فسرت بأنها طوافهم بالبيت عراة، إلا أنه يدل على وجه استدلالهم بفعل آبائهم، وهو ظنهم أن فعل آبائهم عن شريعة من الله.

وهذا الغلط كما يقع من بعض المخالفين في مسألة العذر بالجهل من طلاب العلم، فإنَّه يقع في العامة كثيرًا في عذر المعاند المنتسب إلى الإسلام، فلا يكفرون منتسبًا إلى الإسلام أبدًا، بل قد سمعت بعض من كانوا يسمون دعاة الصحة ممن بدل تبديلًا كثيرًا يقول: لا أكفّر من يقول أنا مسلم، عند سؤاله عن مثل حافظ الأسد وطواغيت العرب من الحكام المرتدين، وهذه عين التشبه العاقبة، وليت شعري إن كان هذا المسلك هدى وحقًا، فلم كلف الصديق نفسه مقاتلة مسيلمة ومن معه حتى فني خيار الصحابة واستحزّ القتل في القراء أهل العلم والقرآن؟! وأكثر من حكم أهل العلم بكفرهم من المرتدين، إن لم يكن غالبهم كانوا ينتسبون إلى الإسلام ويأبون أن يُوصفوا بغيره.

بل طرد هذا القول: أن لا يكفر من يقول أنا على دين موسى، أو أنا على دين عيسى من اليهود والنصارى، وهذا القول ممعن في الضلالة بعيد كل البعد عن دين الله وكتاب الله وسنة رسوله صلى الله عليه وسلم.

فإن قيل: لا يُسلم بهذا فإنَّهم كفروا بعد بعثة محمد ونسخ أديانهم، فمقتضى هذا أنَّهم لو انتسبوا إلى الإسلام بعد بعثة محمد ويقوا على ما هم عليه عُذر جاهلهم وكان مسلماً، ومقتضاه أيضًا أنَّ جهالهم كانوا جميعًا مسلمين مؤمنين وقت بعثة النبي صلى الله عليه وسلم، وإنَّما كفروا ببعثته، وهذا معلوم بالطلان.

وليس معنى ما تقدّم أننا نقول إنَّه لا فرق بين المنتسب إلى الإسلام وغير المنتسب إليه من المشركين البتة، بل انتساب الرجل إلى الإسلام بعد كفره يثبت له به الإسلام في الظاهر، فإذا لم يلتزم أحكامه، أو ارتكب المكفرات التي تُناقض أصل التوحيد، فإنَّه يُحكم عليه بالردة، وأما الطوائف الكفرية التي تنشأ على هذا القول، ففي إنبات الإسلام لهم بانتسابهم إلى الإسلام قولان لأهل العلم، فمنهم من يرى أنَّ الإسلام يثبت لهم بالانتساب وتثبت الردة بما يرتكبون من المكفرات، ومنهم من يرى أنَّهم كفار أصليون، وأن انتسابهم كانتساب مشركي قريش إلى ملة إبراهيم، وهو الأصح لما تقدم من عدم الفرق بين الانتسابين والله أعلم.

هذا وصلى الله وسلم على عبده ورسوله محمد وعلى آله وصحابه أجمعين.

#Nullifiers_of_Islām #Tawhīd

Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tuwaylaṭī(رحمه الله) said:

The Second nullifier: Taking intermediaries.

All praise is due to Allāh, the Lord of Mankind, and peace and blessings be upon our Prophet Muhammad, and upon all of his family and companions.

To proceed:

The discussion regarding the first nullifier that was mentioned by Shaykh al-Islām Muhammad Ibn 'Abdul Wahhāb(رحمه الله) from "Nawāqidh al-Islām" has surpassed, and it is Shirk in the worship of Allāh, and he mentioned that from the forms of Shirk, is making du'ā to other than Allāh.

And the second nullifier which was mentioned by the Imām, may Allāh have mercy upon him, is a sub-branch of the 1st nullifier and a section from it, and it is:

“Whoever takes an intermediary (between himself and Allāh), making du'ā to them alongside Allāh, asking them to intercede on his behalf, and relying on them.”

And the Imām only singled (this nullifier) out, because its calamity was greater and more widespread, because most of the Mushrikīn from those who ascribe themselves to Islām use it as evidence and turn back to it.

For verily whoever supplicates other than Allāh isn't put outside of these 3 situations:

1. That he believes that the one he's supplicating too is capable on his own (to help him) instead of Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, and that he is deserving of being supplicated for and asking from him what is from the characteristics of the Lord, the Exalted and Supreme, whether he believes that he's Allāh, or he rejected the existence of Allāh and believed in another Lord, such as whoever worships Namrod and Fir'awn and their likes, of whom reject the existence of Allāh, and claims that the one he's worshipping is the only Deity whom there is no other deity besides him, nor any Lord alongside him.
2. Or that he believes that he's a capable partner with Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, and he deserves being supplicated too with Allāh, so he calls upon him: such as whoever supplicates to 'Īsa(عليه السلام) and his Mother (i.e. Maryam).
3. Or that he believes that he's not a partner onto Allāh, rather he believes he's a slave from the slaves of Allāh, however he takes him as an intermediary between him and Allāh, as some of the Mushrikīn that the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) sent for, would do.

So the first nullifier consists of these 3 scenarios, and Shaykh al-Islām Muhammad Ibn 'Abdul Wahhāb(رحمه الله) restricted the Second Nullifier with the 3rd scenario among these (3) scenarios.

And the one who is involved in this 3rd scenario isn't a Mushrik in al-Rubūbiyyah from this aspect, rather his Shirk is in al-Ulūhiyyah, i.e. in directing an act of worship to other than Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic.

And from that, is the Mushrikūn who Allāh has spoken about: "Unquestionably, for Allah is the pure religion. And those who take protectors besides Him [say], "We only worship them that they may bring us nearer to Allah in position." [39:3].

But as for the contemporary Mushrikūn who worship the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم), the saints and the righteous, and call upon them alongside Allāh, and they use this claim as proof, for verily most of them use as proof that this Āyah is regarding whoever calls upon the idols which are made out of rock that don't bring harm nor benefit, unlike whoever calls upon the righteous, saints and God-Fearing servants.

And Allāh has responded against this exact misconception, and clarified that it occurred among those before them, so Allāh, the Exalted said:

"Say, "Invoke those you have claimed [as gods] besides Him, for they do not possess the [ability for] removal of adversity from you or [for its] transfer [to someone else]". Those whom they invoke seek means of access to their Lord, [striving as to] which of them would be nearest, and they hope for His mercy and fear His punishment." [17:56-57].

So Allāh has clarified in his speech to the Mushrikīn that those who the Mushrikūn call upon were Muwahiddīn who call upon Allāh and hope for His mercy and fear His punishment, and Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, has commended them in this, so those worshipped (by these Mushrikīn) alongside Allāh are Awliyā' (i.e. Saints) to Allāh, who were sincere, and they are not idols made from rock or dates, yet despite this, Allāh has considered whoever calls upon them a Mushrik such as the one who calls upon rocks and trees.

And the Mushrikūn in their Hujjah (i.e. Proof) of taking intermediaries, claimed that they do not worship them, except that they bring them closer to Allāh, so this necessitates 2 things:

1. Those that are called upon possess a glory and great status in the eyes of Allāh, which others don't have.
2. That the supplicators are in need of someone to bring them closer to Allāh, from who are closer to them.

And likewise, whoever calls upon the saints and righteous alongside Allāh among the contemporary Mushrikīn, they use as proof, so he says: "These people are righteous, Allāh doesn't reject a request from them, and I'm a man full of sins, I'm not from the people who have their Da'wah answered, so I called upon this saint in order for my Da'wah to be answered through his honour & glory, when he asks Allāh to fulfil my needs".

So this necessitates 2 things precisely: That the one called upon is a person of honour who possess a great position in the eyes of Allāh, and that the supplicator requires this person he's calling upon to get closer to Allāh.

And the supplicator to the intermediary would be a Mushrik if he asks from a Ghā'ib (i.e. Absent person) any kind of request, even if it's small, such as if he asks the Ghā'ib to help him climb a mountain and the like.

Likewise, if he requests something from the Hādīr (one present) that isn't able to be done except by Allāh, such as if he asks for the forgiveness of his sins from him, or that he wants to divert death away from him, and the like.

But as for whoever requests something from the one present what he is capable of doing: Such as requesting from a doctor some kind of treatment which is a cause for Shifā' (i.e. Being cured with Allāh's permission), and such as his statement to the one in his company, "pass me the cup", and "give me this and that", then this is permissible without a doubt.

And the proof for the differentiation: Is that the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) came, while the Mushrikīn were requesting for things from the idols or from the righteous which is not capable to be done except by Allāh, such as gaining victory against the enemies, and likewise they were requesting (from them) while they are far away from it, so he (i.e. The Prophet) clarified that this is Shirk and Kufr, and Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, has ruled in His book that it's Shirk.

And the Mushrikīn would also request from each other some things from the Dunyā, which Allāh has made as a normal means (of acquiring it), such as whoever asks for help to do something and the like, so He did not prohibit them from this, rather it was done by the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) and his Sahābah.

So the first scenario is Shirk by textual evidence from the Qur'ān, Sunnah and Ijmā', and the second scenario is permissible by textual evidence from the Qur'ān, Sunnah and Ijmā'.

And from the forms of Shirk in taking intermediaries that was mentioned by the Shaykh (i.e. Muhammad Ibn 'Abdīl Wahhāb) in this nullifier: Is the one who places his trust in the intermediaries, so this is Shirk as well, and it is the case with most of the Mushrikīn of the past and present, especially those who get closer to the one worshipped besides Allāh through a sacrifice, for verily he feels comfortable after that from all kinds of fear and danger, and he sees that his intermediary (which he's worshipping besides Allāh) protects him from these things, and wouldn't forsake him after he made that sacrifice to him.

And all that occurs from the contemporary images for Shirk in the First Nullifier, (also) occurs in this (Second) Nullifier, but rather this Nullifier as it was previously mentioned, is a Hujjah from the proofs against those who fall into some of the aspects of the First Nullifier. (i.e. Meaning that the Second Nullifier is a sub-branch of the First Nullifier - "Shirk in the Worship of Allāh").

Becoming Proficient In The Arabic Language Is A Means Of Attaining Deep Understanding Of All Islamic Sciences

Imam Ash-Shaafi'ee (رحمه الله) is reported as saying:

من تبحر في النحو اهتدى إلى كل العلوم

"Whoever learns Arabic grammar thoroughly is guided to all Islamic sciences."

(al-Kaafi fi sharh al-Ajrumiyyah)

Note: the word tabah-hara تبحر means to study thoroughly, to penetrate deeply.

Another word that shares the same root letters is "bahr" بحر - which means ocean.

Both تبحر and بحر share the same root letters and as a result are connected in meaning.

The word تبحر implies not just merely studying, but studying thoroughly and diving deep in one's studies - like one who dives into the bottom of an ocean.

Imam Suyooti mentioned in his "al-Itqaan 'Uloom al-Quran" that one of the pre-requisites of a Mufasssir is to be Mutabahir متبحر (have deep thorough comprehension) of the Arabic language. متبحر is the verbal noun (or اسم فاعل) for the verb تبحر.

“Linking Qunūt al-Nawāzil (i.e. The supplication made to remove calamities in the Ummah) with the permission of the Rulers makes the affairs of the Muslims subject to the politics and interests of the Rulers, and the reality on the ground shows that the rulers have forsaken to support the Muslims, so no permission is to be awaited from them.”

ربط قنوت النوازل بإذن الحكام يجعل قضايا المسلمين خاضعة للسياسة ومصالح الحكام، والواقع أن الحكام تخاذلوا عن نصره المسلمين فلا يُنتظر منهم إذن.

A big reason why brothers find marriage hard, is because they were previously disobeying Allāh's commands, such as not lowering their gaze, not avoiding Harām acts such as masterbation, looking at fake girls online, and even the filth of pornography والعياذ بالله...

So now, the expectations of many guys has become so high, they are trying to find models to marry wallāhul Musta'ān, by Allāh if you lower your gaze, Allāh will make your wife appear more beautiful than anything in the world & you will have a very enjoyable marriage. Alhamdulillah for Islām, that Allāh has ordained what's best for us, I ask Allāh to make it easy upon the brothers and guide them back to righteousness.

I don't want to sound like an old man, but the fact of the matter is, many of the older generation despite their ignorance of the Dīn, are much more responsible, serious, wiser and uphold much more maturity than our youth today. This is a major fact behind why marriages don't last and end in divorce, may Allāh protect us & give us Sabr.

May Allāh rectify the situation of our youth, by being pre-occupied away from the Harām (such as memorising Qur'ān, seeking Knowledge & Fasting), and keep them steadfast upon Tawhīd.

*Those who give excuse of ignorance in Major Shirk are our brothers that are mistaken*

(Matn) Ibn Taymiyyah said: "The label of Shirk is established before the Risālah (i.e. Prophetic Message), because he commits Shirk with his Lord and makes others equal to Him".

(Sharh) of Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(الله حفظه):

“So the ism (i.e. Label) of Shirk is established before the Risālah (i.e. Prophetic Message), before the Hujjah, and it is the words of Ibn 'Aqeel(الله رحمه), and the words of Ibn al-Qayyim(الله رحمه), and Ibn al-Qayyim(الله رحمه) mentions an Ijmā' (i.e. Consensus), so how can they say that this is the opinion of Ishāq(الله رحمه)?

And the words of Ibn Taymiyyah(الله رحمه) are to be memorised, because many of the BROTHERS say that Ibn Taymiyyah(الله رحمه) gives excuse (of ignorance for Shirk), and they bring the texts of Ibn Taymiyyah in the chapter of heated discussions, if Ibn Taymiyyah speaks in a treatise that contains innovation, Jahmiyyah and Khawārij, they bring the texts that he gives excuse (of ignorance) etc...So they take these texts and place it outside the chapter of innovation.

And that is why, if he brings a text of Ibn Taymiyyah(الله رحمه) that he gives excuse (of ignorance and ta'weel), then what (he mentions) before and after must be looked at, and the title of the treatise must be observed, and it can be said to him (i.e. the one who believes Ibn Taymiyyah gives excuse), this treatise falls under which chapter? You will find it under the chapter of innovation (i.e. speaking about unclear Kufr matters), he's either speaking about the Jahmiyyah or Ashā'irah or whoever went misguided in the Asmā' wal-Sifāt (i.e. Names and Attributes of Allāh) etc...

And he (i.e. Ibn Taymiyyah) based the reason for that (i.e. Establishing Shirk before the Risālah), so he said: "Because he commits Shirk with his Lord", so the Essence & Reality of Shirk has been firmly established within him, therefore the label (of shirk) is established, however the Kufr of Ta'dhib (i.e. Rulings of Killing and being killed or punished in the Ākhirah) must require the establishment of the Hujjah."

~ Sharh Kitāb al-Haqā'iq Fi-Tawhīd.

🔖 My Additional Note:

This is what all the Scholars of Haqq have mentioned, yet the Hāzimis make Takfīr upon them for "excusing the 'Ādhir", what a filthy 'Aqīdah this is, they have taken their Usūl from the Khawārij and Mu'tazilah. The Mu'tazilah are the ones who went into extremes in making chain Takfīr upon whoever refuses to call a Kāfir a Kāfir, and the Khawārij made general blank Takfīr upon societies, so there's no doubt that these Hāzimis are from the Ghulāt al-Khawārij, following the people of innovation, making Takfīr upon the Muwahiddīn of the Muslim Ummah.

In every era, there is always a controversial topic which gets brought up, but the Haqq always prevails, and Bātil eventually perishes away, may Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) preserve the pure teachings of Tawhīd, and eliminate the evil of the Murji'ah and Khawārij.

*The rulings on those who believe that ignorance can be an excuse in Shirk Akbar*

Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله) said:

“The first case: If he gives the excuse of ignorance because he believes there is no difference between between shirk (associating a partner with Allāh) and kufr (denial of the Text), so just as one could be excused for kufr, thus it is also the case for shirk, and he is on the path of Ahlus Sunnah in relation to Ēmān. Then this one has made a mistake from amongst Ahlus Sunnah and he is not declared a Kāfir (disbeliever) nor a muftadi' (innovator).

The second case: If he gives the excuse of ignorance in shirk while considering slaughtering (for other than Allāh), and the other other acts of worship that are done for other than Allāh for example, is shirk in general speaking terms and he does not say that the one who does it must be convinced or that we should look at his belief, and this one is on the path of Ahlus Sunnah with regards to Ēmān, it being words, deeds, and beliefs, then this one is mistaken as the one before and there is within him a branch from the branches of bid'a.

The third case: If he gives the excuse of ignorance in shirk but he claims that slaughtering, vowing, and the other acts done to other than Allāh is not shirk unless that one is convinced that there is a partner with Allāh or that the one they slaughter for has some type of powers, and he will not declare him a mushrik unless he is convinced (that it is halāl i.e. istihlāl) and does not consider him a mushrik for the simple fact that slaughtering is an action, then whoever claims this is a murjī muftadi' and especially if he thinks that Ēmān is only speech and belief and that actions and obedience are not included in it and makes it a condition for kufr that it must come with a belief or istihlāl and what is hidden in the heart.

The fourth case: If he gives the excuse of ignorance for shirk akbar and claims that slaughtering to other than Allāh is not shirk unless there is conviction but it could express or indicate the presence of shirk or kufr and claims that Ēmān is just knowledge, even if it is not accompanied with belief in the heart, and does not include actions of the heart into Ēmān, then this one is an astray kāfir jahmī muftadi'."

was asked: Is it permissible for a Father to force his son (حفظه الله) Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān ?into marriage with a girl he doesn't desire responded by saying: It's not allowed for either parent to (حفظه الله) Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān compel their son into marriage with someone they don't want or love, because the result of this marriage might end in a divorce or a miserable life for both of them. And it's not compulsory upon the son to obey them in this and it wouldn't be considered disobedience in doing so. However, it's necessary upon the son to be gentle in his rejection and to not raise his voice upon his parents or .let them hear any bad words

*The ruling on the one who halts or doubts in the Kufr of the Tawāghīṭ who ascribe themselves to

Shaykh Ahmad al-Khālidi(حفظه الله) said:

“Regarding those who hesitate or doubt in the kufr of the tawāghīṭ who ascribe themselves to Islām, their (the tawāghīṭ) condition has become to a large majority unclear. Especially due to the fact that they bring many features of Islām to the fore front like Salāh, Hajj, building Masājīd, handing out Qur’ān, sadaqah etc. Those who do not declare their kufr are in one of three categories:

1. Those who help and support the tawāghīṭ, obey it's regulations, neglect the commands of Allāh, seeking to extinguish the Light of Allāh and His Word, and fights against His Awliyā who protect the Deen. These are the servants of the tawāghīṭ and its mouthpieces that call the people to worship it. They are the secularists, democrats and people who have no share in the Ākhirah. As for this type there is no doubt in their kufr.

2. Those who do not know the general state of the tawāghīṭ, their condition or what they have fallen into from kufr but they believe what Allāh says on those in this matter. These have a correct belief and are not sinners, this is simply called ignorance. An example of this is a person who believes anyone who claims knowledge of the ghayb is a kāfir but he does not know that fulān claims knowledge of the ghayb and is unaware of his condition. This will not harm him or effect his Ēmān.

3. Those who know the acts of the tawāghīṭ and what they have fallen into from the nawāqid and mukaffirah (acts of kufr) but are holding back of doing takfīr. Under this category we have two kinds of people:

A. These are those who believe in their kufr and believe they are on a wrong path and they hate it but do not openly declare takfīr. This kind has the following groups of people.

– The weak. These are those who have no protection. They are excused in front of Allāh as long as their weakness is not removed. They fall under the Āyah, {And if not for believing men and believing women whom you did not know, that you might trample them and there would befall you because of them dishonor without (your) knowledge} 48:25

– Those who believe in the kufr of these tawāghīṭ and recognize him but do not openly declare takfīr (i.e. Conceal the Kufr of the Tawāghīṭ from the masses) even though they are not weak and have protection. These are deceivers and fall under the Words {They wish that you would soften so they would soften} 68:9. Their judgement is like those who are sinners and according to the situation and reason determines the size of the sin. Shaykh Sulaymān Ibnu ‘Abdullāh Aali Shaykh said, “If he admits their kufr but does not oppose them with takfīr, then this is a deciever and he falls under the Words of Allāh {They wish for you to soften so they can soften} About such their judgement is like those from the sinners.”

– Those who say, “The other (tawāghīṭ) are in kufr but I am not going to say this one is in kufr, although they are equal in kufr. Therefore he refrains from their takfīr in totality. There is no doubt that this requires a look into their Islām because there is no middle ground between kufr and Islām. Whatever Islām declared as kufr or declared to be kuffār then this is a kāfir and there is no doubt about that or any taweel allowed. This group rejected the Hukm of Allāh after it became apparent to them. Shaykh Muhammad ibnu ‘Abdul Wahhāb said, “The meaning of kufr bit tāghūt is that you believe in the falseness of all that is worshipped besides Allāh such as jinn, people, trees, stones and the like. That you testify to its kufr and that it is a false path and that you hate whoever follows it whether he is your father or brother. Those who say I will worship Allāh alone but I will not oppose those who are called upon besides Allāh have lied on lā ilāha ilā Allāh and believes neither in Allāh nor does he disbelieve in the tāghūt.”

B. Those who know the condition of the tāghūt and what they have fallen into from the nawāqid and mukaffirah, recognize their bātil and hate them in their heart. However, they say that the act is kufr but the person is not declared a kāfir before the proof is presented, the shurūt are fulfilled and the mawāni’ are removed. Or they even hesitate from takfīr due to being mislead by people who attribute themselves to knowledge or they do taqlīd of a particular shaykh or someone they think highly of or because of a doubt they have or taweel or because they have misplaced the texts of the ‘Ulamā and understood them incorrectly in a way that lead them to withhold in areas of takfīr, surrounding those tawāghīṭ attributing themselves to Islām.

Then they will not be declared as kuffār at the start nor is it allowed to declare them kuffār until the proof is established and all their doubts removed. Regarding this there is an ljmā’.”

Zayn Ali There are also some "reverts" who turn into "scholars" overnight that we need to be weary of.

16 March 2017 21:36

Zayn Ali I had this american "revert" dayooth so called sheikh saying how his more knowledgeable than bin baz, albani etc (as examples) like if i see reverts especially americans i dnt take them seriously anymore ...sounds bad aye :(

16 March 2017 21:40

Radwan Dakkak It's not only reverts brother. You tend to find a lot of born-muslims who recently start practising their Dīn again (الحمد لله), who الله المستعان start diving into Major issues, (including Takfīr) as if they have completely mastered it, when they still haven't perfected the basics of Sarf & Nahw.

16 March 2017 21:41

Efas Meem Chowdhury Dude even a lecturer at university with a phd doesn't have the answers to all the questions in his/her area of study. If we don't trust google then, why should you start to trust google, in an extremely complex topic?

16 March 2017 21:46

Radwan Dakkak May Allāh reward him, same with myself bro, I'm not building a name for myself الله أسْتَغْفِرُ as someone reminded me I got almost 1,000 followers, but rather I'm using this platform to convey what our beloved Imāms of Tawhīd have said, raising awareness for them (which most people in the west have never heard about, and sharing knowledge from the most knowledgeable of Scholars in our times, and that their opinions are held at high esteem (no one is infallible ofcourse), and neither do we restrict the Haqq to the Scholars we learn from, but we continue to learn, this is our purpose in life, to be humble slaves of Allāh, acting upon our knowledge.

16 March 2017 21:51

Radwan Dakkak Correct, however at the same time, I'm not completely dissing google, as it could still be used wisely. For instance, your lecturer may not have the answer to a certain question, but if you know a reputable lecturer with a PhD that has lectures online who has spoken about the topic, there is nothing wrong in benefitting from him. ^ This is what more of our brothers & sisters need to do when it comes to Islamic Knowledge, since this will affect their Ākhirah, no sane person will take their Dīn from any so called "Shaykh", rather you must study his background, and even worse are those who blind follow FB characters... والله

المستعان

A Believer Is Always Blessed: In Ease & Difficulty

The Divine Decree related to the believer is always a bounty, even if it is in the form of withholding (something that is desired), and it is a blessing, even if it appears to be a trial, and an affliction that has befallen him is in reality a cure, even though it appears to be a disease! Unfortunately, due to the ignorance of the worshiper, and his transgressions, he does not consider anything to be a gift or a blessing or a cure unless he can enjoy it immediately, and it is in accordance with his nature. If he were only given a little bit of understanding, then he would have counted being withheld from as a blessing, and the sickness as a mercy, and he would relish the trouble that befalls him more than he relishes his ease, and he would enjoy poverty more than he enjoys richness, and he would be more thankful when he is blessed with little than he is when he is blessed with a lot.

The 'Aqd (i.e. Appointment) of the Major Imāmah (i.e. Khilāfah) is done in 3 ways:

يكون عقد الإمامة العظمى بأحد ثلاث:

1. "The selection of Ahlal Hal wal-'Aqd for an Imām, and it is the way that Abī Bakr رضي الله عنه became the Imām, and it is the best of ways."

١-اختيار أهل الحل والعقد لإمام، وهي الطريقة التي تمت بها تولية أبي بكر رضي الله عنه وهي أولى الطرق

2. "That the Imām appoints another person with leadership after his death, after consulting Ahlal Hal wal-'Aqd pertaining that, just as Abū Bakr appointed 'Umar, رضي الله عنهما to be the Khalīfah after him."

٢- أن يعهد الإمام لشخص آخر بالإمامة بعد موته بعد مشاورة أهل الحل والعقد في ذلك، كما عهد أبو بكر بالخلافة لعمر رضي الله عنهما من بعده.

3. "That a person overcomes upon the Muslims, and subdues them by his sword, and enforces his authority, and the Ummah surrenders to him, then he becomes an Imām Sharī (i.e. Islamic Khalīfah), it's obligatory to obey him, even though it wasn't from the prescribed ways (of becoming an Imām)."

٣- أن يتغلب شخص ماعلى المسلمين ويقهرهم بسيفه ويفرض سلطانه وتسلم له الأمة، فإنه يصبح إماما شرعيا تجب له الطاعة مع كونها ليست من الطرق الشرعية.

Just like anything else, Fiqh must be studied gradually, not by getting too deep into the different opinions and details of the Madhahib early on. Rather, a person should start with something small (i.e. a concise text - Matn), and understand the meaning of the words, and going by what the reports (i.e. evidences) have alluded too, and act upon it.

So for e.g. the amazing 83 lessons on Fiqh of Taharah by Shaykh Haytham Sayfaddeen is not to be recommended for beginners, but if Allah blesses your pursuit for knowledge, and grants you fahm (understanding), then you can get into the different opinions of the Madhahib in detail with their evidences (Tahqeeq), and eventually you can precisely determine which view coincides with the evidences and is most correct (Tadqeeq).

NEW CASE

A brother who has been unjustly imprisoned and has only been married for 6 months prior to his arrest,he and his 19 year old wife are currently in debt of approximately $5000. The loan was used to help the couple with their home, furniture and marriage expenses.

The wife has been struggling emotionally and financially, with no additional funds to help pay off their debt. The wife also had to give away their car to try pay off part the debt, she is now left carless and without any means of transportation.

She has other expenses to deal with and has no additional funds to pay those expenses and to pay off their debt.

In the Sahih Bukhari and Sahih Muslim, it is narrated from Abu Huraira (Radi'Allahu 'Anhu) that the Prophet Muhammad (Salaallahu Alayhi Wassalam) said, "A Muslim is the brother of a Muslim. He does not wrong him, forsake him or despise him.

Imam Nawawi commented on this hadith in Sharh Muslim (16/120) saying, "the scholars said, "forsaking him is leaving him when he is in need and despising him means, if he asks for help to remove an evil in his life, he must help him if he can and if he does not have a legitimate excuse not to".

Please do not forsake your brother and sister in Islam in their time of need and help relieve their burden struggles worries and pain and donate, even if it's just $1.

*Being a Lawyer in a Tāghūt court is clear apostasy*

Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله) was asked: Is it permissible to work in the Jāhili legal system composed of man made laws with the pretext of helping Muslims and defending them if they were to be subjected to questioning by the tawāghit?

Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله) responded by saying: It is not permissible if it means following certain laws or systems which defy the Law of Allāh.

If he were to work using laws that defy the Sharī'ah willingly, knowing that it is against the Sharī'ah: Then this is kufr and riddah and belief in the Tāghūt (instead of Allāh) - may Allāh protect us from that - Allāh says;

أَلَمْ تَرَ إِلَى الَّذِينَ يَزْعُمُونَ أَنَّهُمْ آمَنُوا بِمَا أَنزَلَ إِلَيْكَ وَمَا أَنزَلَ مِنْ قَبْلِكَ يَرِيدُونَ أَن يُتَحَاكَمُوا إِلَى الطَّاغُوتِ وَقَدْ أُمِرُوا أَنْ يَكْفُرُوا بِهِ

{Have you seen those (hypocrites) who claim that they believe in that which has been sent down to you, and that which was sent down before you, and they wish to go for judgement (in their disputes) to the Tāghūt (false judges, etc.) while they have been ordered to reject them.} [4:60].

But if he was being an attorney for and defending Muslims without committing disbelief or sin nor being satisfied with (certain) rules nor moving upon that way, and not under the man made laws of ignorance, there is no objection.

Based on the Hadīth, “whomever of you who is able to benefit his brother should do so.”

And the Saying of Allāh;

فَمَنْ يَعْمَلْ مِثْقَالَ ذَرَّةٍ خَيْرًا يَرَهُ

{So whoever does an atom's weight of good will see it} [99:7].

And the Hadīth: “The Muslim is for a Muslim a structure (support).”

And other than these.

So based upon that, it is not permissible, and the first answer becomes the questions response, rather they should be patient as was the case of the Sahābah when they were being persecuted by the Tawāghit of Quraysh in Makkah, The Messenger of Allāh did not, ma'āthAllāh, commit kufr or apostasy in order to defend them, rather they were to be patient or migrate to a safe place, until Jihād was prescribed or deliverance would come.

#Nullifiers_of_Islām #Tawhīd

Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tuwaylaṭī(رحمه الله) said:

The first nullifier: Shirk in the worship of Allāh:

All praise is due to Allāh, the Lord of Mankind, and peace and blessings be upon the most noble of messengers, to proceed:

Indeed, Allāh has created all of creation to single Him out in worship without associating any partners onto Him, and He made the Foundation of the Dīn and its chief element, the word "Lā ilāha ilā Allāh".

And the testimony of Tawhīd has 2 pillars: Affirmation and Negation, so everything that has taken away the affirmation of the Ulūhiyyah (divinity) to Allāh, from action or speech or belief that is a nullifier of Ēmān in Allāh and His (pure) worship, or he abandoned what isn't valid to affirm (Tawhīd) except by it, such as abandoning all actions, and likewise everything that has taken away the negation of the Ulūhiyyah (divinity) from other than Allāh, by giving it (i.e. the divinity) to a worshipped being alongside him, everything that is included among this is called a Nāqīdh (i.e. Nullifier) from the Nullifiers of Islām.

And the first of nullifiers that Imām Muhammad Ibn 'Abdul Wahhāb(رحمه الله) mentioned in the treatise of Nawāqidh is: Shirk in the worship of Allāh, so he, may Allāh have mercy upon him, said:

"First: Shirk (associating partners) in the worship of Allāh. Allāh says: "Verily, Allāh does not forgive that partners be associated with Him in worship (i.e. Shirk), but He forgives what is less than that to whom He wills." [4:116]. And He says: "Verily, the one who mixes partners in worship with Allāh (Shirk), then Paradise has been made forbidden for him and his final abode will be the Hellfire. And the wrongdoers will not have any helpers (in Hell)." [5:72]. What falls into this is performing sacrifices to someone other than Allāh, such as the person who offers a sacrifice to the Jinn or to a grave."

And Shirk in the worship of Allāh is a violation of the basic element & pillar of negation from the Testimony; that there's no deity worship except Allāh (i.e. Lā ilāha ilā Allāh), so whoever commits Shirk has placed another God besides Allāh, and he did not negate a partner alongside Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic.

And the Tawhīd of Allāh is divided into 2 categories:

1. Tawhīd of Ma'rīfah (i.e. Acquaintance) and Ithbāt (i.e. Affirmation): Meaning, in the acquaintance/knowledge of Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, and that he affirms for Allāh what is exclusive to Him, from Names and Attributes and Actions, and he negates that from other than Allāh, and it is Tawhīd al-Rubūbiyyah, and Tawhīd al-Asmā' wal-Sifāt is included within it (as well).

2. And Tawhīd of Talab (obtainment & goal) and Qasd (aim & intent): Which is the actions of the slave in his heart, limbs and speech, from the acts of worship that he directs to Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, and he intends Him (i.e. Allāh) from it, and he doesn't direct anything from it to other than Allāh.

And Shirk would be sub-joined to these two categories: Shirk in al-Rubūbiyyah, and Shirk in al-Ulūhiyyah.

So whoever attributes to other than Allāh what isn't to be given except to Allāh, such as whoever attributes absolute power, creating, proving, bringing to life, causing death, knowledge of the unseen, and control of the universe to other than Allāh, then he has committed Shirk in al-Rubūbiyyah, and he took a Lord besides Allāh.

And whoever makes du'ā to other than Allāh, and asks the absent (person), or requests from the one present what isn't able to be done except by Allāh, or seeks refuge or help or desperate relief in other than Allāh, likewise whoever prostrates or sacrifices or vows to other than Allāh, and whoever fasts or performs Hajj to other than Allāh, then he has committed Shirk in al-Ulūhiyyah.

And Shirk in al-Ulūhiyyah has many forms which are present today, from which is the du'ā of whoever supplicates to the Prophet Muhammad(صلى الله عليه وسلم) and asks him for Shafā'ah (i.e. to intercede for him), just like if something strikes him, he says: "O Muḥammād, your intercession" - meaning: (give me) your Shafā'ah - and this is from the du'ā to other than Allāh which takes one outside the fold of Islām, except for whom says it without knowing its meaning, or was accustomed (to saying it previously), so it came out from it without intending to do so, while striving to purify himself from it, he's pardoned.

But but as for whoever says it after knowing its meaning, and remains upon saying it, then he is a Mushrik Kāfir (i.e. Polytheist Disbeliever) in Allāh, the Exalted, and the intercession of the noble Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) is a confirmed reality, except that it is requested from Allāh, just as help isn't requested from the noble angels, even though it can happen by the hands of the angels if Allāh commands them (to do so).

And from the forms of Shirk in al-Ulūhiyyah: Is what is done at the graves and ancient relics that is worshipped besides Allāh, the Exalted and Majestic, such as what occurs at "al-Abwā" at the grave of Āminah, the mother of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم), and what occurs at al-Badawī's temple in Egypt, and there is so much (Shirk being done) in other places ALL over the world, even in the Arabian Peninsula:

"And Iblees had already confirmed through them his assumption, so they followed him." [34:20].

And from the forms of Shirk in du'ā (i.e. Supplication) is what the Rāfidah did this year, from supplicating to 'Alī Ibn Abī Tālib(رضي الله عنه), and may Allāh curse whoever worships him besides Allāh, and (supplicating upon) al-Hussayn, the chief of the youth of paradise, and (supplicating upon) Fātimah Bint Muhammad صلى الله عليه وسلم, alongside Allāh in "al-Najaf" and in "al-Baqee" at the graves of the Sahābah, to the extent that they raised their voices doing that with loudspeakers! And the Kufr of the Salūlī government reached the extent that they protected them with their soldiers, and it descended upon whoever rebuked them with their tongues amongst the Muwahiddīn, by taking them to prison!

"And those who disbelieve are allies of one another." [8:73].

And from the forms of Shirk in al-Rubūbiyyah is what the Ghulāt al-Sūfiyyah speak about, and they teach it in their authorised schools, and they spread it in their books, and the people gather with them in their homes, as the Mushrik Murtad "Muhammad Ibn 'Alawī Mālikī" does, whom resides in the house of Allāh, "al-Harām", and he is from the heads of Kufr, a caller from the callers of Shirk, may Allāh absolutely destroy him!

And Shirk in the worship of Allāh has many other forms, it will be mentioned by the permission of Allāh in the rest of the Nullifiers.

I ask Allāh to give us Fiqh (i.e. Insight and Understanding) in the Dīn, and guide us to the path of the believers, and we ask Him to grant us the intercession of Muhammad, the chief of the messengers, peace and blessings of Allāh be upon him, and upon all of his family and companions.

Yes, the Russian Kuffār have been 1 of the closest allies to Bashār and supporting him with all kinds of weapons, but let me tell you something:

1. Russia's population is decreasing, especially due to the evil of alcohol and vodka, which is described as the "mother of all evils" by our beloved Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم). Whereas on the other hand, the Muslim population is increasing, even in the capital Moscow, just check out the 'īd prayers subhānAllāh.

2. In Russia, alcohol & wine is even cheaper than water, and on top of that, prostitution is extremely widespread (vladimir putin openly stated in a boastful way that russia has the best prostitutes in the world), and as Salāh al-Dīn al-Ayyūbī رحمه الله said: "If you want to destroy a nation without war, make adultery or nudity common in the young generation", and how much do we see this everywhere والله المستعان.

3. Russia not only fears the growing Muslim Population in the country who make up 15% of the whole country, but it knows that the true teachings of Tawhīd is spreading in the land (and throughout the world), to eliminate the filth of Sufism and other misguided sects, and I'm honestly sick of seeing our beloved Chechnya which is a land of heroes that humiliated the Russian Kuffār become known for "Sufi Dancing".

4. The Kuffār like to call them "White Terrorists" lol, but the Chechen Mujāhideen are amongst the strongest and best fighters in the Muslim world, and no truthful person can deny this fact, so all I can say is "They plan, and Allāh plans, and Allāh is the best of planners", their time will come soon لَا إِلَهَ إِلَّا اللَّهُ

May Allāh bring delight to my heart and to the hearts of all the Muslims with the downfall of Bashār & Russia, along with all the other Tawāghīt around the world.

Sad news, most of east Aleppo has fallen to Bashār and his militias. Not much people seem to care as usual.

What's worse are those people who say the solution is to simply make du'ā, with their top priorities being; Continuously warning against 'Takfeer' and 'Extremism' and those 'Spreading the Fitnah of following the Early Methodology in Hadīth'.

Honestly, I've had enough of the lies & hypocrisy, there's no need to even write this again. Everyone is a professional 'one way' debater these days, and whoever opposes them is considered 'insignificant', 'a Jāhil kid' & all other names to laugh at us.

On Yawm al-Qiyāmah, we'll see who will be laughing. Anyways, I'll continue doing my part, whether people like it or not.

There's not much to look forward too in this Dunyā, but we gotta keep speaking the truth for the sake of Allāh.

You tend to find a lot of people who say "Imām al-Dhahabī remained silent about al-Hākim's grading, meaning that he agrees with it..." and this is completely false. Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tarēfē(حفظه الله) also says "al-Mustadrak" is more accurate in the beginning of the book, then in the middle, he made many mistakes & at the end, it was the worst, especially with the Munkar, Bātil and Mawdū' Ahādīth which he declared Authentic. It was written at the end of his life time which adds to the mistakes, his book "Ma'rifat 'Ulūm al-Hadīth" is much more accurate than "al-Mustadrak 'ala al-Sahīhayn".

*The Ottomans and the Muwahiddīn of Najd*

“Between the years 1226 and 1233, the armies (of the Ottomans) launched an onslaught against the lands of Najd, seeking to end the Da'wah of Tawhīd. And during that period, many of those who ascribed themselves to Islām assisted these infidel armies against the Muslims.

So the scholars of Najd issued the verdicts that whosoever helps the Kuffār (against the Muslims), then they are apostates. Then Shaykh Sulaymān Ibn ‘Abdillāh Āl Al-Shaykh رحمه الله compiled the treatise “Ad-Dalā'il”. And in this treatise he established that anyone who collaborates with the Kuffār is an apostate. And he mentioned twenty-one evidences upon that.”

KEEP SECRETS PRIVATE - NEVER BACKBITE YOUR BROTHERS AND SISTERS, INCLUDING YOUR SPOUSES!!

My dear brothers & sisters, the amount of backbiting, gossiping and jealousy in our Ummah is really unfortunate, so I really want everyone (including myself) to ponder over this virtuous character & implement it in our lives:

One of the Salaf wanted to divorce his wife, so someone asked him, "Why do you wanna divorce her?", he replied: "I do not speak ill of my wife."

After he divorced her, some noble men asked: "Why did you divorce your wife?" He replied: "I am not one of those who speaks about a woman that's not related to me".

Have Sabr my beloved brothers and sisters, and I'm not saying to remain silent if there is INJUSTICE or OPPRESSION, no way! If you have serious problems, please speak to a God-Fearing Shaykh, counsellor & seek advice without telling EVERYONE.

Q. About those who completely warn against Takfīr?!

Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله) responded by saying:

“We must have Takfīr, there's no doubt that knowing about Takfīr is a must, it's not possible that a person devotes himself to Tawhīd, except that he has Takfīr (alongside him), and Takfīr is the twin-half of Tawhīd, "Lā ilāha ilā Allāh".

"Lā ilāha" is a negation, and from the most greatest and important (aspect of it), it's a must, however it is a rightful Takfīr (i.e. Takfīr made with Haqq).

Rather the Murji'ah are the ones who try to expel and banish Takfīr completely today, they say and call towards abandoning Takfīr, and they do not explain Takfīr 'rightfully' or 'not rightfully' (i.e. with or without Haqq). ALL of Takfīr they say to leave it, "just abandon and keep quiet about this speech", this is from the ways and behaviour of the Murji'ah.”

We live in a time where being an un-loyal apostate is considered 'wisdom' and 'maslaha' and 'unity' and 'true Mujāhideen'.

Even Hamās & Ikhwān al-Shayāteen?!!

Shaykh Abū Qatādah says with his knowledge and returning back, and everything that is sent to him from what Hamās says, he knows it, and whatever Hamās does, he knows about it, however he said:

"Wallāhi with everything I have seen, from what has come to me by its exact wording, or what I have observed myself from actions or speech, I did not find a single Nullifier to the Asl al-Islām (foundations of the religion), i did not find from it!"

He says what's a duty upon us is to give Hamas advice, du'a, love victory and authority for them...because if they get the opportunity they will apply the Sharī'ah as you love! And states this is what he really believes in his heart

Infact, he says "And I believe the same way about Mursi!!!"

He says, he knows the muslim brotherhood "we are from them, they are from us....so we deal with them as a muslim."

SubhānAllāh! Abū Qatādah calls our firm brothers the worst of names and fabricates lies against them, mass propaganda while remaining quiet about the clear cut Murtaddīn supported by the Tawāghīṭ!

But not only that, he praises Mursī, the Murtad who ordered muslims to be killed in the Mosque, something the jews didn't do, Mursi the one who said "There's no difference between the Christian and Muslim 'Aqeedah, a person ks free to choose what he wishes", and mursi also promoted democracy and is a believer of democracy and says the judgement belongs to the people! He says there is religious freedom in the constitution, clear cut nullifiers.

Not only that, Abū Qatādah shows love for Hamās who wallāhi and this is confirmed news, they prevented families from giving Mus'haf's (i.e. The Qur'ān) to Salafī prisoners!! They crack down on Salafiyyīn, he says Hamas hasn't fell into a single nullifier?! They don't rule by the Sharī'ah, they abstain from implementing Islām by force and imprison those salafis who call towards the Sharī'ah, they openly show support to the Tawāghīṭ and Irān, the Shī'a Mushrik state...They believe in democracy and promote the filthy of nationalism in palestine, they fight for the sake of their country, not islām.

Shaykh Abū Qatādah said Hamad Ibn 'Ateeq is not from the 'Ulamā', likewise he said "even Shaykh Sulaymān Ibn Sahmān is not from the 'Ulamā' al-Muhaqqiqīn, and they are from the Shaykhs of the Da'wah al-Najdiyyah."

Shaykh Abū Qatādah also says "I speak based upon my knowledge of what they written, whatever they have hidden, I don't have anything to do with that"

And he also says there is some distortions of Ghulu (extremism) in the Da'wah al-Najdiyyah, and says it became manifest in their second state where the Shaykhs of the Da'wah al-Najdiyyah would make unrestricted statements that whoever opposes their way in conquering the country, then he is a Mushrik & we will fight him for his Shirk!

SubhānAllāh, this is clearly an attack on the Imāms of Najd & not the Adab in speaking about the Scholars.

For e.g. The manners of Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān when he said: "some of the 'Ulamā' (i.e. Scholars) such as Shaykh Ibn Sahmān when he spoke about him in "al-Durar al-Saniyyāh"..."

The Imāms from the Da'wah al-Najdiyyah are not infallible, but they preached Tawhīd & fought against Shirk, may Allāh reward them for that.

#Adhān_and_Iqāmah #Fiqh

- The Ninth Matter: Facing the Qiblah while calling the Adhān.

Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tarēfē(حفظه الله) said: Facing the Qiblah during the Adhān & Iqāmah is a Sunnah according to the agreement of the Scholars, and it's considered disliked for the Mu'adhin (i.e. Caller of the Adhān) to abandon facing the Qiblah, except for a Maslaha to make the people hear (the call to prayer).

An Ijmā' (i.e. Consensus) has been mentioned regarding that by Ibn al-Mundhir(رحمه الله) and others.

And this is the practise of the Sahābah in the time of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) and after (his death).

For it is narrated in "Sunan Abī Dāwud" from the Hadīth of Ibn Abī Laylah, from Mu'ādh - about mentioning the circumstances of Salāh, and mentioning the dream of 'Abdillāh Ibn Zayd - he said:

"So he faced the Qiblah, and said: Allāhu Akbar, Allāhu Akbar" [1].

And "al-Hākim" has narrated on the authority of 'Abdul Rahmān Ibn Sa'd al-Qarath, from his father, from his grandfather Sa'd al-Qarath(رضي الله عنه):

"That whenever Bilāl made the Takbīr (i.e. Says Allāhu Akbar) for the Adhān, he would face the Qiblah..." [2].

And it contains 'Abdul Rahmān Ibn Sa'd (in the chain of this Hadīth), he's not used as proof, he was weakened by Ibn Ma'in(الله رحمه) and others.

#Adhān_and_Iqāmah #Fiqh

- The Eighth Matter: Tahārah (i.e. Purification) from the two ritual impurities.

Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tarēfē(حفظه الله) said: Purification from the two ritual impurities, the minor and major, for the Adhān and Iqāmah is better according to the agreement of the Scholars.

For verily al-Tirmidhī(الله رحمه) has narrated from the Hadīth of Abī Hurayrah(رضي الله عنه) that the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) said:

"No one shall call the Adhān except a person on wudū" [1].

However it's not authentic as a Marfū' report (i.e. Not confirmed from the Prophet), and what's correct is that it's Mawqūf (i.e. Authentically Halted) upon Abī Hurayrah(رضي الله عنه), the Hufādh considered it most correct to be Mawqūf, such as al-Tirmidhī and al-Baghawī.

And the authors of the Sunan - except al-Tirmidhī - have narrated from the Hadīth of al-Muhājir Ibn Qunfuthin(رضي الله عنه) that he came to the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) while he was urinating, so he greeted him (i.e. gave the Prophet salāms), so he (i.e. The Prophet) did not respond to him until he performed wudū', then apologised to him; so he said:

"I disliked remembering Allāh except upon Tuhr (i.e. Purification)." or he said "upon Tahārah" [2].

And Abū al-Shaykh(الله رحمه) narrated in "Kitāb al-Adhān" with a weak chain, from the Hadīth of 'Abdillāh Ibn 'Abbās(رضي الله عنهما) that the Messenger of Allāh(صلى الله عليه وسلم) said:

"O Ibn 'Abbās, verily the Adhān is connected to the Salāh, so no one amongst you should call the Adhān, except if he is Tāhir (i.e. purified)." [3].

Al-Bayhaqī(الله رحمه) and Abū al-Shaykh(الله رحمه) have also narrated, from the Hadīth of 'Abdul Jabbār Ibn Wā'il, from his father Wā'il Ibn Hujr(رضي الله عنه) that he said:

"A duty and prescribed Sunnah is that a person does not call the Adhān except if he's Tāhir" [4].

And even though 'Abdul Jabbār didn't hear from his father, his Hadīths are still accepted, as long as he doesn't oppose others.

And 'Abdul Razzāq(الله رحمه) has narrated it in his "Musannaf" from (the chain of) Ibn Jurayj, from 'Attā', being from his statement. [5].

And the Adhān of the person in a minor ritual impurity is valid without any disagreement, and an Ijmā' has been mentioned regarding that by Ibn Hubayrah(الله رحمه) in "al-lfsāh", and the Iqāmah made by the person in the state of a ritual impurity is disliked, because the Salāh follows the Iqāmah.

But as for the Adhān, then that isn't considered disliked, and it's the statement of a group of Scholars, such as Imām Mālik(الله رحمه), and it is the Madhab of the Hanābilah and others, and some of the Fuqahā' among the Hanafiyyah have mentioned that Bilāl might've called the Adhān while he wasn't upon wudū', but I did not see that narrated in the "Musannafāt", and "Masānid", and the books of the "Sunnah" and "Athar".

And as for the Adhān made by a person in the major ritual impurity, then it is considered valid according to the Majority of the Scholars while being disliked, and this is what's correct.

And it has been narrated from 'Ā'isha(رضي الله عنها) as it's mentioned in the "Sahīh":

"That the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) would remember Allāh at all times." [6].

↑ Footnotes ↗

[1] It was narrated by "al-Tirmidhī" (200).

[2] It was narrated by "Abū Dāwud" (17), "al-Nasāī" (38), and "Ibn Mājah" (350).

[3] "Nasb al-Rāyah" for al-Zaylaī (1/292), and "al-Darāyah" for Ibn Hajr (1/121).

[4] It was narrated by "al-Bayhaqī" (1898).

[5] It was narrated by "al-Bukhārī" (1/465).

[6] It was narrated by "Muslim" (373).

Conceal the sins of your brothers & sisters, and Allah will conceal your sins on the day of judgement. If someone does something wrong, don't share it with your friends AstaghfirAllah, but rather warn the person who made that mistake. If your friends like to show you other people's sins, remind them to fear Allah, otherwise you will be supporting them in their wrong doing.

On a side note, people on FB will show you their 'good' side and conceal their bad. I can guarantee if you ask 99% of muslims about 'gossiping' and 'backbiting', they will all hate it and be the 'first' to openly condemn it on 'FB', but at the same time they are privately indulging in something they claim to openly 'hate'.

I thank Allah for placing some sincere humble friends in my life, who have always told me to fear Allah if I have wrongly spoken against someone. Wallahi these people who tell you to stay away from Munkar are keepers. Hold onto them like diamonds.

I ask Allah to forgive my sins and shortcomings, and forgive all my brothers and sisters in Islam. May Allah make the inside of us better than what we outwardly show.

It's never too late to make a change today, may Allah correct your steps and have mercy upon you.

Imam Ibn Hazm says "Daroorah" = "Ikraah", so whatever Daroorah permits is permitted in Ikraah.

Even though Shaykh Nasir al-Fahad says this is incorrect, we don't make takfeer upon Ibn Hazm and those who follow his opinion because they allow Tahakum to the Taghut out of necessity! And I have previously written on this topic that there's a difference of opinion on what Ikraah is.

Fear Allah & humble yourselves to learn from the trustworthy Scholars, and put aside your desires.

- The Seventh Matter: About maintaining the continuity between the phrases of the Adhān and Iqāmah.

Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tarēfē(حفظه الله) said: The Scholars have unanimously agreed that it is assured to maintain continuity between the phrases of the Adhān and Iqāmah.

And if there's a break between the phrases of the Adhān with some speech or minor silence, then the continuity (of the Adhān) isn't disconnected/broken.

For verily it has been confirmed from the companion Sulaymān Ibn Surad(رضي الله عنه) that he used to call the Adhān in the army, and and would command his Ghulām (young slave boy) for a need during his Adhān.

It was narrated by Abū Nu'aym al-Fadhl Ibn Dukayn(رحمه الله) in "Kitāb al-Salāh" (212), and Al-Bukhārī(رحمه الله) hanged it (i.e. Narrated it as a Mu'allaq narration in his Sahīh) in a manner of certitude (regarding its authenticity).

And the objective behind the Adhān is to announce (the call to prayer), and remaining silent or having a short break doesn't detriment this objective.

But as for having a long break between the phrases of the Adhān, then it disrupts the continuity (of the Adhān), and he's obliged to repeat the Adhān according to the Majority of the Scholars.

And whatever is disliked in the Adhān is also considered disliked in the Iqāmah, and it has been attributed to Imām al-Shāfi'ī(رحمه الله) that he said:

"And whatever speech I disliked in the Adhān, I would dislike it more in the Iqāmah" [1].

And Imām Ahmad(رحمه الله) really emphasised on the Iqāmah unlike his emphasis on the Adhān, for he was asked:

"Can a man speak during his Adhān? So he replied: Yes, and he was asked: Can he speak during the Iqāmah? So he replied: No." [2].

**A father's marital advice to his son.****

"My dear son, always remember that your wife is your life partner, for better or for worse; don't be harsh with her, even if you are angry with her. Follow this advice, and consider it my treasure to you:

1. Always bear in mind that you have married a woman, not a man.
2. Don't try to be victorious over her in every battle.
3. Give her a completely free reign in her home and do not interfere at all in her affairs.
4. Continuously praise her, especially in front of your family and pay extra attention to her in their presence.
5. Know as much as you can about her; be sensitive and pick up on subtle changes.
6. Surprise her with a gift on a day she is not expecting it, and give her little gifts from time to time.
7. Send her loving text messages once in a while.
8. Do not spy on her, and beware of doubting her and being overly suspicious.
9. Be keen to satisfy her physical and emotional needs.
10. Have a strong personality without being stern and obscene.
11. Don't communicate what happens between the two of you to your mother.
12. Give her your ear, she'll give you her heart and mind.
13. Kindness, kindness, kindness.
14. Understand the extent of the pressure she faces, then see if you appreciate what she does.
15. Always pamper her and massage her from time to time.
16. Call her from work, not to ask about dinner, but to say, "I love you".
17. Remain composed during any conflict; neither raise your voice nor utter unbecoming words.
18. Honour her parents and speak well of them and invite them.
19. Pay attention to personal hygiene, especially your mouth (breath); and take a bath at least once a day.
20. Use lovely nicknames and address her with terms of endearment.
21. Be merciful and loving, verily, those with big hearts always win.
22. Let her feel how valuable she is, how much you need her and that you are proud of her.
23. Overlook trivial matters and rise above lowly matters; don't be nitpicky.
24. Bury past negative stances and forget them (let bygones be bygones).
25. Ask her how her day went everyday.
26. Stand by her in any disagreements with your children, and share your thoughts with her when alone with her.
27. Spend on her from the bank of sweet words without limit.
28. When you get home, look for her before anything else.
29. Don't minimize her feelings and needs.
30. Go out with her from time to time alone, with no kids.
31. When she's ill, be gentle with her and care for her.
32. If you hurt her feelings, be extra kind to her and apologize.

33. Be keen to keep a smile; it is cheaper than electricity, but brighter."

#Adhān_and_Iqāmah #Fiqh

- The Sixth Matter: Regarding the Shurūt (conditions) for the validity of the Adhān and Iqāmah.

Shaykh 'Abdul 'Aziz al-Tarēfē(حفظه الله) said: What's required for the validity of the Adhān is:

- The entrance of the time for Salāh.

- Making the Adhān in the Arabic Language, without any melody which breaches and distorts its meaning.

And these conditions are unanimously agreed upon, an Ijmā' was mentioned regarding that by: Ibn al-Mundhir, Ibn Rushd, Ibn Hubayrah and a group of Scholars.

And a statement has been narrated from Abī Hanīfah(رحمه الله) regarding the validity of giving the Adhān in other than Arabic, if it's known that it is the Adhān! And it is Munkar (rejected), no one has agreed with this.

And the exception given for the entrance of the time (for giving the Adhān), is the Adhān for Salāt al-Fajr before its time.

And the majority of the Scholars adopted the view that it's prescribed, in opposition to the Hanafiyyah, and the proofs that show it being prescribed and recommended is authentic and explicit, for verily "Al-Bukhārī" and "Muslim" have narrated from the Hadīth of 'Ā'isha(رضي الله عنها) and Ibn 'Umar(رضي الله عنهما) that the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) said:

"Bilāl calls the Adhān during the night, so eat and drink until Ibn Ummi Maktūm calls (the Adhān)." [1].

But as for what has been narrated by Abū Dāwud(رحمه الله), al-Dāraqutnī(رحمه الله) and al-Bayhaqī(رحمه الله):

"Bilāl made the Adhān before the break of Dawn (i.e. Fajr); the Prophet (ﷺ), therefore, commanded him to return and make a call: Verily! the servant of Allāh had slept, Verily! The servant of Allāh had slept, (hence this mistake)." [2].

Then it's not preserved according to the agreement of the Hufādh; (such as) Ibn al-Madīnī(رحمه الله), Ahmad(رحمه الله), Al-Bukhārī(رحمه الله), Abī Hātim(رحمه الله) and others.

Hammād erred in it, so he raised it (to the Prophet) from the chain of Ayyūb from Nāfi' from Ibn 'Umar, and what's correct is that it's Mawqūf upon 'Umar, and the Hadīth of Ibn 'Umar and 'Ā'isha are stronger (in terms of authenticity).

And Ibn Khuzaymah(رحمه الله) has reconciled between them both, as it's mentioned in his "Sahīh" (1/212); He said:

"Verily, the Adhān used to be done in turns between Bilāl and Ibn Ummi Maktūm, so Bilāl would go forth (to give the first Adhān) once, and Ibn Ummi Maktūm would come afterwards (to give the second Adhān), and Ibn Ummi Maktūm would go forth (to give the first Adhān), while Bilāl would come afterwards (to give the second Adhān), so it's permissible that he would say this, meaning: the Prophet's statement: "Verily! The servant of Allāh had slept" - On the day where it was his turn to come afterwards (to give the second Adhān)."

And there's no need for reconciliation due to the weakness of the Hadīth according to the Imāms (of Hadīth).

And if the first Adhān for Fajr is given, it is not sufficient to replace the Second (Adhān) due to the explicit Hadīths, and this is what the Majority of the Scholars followed, and some of the Mālikiyyah opposed this, and there's no significance (given to them) when it comes to opposing the evidence.

When the Saudi govt saw so many of the youth benefitting from Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān حفظه الله from his amazing lessons in the Mosque, he was later prevented from offering lessons in the Mosque by the authorities due to undeclared reasons.

During this period, Shaykh Ibn Bāz, may Allāh be merciful to him, made several attempts, from writing to the authorities and asking them to allow the Shaykh to resume his lessons in the Mosque. But these pleas were ignored time after time. And beforehand, Shaykh Ibn Bāz urged the Shaykh to remain patient and to continue giving his lessons. And he praised his books in a letter, which he wrote with the following text:

“From ‘Abdul-‘Azīz Ibn ‘Abdillāh Ibn Bāz, to the respected son, the virtuous Shaykh Sulaymān Ibn Nāsir Al-‘Ulwān, may Allāh allow him to attain His pleasure and increase him in knowledge and faith [Īmān]. Amin. As-Salāmu ‘Alaykum Wa Rahmatullāhi Wa Barakātuh, To proceed:

"I have examined some of your writings and read some of what you have written in the refutation of Ibn Al-Jawzī and As-Saqqāf and I became very happy with that. And I praised Allāh –Glorified be He –for what he gave you from the comprehension of the religion (Dīn) and your holding steadfast to the predecessors' beliefs (Salafī ‘Aqīdah) and teaching it to the students and refuting those who oppose it.

So I ask Allāh to reward you with goodness and multiply your rewards and increase you in knowledge and guidance and make ourselves and you and the rest of our brothers, to be among His righteous slaves and His successful party (Hizb). Verily, He is the Guardian (Walī) of that and the One who is capable to do so. And we advise you with the fear of Allāh –Glorified be He – and putting forth all efforts in teaching the people in Sharī‘ah-based knowledge and insiting them to act upon it and emphasizing the correct issues in belief (‘Aqīdah) and clarifying them to the students, as well as others, in your specific and general lessons. And encouraging the people, from the students and others, in reading the Noble Qur‘ān often, while contemplating its meanings and acting upon it.

And emphasizing the Sunnah of the Messenger which is confirmed from him, and the benefitting from it, because it is the Secondary Revelation and it is the explanation of the Book of Allāh and a clarification for that which might not be apparent from its meaning.

May Allāh guide your steps and increase you in beneficial knowledge and righteous deeds and may He keep ourselves and you, steadfast upon the guidance and make ourselves and you, from His successful party (Hizb) and His fearful allies (‘Awliyā‘) and from the callers to Him who are upon sure-sightedness (Basīrah). Verily, He is Generous and Bountiful.Wa As-Salāmu ‘Alaykum Wa Rahmatullāhi Wa Barakātuh”

Lots of people in the west may have never heard of Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān الله حفظه & don't know how much of a gem he is.

Well below is a well known book which is a compilation of the life of Shaykh Muhammad Ibn Sālih al-'Uthaymīn, may Allāh have mercy upon him & forgive him, written by his close student Walīd Ibn Ahmad al-Hussayn. The following is his words which I have paraphrased.

On pages 86-87, it speaks about Shaykh Ibn 'Uthaymeen speaking with one of the most prominent specialists in the science of Hadīth, Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān (who was 40 years younger than Ibn 'Uthaymeen).

But out of the humility of Shaykh Ibn 'Uthaymeen, he invited Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān to his own home to discuss several matters, and Shaykh al-'Alwān mentioned that Ibn 'Uthaymeen wanted him to analyse his book "al-Sharh al-Mumtī" (Fiqh Book) and provide some of his comments, so he would send to Shaykh al-'Alwān with some brothers, every volume which gets published from Sharh al-Mumtī'.

And Ibn 'Uthaymeen called up Shaykh al-'Alwān confirming whether he weakens the Hadīth of Umm Salamah, "On this day you have been allowed to take off ihram when you have thrown the stones at the jamrahs, that is, everything prohibited during the state of ihram is lawful except intercourse with a woman. If the evening comes before you go round this House (the Ka'bah) you will remain in the sacred state (i.e. ihram), just like the state in which you were before you threw stones at the jamrahs, until you perform the circumambulation of it (i.e. the Ka'bah)."

And Shaykh al-'Alwān confirmed that this is Munkar, so Ibn 'Uthaymeen requested that the Shaykh writes down his view on this Hadīth, and then Shaykh Ibn 'Uthaymeen wrote down a Fatwa with his own hand-writing that the Hadīth is weak and it has Nakārah (discrepancy - objectionable things in the text), and it is published in his Book "Fatāwah al-Hajj".

Then Shaykh al-'Alwān mentioned that Ibn 'Uthaymeen called him for a 3rd time & wanted to meet him, so they met in his house again, and Al-'Alwān mentioned to him some matters that relate to the rulings of Ēmān and the Dīn.

And in the same gathering, Ibn 'Uthaymeen requested from Sulaymān al-'Alwān to provide all the remarks & comments that he can make on his books from what he sees, so Shaykh al-'Alwān said that he wrote to him his own remarks upon his book "Sharh Kitāb al-Tawhīd", which was around 30 comments and bringing out some written mistakes, so Shaykh Ibn 'Uthaymeen answered to most of it and corrected it in the Second Publication.

And as it's stated by his student, Shaykh Ibn 'Uthaymeen was a lover of the books of Shaykh al-'Alwān, and what proves that is that Ibn 'Uthaymeen read the article which was written by Al-'Alwān, and he published & spread it in "al-Hikmah magazine" (22 pages) in his gathering in front of the students in "Masjid al-Jāmi".

My Note: So despite being 40 years older than Shaykh al-'Alwān, out of humility he would learn from his Fiqh, be corrected and ask him about the gradings of Ahādīth & follow his view regarding that Hadīth.

Shaykh Ibn 'Uthaymeen was also a student of Shaykh al-'Allāmah Hamūd al-'Uqlā' رحمه الله who's an Imām of Tawhīd, and the adopted son of Shaykh 'Abdul Rahmān Ibn Qāsim who has the best footnotes on Al-Rawdh al-Murbi' (a hanbalī Fiqh book), and was the one who compiled "Al-Durar al-Saniyyah Fil Ajwibat ul-Najdiyyah" and "Majmū' al-Fatāwah" of Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah.

"Akhḷāq has its role to play from the student's knowledge, in benefiting people. So it's obligatory for us O brothers, not to say:

"We're from Africa", "We're from East Asia", "We're from a European country", "We're from the Arabian Gulf", "We have, and all nations have their own Akhlāq..."

No! The Muslims Akhlāq is one. Their Akhlāq (morals and character) is one. There is no overlooking, not in the book of Allāh, nor in the Sunnah of the Messenger of Allāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم).

The book of Allāh and the Sunnah of the Messenger of Allāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم) is for all Muslims. It's not exclusive or specific for anyone, but rather for all Muslims.

Thus, it's obligatory for our Akhlāq to be entirely built on the Book of Allāh and the Sunnah of His Messenger (صلى الله عليه وسلم).

It's not hidden from any of us, how the Messenger of Allāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم) dealt with Salmān al-Fārisī (the Persian), and how he dealt with Bīlāl al-Habashī (the Abyssinian), and how he dealt with Suhayb al-Rūmī (the Roman).

The Muslims, all of them are one (body). It's obligatory upon us, the same way we would be cheerful and open our chests to someone from our own country, to open our chests (hearts) to the believer even if he is from the furthest of places."

Just a personal Da'wah tip which might be helpful:

- Allow the other person to feel comfortable & enjoy speaking with you.
- Always allow the other person to finish speaking, even if his question is 10 mins long, never interrupt.
- Put aside your emotions & have Sabr, don't act like you need to refute all the misconceptions at once, take it easy.
- Speak less, but with deep meanings & then let the other person speak again. Don't burden their mind with so much information.
- Understand the background of the person you're speaking too, this is a part of wisdom, be careful what you utter.
- Speak truthfully from the heart.

See the results for yourself :)

*It's extremely important to understand the time, place and culture*

For instance, Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān(حفظه الله) has said it's Harām for men to wear jeans because this is imitation of the Kuffār.

This would be applicable in Muslim countries which have their known dress codes. For one to wear jeans in Saudi it would look very odd and be considered imitation of Kuffār as well as frowned upon.

As for Muslims born and raised in countries like Australia then it is normal and is not known to be exclusive to a certain type of people. If a Muslim wore jeans here the people would not view him any differently.

We must understand that each fatwa applies to the time and place and culture of that land in most cases, and does not apply everywhere. What might be considered not permissible in one land would be considered permissible in another. This is for the scholars of each land to decide.

Now what about openly proclaiming faith?

Openly proclaiming faith is correct, but to state we should dress like the Muslims then tell me which muslim dress we should wear? Like the African Muslims dress or the Malaysian Muslims dress or the Turkish Muslims dress? You see now you are beginning to limit and restrict dress to saudi only dress without daleel and going against the Qā'idah that the general principle of clothing, is its permissibility except for evidence stating it's impermissibility from the Sharī'ah, for example silk or gold for men etc.

If we wish to state jeans as being the dress code of the Kuffār specifically then this comes down to time and place. In saudi yes. In Australia no.

Imitation is in things that is known to be done by them, like dressing in full black leather like a goth for a random example off the top of my head, if you wish to include Jeans as imitation then what will you leave out from all types of clothing, what about shirts? Hats? Watches? It wont end.

As for clothing in the Sharī'ah then the requirement is that it covers the Awrah in a permissible material. And so to go against the agreed upon rule you would have to bring evidences from the Shaī'ah. To state imitation as being the reason is incorrect as this is not imitation rather it is very common by all.

Likewise with sport clothes that don't reveal the 'Awrah and don't have anything impermissible on it, yes it would be considered imitation of the Kuffār in Saudi, but not in Australia.

Imagine this. A brother asks you a question: Can we drink from a small bottle that has VB written on it even if it is only juice?

You would respond no this is not permissible for 1, 2, 3, 4.

Now imagine someone in malaysia has a small company for juice called VB and a student of yours tells everyone there it is now haraam to drink from them.

See what i mean by understanding of time and place and culture?

And Allāh knows best.

was asked: In the previous answer, you mentioned that wearing (حفظه الله) Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad sport clothes aren't permissible to begin with, so does this apply upon our brothers, the ?Mujāhideen responded by saying: No, this doesn't apply upon the (حفظه الله) Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad Mujāhideen, may Allāh almighty grant them victory, for it is well known that they (i.e. The Mujāhideen) have many specific rulings, and from it is what relates to the clothes, and Allāh knows .best was asked: A confusion occurred in the previous answer: which (حفظه الله) Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad ?"is "that the clothes which have a logo of the cross aren't worn in a way of exaltation responded by saying: The issue of wearing a cross, if it was on (حفظه الله) Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad the clothes, is Munkar (extremely bad), which has been previously mentioned in the last answer, and if the customs (of a people) were to make the image on clothes (to be worn) in a way of .(exaltation, then this is Kufr (if his clothing has a cross

However, it being worn in a way of exaltation is questionable, which is why the Scholars give a verdict of the impermissibility of placing verses (from the Qur'ān) and beautiful names (of Allāh) on .the clothes, because it is usually subject to misuse, and Allāh knows best

Note: My dear brother, I see that you mostly focus on the clear-cut rulings, and this is not possible in many situations and scenarios, so you must precisely understand the overall Framework (i.e. Fundamental Principles), then when it comes to the application, look at every situation accordingly, and not everything is judged on the same level, and if you get confused in a specific situation within a fundamental principle, then hold back, and there's nothing like remaining safe, may Allāh preserve .you

:responded by saying (حفظه الله) Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad

Wearing sport clothes aren't permissible to begin with, because it is imitating the Kuffār, and because it reveals the 'Awrah, and it's not permissible to wear something that has a logo of the cross, and whoever leaves it there is sinful, but as for him being a Kāfir, then that doesn't appear to .me, except if it was worn in a way of exalting it, and Allāh knows best was asked: Does imitating the Kuffār have a specific Criterion? (حفظه الله) Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad And is (the prohibited) imitation removed by diffusion (i.e. What's spread amongst both the Muslims ?(& Kuffār responded by saying: The Criterion for imitation returns back, (حفظه الله) Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad :and Allāh knows best, to 3 things

.1 What the text has mentioned specifically, such as the beard and clothing

.2 What is exclusive to the Kuffār, and is indicative for them, whether it was from the acts of the .worship or customs

.3 What brings harm to the Muslims through it being spread (in the Ummah), even in the long-term

As for diffusion (i.e. Something spread amongst both the Muslims and Kuffār) of which no text has specifically mentioned - like clothes - and isn't exclusive to the Kuffār, and it doesn't bring harm to the Muslims, then it is not included, and Allāh knows best, within the prohibited imitation, such as .boats for example

As for clothing (exclusive to the Kuffār), then it is not permissible to imitate them in it at all, even if it became widespread amongst the Muslims, for the ruling pertaining this matter isn't removed, due to the narrated text (i.e. evidence) about it, and that it's from the indicative signs of distinguishing .between the Muslims and others, and Allāh knows best

I must say this wallāh. I seek everyone's forgiveness for any word or advice which I have said unfairly or unjustly, whether intentionally or unintentionally.

"O Lord, do not hold us accountable when we forget or make a mistake".

May Allāh make us all amongst those who listen & strictly act upon advice, not fearing the blame of the blamers.

If anyone feels hurt from something I have said, let me know so I can apologise to you, I have so much faults which cannot be counted, I seek Allāh's forgiveness and repent to Him.

was asked: How is it possible that shaving (the head) for the (حفظه الله)Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad army is Shirk, and this shaving is from the doubtful bodies (i.e. Rule enforcements) which is sub-joined to the Niyyah (i.e. Intention), meaning that whoever shaves (his head) to seek nearness to an individual has disbelieved, but as for whoever shaves (his head) from the aspect of following the regime, and the regime wanted them to humiliate themselves by that, then this is not Kufr, but rather it is a forbidden sin as it occurs in the Schools, and shaving is dependant upon the intention, and therefore if it only had a single view (i.e. Being Shirk), it wouldn't have been permissible for 'Umar to shave the head of Nasr Ibn al-Hajjāj for the sake of removing the Fitnah from his appearance

:responded by saying (حفظه الله)Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad

As for shaving (the head), if it was from the aspect of submission to others, as the Sūfiyyah do in their shaving to their Shaykhs, and as is the situation of the soldiers when they enter the army, (سبحانه)then it is Shirk, for shaving the head is not done in submission (to anyone) except to Allāh at Hajj, and Ibn al-Qayyim has affirmed that shaving (the head) is from the greatest forms of (وتعالى) worship, but as for observing and comparing this to other situations, then the answer is given from :2 ways, a brief summary and elaborated

As for the brief answer: If the shaving done by these people was in a way of submission for the creation and humiliating him, then it is only 1 ruling, which is Shirk, and if it was not like that, then the Qiyās (analogy used by the questioner) is invalid and it doesn't malign or impugn the general principle

And as for the elaborated answer: The shaving of the heads done by (different) entities - while it has something wrong with it - is not from the aspect of enslaving others, rather it is from the aspect of Taẓīr (disciplining) by shaving the head, and some of the Scholars have adopted this view, and it has a basis in the Sharī'ah, which is destroying a place of disobedience, such as putting a hole in leather-made alcohol bottles (i.e. To remove it), and breaking its vessels/glasses, and burning the pubs, and tearing silk clothes and what's similar to that, so it is not from this aspect, and likewise the teacher shaving the head of his students is from the aspect of cleanliness and upbringing, not enslavement, such as the father shaving the head of his children shaved the head of Ja'far Ibn Abī (صلى الله عليه وسلم)And it has been narrated that the Prophet .so there's a difference between the two matters here (رضي الله عنه),Tālib

And if this issue (of shaving their heads) in the army is ambiguous to you, then put it aside and look at the other matters, such as the army courts, military hail, firmly standing up for the flag, Shirk of Obedience, and other than that “The acts of worship are Tawqīfiyyah (i.e. Require a divine legislation to be performed), its validity stands upon:

1. That the act of worship is performed purely & sincerely for the pleasure of Allāh, Glorified and Exalted is He.

2. That it's done in accordance to the Sunnah of the Messenger(صلى الله عليه وسلم).

So if either of these (conditions) are missing, then the action is an invalid innovation.”

The usual response I get from ignorant muslims who preach Bātil on FB is having my comments deleted or 'blocked'.

SubhānAllāh, even if someone shares a fabricated narration, they are too arrogant to be corrected, and would rather misguide their fans.

Our Da'wah is not to call people towards ourselves & build a following, but rather it is to call people towards the Haqq & direct them to the righteous Scholars who they can take their Dīn from.

- I have always loved people to come and discuss with me & disagree with me (I don't delete comments or hide anything). I'm striving harder to put aside my own ego & talk without being biased. All I want is for the Haqq to be manifest whether on your tongue or mine, not for us to try gain victory over each other in 'arguments'.

*Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr wants you to answer Q's 4-10*

🔖 Questions & Answers (Part 2) #Translated for Sharh Kitāb al-Haqā'iq Fi-Tawhīd by Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

The following are questions that Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله) has placed for the First Section of the Book, which you should be able to answer on your own:

Question 1: What is the Essence of Islām?

Answer: It is to submit to Allāh through Tawhīd, free from Shirk, and compliance to Him through Obedience, and that he submits to Tawhīd through knowledge, certainty, truthfulness, love, acceptance, compliance, abandoning Shirk, professing that by his tongue, disbelieving and rejecting the Tāghūt.

Question 2: What is the submission to Allāh through Tawhīd and the conditions of Lā ilāha ilā Allāh?

Answer: Speech, Knowledge, Certainty, Sincerity, Acceptance, Compliance, Truthfulness, Love and Kufr Bit-Tāghūt.

Question 3: What are the opposites to the conditions of Lā ilāha ilā Allāh?

Answer: Knowledge, and what opposes it is ignorance.

Certainty, and what opposes it is hesitation and doubts.

Truthfulness, and what opposes it is Deceit/lying.

Sincerity, and what opposes it is Shirk.

Love, and what opposes it is Hatred.

Acceptance, and what opposes it is Rejection.

Disbelief in the Tāghūt, and what opposes it is Belief in the Tāghūt.

Question 4: What is the essence of Shirk with proof?

Question 5: What is the Proof regarding the invalidity and heinousness of Shirk with Proof?

Question 6: What is the Madhab of the Mu'tazilah in the Asmā' (i.e. Labels) and Ahkām (i.e. Rulings) before the advent (of the Prophet)?

Question 7: What is the Madhab of the Ashā'irah in the Asmā' (i.e. Labels) and Ahkām (i.e. Rulings) before the advent (of the Prophet)?

Question 8: What is the Madhab of Ahl al-Sunnah wal-Jamā'ah in the Asmā' (i.e. Labels) and Ahkām (i.e. Rulings) before the advent (of the Prophet)?

Question 9: Do the Mushrikūn before the advent (of the Prophet) know about the heinousness of Shirk and its invalidity, and how did they know it, while providing proof?

Question 10: When did Shirk occur in al-Ulūhiyyah from Ummat al-Ijābah on an individual & collective level?

🔖 Questions & Answers (Part 1) #Translated for Sharh Kitāb al-Haqā'iq Fi-Tawhīd by Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

Question 1: How did the parents of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) deserve to be punished (in the hellfire) before the advent of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم)?

Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله) responded by saying:

Deserving (to be punished) is different than the punishment, and the parents of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) had the Hujjah established upon them by the Da'wah, and the Hujjah for Ahl al-Fatarāt (people living in a time without a Prophet) is the Risālah (Prophetic Message), or that a person comes to call them (to worship Allāh alone), so this is what the Hujjah is established by.

So before the advent of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم), the people of Makkah had Hunafā' (pure monotheists) who call them (i.e. Their people) to Tawhīd and warn them against Shirk, and these people (i.e. in Makkah) have the Hujjah established upon them, because the Hujjah is established by a Messenger, and this is the foundation of the Hujjah, and it's also established by a specific warning (by an individual calling them to Tawhīd).

So if someone amongst the Hunafā', infact even from the Jews and Christians before the advent of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) and was a Muwahhid, and invited the people to single out Allāh in worship (i.e. Tawhīd of Allāh), the Hujjah is established by him.

So everyone who the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) has informed about before the advent (i.e. When he became a Prophet) as being in the hellfire, and he is from Ahlal Fatarāt, then it's necessary that the specific Hujjah has been established upon him, such as the parents of the Messenger(صلى الله عليه وسلم) and others.

And like the Prophet's statement: "If you pass by the grave of a 'Āmirī or Qurashī or Dawsī, then say: Glad tidings to what shall afflict & harm you with your face being dragged to the hellfire."

The Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) has specifically mentiomed them, and Allāh doesn't oppress anyone, and He doesn't punish except by a Messenger, so there's no doubt that the Hujjah has been established upon them, and it's not possible that Allāh will punish anyone except if the Hujjah has been established.

Question 2: Are the Hunafā' before the advent (of the Prophet) Muslims?

Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله) responded by saying:

Yes, the Hunafā' who were before the Message (of the Prophet) came are Muslims. And whosoever the Messenger has promised Jannah among them, he is testified with that, and the rest are dealt with as Muslim Believers, for verily the Madhab of Ahlal Sunnah wal-Jamā'ah is that they do not testify to a specific individual amongst them with Paradise or Hellfire, except where an exceptions has been given, and the exception is divided into two types:

1. Whoever the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) has promised Jannah for, then this person is testified as being in Jannah, such as the Rightly Guided Caliphs, al-Hassan, al-Hussein, Bilāl, Khadījah, and what's correct according to me is that all the Sahābah are testified as being in Jannah, and I have mentioned this in "Kitāb al-Zinād", when we commented upon "Lum'at al-l'tiqād", and we mentioned the evidences over there, and what we've stated here is only a brief summary.

2. Is the one who has been widely praised by the Ummah testified as being in Jannah? This has a difference of opinion, and what's most correct is that whoever has been widely praised, if the 'Ulamā' who have experience & knowledge, and those whose statements are taken into consideration, and that became widespread, then he is testified (with Jannah) due to the Hadīth of when the Janāzah passed by, and they testified it with good, they said: "it must (enter Jannah)".

Such as 'Umar Ibn 'Abdul 'Azīz, for he has been widely praised, likewise al-Hassan al-Basrī, Mālik, Ahmad etc...These (Imāms) have widely been praised, and from the people of consideration, however back to the original question about Ahlal Fatarāt, as for calling them Muslims, then yes, whoever was upon the Foundations of Islām (i.e. Asl al-Islām) and didn't commit Shirk (is a Muslim), and as for testifying them with Jannah, then this goes back to what we have just elaborated on.

And the Hunafā' had the ordainments (of Islām) hidden from them, and they are excused in this, and this will be addressed in the end of the Book, that ignorance is an excuse in the ordainments.

And among the Hunafā' (pure monotheists) are Qiss Ibn Sā'idah, 'Amr Ibn 'Abasah, Abū Dharr, 'Amr Ibn Nufayl, Zayd Ibn 'Amr Ibn Nufayl, and the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) would devote himself on worshipping Allāh alone before the advent (i.e. Becoming a Prophet of Allāh with revelation), and Qiss Ibn Sā'idah would go past the inhabitants of Makkah and some of the Arab tribes, and call them towards Allāh, and say "How can you worship other than Allāh", and this is a Da'wah which the Hujjah is established by.

Chapter (7/69) #Translated for Sharh Kitāb al-Haqā'iq Fī-Tawhīd by Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

Note:

- = (Matn) which is the original text of the book.
- = (Sharh) which is the commentary on the Matn.

Chapter 7: When did Shirk first arise in this Ummah?

(Matn):

“And the Rāfidah were the first ones to bring about Shirk in this Ummah, for they are the first ones who brought about Shirk in the time of 'Alī Ibn Abī Tālib(رضي الله عنه), so he burnt them with fire.

And they (i.e. The Rāfidah) were the first ones to bring about Shirk during the Nubuwwah (time of Prophethood) after the apostasy wars, so al-Mukhtār Ibn Abī 'Ubayd al-Thaqafī claimed prophethood and having a share in it, then they brought about Shirk in the Asmā' wa-Sifāt (i.e. Names & Attributes) wherein they resembled Allāh to His creation, so the "Mushabbihah" group emerged from them, then afterwards they brought about Shirk in al-Ulūhiyyah from the path of the Qarāmitah (i.e. A heretic sect) in some countries, they raised the banner of Shirk during their time.

Shaykh Muhammad Ibn 'Abdul Wahhāb(رحمه الله) said about the Qarāmitah: "Verily they openly showed the symbols of Islām, the establishment of Jum'ah and congregational prayers, and they placed judges and Muftīs, however they openly showed Shirk and opposing the Sharī'ah, so the Scholars have unanimously agreed that they are Kuffār", abridged from his Seerah (i.e. the book of the Shaykh).

And likewise Banī Bawayh, 'Abdul Rahmān Ibn Hassan(رحمه الله) said: "As for atheism in the Tawhīd pertaining to actions, the Tawhīd of intention and requesting (for things), then that occurred when Banī Bawayh al-Dulaymī in the east had a state, so they openly displayed Ghulū towards Ahl al Bayt, and they established "al-Mash'had" according to their claim that it's the grave of Amīr al-Mu'mineen 'Alī Ibn Abī Tālib(رضي الله عنه), and built over the grave of al-Hussein and other than him from the graves of Āl al-Bayt (family of the Prophet's household), and worshipped them with all kinds of worship, and Banū 'Ubayd al-Qaddāh followed them in that."

- (Al-Durar al-Saniyyah (9/144,188), published by Dār al-Iftā', and he also quoted it from Ibn Taymiyyah."

- (Sharh) of Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

This is the final chapter in the First Section (of the Book), and it is simply a historical account, when Shirk actually began (in this Ummah), especially with what pertains to Shirk in al-Ulūhiyyah, and it is sub-joined to the Essence of Shirk.

“Ummah”:

The "Alif" (أ) and "Lām" (ل) refers to the Ummah of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم), and those who ascribe to it are (called) "Ummat al-ljābah".

But as for the "Ummat al-Da'wah", then Shirk is firmly established upon them to begin with, because the Umam (i.e. Plural of Ummah) are two types:

1. Ummat al-ljābah, and they are those who claim to face the Qiblah (i.e. Be amongst the Muslims).
2. Ummat al-Da'wah, and they are the Kuffār al-Asliyyīn (originally disbelievers) after the advent of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم), such as the Jews and Christians.

So the Jews and Christians are part of the Ummah of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) in a sense, and that is why the Messenger(صلى الله عليه وسلم) said, as it's mentioned in the Hadīth which was narrated by Muslim(رحمه الله):

"By Him in Whose hand is the life of Muhammad, he who amongst the community of Jews or Christians hears about me, but does not affirm his belief in that with which I have been sent and dies in this state (of disbelief), he shall be but one of the dwellers of the Hell-Fire."

(Matn):

“And Ibn Taymiyyah(رحمه الله) said: "The first one who applied these Hadīths regarding travelling to visit shrines which is built over the graves are the people of innovation from the Rawāfidh and their likes",

- (quoted) in "al-Radd 'ala al-Akhnā'ī" page 47, with a recapped footnote in "al-Radd 'ala al-Bakrī".

And he also mentioned: "But as for pilgrimage to the graves, and those who take them as idols and mosques and celebrations, these people did not have a group that were known who were present in the time of the Sahābah, the Tābi'een and those who followed them, and there is nothing in Islām that has a grave or shrine where pilgrimage is done for it, rather this only appeared after the first 3 generations."

- (quoted) in "al-Radd 'ala al-Akhnā" page 101, with a recapped footnote in "al-Radd 'ala al-Bakrī", published by Dār al-'ilmiyyah.

And Shaykh 'Abdul Latīf Ibn 'Abdul Rahmān(رحمه الله) said: "Verily, belief in the dead (that they can bring benefit) only occurred after the death of Imām Ahmad, and those who were on his level from the Scholars of Hadīth, Fuqahā' and Mufasssīrīn."

And Shaykh Muhammad (i.e. Ibn 'Abdil Wahhāb) said in "Tārīkh Najd" page 320 in his treatise to al-Suwaydī:

"Verily, the first ones who brought Shirk to this Ummah are the accursed Rāfidah, who call upon 'Alī and others, and they seek their needs from them and seek relief from anguish."

And he mentioned in "Kitāb al-Tawhīd" in some issues, Chapter: What has been mentioned in condemning whoever worships other than Allāh at the grave of a righteous man.

He said: "And due to the Rāfidah, Shirk and grave worship was introduced, and they are the first ones who built mosques over it (i.e. the graves)." [End Quote]."

(Sharh) of Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

As for the occurrence of Shirk in this Ummah, the Ummat al-ljābah, then it's occurrence is of 2 types:

1. Its occurrence in an individual sense, for this occurred in the time of the righteous Khalīfah 'Alī Ibn Abī Tālib(رضي الله عنه), where a group of people claimed that he's divine, so he burnt them with fire, and they are called "al-Ghāliyah".

2. Its occurrence in a collective sense, where it became apparent & currently popular (amongst society), for verily this occurred from the path of the Qarāmitah, and from the path of the 'Ubaydiyyīn, and from the path of Banī Bawayh, and these are all Rāfidah, and it is Shirk in the aspect of 'Ibādah, (such as) al-Istighātha (i.e. Seeking help and assistance from the dead) and al-Dhabh (i.e. Sacrificing to other than Allāh).

As for the first occurrence of Shirk in the legislative sense and laws (i.e. from this Ummah), then it occurred in the time of the Tatār, where they ruled by man made laws.

As for the 'Ādāt (i.e. social customs), al-Taqlīd (i.e. traditions ) and al-Sulūm (i.e. Slang for practises and traditions) which they judge by, then this began amongst the tribes, however I don't know exactly when it began (in this Ummah).

And the benefits of knowing this historical account, is that if someone says, where is the words of Imām Mālik regarding Shirk? Where is the words of Imām al-Shāfi'ī regarding Shirk? We said, it didn't occur in their time, as it was mentioned by Shaykh 'Abdul Rahmān Ibn Hassan(رحمه الله), he said: "Shirk did not occur except after the blessed (i.e. first 3) generations".

(Matn):

"Shaykh 'Abdul Rahmān Ibn Hassan(رحمه الله) said in "Qurrah 'Uyūn al-Muwahiddīn" page 45:

"A plague of ignorance has prevailed after the first 3 generations, from the Ghulū (extremism) that has occurred among the graves of Ahl al-Bayt (The Prophet's household) and others, and mosques & shrines were built over it, so the matter became widespread, and the Fitnah became greater from the presence of Shirk that negates Tawhīd, when the Ghulū (extremism & attachment) with the dead occurred, and exalting them in worship".

And Shaykh Ibn Sahmān(رحمه الله) said in "Kashf al-Shubhatayn" page 93:

"As for the issue of the Tawhīd of Allāh and purifying worship for Him (alone), then no one from the inhabitants of Islām, nor the inhabitants of desires (i.e. Deviants) nor others disputed regarding its obligation, and it is known in the religion by necessity.",

And it was stated by his Shaykh 'Abdul Latīf in "al-Minhāj" page 101 before him.

And Ibn Taymiyyah(رحمه الله) said in "al-Radd 'ala al-Akhnā" page 95:

"Verily, many people amongst the Tatār and others entered into Islām, while they have idols made from felted wool and they seek nearness to it and exalt it, and they do not know that this is Harām in the religion of Islām, and they seek nearness to the fire as well, while they do not know that this is Harām, so many forms of Shirk might be unclear to some of those who've entered into Islām, and they do not know it's Shirk, so this person is misguided and the action in which he performed Shirk by it is Bātil (invalid), however he doesn't deserve punishment until the Hujjah is established upon him."

Moreover, the Tatār are the first ones who introduced the Shirk of Legislation, which was called "al-Yāsiq", and (also) the people in the countrysides and tribes, which is known as social customs and al-Sulūm (practises and traditions)."

(Sharh) of Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

"Verily, many people amongst the Tatār and others entered into Islām."

This statement is regarding the Tatār who recently entered into Islām, and the Hujjah hasn't been established upon them.

So they “entered into Islām”, he did not say "Muslimin", must pay attention, because he repeated it twice, he said, “Verily, many people amongst the Tatār and others entered into Islām.”:

And “entering” here means that they said "Lā ilāha ilā Allāh", so it doesn't mean that they became Muslims and their entering is a correct entry, because he said, “they have idols made from felted wool.”:

So he called them "Mutaqarribeen" (seeking nearness - to those idols), they seek nearness to it & exalt it, and they are Mushrikin without a doubt, and Islām & Shirk are two opposites which cannot be joined together.

And they cannot be Muslims while they seek nearness and exalt (these idols besides Allāh), however they did not know that this is Harām in the religion of Islām, and they seek nearness to the fire as well, while they do not know that this is Harām.

And many forms of Shirk could be hidden from some of those who enter Islām.

So this person is misguided before acquiring knowledge, and the action which he has committed Shirk in is Bātil (invalid), however he isn't punished until the Hujjah is established upon him.

So these Tatār who entered Islām, in the sense of the "Ism" (i.e. Label) they are not Muslims, and they are misguided and they worship other than Allāh, however the "Hadīth al-'Ahd" (i.e. one who recently enters into Islām) isn't punished if he commits Shirk, until the Hujjah is established upon him.

~ Sharh Kitāb al-Haqā'iq Fi-Tawhīd.

---

Translator's footnote

[1] Entering into Islām = saying Lā ilāha ilā Allāh.

The Usūl of the 4 Imāms and others is that whoever says the Shahādatayn has entered into Islām, even if he doesn't comply to the Sharī'ah of Islām, therefore the one who enters Islām by the Shahādah and nullifies it with Shirk is considered a Kāfir Murtad, which is why Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah and many of the Imāms call the Rāfidah, Drūze and Nusayriyyah "Murtaddīn", and Shaykh 'Abdul Latīf Āl al-Shaykh has mentioned a consensus that such people are considered "Kuffār Murtaddīn".

So these Tatār have entered Islām by uttering the Shahādatayn & nullified it at the same time, making them Kuffār Murtaddīn, however the Hujjah hasn't been established upon them as it's clearly displayable, so they aren't punished, i.e. To be killed for apostasy.

And Allāh سبحانه وتعالى knows best.

Alhamdulillah, it's great to see brothers and sisters turn to the correct understanding of the Dīn & pure Tawhīd. However, we all need to be very careful when speaking to others who don't see Islām the way we do, especially our 'coconut' brothers and sisters.

We must not be arrogant and see ourselves better than them, rather we must try and understand their perception of the Dīn & look at what needs to be rectified to bring them back to Tawhīd. All it requires is wisdom, patience and humility.

We have our own faults and shortcomings, but unfortunately we may not perceive it because we are too proud to be following the *Haqq*. We must follow the Salaf in all aspects of the Dīn, such as their amazing humbleness and manners & wishing the best for their brothers & sisters, not just in 'Aqīdah.

*Why did Allāh compare the Dunyā to Water?*

Imām al-Qurtubī(رحمه الله) in his Tafsīr mentions an amazing benefit for the following Āyah in Sūrat al-Kahf:

واضرب لهم مَثَلَ الحياة الدنيا كمايُ أنزلناه من السَّمَاء

"And set forth to them parable of the life of this world: like water which We send down from the sky" [18:45].

"The wise men have said: Allāh وسبحانه وتعالى compared the Dunyā with Water:

1. Because water doesn't remain fixed in 1 spot, likewise the Dunyā doesn't remain fixed in 1 situation.
2. Because water goes away & doesn't stay, so likewise with the Dunyā, it will vanish and won't stay.
3. Because no one is able to enter the water without getting wet, and likewise with the Dunyā, no one is safe from its Fitnah and harm.
4. Because if water was at a specific amount, it would be beneficial and cause growth, and if it exceeds that amount, it would be harmful and destructive, likewise with the Dunyā, a sufficient means of living is beneficial, and meddling oneself too much (in the Dunyā) brings harm."

لماذا شَبَّه الله - سبحانه - الدُّنْيَا بالماء " عند قوله تعالى : "واضرب لهم مَثَلَ الحياة الدنيا كمايُ أنزلناه من السَّمَاء "...

: قال الحكماء : شَبَّه الله - سبحانه وتعالى - الدُّنْيَا بالماء

. لِأَنَّ الماء لا يَسْتَقِرُّ في موضع، كذلك الدُّنْيَا لا تَبْقَى على حَالٍ واحدة -1-

. وَلِأَنَّ الماء يذهب ولا يَبْقَى، فكذلك الدنيا تَفْنَى ولا تَبْقَى -2-

Q. A disbeliever asks, what is the proof that Allāh exists.

A. Despite being busy, I would love to help you out. With regards to the existence of Allāh سبحانه وتعالى, it's very simple, you don't have to be a Muslim to know that Allāh exists, just like we know that Shaytān believes in Allāh, but due to his arrogance and refusal to prostrate to Âdam, he became a disbeliever.

The following is a brief summary which prove the existence of Allāh سبحانه وتعالى:

1. The Fitrah (natural instincts), we are born with a natural inclination to believing in Allāh سبحانه وتعالى, everyone is born upon Islām (which is defined as the Fitrah by the Scholars), however the parents and other external factors is what changes the child's religion or beliefs from the pure inclination of believing in Allāh to something else.

2. The 'Aql (our intellect), Allāh has given us such an amazing blessing which is the intellect, and our intellect is able to perceive the existence of Allāh سبحانه وتعالى through logic, the signs of Allāh's creation, the Prophets & revelations which He has sent down as a mercy & guidance for Mankind.

To stress on this point of the intellect, the atheists who deny Allāh's existence say that this world came about by accident, saying that it all started off with some "energy" (unsure what exactly) which brought about the big bang.

However, we as muslims do not believe such an enormous world and creation can come about 'without a purpose', our intellect refuses to accept such a false notion.

Likewise, if this life didn't have a purpose & there was no afterlife, this was be pure injustice, Allāh created human beings with a free will, and Allāh has placed out the commands and prohibitions, it is the human beings who chose to kill and commit crimes on this Earth. Is it possible that a criminal like Hitler can be compared to our beloved Prophet Muhammad صلى الله عليه وسلم ?! No way!

Shaykh Ahmad Jibrīl said he counted the amount of lives lost in all the battles during the time of the Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم, and he physically counted 2,968 or something close to that, so this shows that his mission isn't to simply eradicate people as the Disbelievers accuse him to be. How many lives were lost in World War 1, around 60,000,000!!

No doubt, Allāh is merciful and will reward those who strived hard, and that's what muslims try to be, the best people so they can enter paradise, it would not do justice if Allāh didn't punish the criminals and reward the righteous. Allāh says "Shall we make the muslims like the criminals?!" It's impossible that everyone will go to Jannah.

This is why the most logical belief which our intellect perceives is that there is a Creator who governs and is in Control of not only our universe, but all other galaxies out there, His knowledge encompasses all of His creation, this is who almighty Allāh سبحانه وتعالى is, He neither begets nor is begotten, He is the First and the Last, the ever living who never dies.

:was asked: Some of the brothers said (حفظه الله)Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad

With regards to the military hail, it is from the aspect of imitating the Mushrikīn, and this is what" the Fatwa of Shaykh Hamūd al-Tuwayjirī is based upon, for if it is said, that they exalt the star with an additional exaltation, and exalting inanimate objects isn't permissible, then I say: Not all forms of exaltation for inanimate objects is Shirk, rather it is of different types: So some forms of it is a prescribed exaltation, which is exalting the black stone and kissing it, and some forms of it is an innovated exaltation and a means towards Shirk, such as exalting the shrines and graves by placing lamps (for light) and raising it above its (ground) level, and Ibn al-Qayyim mentioned that this is from the pretexts of Shirk and its means, likewise whoever hangs an amulet believing it to be a cause to avoid the evil eye, then it's a Bid'ah which doesn't reach Shirk, but if he believed that it brings benefit or harm besides Allāh, then he has fallen into Major Shirk, and it's well known that the army don't believe that the star brings benefit or harm, however he respects it in accordance to the regime, because it is one of the causes for promotion (in rank), and it is considered in this aspect, "Minor Shirk

?So what is the response to this misconception responded by saying: As for the issue of the military hail, then (حفظه الله)Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad the discussion regarding it is lengthy, I'll try to summarise it, then the discussion regarding the :misconception you mentioned (will be addressed afterwards), so I say

Indeed, if a matter is proven to be an act of worship to Allāh, the Exalted, then diverting it to other than Him is Shirk, but if it was not an act of worship, however it has been proven to be prohibited to do, then performing it is Harām (not shirk), and that is like standing - which is our issue here - for :indeed standing as it's well known is 3 types: Two types are confirmed to be prohibited

Wanting people to stand up for him : "Whoever likes for the people to stand up for him..." [Till the - [end of the Hadīth where the Prophet said, let him take his place in Hell

Standing up for someone: "You were at this time about to do an act like that of the Persians and - ".the Romans. They stand before their kings while they sit, so don't do that

So these two types (of standing) are Harām, the prohibition of both (types of standing) has been confirmed, and they aren't Shirk, but as for standing in a way of submission and Qunūt (i.e. Prolonging), then it is an act of worship for Allāh, Glorified is He, and it is an additional matter than :said (سبحانه وتعالى) simply standing up alone, as Allāh

"And stand up truly obedient (Qānitīn) to Allāh"

And the Tafsīr of the Qunūt has been confirmed in the Sahīh (i.e. Muslim) from the Hadīth of Zayd :wherein he stated (رضي الله عنه)Ibn Arqam

"So we were ordered to remain quiet, and we were forbidden from speaking"

So the likes of this standing in this way, if it was diverted to other than Allāh, then it's Shirk, whether it was to a human being or rock or tree or anything else, and what's well known is that the Qunūt that is present in the army is stricter and greater than the Qunūt which is present in the .standing of Salāh

For during Salāh, he can recite, and it's permissible to make slight movements, and relaxing the feet, and killing the two black ones (i.e. Snake and Scorpion), and holding a child, and other than that

And this is all prohibited in the army, so if you add to that, raising the hand to the forehead or to his weapon and what's similar to that, then it is like a form of committing an act of worship to others, also with beating the man for him to submit as well, as it has been narrated in the famous authentic :Hadīth

".(The angels beat their wings in submission to Him (i.e. Allāh"

So all these things make the Standing that's present in the army as a type of 'Ibādah (act of worship) whether it was for a commander or star or flag, and the example is given by the realities & meanings, infact it is greater than the 'Ibādah which is present in the Salāh as we previously stated

So if this is affirmed, the misconception that he mentioned is cleared up, like his statement regarding exalting the black stone and other than that, so this is a different topic, it differs completely (from what we're talking about), for if a man diverted an act of worship to the black stone or the ka'bah and what's similar to that, then he becomes a Kāfir

And the Shirk which is mentioned in the army is not simply for exaltation alone, rather it is the Shirkī exaltation, and this brother of ours, may Allāh give him success, took the mutual tie with regards to the word "exaltation", and he didn't pay attention to the difference (in application & meaning), I ask Allāh, glorified is He to give success to everyone towards what He loves and is .Pleased with

And (the Shaykh), may Allāh preserve him, stated elsewhere: Verily this salutation and submission is for the (promotion) ranking (stars and badges), because it stands for royalty, and they call it the royal pursuit, while worshipping other than Allāh doesn't differentiate between worshipping a human being or rock, except that this severs the proof made by those who make the issue from the category of Sujūd al-Tahiyyah (prostration of salutation) which was prescribed (in the previous nations), and was abrogated in our Sharī'ah, because this cannot be imagined (in doing so) with .rocks and inanimate objects

And this is all a legislation by the constitution which must be complied with, and the one who doesn't comply with it is punished like the one who delays Salāh, so ponder over all these matters, and free yourself from the norms, familiarity & love and traditions (i.e. be unbiased), undoubtedly it is a Shirkī 'Ibādah (act of worship) to other than Allāh (Shirk Akbar), this is a brief discussion .regarding it, and I ask Allāh to keep you firm, preserve you and hasten your release

Instead of researching so many questions or sharing what the 'Ulamā' have said for your Q's, I prefer to focus more on my structural studies of the Dīn & other commitments.

I am simply a layman & extremely Jāhil of the Dīn, but I love giving Da'wah with the little knowledge I have, hoping it could motivate others to seek knowledge & love the righteous Scholars even more.

All I want from you is to follow the correct Manhaj, and keep all the Ikhwān & Akhawāt in your du'ā, especially the Murābitīn & the 'Ulamā' in the Sujūn of the Tawāghīt.

Forget what people say about you, even those who appear "righteous" in public use such filthy words in private, but it's okay brothers, be happy & smile, coz you receive Ajr without even doing anything ☺ People will always hate & make up false accusations, we don't have anything to do with them.

We are all going to die 1 day, wallāhi at any moment, the angel of death can snatch our souls SubhānAllāh. I'm very scared because I haven't done enough in this Dunyā, but I always have hope Allāh will forgive our sins and shortcomings, and have mercy upon us.

Misconception: "Some Major sins take one outside the fold of Islām such as the act of homosexuality"

Simple Response: If the act of homosexuality took one outside the fold of Islām, why did the Fuqahā' of the Ummah differ with the way he is punished?

This is what we say to the Khawārij, if the thief was a Kāfir, why is his hand cut off? And if the drunkard was a Kāfir, why is he lashed? Why aren't they instead killed for Riddah (apostasy)?!

Likewise with the one who commits the act of homosexuality, Ibn 'Abbās said he takes the same ruling as the Zānī (lashed or stoned), which is the Madhab of Imām al-Shāfi'ī & a group of Fuqahā' from the Hanābilah. (This appears to be the strongest opinion).

Likewise other Fuqahā' simply viewed that the homosexual is given Ta'zīr, whether you want to say they are mistaken in what punishment they determined for them, that's not the point.

The point is, if the 'mere' act of homosexuality was Major Kufr, why didn't the Ummah agree upon executing them as apostates?

And on top of that, I've seen people make Takfīr upon whoever excuses a person involved in the act of homosexuality!

And since when did Major Sins take one outside the fold of Islām, this is what the Khawārij believe, not Ahl al Sunnah wal-Jamā'ah! Rather, we only believe Major Sins takes one outside the fold of Islām if he declares it to be lawful.

Also, abstaining from praying Janāzah over a homosexual doesn't mean he is a Kāfir.

Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān حفظه الله refuted the false conception that Ahl al Bida' are Kuffār because the Salaf refrained from praying Janāzah on them:

"And some of the people have assumed that the refraining of some Imāms of the Salaf from performing Salāh upon them is an evidence that it's not allowed to ask Allāh's mercy upon them, and this is from the fabricated assumptions which contradicts the Qur'ān, Sunnah and Consensus.

For the muslims in the east and the west have remained praying upon everyone who displays his Islām, who isn't known to have Hypocrisy or Apostasy. So whoever knows from him any of that [i.e. Hypocrisy or Apostasy], then it's forbidden to perform Salāh upon him.

And whoever doesn't know from him any of that [i.e. Hypocrisy and Apostasy], then it's not permissible to seek nearness to Allāh by abandoning Salāh upon him if there was no apparent Maslaha [Benefit/Interest] in doing so. For some Imāms of the Salaf would refrain from performing Salāh upon the people of desires/innovation and those who sin openly, so that the people of innovation can put a stop to their innovation, and the people of sins can put a stop to their desires, so it is from the aspect of denouncing Munkarāt [acts of evil], and achieving general Masālih [Benefits/Interests] for the muslims, and this is from the acceptable acts for the sake of Maslaha, and it has many equivalent examples in the Shaṛī'ah.

For the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) abandoned Salāh upon the person who killed himself, it was narrated by Imām Muslim(رحمه الله) in his "Saḥīh" (978).

And he abandoned Salāh upon the one who has Debt, but he didn't abandon the fulfilment [of the obligation of praying on him], and he said to the Muslims: {Perform Salāh upon your companion} it was narrated by Bukhārī (2298) and Muslim (1619).

And he abandoned Salāh upon the one who is dishonest in the war booty, it was narrated by Ahmad (4/286), Abū Dāwūd (2710), al-Nasā'ī (4/64), Ibn Mājah (2848), and there's a difference of opinion regarding the authenticity of its chain."

- So this shows that it's still obligatory for a group of muslims to pray over them (including the homosexual), but the refrainment of the Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم or many of the Sahābah from praying Janāzah doesn't render him a Kāfir.

Lol, it's really funny how deviants openly call for a debate, then when they get challenged, they run away, delete comments and say "I don't have time for you because you're the biggest Jāhil".

But they have all the time in the world to make many posts to spread their deviance without anyone 'responding' against them. This shows that they cannot have a proper discussion.

It's funny how my post about intoxication not being an excuse is a differed upon matter, *which I obviously know*, but he misses the point behind the whole post which is that Takfīr & Kufr Bit-Tāghūt is not upon 1 level, and it has unclear details attached to it.

Again, the deviants & extremists claim "no ignorance in Shirk Akbar has an ijmā'" & accuses others of being ignorant of Usūl al-Fiqh when they cannot differentiate between Ijmā' Qatī & Ijmā' Dhani.

I have previously refuted the misconceptions of them considering 'excuse of ignorance' a clear cut matter, which they weren't able to respond too & chose to run away from.

Seems like people love to stalk posts & write responses to them, missing the point behind what is being said. And ofcourse no one can respond to them, because they "don't have time to discuss with Juhhāl" ☺

May Allāh reward you brothers, however it's time to move on, as the matter is clear as the sun, so there's no need to bring this issue up all the time.

*The conquest of Constantinople will be with Tasbīh (saying, SubhānAllāh), Tahlīl (saying, lā ilāha ilā Allāh) and Takbīr (saying, Allāhu Akbar) and not with an abundant number (of soldiers) or having abundant weapons.*

Shaykh al-Muhaddith Hammūd at-Tuwayjirī(رحمه الله) said:

“Constantinople was conquered in 857 AH at the hands of the ‘Uthmānī Turkman Sultān Muhammad al-Fātih, and Constantinople is still in the hands of the ‘Uthmāniyyah in our time at the end of the fourteenth century AH.

This conquest is not the one that was mentioned in the Ahādīth that have been mentioned above because that [conquest] can only take place after the great battle and shortly before the emergence of the Dajjāl, as already discussed in several Ahādīth in this chapter, as will be mentioned in the Hadīth by Mu’āth and ‘Abdullāh Ibn Bishr . The conquest of Constantinople will be with Tasbīh (saying, SubhānAllāh), Tahlīl (saying, lā ilāha ilā Allāh) and Takbīr (saying, Allāhu akbar) and not with an abundant number (of soldiers) or having abundant weapons, as explicitly stated in many Ahādīth in this chapter. Constantinople will be conquered at the hands of the Arabs and not at the hands of the Turkmen. This is evidenced by the saying of the Prophet sall Allāhu ‘alayhi wa sallam narrated by ‘Amr Ibn ‘Awf, “...then the strong youth of the Muslimīn of Hijāz, who do not fear the blame of a critic in the Way of Allāh, will come out to them, until Allāh makes them conquer Constantinople and Rome with tasbeeh and takbeer.”

Also, the Hadīth by Abū Hurayrah in Saheeh Muslim reads, “...then an army from Madīnah will come out to them who will be the best of the people of the entire Earth at that time.” Besides, the Hadīth of ‘Abdullāh Ibn ‘Umar reads, “The Muslimīn will help each other until the people of Adan Abian will provide them with help.” Also, the Hadīth narrated by Makhmar , “The Romans will say to their leader: ‘We will suffice you from the Arabs’, then they will betray [their covenant with the Arabs], and they will gather for the battle.” This proves that the great battle will take place between the Arabs and the Romans and it is those who will fight in this great battle who will conquer Constantinople.

The commander of the army who will conquer it at the end of time when the Dajjāl will emerge is the one who is praised along with his army, as already mentioned in the Hadīth narrated by ‘Abdullāh Ibn Bishr al-Khath’amī from his father. The Hadīth narrated by Abū Hurayrah mentioned earlier, which was reported by Al-Khateeb in ‘Al-Muttafiq wal-Muftariq’, reads, “The Commander of the army at that time shall be from the household of the Prophet .”

What should be mentioned here is that the conquest mentioned in the Ahādīth in this chapter has not yet happened, and it will take place at the end of time, when the Dajjāl will emerge. The Scholars who interpreted it to mean what happened in the year 857 AH have erred and said what they had no knowledge of.”

Shaykh Sulaymān al-‘Alwān حفظه الله speaks about the causes for lacking Ghayrah (protective jealousy), I'll summarise what he said in short:

- A dayyūth is not merely someone who approves of strangers committing Zinā with his womenfolk, this is the worst form of Diyāthah, allowing them to sit with each other, or touch or kiss, this all shows a lack of Ghayrah.

- Likewise allowing his womenfolk to wear tight clothes and going around the shops and streets infront of people, this is a result of a lack of Ghayrah.

- Allowing one's wife from wearing the modern day fitnah Niqāb, some people don't differentiate between the Niqāb that was present at the time of the Sahābah and the modern day Niqāb. The Niqāb in the time of the Sahābah only displayed one eye, but even if it displayed 2 eyes, what was only intended by it is to see the road. Right now, the Niqāb isn't worn for merely seeing the road, rather what's intended from it is adornment, it is a Fitnah and adornment in and of itself (i.e. This modern day niqāb fashion), and on top of that, the woman enhances her eyelashes, has make up displayed on her cheeks, and this is from the abhorred Tabarruj. And this is from a result of a lack of Ghayrah in the heart.

- Likewise having a woman leave the house in the beginning of the day and come back at the end of the day, she is going out here and there.

- A woman going to the shops without a Mahram, rather she can only go without mahram if the conditions are fulfilled, such as the permission of her guardian, safe from fitnah, goes to get her need and returns when it's over, doesn't tempt men with soft speech.

And he mentioned numerous other reasons like a lack of Taqwā, may Allāh grant us true Ghayrah & Hayā', unlike what we see in our shocking times.

*The reason why some of our youth have turned towards extremism in Takfir is either because of sincere emotions (due to our Ummah suffering & Murji'ah concealing knowledge of Takfir), a sparkling desire in the mind or ignorance.*

I'll give 1 example to show that not all matters of Takfir are clear-cut as the extremists of our time make it out to be.

For e.g. The issue of a drunk man who commits Shirk Akbar, do we make Takfir upon whoever refrains from making Takfir upon him because he believes intoxication is a Māni' (impediment of Takfir)?

You might ask, but isn't intoxication an impediment of Takfir? Well firstly, you asking this question & having this doubt renders you a Mushrik because you haven't made Kufr Bit-Tāghūt according to the extremists, because you excused a Mushrik!

Secondly, no intoxication is not an impediment of Takfir at all. And as for the Hadīth "the pen is raised off 3", this is referring to someone who is mentally retarded, the one who cannot reason, which is out of his control.

But as for the one who gets Drunk and then commits Shirk, he "intentionally" chose to get intoxicated out of his own free will, and will not be excused for committing Shirk.

Shaykh Ahmad Jibrīl حفظه الله said:

"Drinking & Killing:

The question then arises, what if someone was drunk and kills someone, does the punishment apply to him? The answer is yes since he is still responsible for his actions, and he was the one who chose to get drunk leaving himself in a state of delusion. If drunks are not killed that opens the door for people to get drunk and then kill to save themselves from the punishment which would cause kais.

The case of a mentally ill:

One who is mentally insane is not held accountable. The test that was done in the past to determine if a person is insane or not was to give him a rock in one hand, and a date in the other. If he couldn't differentiate which one was edible, then he was forgiven of the killing he committed."

Likewise Shaykh 'Alī al-Tamīmī حفظه الله has spoken about the Hadīth, the pen is lifted off 3 people in detail which I have transcribed, but I will keep the post summarised إن شاء الله.

So the point of this post is just to show that whoever makes a mistake in the Mawānī' of Takfir and its unclear details, he is not called a Mushrik.

I hope this can help my brothers and sisters Inshā'Allāh, and from experience, questions usually get avoided, and I've asked many, what is the ruling on the one who excuses a grave worshipping mushrik, he will immediately say "Mushrik", but when I ask, what is the ruling on the one who excuses a Tāghūt mushrik ruler who replaces the Sharī'ah & rules by man made laws, I get "no response".

This matter is very clear, but due to the Fitnah on FB, many people are given a voice to speak on the matter. This is why I really believe it's necessary upon us all to sit under a righteous person of knowledge and wisdom who can help us understand our Dīn, but I know it's difficult for many people, may Allāh protect you all.

Everyone can 'display' wonderful Akhlāq, even the most evil of people! However true Akhlāq comes from the heart. How do we know the difference?

A person who has firmly established a truthful Walā' & Barā' in his soul will feel happiness in being kind and generous to others.

He is showing 'Akhlāq' outwardly by what's inside his heart, and he loves doing so, this is true character.

Unlike the one who outwardly displays 'Akhlāq', while his heart is full of bad characters, نسأل الله العافية

*Whatever you feel, I feel. When I see you happy, I'm happy. When I see you upset, I'm upset. When I see you cry, I want to cry with you.*

SubhānAllāh this is how the Sahābah & Sahābiyyāt would think, that even the giant, 'Umar Ibn al-

صلى الله عليه وسلم Prophet as it's well known in the Seerah, that he saw the Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم crying, so he wanted to know why he's crying and he said:

"If it doesn't make me cry, I'll force myself to cry Ya Rasūl Allāh!!!"

Know the difference between #Real & #Fake people ☺
May Allāh make us amongst the real truthful believers.

Misconception: *We hate Kufr, but not the Kuffār*

Shaykh Haytham Sayfaddīn(حفظه الله) absolutely destroyed this false lie by saying:

“Allāh said, “So they said to their people, we distance ourselves from you and from that which you worship other than Allāh”.

So this idea now that we say or some people, and even in this city, people try to spread this idea, that any beliefs we have about something being bad, it’s only to the action, and it’s not to the person himself, so if someone comes and throws the Qur’ān in the toilet, we (i.e. those people) say well that’s a very bad action, and it’s disbelief, but the person who did it, we can’t judge him, or we don’t have nothing to say about the person himself, even though children would know, what would make someone a bad person, what makes someone a bad person?

Student: Bad actions.

Shaykh: Bad actions, bad beliefs, bad statements, you know someone kills someone, we don’t say killing is bad, but he’s the best guy in the world.

Or some guy is a rapist and we say, we hate rape, rapists we don’t have a problem with, we’re okay, it’s okay do whatever you need to do, we don’t like what you’re doing, but you as a person, you’re the best.

If someone did that, you’d look at them as like they have something wrong with them, but then when it comes to Allah, what’s worse, swearing at Allāh or stealing?

Ofcourse, someone will steal and even now they will say he’s a bad guy, he steals all the time, and everyone will be okay with that.

But then when someone swears at Allāh or they fight against the Muslimīn, or they do this and this and this, we can’t say anything about him, it’s a bad action, you shouldn’t do it, but him as a person we can’t make a judgement.

Every other part of your life, you do that on a daily basis and every second of your life is based on, “well I like this guy because he does good things, I hate this guy because he does bad things” and so on and so on, but when it comes to the religion of Allāh , all those basic Fitrah or those basic characteristics that people are born with and that they learn as a young age, they get thrown out the window.

Then Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said:

كَفَرْنَا بِكُمْ وَبَدَا بَيْنَنَا وَبَيْنَكُمُ الْعَدَاوَةُ وَالْبَغْضَاءُ

Or that “We’ve disbelieved in you”, so we declare you to be non-muslims, we declare you to be on wrong and the things that you’re doing wrong are actions and statements of disbelief, and we openly show between us and you, hatred and enmity until you believe in Allāh alone.

So Allāh said that it’s the action that we’re getting these interactions that they’re based upon, so if someone does bad, we think of them as bad.

As soon as they become a muslim, we change our beliefs about them and the way we deal with them, so if we even look at the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم), you know the way the Kuffār dealt with him and some of the greatest Sahābah, Abū Bakr or ‘Umar and ‘Ikrimah Ibn Abi Jahl and some of them, the main people who were enemies to Islam in beginning became from the greatest Sahābah afterward, not because they just stopped doing those actions, but because they became muslim, and that became the tie that bound the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) and all the Sahābah at the time.”

"And what's correct: Is that it's not compulsory upon him to make Qadā' in both cases (i.e. Someone who intentionally abandoned Salāh & Siyām), and it's not prescribed for him to do so, rather he should perform alot of Nawāfil (optional prayers) and Tawbah, because there's no proof for Qadā', and abandoning (Salāh) is an enormous crime for it to be made up for, moreover performing Qadā' is an independant action which requires Daleel, and there's no Daleel in this issue.."

"If you love your brother for the sake of Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى), you should let him know, and as a result, your love for one another will become even stronger and more stable.

Anas Ibn Mālik(رضي الله عنه) and others reported that a man was with the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) when another man passed by. The man with the Messenger of Allāh(صلى الله عليه وسلم) said, "O Messenger of Allāh, I indeed love him." The Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) asked him,

"أَعْلَمْتَهُ؟"

"Did you inform him [about your love]?"

He رضي الله عنه said, "No." The Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم said,

"أَعْلَمْتَهُ"

"Then inform him."

The man with the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) caught up to the other man and said, "Verily, I love you for the sake of Allāh." The other man said, "May Allāh, for Whose sake you love me, love you."

*Simple way to understand our methodology in Fiqh*

A man came to Imam ibn Taymiyyah and said I want to change my madhab from Hanafi to shafi'i. He asked why? He said "I see that many of the matters in this madhab are against the Sunnah". Ibn Taymiyyah said "don't do that, rather divide the madhab into 3. One, whatever is proven from the Quran and Sunnah, take it; two, whatever is against the Quran and the Sunnah, leave it; three, whatever does not have any mention about in the Quran and the Sunnah, take the ijtihaad of any of the Aimmah".

He made the concept very simple in this way. [Related by a Shaykh].

Imām al-Shawkānī(رحمه الله) said:

"The one who acquires knowledge of the sciences we mentioned is able to act upon them without an intermediary to help him understand, such a person is a Mujtahid. Where as the layman who relies upon asking is neither a muqallid nor a Mujtahid, rather he is acting upon the evidence by means of the Mujtahid who assists him in understanding its meanings.

Most of Salaf from the companions, their followers and their followers who were the best generations were from this level of people, and there is no doubt that the Scholars were few in comparison to the non Scholars. Whoever says there is no intermediary stage between the muqallid and the Mujtahid, we say to him, 'Most of the Salaf as-Sāliheen were that way, neither muqallideen nor Mujtahideen'.."

- Basically, if the proofs are clear in a matter, that's what we must follow. But if it's a matter of Ijtihād, there's nothing wrong with someone adopting the opinion of a particular Imām.

15 February 2017 18:25

Radwan Dakkak updated his status.

One Shaykh told a personal experience with regards to having fanaticism. Note: Our methodology is that we go by proof, with respect to the 'Ulamā' & their opinions, however we do not blindly follow any particular Madhab or have zealously to a particular Shaykh.

The Shaykh was teaching in a class, and it was about moving the fingers through the beard during wudū', Imām Ahmad رحمه الله went towards raising th Hadīth to "Hassan" with regards to the Hadīth, whereas other Scholars have said there's nothing authentic from the Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم on moving the fingers through the he beard as stated by Abū Hātim, Abū Zur'ah and others, the Shaykh said, this is what's correct.

The week after, the Hadīth "whoever washes a dead person should make ghusl, and whoever carries him should perform wudū'" was brought up, so the Shaykh said the majority of the Muhadditheen such as Ahmad Ibn Hanbal, Al-Dāraqutnī, Abū Hātim, Abū Zur'ah and others that this Hadīth is not from the words of the Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم, but rather it's from the words of Abū Hurayrah, so it's Mawqūf upon Abū Hurayrah.

So one of the students got up and said "This Hadīth was authenticated by al-Albānī", the shaykh said "i know, however it's not authentic", so the student said "are you more knowledgeable than al-Albānī?", the shaykh replied "no i'm not more knowledgeable than al-Albānī, but last week when we mentioned a hadith that was authenticated by Imam ahmad, and we stated that it's weak, you remained silent, Imām Ahmad is more knowledgeable than al-Albānī! However you have zealously, and al-albānī doesn't accept the way you are going about things."

So some people prevent others from making taqleed on the Madhāhib, yet they make taqleed on other scholars.

Side Note: By Allāh, most of those who tell you that you have to stick to a Madhab conceal knowledge, and are absolutely ignorant of 'Aqīdah and the affairs of the Muslims, and love Dunyā & sell out shuyūkh. There's a difference between studying a Madhab and blindly following 1 madhab in everything. You rarely hear Qur'ān & Sunnah from them سبحان الله, yes a layman who can't understand anything asks a Shaykh (that's fine if he blind follows a madhab/shaykh coz he can't understand), but someone who is able to gather between the evidences should follow what he views as most correct (he's neither a Mujtahid or Muqallid). A muslim should start learning Fiqh at an easy level until he is able to start going through all different opinions, and it's permissible to ascribe yourself to a Madhab, but it's preferred for the student of knowledge who has the tools to perform Ijtihād. As for most of us, we are neither blind followers or Mujtahideen, yet we are going by the evidences which is what most of the Salaf were like as mentioned by Imām al-Shawkānī.

May Allāh guide us to the straight path.

I take this world very seriously & I don't have any time to waste, especially when our Ummah is so humiliated! How can we laugh and joke around?!

But at the same time, despite our bad situation, I love to bring a smile on your faces & cheer you up with hope and never despair, by Allāh words cannot express how blessed you are to be a stranger in this world. Your Ēmān and Tawhīd is so special, you yourself are special, there are so many Muslims I wish I can let this enter their soul, but one day they will realise how much Allāh loves them, Alhamdulillah.

The Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم suffered intense trials and hardships, he lost all his children except for Fātimah رضي الله عنها, yet he was the most cheerful & smiling of people :) So smile to your brothers, as it will bring affection & love and unite your hearts upon the Haqq.

We must have a balance, we need to realise that we are sinners & not doing enough. But don't just call yourself a sinner & not change for the better, you might sound humble by calling yourself a sinner, but please more actions, less talk. It's not a good thing to be a sinner, rather you should be a sinner who continuously repents to Allāh, may Allāh make us from the Tawābbīn.

I live and die for this cause, I will never step down upon my principles by the permission of Allāh سبحانه وتعالى - Look around you & ask, where are the people of the Haqq! As Shaykh Ahmad Jibrīl الله حفظه said, the people of the Haqq are strangers amongst strangers amongst strangers. Allāh has preserved this Dīn through righteous Scholars & those in Ribāt, you might ask, but they are few in number, well just read the following :)

Shaykh ‘Abdullāh Abā Butayn (رحمه الله) said in ad-Durar as-Sanniyyah (10/398):

إن أهل الحق هم أقل الناس فيما مضى، فكيف بهذه الأزمان التي غلب فيها الجهل. وصار بسبب ذلك المعروف منكرا، والمنكر معروفا؟

“Indeed the people of truth are the minority in the times that have passed. So how then about in these times in which ignorance is prevalent, and the good became known as evil and the evil became known as good for that reason?”

Forgive me if add emotions to what I write, I sometimes do it both intentionally & unintentionally, it's just the way I feel, thinking so much about our Ummah & our brothers & sisters. I never thought I would be living in such a world that's so full of lies where we are so humiliated.

The Kuffār are united in insulting our Dīn, the wives of the Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم, and are fighting against the Niqāb, Allāhumma destroy them all!!

was asked: Is the army considered a Tā'ifah Mumtani'ah? And (حفظه الله)Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad ?what are the Nawāqidh (nullifiers of Islām) that it consists of

:responded by saying (حفظه الله)Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad

As for the army, then it is from the most clearest of examples pertaining the issue of al-Tā'ifah al-Mumtani'ah (the abstaining group) from complying to some of the ordainments of Islām, and this is .very clear and displayable

And in al-Durar al-Saniyyah (volume 15 & 16), there's a specific chapter regarding the requirement (for a Tā'ifah Mumtani'ah), and what the A'immat al-Da'wah have mentioned about them, and they have mentioned some of the Muharramāt (forbidden things) that are present, such as imitating the Kuffār in wearing their clothes and in their protocols (i.e. regimes), and the military hail, and music .and other than that spoke about the army and what it has from Munkarāt (رحمه الله)And Shaykh Hamūd al-Tuwayjirī (evil and corruption) in the book "al-Īdhāh wal-Tabyīn Limā Waqa'a Fihi al-Aktharūn Min Mushābahat al-Mushrikīn", such as the military hail, and slapping a man, clothing, the (army) cap, music and .other than that, and Ibn Bāz wrote an introduction for him

And there's a wide range of Fatāwah about the Munkarāt of the army that's present in "Fatāwah al-Lajnah al-Dā'imah", so this is all sufficient for whoever wants to argue if he was a seeker of the truth, so let's just say (for argument sake) that it's not Kufr, then it is (still) Munkar and Harām, and this is the Fatāwah of your Shaykhs about it (i.e. the impermissibility of entering the army), and it's not permissible to work in it at all, even if he doesn't comply to their protocols (i.e. Regime), because it has cooperation over sin and transgression, and it strengthens their authority and increases their numbers and other than that, and its Munkarāt are so many as I previously stated, :and from it is

Shirk al-Tā'ah (i.e. Shirk of Obedience), and it is from the most clearest forms of this Shirk (of .1 entering the army), because they have a principle: "Carry it out, then object (afterwards)", and every single one of them is ordered to obey whoever is above him in all cases, and the criterion of the commands return back to the regime, not to the Sharī'ah, so if he ordered a command which is permitted by the regime, even if it was Harām according to the Sharī'ah, then he is obliged to carry .that out, and likewise vice versa

Shirk of the Military Hail and Shirk of the salutation of the flag, and I have written an essay on .2 .this topic in the year 1414 AH

Ruling by other than what Allāh has revealed,and that is due to them having specific courts, .3 which are the military courts, it judges by the Tāghūt, not the Sharī'ah, the issues of the soldiers are .referred to it

That their pride and fighting and power is with the regime, not with the Sharī'ah, just as Shaykh .4 al-Islām (Ibn Taymiyyah) said about the soldiers of the Tatar who ascribe themselves to Islām, after ruling upon them with apostasy, he said: "Indeed their fighting is not on behalf of the Dīn of ."Islām, rather it is on behalf of the Tatār state

That all of the things that became widespread in the land from the Kufr, and Tāghūt courts, and .5 allying with the Kuffār, and other than that is all through their intermediary and protection and .(assistance (for the Tāghūt

That most of what's present in it (i.e. the army) is taken from the Kuffār, starting from the .6 clothing and rankings (of the soldiers), and ending with the Ahkām (i.e. Rules and regulations) of the army [...], moving around the way they have been taught, and walking and other than that, and the .discussion about it is lengthy, and this indication suffices from needing to say a lot

.knows best (سبحانه وتعالى)And Allāh

A huge turn off is when a brother or sister doesn't know the difference between the Muwahiddīn and Murtaddīn. You might ask me, why is this important? Well firstly, it goes to show that such a person doesn't care about the Ummah & had their head in the dirt. Secondly, that person has some 'Aqīdah & Manhaj issues.

A muslim can never ignore what is happening to the Ummah! Wallāhī a brother or sister who loves the Haqq & is sincerely learning their Dīn step by step is a million times better than some Jāhil who is "proud" to seek knowledge, read books while ignoring the Ummah & just crying online with "aww make du'ā for halab", may Allāh humiliate you, where is your du'ā for Yemen or Kashmir or Libyā or Mōsul...???

If you want to see who cares about the Ummah, don't look at their crying on the pulpit or their cries on Facebook, but rather look at their priorities and whether they are doing something productive for the Ummah by warning the masses from the Kufr and apostasy of the rulers & explaining the important issues of Tawhīd & Takfīr.

No, but we rather see the famous speakers keeping the Ummah blind like sheep, leading them to the hellfire, by quoting 'Umalā' of the Tawāghīt, placing all the 'Scholars' on the same level, which is absolute ignorance!! How can the Scholars of Tawhīd equate to the Scholars of Shirk?!

Taylor See I accept this post. Just wanted to say that I tried wearing a niqab in my Islamic Studies class, had some difficulty breathing and felt dizzy. I told the Sheikh, and he said I don't need to wear a niqab, but to sit in the back row for modesty.

14 February 2017 13:18

Radwan Dakkak It's very nice to see so many sisters of our time wearing the Niqāb & I ask Allāh to reward them for their intentions & efforts. As for what the Shaykh said, perhaps he is of the view that covering the face is not Wājib, because a Scholar who views covering the face Wājib wouldn't tell you "you don't need to wear a Niqāb". I have heard sisters mention breathing problems before, however Allāh سبحانه وتعالى wouldn't obligate something or even "recommend" something which would cause harm, He knows what's best for us, both men and women. What I would recommend you to do is speak with trustworthy sisters who can help you out and give you advice, as they would know much more than us men when it comes to wearing a Niqāb. However, I can share some tips which might be helpful from islamqa: "Women still wear the niqaab (face veil) and khimaar (headcover) and we do not see any of them complaining about it or finding it too difficult. Perhaps what has happened to our sister – or others – is because of the quality of her niqaab or khimaar, or because of the way it is worn. If a woman is wearing a thick niqaab then that may make it difficult for her to breathe or to see, so the solution in that case is to make it thinner. Some women tie the niqaab very tightly over their faces, which makes it hard for them to breathe. The solution in that case is to loosen the niqaab so that it will be easy to breathe. It would be a good idea for you to refer to a doctor who has more experience than the doctor you are currently seeing, and perhaps they will be able to find a solution to your breathing problem that she has not come up with. If it is not possible to solve this problem by any means – which is unlikely, in sha Allaah – then do only what is required to ward off harm in this case. Do not uncover the whole face for the sake of breathing; you could put part of the niqaab lightly over the nostrils as much as you need to make it easy to breathe, even if that is less than what is ordinarily required. We ask Allaah to protect you from all evil and to bless you with righteous offspring. Ameen." ~ End Quote. I'm sure you've read both sides of the issue, and can see the stronger evidences on the topic, so now it's all up to you to strive for the sake of Allāh, and basically be like the Sahābiyyāt as I have written in my post, may Allāh increase our ummah in righteous men & women who fear Allāh. And Allāh سبحانه وتعالى knows best.

14 February 2017 13:34

Taylor See Jazakallah khayr for answering my questions. May I make a serious suggestion? Maybe some male scholars and students of knowledge could try wearing a niqab for a while, to see what it's like in practice (if suitable). Then they might be able to understand how it works in real-life better, and this can help them to improve on their advice. A lot of scholars are male, and they might not know what claims about the niqab to accept from women's experiences, unless they've had first-hand experience of wearing it themselves.

14 February 2017 21:21

Radwan Dakkak Āmīn wa iyyākī. It's not permissible for a man to wear a Niqāb, however if you want to ask me personally, I have covered my face with a Ghutra when entering into a shop. Some workers got scared when I walked past the isle, but that's about it. Putting aside my personal experience, I can see where you're coming from. The greatest female Scholars of the past, i.e. beginning with the Sahābiyyāt all covered their faces, even the elderly women: On the authority of 'Āsim al-Ahwal who said: {We entered upon Hafsa bint Sīrīn, and she put the Jilbāb on like this(explaining what she did), and covered her face with it(the arabic text mentions Niqāb), so we said to her: "May Allāh have mercy upon you! Allāh(جل وعلا) said: "And women of post-menstrual age who have no desire for marriage - there is no blame upon them for putting aside their outer garments [but] not displaying adornment." [24:60] (and it's the Jilbāb), so he said: She said to us: "What is after that?" So we recited: "But to modestly refrain [from that] is better for them." [24:60], so she said: It is to keep the Jilbāb on} This was narrated by Sa'īd ibn Mansūr(رحمه الله) in his Sunan(al-Tafsīr/1618), and Sa'dān ibn Nasr(رحمه الله) in his "Juz"(page 60) and from the chain of Sa'dān(رحمه الله), Imām al-Bayhaqī(رحمه الله) has collected it in his Sunan al-Kubrā(7/93) and it's authentic. Ibn Hajr al-'Asqalānī رحمه الله said in al-Fath al-Bārī(9/324), "The customs of the women in the past and present have remained unchanged of covering their faces from the strangers" Therefore, there's no need for men to have experience in wearing the Niqāb, when our grandmothers have been doing so ever since the the verses of Hijāb were revealed, as soon as they were revealed, they obeyed Allāh & the Messenger صلى الله عليه وسلم. Yes, most Scholars are men, but this doesn't mean that they will distort the Qur'ān and Sunnah in favour of their own whims and desires, no way, because they fear Allāh & go by the evidences. As muslims, we reject sexism, feminism and other false concepts that have come to try and destroy this Ummah, and this is what we see in our time, people basing their Walā' & Barā' (Loyalty and Disavowal) on their genders instead of Islām & Kufr, not paying attention to the core matters of Ēmān & Kufr Bit-Tāghūt. However, in our modern times, the truthful scholars are rare to find, I do not follow the popular speakers out there, whether man or woman, they can give motivational and helpful talks which I won't deny, but unfortunately both are speaking with their whims, not proofs from the Qur'ān, Sunnah and the statements of the Salaf, their knowledge is very weak. Forgive me if I have spoken a lot, but as muslims, the most important and dearest thing to us is our Creed ('Aqīdah), we must all study Tawhīd and Shirk and teach the ummah these crucial matters. I hope this helps, and Allāh knows best.

Please please please my brothers and sisters, you MUST know who you are taking your knowledge from. I have nothing against people COPY & PASTING quotes to share for da'wah, but please KNOW who you are copying & pasting from. I get REALLY hurt when I see brothers & sisters sharing quotes from Sell out Scholars and Imāms of Kufr who have sold their religion & supported the enemies of Islām.

Please understand that there's a difference in our methodology and their methodology, how can you share a quote from a Scholar of Haqq & then share quotes from deviant sell outs & EVEN Scholars of the Tāghūt who LOVE & SUPPORT the Apostate Ruler to TORTURE & EXECUTE our beloved 'Ulamā'?! Why, why, why??????

Wake up, please wake up & see the world!!! Don't let the famous reputations deceive you, NEVER listen to any sell out who has never left the laps of the Tawāghūt, spends his entire life remaining behind with women in their rooms and continuously criticising the people of the Haqq in favour of the Kuffār!

Ya Allāh, destroy those wicked tongues and guide our ummah, O Allāh we all need guidance, knowledge is not about how much we accumulate, but it's all about sincerity & truthfulness. Wallāhi I love those truthful people of knowledge who are unknown in this world, all that matters is Allāh knows them 🤲

Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah(رحمه الله) says in "al-Sārim al-Maslūl" (3/1110) about the Rāfidah Kuffār:

"As for whoever exceeds that to the extent where he claims that they (i.e. the Sahābah) apostated after (the death) of the Messenger of Allāh صلى الله عليه وسلم except for a few individuals who do not exceed 13-19 people or that they call most of them Fussāq (corrupt and evil doers), then there's also no doubt regarding his #Disbelief, for verily he is a Mukathīb [a denier] of what the Qur'ān has mentioned in several places, such as Allāh سبحانه وتعالى being pleased with them, and praising them, infact whoever has doubts regarding the disbelief of the likes of this individual (who insults the Sahābah), then surely this necessitates his disbelief, because this statement can only mean that those who delivered the Qur'ān & Sunnah are Kuffār or Fussāq, and that this Ummah which is the best Ummāh that was ever sent to mankind, and the best (amongst the Ummah) is the first generation while the majority of them were Kuffār or Fussāq, then this means that this Ummah is the worst of all Nations, and that the (pious) predecessors of this Ummah are its worst, and the Kufr of such an individual is from that which is known in the religion of Islām by necessity, and that is why you find from those who openly display such statements, is generally found out to be a Zindīq (i.e. Heretic), and most of the heretics conceal their beliefs, and Allāh has shown an example of their likes"

﴿﴾ Chapter (6/69) #Translated for Sharh Kitāb al-Haqā'iq Fi-Tawhīd by Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

Note:

- = (Matn) which is the original text of the book.
- = (Sharh) which is the commentary on the Matn.

Chapter 6: Knowing the heinousness of Shirk, Zinā, Oppression, Alcohol, Lying and what's similar to that by the Fitrah and Intellect.

(#Matn):

"Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "And when they commit an immorality, they say, "We found our fathers doing it." [7:28].

And the incident of al-Najāshī with the Sahābah, Ja'far(رضي الله عنه) said to him: "O king, we were a people of ignorance who used to worship idols, eat dead animals, approach al-Fawāhish (i.e. Zinā etc) and mistreat our neighbours", it was narrated by Ibn Khuzaymah(رحمه الله) in his "Sahīh".

And in the authentic Hadīth: "5 things are from the Fitrah, then he (i.e. the Prophet) mentioned it".

- (#Sharh) of Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

This chapter is sub-joined to the chapter "Essence of Shirk", so we explained that Shirk is to put a partner with Allāh.

And we know the heinousness of Shirk and its invalidity, and that's known by the Mithāq, Fitrah and 'Aql.

And this is not an original chapter on its own, rather is (mentioned) from the aspect of clarifying and digression (i.e. a temporary departure from the main subject in speech or writing), so that we know what's besides Shirk such as Zinā, oppression, alcohol, lying and other than that, its heinousness and invalidity is well-known, so imagine the case with Shirk, therefore it (i.e. Shirk) is more deserving of knowing its heinousness and invalidity.

And the heinousness of these things (i.e. Zinā etc...) are known by the Fitrah and 'Aql, and we did not mention the Mithāq, because the Mithāq is a matter dealing with Tawhīd.

And the significance behind the incident of al-Najāshī is: "eat dead animals, approach al-Fawāhish (i.e. Zinā etc) and mistreat our neighbours":

The heinousness of these matters were well-known to them, therefore there are matters in which its heinousness is known besides Shirk.

And in the (authentic) Hadīth: "5 things are from the Fitrah, then he (i.e. the Prophet) mentioned it..."

"The Fitrah is 5 things, or 5 things are from Fitrah, circumcision, shaving the pubic region, clipping the nails and cutting the moustaches short".

It was narrated by Bukhārī(رحمه الله) from the Hadīth of Abī Hurayrah(رضي الله عنه), so growing the nails long is known to be heinousness by the Fitrah, and the Shar'ah reassured it (i.e. Came to affirm it), and likewise with the rest of the things.

(Matn):

"Ibn Taymiyyah(رحمه الله) said: "Indeed, Allāh has called them Dhālimīn (oppressors), Tāghīn (tyrants) and Muḥsidīn (those who spread corruption on the earth) before the Risālah (i.e. Prophet Message), and these are vilified labelled actions, and vilification is only in the bad wicked acts, so that proves that the actions are heinous and vilified before the advent of a Messenger towards them, (however) they do not deserve punishment except after the arrival of a Messenger to them, because of His statement: "And never would We punish until We sent a messenger." (17:15) [Al-Fatāwah (20/37-38)]

Ibn al-Qayyim(رحمه الله) mentioned in his commentary upon Āyat al-Mithāq (the verse of the covenant): "And this proves that the same mind that he knows Tawhīd from it is a Proof (Hujjah) for the invalidity of Shirk, they do not require a messenger, and this doesn't contradict (Allāh's statement): {And We never punish until We have sent a Messenger}, (Ibn Qayyim said), so that being a Fāhisha (i.e. Zinā etc) and a sin and transgression is just like Shirk being called Shirk, so it is Shirk in and of itself before the prohibition and after it, so whoever said that the Fāhisha (i.e. Zinā) and wickedness and sins only became like that after the prohibition, then he is on the level of the one who says Shirk only became Shirk after the prohibition (of Shirk), and it's not considered Shirk before that, and this is a clear unreasonable stubbornness for the intellect and Fitrah" - Madārīj al-Sālikīn (1/230,234,240).

And he (also) mentioned in it (i.e. Madārīj al-Sālikīn): "Verily the wickedness of worshipping other than Allāh, exalted be He, is firmly established by the intellect and Fitar (i.e. Plural of Fitrah), and hearing it has alerted the mind, and guided it towards knowing what it contains from wickedness"

And in the Seerah, he mentioned the one who didn't drink alcohol in Jāhiliyyah, and there's also the incident of Hilf al-Fudool."

- (Sharh) of Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

"Ibn Taymiyyah said: "Indeed Allāh called them..."":

This is called legislative (i.e. Shar'iyyah), because he attributed the labelling to Allāh, the most high, and "called them", the pronoun returns back to the Mushrikīn before the Risālah (i.e. Prophetic Message).

Therefore the "ism" (i.e. Label) of Dhulm (oppression), Tughyān (tyranny), Fasād (corruption) is applied before establishing the Hujjah, and there's no relation to it (being applied after the Hujjah), so it's referred to whoever commits it (i.e. the act) before the Risālah, however he is not to be punished except by the (advent of a) Messenger.

And these Asmā' (labels) as we have explained are mentioned before the Risālah, and it's said to the Jāhil (ignorant person), and ignorance is not an excuse in it, so he is called "Dhāliman" (an oppressor), and it's not to be said that he isn't called "Dhāliman" (an oppressor) while he is ignorant! We say there's nothing that prevents calling (someone) a "Dhālim" (an oppressor) while he's ignorant, however he isn't to be punished due to that ignorance until the Hujjah is established, so there's a difference.

“they do not deserve”: This is not like the saying of the Mu'tazilah "they do not deserve", rather it means "they aren't punished", because they deserve it, however they aren't punished except after a Messenger comes to them.

“Ibn al-Qayyim(رحمه الله) mentioned in his commentary upon Āyat al-Mīthāq (the verse of the covenant)”:

As for the statement of Ibn al-Qayyim(رحمه الله), we have previously mentioned it and explained it, but we only mentioned it here from the aspect of reassurance and addition.

*Praying Behind the Men of the Congregation and Not Mixing with Them***

“The rows of women in a Masjid are behind the rows of men, and the further a woman is from men, the better it is for her. Abū Hurayrah (رضي الله عنه) reported that the Messenger of Allāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم) said:

"خير صفوف الرجال أولها وشرها آخرها وخير صفوف النساء آخرها وشرها أولها"

"The best of rows for men is the first one, and worst of them is the last one. The best rows for women is the last one, and the worst of them is the first one." [1].

When men are in close proximity to women, their minds might become distracted through temptation and desire, and they will not pray with concentration and a presence of mind and heart. And that is why the Shari'ah encourages men to be at a distance from women in the Masjid.

Even after he finished leading the people in prayer, the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) made sure that men and women remained separated. When he finished his prayer, he would remain in the spot he prayed in for a short while, so as to allow the women to leave before the men, and to set out to their homes before the men reached them at the entrance of the Masiid.

Umm Salamah (رضي الله عنها), the wife of the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) related that, "During the lifetime of the Messenger of Allāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم), as soon as women would make Taslīm (i.e. say 'Asalāmu 'Alaykum wa Rahmatullāh', signalling the end of prayer) from a prescribed prayer, they would stand (to leave); meanwhile, the Messenger of Allāh (صلى الله عليه وسلم) and those men who prayed with him would remain for a period that Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) willed (i.e. for a short while). Then, when the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) stood up (to leave), the men stood up (as well)." [2].

Today too, then, men should remain for a short while after the prayer, so as to allow women to leave; and women should not delay but should instead return quickly to their homes. But if the women's exit is at a distance from the exit of men (as is common in many of today's Masjids), and no mixing occurs by everyone leaving at once, then men may leave immediately and women may wait a while in their place of prayer. Since the reason behind the ruling in this issue - mixing between the sexes - is not present, the ruling no longer applies. And Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) knows best.

Related Issue: If the prayer-hall of women is separate from the main prayer-hall for men, then the best of rows for women becomes the first row, and the worst of them becomes the last row. The reason why the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) stated the opposite is no longer applicable when men and women pray in different rooms; the front row, therefore, returns to its status of superiority.”

You don't have knowledge or noble manners, yet you complain when *moderates* don't accept your "Haqq" and run away from you - Sorry to tell you my dear brother on the "Haqq", but I can't even stand your bad manners & conduct, so imagine those "Murji'ah". Lower the wing of arrogance by comparing your deeds to the Sahābah & have patience in your da'wah. By Allāh, I tell you my beloved brother, moderates look more towards your "manners" and "patience" than they understand your posts about "Tawhīd" and "Takfīr". Be wise, may Allāh protect you.

“Don't you see the sword loses value and prestige when it is said it is sharper than a stick?”

A similar example was given by Ibn Taymiyyah (رحمه الله) when discussing the Hadīth Qudsī in which Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) said: "I have forbidden oppression for myself and I have made it forbidden among you"

Some of Ahl al Bida' began discussing that it is not possible for Allāh to oppress to begin with, to which Ibn Taymiyyah replied 'a blind man said to me 'from today, i will lower my gaze and no longer look at the opposite sex' .. The people from Ahl al Bida' commented 'Why would he state that he is going to lower his gaze when he could not see to begin with', to which Ibn Taymiyyah replied, 'why would Allāh forbid oppression on himself if he could not oppress to begin with'

SubhānAllāh the wisdom of our scholars ♥

Tahākum to the Tāghūt – Beware of Takfīr!

There's no dispute that Tahākum to the Tāghūt is Kufr and Shirk according to the Consensus of the Scholars as mentioned by Imām Ibn Kathīr (رحمه الله) and others, however this is not the place to mention those quotes.

What I want to stress on is that we do not make Takfīr upon matters wherein the giants disputed as mentioned by Shaykh Ahmad Jibrīl (حفظه الله), such as those who go to the Tāghūt courts to retrieve a right, such as most of their wealth being taken away or their children (as this was considered extreme duress and permitted by several scholars)

And yes, Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr (حفظه الله) had 2 different opinions on this matter, and the other opinion he adopted agreed with Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad (حفظه الله) that the Hadīth of al-Hajjāj Ibn 'Alāt is not considered as evidence, and losing all your wealth isn't considered Ikrāh.

However, there's a dispute amongst the Scholars on what is considered Ikrāh, so for e.g. Ibn Qudāmah viewed the harming of one's child is Ikrāh, so imagine if they are taking your child away from you, this is what Shaykh Ahmad Jibrīl (حفظه الله) said, one must go to retrieve that child back and save him from the hands of a Kāfirah who will raise that child as a disbeliever.

Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr says, if there's a difference of opinion on a matter, he is excused. But if there is an Ijmā' on the matter, he isn't excused. He mentioned this a few times in Sharh Nawāqidh al Islām, since Sihr has different types, and amongst them is Clear Agreed upon Nullifier, but there's other forms of it which is differed pon, so he said in this situation, a person is excused due to ignorance until the hujjah is applied to make Takfīr (even tho majority said it's major kufr).

So likewise, Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad on the issue of asking the dead to call upon Allāh (while being NEXT to his grave), he said what's correct is that it's Shirk Akbar, but because there is no Consensus on the matter (i.e. Ibn Taymiyyah viewed it as an enormous Bid'ah), and due to the strong misconceptions of the one believing the one in the grave is alive & right next to him, and he's not asking anything directly from him, so he excuses him due to ignorance and ta'weel, hujjah must be applied. Below is the Fatwa:

“Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad (حفظه الله) was asked: What is the ruling on the one who says: "O messenger of Allāh, call upon Allāh to forgive me"? And is this like saying: "O messenger of Allāh, intercede for me"? And what's the ruling on the one who says that this saying[#1] is a bid'ah and isn't major shirk?

Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad (حفظه الله) responded by saying: This issue has Tafsīl[i.e. Requires a detailed explanation], so it's divided into two categories:

1. If he supplicated with this du'ā & he is far away from his grave[i.e. The Prophet's grave], then this is Major shirk without any doubt, because there's no misconception in that.

2. If he supplicates near his grave, then he is also upon two categories:

A) That he asks for his intercession or help or victory & similar to that, then this is also Major Shirk.

B) That he says "Ask Allāh for me" or "Intercede for me by [the permission of] your Lord" and it's from the same type[both sayings are the same], so the people of knowledge have two sayings regarding this:

- So the Imāms of the Da'wah al-Najdiyyāh view it as Major Shirk, from among the types of Shirk that Quraysh used to do "These are our intermediaries with Allāh", "Except that they bring us closer to Allāh in position"

- And among the later scholars who viewed it as a [Great] innovation & [Great] evil & a means to Shirk, however it's not disbelief, because they have a misconception which is his life in the grave[i.e. He's alive in the grave] & that he hears the Salām for whoever gives him Salāms & similar to that, so according to themselves they aren't calling upon the absent[Ghā'ib] or an incapable person[i.e. Dead etc.], and they do not call upon him by anything from the Attributes of Divinity like asking for help, intercession & similar to that, so [according to him] it's just like asking for a supplication from him during his life, and this isn't Shirk by Ijmā', and he is right now alive in his grave, so this is their misconception.

And what appears to be most correct in my view is that it's Major Shirk, however he is excused from this by ignorance & ta'wīl[interpretation], because of their strong shubhā[misconception] in this situation, and Allāh (جل وعلا) knows best."

~ End Quote from Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad (حفظه الله)

Translator's Note: He is only excused due to the core issue being unclear (i.e. Whether it's Shirk or Not), and it is a differed upon matter, Ibn Taymiyyah views it as an enormous bid'ah, but not Shirk, whereas other Scholars viewed it as Shirk.

Likewise with the issue of Tahākum, there are scholars who include "Necessity" within "Coercion", if someone is in necessary need to go to the Tāghūt courts, and has disbelief in the Tāghūt, but retrieves a right he believes was a necessity, he doesn't become a Kāfir, because he believes necessity permits what ikrāh permits (i.e. Kufr), so we would excuse him due to ignorance & ta'weel. Since such a person believes he's committing Kufr in the state of "Ikrāh" which is allowed in the Sharī'ah.

Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr (in his old view) and Shaykh Ahmad Jibrīl considered it permissible to make Tahākum in cases of الإكراه الملجئ, extreme duress, such as his wealth being taken away from him if he acts upon Tawhīd.

Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr said what is meant by wealth being taken away is that which causes him harm, such as if the majority of his wealth or all of his wealth is taken away, he is permitted, but if a little bit of his wealth is taken away, he is not excused, and he used the Hadīth of al-Hajjāj Ibn 'Alāt as proof.

So if shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr considered wealth being taken away which harms him as falling under "Ikrāh", then imagine one's child or wife?

And as for the Hadīth of al-Hajjāj Ibn 'Alāt, the saḥābī mentioned that he might be told to utter words of Kufr against the Prophet, yet the Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم still allowed him to go.

And disrespecting the Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم contradicts Tawhīd, however this would only be permitted during the Prophet's life, since he won't be harmed (as he has forgiven others for doing so during his lifetime), but after his death, it would harm him, which is why the Ummah have said that the one who insults the Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم is to be killed, even if he repented, whereas the one who insults Allāh is given 3 days to repent or be killed, since Allāh has dropped that right off Himself, but not off the Rasūl صلى الله عليه وسلم.

Point is, this is the evidences they use (whether you want to disagree with it or not). Btw, most people might not have read it from Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr as the book is not on the list which everyone shares, but he mentioned this in Sharh Kashf al-Shubuhāt (248 pages) & also explained the issue of "Ikrāh".

Shaykh Ahmad Jibrīl (حفظه الله) said:

“A fourth example, willingly obeying or accepting whoever governs by other than the rule of Allah. Acceptance by giving them precedent over the Qur’an and the Sunnah, by showing discontentment to the laws of Allah, by thinking it is ok to be governed by other than the rules of Allah, by believing this rule or law is better than the rule of Allah or like it.

وَمَنْ لَّمْ يَخُكُمْ بِمَا أَنْزَلَ اللَّهُ فَأُولَٰئِكَ هُمُ الْكَافِرُونَ المائدة: ٤٤...

ذَٰلِكَ يَأْتِيهِمْ كَرَهُوْا مَا أَنْزَلَ اللَّهُ فَأَخْبَطَ أَعْمَالَهُمْ محمد: ٩

One quick note on this, and I can give a very long talk on this but I want to try to summarise it. Some who read a few quotes from the two Imaams in particular, and it always happens, they like to read a few quotes and then declaring people Mushrikeen and Kuffaar left and right. This is an issue that really I plan Inshaa Allah Ta’aala to write a book on, but I will summarise it real quick. It stems out of the matter about mainly those who are in the west. Someone who tries for example to retrieve a loss, wealth, devastatingly lost wealth, or kids through a legal custody. If one’s heart is full of belief in Allah and he goes to retrieve that right that causes him extreme, severe hardship, if it is a major catastrophic loss or if one loses for example kids who are going to grow up to be non Muslims. If it is an extreme, devastating loss and his purpose is only to retain a right taken from him, you do not call him a Mushrik if he goes to a court in the west. If he has Kufr in Taaghoot and belief in Allah and he is just going to retrieve a right.

The Prophet sallallahu ‘alayhi wa sallam, he witnessed the covenant of al-Mutayyibeen, it was a covenant that the Prophet sallallahu ‘alayhi wa sallam praised and the wording itself is taken from the word Tayyib (طيب), good, a name given to those who conducted that treaty. He said:

شَهِدْتُ مَعَ عُمُومَتِي جِلْفَ الْمُطَيَّبِينَ، فَمَا أُجِبُ أَنَّ أَتَكُنَّهُ، وَأَنَّ لِي حُزْرَ النَّعَمِ

So the Prophet sallallahu ‘alayhi wa sallam praised that covenant that was done prior to his Messagehood and he attended it. He praised it after and it was attended by Banu Hishaam and Banu Zahrah and it was in the house of Ibn Jad’aan. That covenant was to retrieve the rights of those who were oppressed or wronged and to give them their rights back. That treaty made and entailed law where people are judged by and would have to accept the decision when settling disputes of those who are oppressed. No one can say the Prophet sallallahu ‘alayhi wa sallam said that statement and praised those, that he approved the laws of Tawaagheet because he attended it in his Jaahiliyyah or praised it after Islam. A treaty by the leaders, the heads of Kufr, entailed judgment in courts to settle disputes for those who were oppressed. When the Sahaabah were brought before an-Najaashi, it was like a court, you cannot say they were forced because they could have chose to go back to Makkah.

More so, more clear than that, more proof on that is the story of al-Hajjaaj Ibn ‘Alaat as-Silami, the Sahaabi who was a very rich merchant. After the Battle of Khaybar, he went after the Battle of Khaybar, look how late, he went and asked the Prophet sallallahu ‘alayhi wa sallam permission to go back to Makkah, live there for a while. He needed a term to live there, be kind to Quraysh to retrieve his wealth. He got to go and talk to the leaders of Quraysh and sweet talk them to get his money back, and he even told the Prophet sallallahu ‘alayhi wa sallam it may be that he has to speak ill about the Prophet sallallahu ‘alayhi wa sallam and the Prophet sallallahu ‘alayhi wa sallam allowed him to go.

This is a matter that a full book needs to be written on and I can explain more on it and both opinions fully. The point is, it is not to encourage people to go to courts of the Tawaagheet, we are not talking about that. This is exceptional circumstance of one whose heart is full of Imaan, full of Tawheed, despises the Tawaagheet, yet has a right taken away that causes him extreme, devastating hardship and he cannot get it but through those courts. Each situation of what constitutes a hardship is judged individually, cannot generalise what constitutes a Dharoorah (ضرورة) and extreme hardship. A major catastrophe, not just something minor, if it is something he can handle without going into the courts of Tawaagheet, do not go. Seek recompensation from Allah.

وَمَنْ يَتَّقِ اللَّهَ يَجْعَلْ لَهُ مَخْرَجًا الطلاق: ٢...

But if one cannot handle the situation and it is an extreme hardship and there is no other way to retrieve his right, and he goes to retrieve that right, fully accepting the laws, his heart is full in accepting the laws of Allah, despising the Tawaagheet, then you do not call him a Mushrik Kaafir, this is my point.

A group of brothers several months ago wanted me to speak to one of their peers who was running around calling his other brother a Mushrik Kaafir because he fought a custody battle to get his daughter from the hands of someone, a woman who was going to take her and raise his daughter a Mushrikah Kaafirah. And he is calling the brother who fought to get that daughter in court, a Mushrik Kaafir for going to that court. His proof are quotes taken of context from some of the ‘Ulamaa, some of our prominent ‘Ulamaa like Ibn Taymiyyah and Muhammad Ibn Abdul-Wahhaab. And he began to repeat the quotes over and over, Kufr in Taaghoot. You know some people, it is like a shell that you know about, Kufr in Taaghoot, but what is in it, they do not know what is in it.”

NOW, this is the opinion of Shaykh Ahmad Jibrīl on the matter, yet those who follow this opinion are not made Takfir upon because of the reasons I have listed above, and I'll finish this up with the following Fatwā:

“Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad (حفظه الله) was asked: About the principle mentioned in previous question, whoever isn't able to solve an issue except by going through to the Tāghūt courts, then this is a Necessity, and Necessities make lawful the Muharramāt [Harām acts], not the Mukaffirāt [Kufr acts], so what is the Tafsīl in this issue?

Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad(حفظه الله) responded by saying: It's not permissible to go towards the Tāghūt for judgement, except in the case of Ikrāh [Duress] alone, because it is Kufr, however some students of knowledge view that the Necessity here permits that [i.e. going to the Tāghūt court], using the Hadīth of al-Hajjāj ibn 'Alāt as evidence, just as some of the Scholars have entered 'Darūrah' [Necessity] into 'Ikrāh' [Coercion], as it was mentioned in the previous answer, but what's correct is that it's not permissible, however if he had Ta'wīl [Misinterpretation] such as these Ta'wīlāt [Misinterpretations], and he was in necessary need of that [going to the Tāghūt courts], then he doesn't become a Kāfir, and Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) knows best.”

Therefore, if you see someone going to the Tāghūt courts and they have Tawhīd and Kufr Bit-Tāghūt, yet they went out of a serious need to retrieve a right, such as their children, a lot of their wealth or most or all of it, and went along that opinion, then do not make Takfīr upon them.

Rule

~Anything useful may be dowry~

This rule regarding the womens dowry may help to overcome many questions people may have such as;

✎ Can a dowry be that he teaches her Quran or Hadeeth?

✎ Can her dowry be that he takes her to her mothers 3 times a week?

✎ Can her dowry be that he takes care of her elderly father?

The answer is: Yes, anything that is useful to her may be a dowry and the evidence for this rule is the hadeeth "I have married her off to you for the amount of Quran that you have memorized"

With this it is made clear that the dowry is not limited to only money in the sharia rather it is anything she may find useful to her so long as it is not something impermissible.

“Sub-Heading: Taking into consideration the intention (of a person) in the doubtful matters, and not taking it into consideration in the clear-cut matters.”

Shaykh Ahmad al-Khālidi(حفظه الله) beautifully explained that whoever falls into clear Kufr is judged as a Kāfir without looking into his "intentions", but just to summarise his words, the following is what the Shaykh has written:

“The connotations of words and actions consist of several types: Some of it doesn't suggest towards what the individual intends due to it having several possibilities, so this person isn't judged solely by his outward statement or action, except after clarifying what he meant.

Such as the one who abuses time, as it's mentioned in the Hadīth: “Do not abuse Time, for it is Allah Who is the Time.”

And the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم)'s saying from which he narrates from his Lord, the exalted and majestic: “The son of Adam hurts Me by abusing Time, for I am Time; in My Hands are all things and I cause the revolution of night and day.”

“For indeed, whoever abuses time from amongst the creation, he did not intend to insult Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى), but rather he intended to insult whoever did that (bad) action with him, attributing it to the time, so the insult falls upon Allāh, because he is the Doer (i.e. Controller of time) in reality, and whether we said: That "al-Dahr" (Time) is from the names of Allāh almighty - as

It was stated by Nu'aym Ibn Hammād - or we said: That it's not a Name (of Allāh), and rather His statement; "I am the time", means that I am the one who controls time and their abuse befalls upon it - as it was stated by Abū 'Ubaydah and the Majority - And this is why we do not make Takfīr upon the one who abuses time, and neither is he killed, however he is to be disciplined and rebuked because of his bad way of expressing himself” [This was stated by Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah in "al-Sārim al-Maslūl" (page 495), Tahqīq by Muhyiddīn 'Abdul Hamīd].

So based upon this, if he abused time and intended by that Allāh, the most high; He would have disbelieved, and this is not known except after clarifying what he intended and revealing his reality, but as for the one who insults Allāh or His Messenger with an outwardly clear insult, we would make Takfīr upon him without asking or waiting to hear his explanation - without dignity or grace - and it cannot be said that he's not a Kāfir until the conditions of Takfīr and its preventions have been fulfilled, as is the statement of the author (who he's refuting):

“And not everyone who falls into something from the matters of clear displayable Shirk is made Takfīr upon merely because of his statement or action, rather it's necessary for the conditions of Takfīr to be met and preventions must be removed in his situation” (page 223).

So this shows; that the author didn't differentiate in clarification between the the situation of an individual who says or does something which has possibilities of Shirk and other than him, and between establishing the Hujjah upon him.

And what is intended by clarification (التبين); Is to stop at what the individual intends in the matters that have more than 1 possibility, but if he prostrates or sacrifices to other than Allāh or makes du'ā to other than Allāh; We will call him a Mushrik merely because of his action or clear statement, without seeking clarification, even if he didn't intend to do Kufr, then the Hujjah is to be established upon him.

And what is intended by establishing the Hujjah; Is to send a warning to him, so perhaps he may repent from what he fell into and return back to Islām before the punishment is carried out upon him, and the ism (i.e. Label of Kufr and Shirk) is not negated from what he fell into before that (i.e. before applying the Hujjah for him to repent or be punished).

So if he was a minor (i.e. Under the age of maturity), he is warned about that and isn't taken outside the fold of Islām, and if he was greater (i.e. above the age of maturity), he is called a Mushrik, then the Hujjah is established upon him, because most of the cases of apostasy are due to causes of jahl (ignorance) or ta'weel (misinterpretation) or shubha (misconception) or shahwa (desire).

As Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah(رحمه الله) said: “Leaving the religion; doesn't occur except from a vilified misconception in the heart or a sparkling desire in the mind” [Al-Sārim al-Maslūl (page 364)]”

~ Shaykh Ahmad al-Khālīdī(الله حفظه).

“From the conditions of Tawhīd is kufr (disbelief) in the Tāghūt and there is no Ēmān except after kufr in Tāghut, outwardly and inwardly. Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) says;

{Whoever disbelieves in the Tāghūt and believes in Allāh then he has grasped the most trustworthy handhold that will never break and Allāh is the All Hearer, the All Knower} 2:256

And Allāh says;

{And verily We have sent among every Ummah a Messenger (proclaiming) worship Allāh and avoid Tāghūt} 16:36

And the Messenger of Allāh(صلى الله عليه وسلم) said, “Whoever says lā ilāha ilā Allāh and disbelieves in what is worshipped besides Allāh, then his blood and wealth is harām and his reckoning is with Allāh. (Sahīh Muslim)

Shaykh Muhammad Ibn ‘Abdul Wahhāb(الله رحمه الله) said, “Whoever worships Allāh day and night, then makes du'ā to a Prophet or Saint in the grave, then he has taken two gods and has not truly testified to lā ilāha ilā Allāh, as an ilāh is one who is made du'ā too like the mushrikīn do at the grave of Zubayr or ‘Abdul-Qādir or other than them. And whoever sacrifices for Allāh a thousand times then sacrifices to a Prophet or other than him has taken two gods as Allāh says;

{Say verily my prayer and my sacrifice and my living and my dying is for Allāh, the Lord of the Ālamīn.} 6:162”

Misconception: *Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad is a Kāfir because he says the one who excuses the one that insults the Prophet can be excused for not applying Takfir upon the individual*

Response: Many Scholars have mentioned an Ijmā' regarding the Kufr of whoever insults the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم), for e.g. Muhammad Ibn Sahnūn (رحمه الله) mentioned an Ijmā' regarding his Kufr and said whoever doesn't make Takfir upon him has disbelieved.

Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah (رحمه الله) said in "al-Sārim al-Maslūl" (2/15): "The Scholars have unanimously agreed that the one who insults the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم), degrading him is a Kāfir and the torment (i.e. Punishment in the hellfire) is undergoing upon him with the punishment of Allāh for him, and the ruling upon him (in the Dunyā) according to the Ummah is to be killed, and whoever has doubts in his Kufr or punishment (in the Ākhirah) has disbelieved."

However, the great Imām Abū Ya'lah(رحمه الله) viewed insulting the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) as "Fisq", not "Kufr" due to a ta'weel (misinterpretation), and as a result considered the one who insults the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) as a Fāsiq, not a Kāfir, yet none of the 'Ulamā' made Takfir upon him because of that.

Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah(رحمه الله) in "al-Sārim al-Maslūl 'ala Shātim al-Rasūl" (1/513) rejected this statement (of his) and said:

“And it must be known that the statement, whoever insults (the Prophet) being Kufr is only due to his Istihlāl (i.e. Declaring it lawful) to insult (the Prophet) is an atrocious mistake & enormous fault, and may Allāh have mercy upon al-Qādhī Abā Ya'lah, he has mentioned in several other places what contradicts what he said here.”

So it's well known that Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah(رحمه الله) didn't make Takfir upon al-Qādhī Abā Ya'lah(رحمه الله) due to that statement (of not making Takfir upon whoever insults the Prophet unless he declares it lawful to do so), infact it's not mentioned from any of the Scholars that they made Takfir upon him because of that.

Likewise, the one who replaces the Rulings of Allāh, and not judging by what Allāh and the Messenger(صلى الله عليه وسلم) have said, this person is a Kāfir according to Ijmā' as stated by the Imām of the Salaf Ishāq Ibn Rāhawayh(رحمه الله), also Imām Ibn Hazm(رحمه الله), Ibn Kathīr(رحمه الله) and Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah(رحمه الله).

However those who say replacing the Rulings of Allāh & ruling by other laws is "fisq" due to ta'weel (misinterpretation) unless he declares it lawful, then he is not made Takfir upon because of that. The following is what Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad(حفظه الله) has said:

“3. The Kāfir Murtad who commits a nullifier from the agreed upon nullifiers of Islām, such as mocking the religion for example while he claims to be a Muslim, so whoever refrains from performing Takfir upon him, then he is 1 of 2 men:

- Either he affirms that his action or statement which the text and consensus has mentioned is Kufr, however he refrains from performing Takfir upon him because of a misconception that appeared to him, or extremely fearful [to issue a verdict of Takfir] and similar to that, then this person doesn't disbelieve; Because he didn't reject the text or Ijmā' [Consensus].

- Or he either disputes regarding the action or the statement, and that it's not Kufr, then the Hujjāh must be applied upon him, by showing the evidences and Ijmā' regarding this, so either he affirms that, or else he becomes a Kāfir.” [Al-Fatāwah al-Hā'iriyyah].

I hope this is beneficial, and Allāh knows best.

A righteous wife will make you feel loved and appreciated. You can listen to her & understand each other. She will bring comfort your heart & make you feel relaxed ان شاء الله.

#Duā - May Allāh grant all of you a righteous spouse to take each other to Firdaws and please you, and be the coolness of your eyes in this Dunyā, and bless you with children that will be Imāms of this Ummah.

Ponder over your du'ā that you make in secret, if it becomes answered, will it change the Ummah or just yourself? Just something to think about 😊 Keep repenting to Allāh & seeking His forgiveness.

Have Sabr & Smile 😊 This is a beautiful character the Mujāhideen are famous for Never forget your obligations, ask Allāh to keep you firm & reject the Tāghūt 🕌

🔖 Chapter (5/69) #Translated for Sharh Kitāb al-Haqā'iq Fi-Tawhīd by Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

Note:

- = (Matn) which is the original text of the book.
- = (Sharh) which is the commentary on the Matn.

Chapter 5: Proof regarding the invalidity of Shirk.

(#Matn):

“Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "He presents to you an example from yourselves. Do you have among those whom your right hands possess any partners in what We have provided for you so that you are equal therein [and] would fear them as your fear of one another [within a partnership]? Thus do We detail the verses for a people who use reason." [30:28]

Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "Do they associate with Him those who create nothing and they are [themselves] created?" [7:191].

Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "And those whom you invoke other than Him do not possess [as much as] the membrane of a date seed." [35:13].”

- (#Sharh) of Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

“Chapter: Proof regarding the invalidity of Shirk”:

This chapter is sub-joined to the Essence of Shirk, and what is intended by this chapter is showing that Shirk is Bātil (Invalid) and showing what the Hujjah is regarding the invalidity of Shirk, and we mentioned 3 proofs here regarding its invalidity.

And it's necessary to pay attention that when we say Shirk is wicked or vilified, and that the proof is what we're going to mention, then this does not mean that this Proof (Hujjah) necessitates punishment, but rather these matters are a proof (Hujjah) that makes one understand that Shirk is Bātil (invalid), and it is not a Hujjah with regards to punishment (in the dunyā) and torment (in the hellfire), but rather this (statement) is the Madhab of the Mu'tazilah who consider the intellect as the Proof (Hujjah) for torment (in the hellfire).

So there's a differentiation, so the Hujjah for punishment & torment differs from the Hujjah of (the) invalidity (of shirk).

“Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "He presents to you an example from yourselves. Do you have among those whom your right hands possess any partners in what We have provided for you so that you are equal therein [and] would fear them as your fear of one another [within a partnership]? Thus do We detail the verses for a people who use reason." [30:28]”:

This verse has a proof (Hujjah) with regards to the invalidity of Shirk, which is the intellect, as Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "for a people who use reason."

And it is a Hujjah with regards to the invalidity of Shirk, and not a Hujjah for punishment, for verily the Hujjah (Proof) for punishment are the Messengers (being sent to them).

So the servant who is the slave of a person, does he make him a partner besides Allāh with regards to his Rizq (provisions & sustenance) and would be considered the same? They are not partners, therefore Allāh doesn't have a partner, and every reasonable sound mind believes in this reality and is aware of it.

“Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "Do they associate with Him those who create nothing and they are [themselves] created?" [7:191].”:

The Hujjah from this (Āyah) is the intellect as well, and this is well known rationally, it's not possible to associate partners with someone who doesn't create, (is) deficient. And it's not possible for the deficient one to be a partner with the Perfect one (i.e. Allāh), for verily Allāh doesn't have any partners.

“Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "And those whom you invoke other than Him do not possess [as much as] the membrane of a date seed." [35:13].”:

The one who doesn't possess [as much as] the membrane of a date seek is incapable and deficient, so how can a (sound) intellect make an incapable deficient person a deity (besides Allāh).

(Matn):

“Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "And [mention] when your Lord took from the children of Adam - from their loins - their descendants and made them testify of themselves, [saying to them], "Am I not your Lord?" They said, "Yes, we have testified." [7:172].

Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "So direct your face toward the religion, inclining to truth. [Adhere to] the fitrah of Allah upon which He has created [all] people." [30:30].

On the authority of Abī Hurayrah(رضي الله عنه) as a Marfū' report (i.e. Raised to the Prophet that he said): "Every child is born with a true faith (i.e. to worship none but Allah Alone) but his parents convert him to Judaism or to Christianity or to Magainism"

Abū Hurayrah recited (the verse): "[Adhere to] the fitrah of Allah upon which He has created [all] people." [30:30] - Narrated by al-Bukhārī and Muslim.

And it (i.e. Fitrah) has been explained as being "Islām", which is the statement of Abī Hurayrah, 'Ikrimah, Al-Hassan, al-Dahhāk, Mujāhid, Qatādah, Al-Bukhārī, Ibn Taymiyyah, Ibn al-Qayyim and Ibn Kathīr.

Ibn Taymiyyah said: "And the reports that are mentioned from the Salaf doesn't suggest except this statement (i.e. Islām), that they were born upon Fitrah" (Dar' al-Ta'ārudh).”

- (Sharh) of Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

“Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "And [mention] when your Lord took from the children of Adam - from their loins - their descendants and made them testify of themselves, [saying to them], "Am I not your Lord?" They said, "Yes, we have testified." [7:172].”:

The Hujjah in this Āyah is the Mithāq (i.e. the covenant) that Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) took from the children of Ādam(عليه السلام), because Allāh dispersed the progeny of Ādam out from his backbone, like scattered tiny dust particles, then He addressed them and made them testify to themselves that "Am I not your Lord?", they said "Yes", so they testified to the Rubūbiyah (Lordship of Allāh), including what is sub-joined to that from loving Him and exalting Him, and this is His Ulūhiyyah (Divinity).

And whenever {al-Rabb} is used, it consists of al-Rubūbiyyah and al-Ulūhiyyah, "Am I not your Lord", i.e. and your God, as it will be mentioned in the questioning of the grave, "who is your Lord", i.e. Your God, therefore the Mithāq al-Awwal (the first covenant) which is present amongst the people testifies to the invalidity of Shirk.

“Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "So direct your face toward the religion, inclining to truth. [Adhere to] the fitrah of Allah upon which He has created [all] people." [30:30].”:

The 3rd Proof for the invalidity of Shirk is an Āyah and Hadīth, and the selected opinion amongst the Scholars, which is the Fitrah, and Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) placed a Fitrah in mankind that He is the Lord and God and (only) One who deserves to be worshipped.

And there are some Scholars who explained the Fitrah as the Mithāq, however the most correct opinion is that the Mithāq differs from the Fitrah, He dispersed them (into the world), then made them testify (that he's the Lord of mankind), then He placed a Fitrah (upon them) for that.

And the Fitrah necessitates the invalidity of Shirk, because he loves Tawhīd, and Shirk and Tawhīd are two opposites which cannot be joined together, so if he loves Tawhīd, he hates Shirk, and if he knows the validity of Tawhīd, he would know the validity of Shirk.

“And it (i.e. Fitrah) has been explained as being "Islām".”:

Who is the one who explained the Fitrah as being Islām? (The shaykh said), it is the statement of Abī Hurayrah, 'Ikrimah, Al-Hassan, al-Dahhāk, Mujāhid, Qatādah, Al-Bukhārī, Ibn Taymiyyah, Ibn al-Qayyim and Ibn Kathīr.

All these great Imāms explained the Fitrah as being Islām, so they (i.e. Mankind) were born upon the Fitrah, and before they were born, the Mithāq was taken from them.

So it becomes clear that there are 3 Proofs which proves the invalidity of Shirk, which in order is; Al-Mithāq, Al-Fitrah, and the 'Aql (intellect), and we placed the Fitrah before the 'Aql, because an individual is born while he is unable to reason, so these are proofs & assurances which proves the invalidity of Shirk.

For indeed Shirk is Bātil, however he is not punished for these matters, but rather punishment occurs by (the advent) of the Messenger, so they are deserving of punishment, however they aren't punished except by the (advent) of a messenger, and if He punished them due to these matters (of Shirk), He wouldn't have oppressed them, however due to Allāh's mercy and love for excusing (his creation), He did not make it that way (i.e. Punished for Shirk) except by the Risālah (Message reaching them).

Despite them knowing its heinousness by the Mithāq, Fitrah and 'Aql.

(Matn):

“And it's mentioned in the Hadīth of 'Amr Ibn 'Absah that he said: "In the times of Jāhiliyyah, I used to think that people who used to worship idols were upon misguidance" Narrated by Muslim.

And in the Seerah, the story of al-Hunafā' (the monotheists):

Ibn al-Qayyim(رحمه الله) mentioned in his commentary upon Āyat al-Mithāq (the verse of the covenant): "And this proves that the same mind that he knows Tawhīd from it is a Proof (Hujjah) for the invalidity of Shirk, they do not require a messenger, and this doesn't contradict (Allāh's statement): {And We never punish until We have sent a Messenger}, (Ibn Qayyim said), so that being a Fāhisha (i.e. Zinā etc) and a sin and transgression is just like Shirk being called Shirk, so it is Shirk in and of itself before the prohibition and after it, so whoever said that the Fāhisha (i.e. Zinā) and wickedness and sins only became like that after the prohibition, then he is on the level of the one who says Shirk only became Shirk after the prohibition (of Shirk), and it's not considered Shirk before that, and this is a clear unreasonable stubbornness for the intellect and Fitrah" - Madārij al-Sālikin (1/230,234,240).

And he (also) mentioned in it (i.e. Madārij al-Sālikin): "Verily the wickedness of worshipping other than Allāh, exalted be He, is firmly established by the intellect and Fitar (i.e. Plural of Fitrah), and hearing it has alerted the mind, and guided it towards knowing what it contains from wickedness”

- (Sharh) of Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

“And it's mentioned in the Hadīth of 'Amr Ibn 'Absah that he said: "In the times of Jāhiliyyah, I used to think that people who used to worship idols were upon misguidance””:

As for the Hadīth of 'Amr Ibn 'Absah, then it is (precisely) applicable to the chapter, so he perceived the invalidity of Shirk with his intellect, and that's why he said:

"I used to think that people (who used to worship idols) were upon misguidance"

For indeed he did not say it except after he was given a mind to reason.

“And in the Seerah, the story of al-Hunafā' (the monotheists)”:

And also the Hunafā' (monotheists before the time of the Messenger who worshipped Allāh alone), and 'Amr Ibn 'Absah was from the Hunafā', so they realised the invalidity of Shirk with their intellect.

“Ibn al-Qayyim(رحمه الله) mentioned in his commentary upon Āyat al-Mithāq (the verse of the covenant): "And this proves that the same mind that he knows Tawhīd from it is a Proof (Hujjah) for the invalidity of Shirk.....””:

So Ibn al-Qayyim(رحمه الله) made the intellect a Proof (Hujjah) for the invalidity of Shirk, not the Punishment.

“Ibn al-Qayyim said: "so whoever said that the Fāhisha (i.e. Zinā) and wickedness and sins only became like that after the prohibition...””:

Who are those that state this? The Ashā'irah, and this is wrong, for verily Shirk is considered Shirk before the advent of the Messenger.

“and hearing it has alerted the mind”:

Meaning, the Qur'ān and Sunnah, (i.e. Hearing) the Message, that is what has alerted the mind, and that is what the punishment in the Dunyā and Ākhirah is established upon (i.e. The Message).

(Matn):

“Al-Lālakāī(رحمه الله) said in "Sharh al-Sunnah" (2/216): Chapter: "The context of what is proven from the book of Allāh عز وجل and what has been narrated from the Messenger of Allāh صلى الله عليه وسلم that the obligation of knowing Allāh, the most high and His attributes is through hearing (the Qur'ān & Sunnah), not through the intellect", and he also said: "Likewise the obligation of knowing the Messengers through hearing (the Qur'ān & Sunnah)", and he said: "This is the Madhab of Ahlal Sunnah wal-Jamā'ah”” [End Quote].

- (Sharh) of Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

“Al-Lālakāī(رحمه الله) said: {Chapter: "The context of what is proven from the book of Allāh عز وجل and what has been narrated from the Messenger of Allāh صلى الله عليه وسلم that the obligation of knowing Allāh, the most high and His attributes is through hearing (the Qur'ān & Sunnah), not through the intellect”}”:

We must pay attention to the word "obligation", because "al-Wujūb" (i.e. obligation) is a legislative ruling (i.e. obligations creating rules), and the invalidity (of shirk) is not from the legislative rulings (i.e. that requires the Shar'ah to tell us it's invalid), rather it is from the declaratory rulings (i.e. declaring what is the existing law, so shirk is perceived to be invalid through the intellect & Fitrah), the invalidity, heinousness, concession, validity and corruption (of an action) are all declaratory rulings (i.e. Naturally perceived).

Then he said “through hearing (the Qur’ān & Sunnah), not through the intellect”:

So the obligation is through hearing (the Qur’ān & sunnah), not through the intellect, but as for the invalidity (of Shirk), it is through the intellect and Fitrah, and heinousness (of the act) is known by the intellect and Fitrah.

And the recommended (acts) are known through hearing (the Qur’ān and Sunnah), because it is one of the legislative rulings, so the intellect isn't included within the legislative rulings, rather we say to whoever says "obligatory" or "recommended" or "prohibited", we ask him, "where is the proof from the Qur’ān and Sunnah" (i.e. Because it's a legislative ruling).

And his statement “And this is the Madhab of Ahlal Sunnah wal-Jamā’ah”:

This is an attributed statement, and Al-Lālakāī(رحمه الله) is an Imām in this aspect, he knows the statements of Ahlal Sunnah wal-Jamā’ah from the statements of the people of innovation (i.e. Ahlal Bida’).

Shaykh Sulaymān Ibn Nāsir al-’Alwān(حفظه الله) said:

1. It's not obligatory upon a woman to perform wudū' if she touched the penis of her child. And there's no proof for that, just like washing the deceased doesn't nullify the wudū', but rather what has been narrated (which nullifies the wudū') is touching his own penis.

But if a woman made wudū' in the sense of it being preferred to do so, then there's nothing wrong with that, but as for her performing wudū' in the sense of it being obligatory, then there's no proof for that.

So we say: That touching someone else's penis doesn't nullify wudū' as we previously mentioned. As for touching one's penis without a barrier, then it nullifies his wudū' according to the strongest opinion amongst the Scholars.

2. Touching the penis without a barrier nullifies the wudū', whether it was done with desire or without desire.

3. The Hadīth: {It's only a part of your body (i.e. No need to do wudū')} is weak, Qays Ibn Talq made Tafarrud in it (i.e. was alone in narrating it). And the Hadīth of Busrah: {Whoever touches his penis should make wudū'} is stronger than it.

4. Touching the circled area around the anus nullifies the wudū' due to the Hadīth: {Whoever touches his "Faraj" should make wudū'}, and the "Faraj" is the name for the 2 places of emission (i.e. Front and back private parts).

5. Whoever touches his thigh or testicles without a barrier, then he doesn't need to make wudū'.

Don't ask for trials, but when they come to you, ask Allāh to keep you firm. Our Ēmān increases and decreases, at times the heart feels so much pain & suffering, but that's okay. You will have moments like this & hardships differ from person to person.

What's most important is the solid foundations that you have established within your heart, by having Tawakkul in Allāh, not turning to the creation when something happens, otherwise you will not succeed.

Don't measure your Ēmān when you're in the house of Allāh and at times of ease, but rather you should measure your Ēmān during the harshest of times & suffering. Only those who ask Allāh for steadfastness & stand firm by Tawhīd are the successful ones.

I really hope you take this seriously, the amount of people who were afflicted by trials and turned away from Allāh is saddening, that's why I sincerely ask Allāh to keep myself and you guys steadfast, and when you speak, please mean it. May Allāh reward you.

Allāhu Akbar, Allāhu Akbar, Allāhu Akbar - O Allāh, I have kept this du'ā inside me for years, but Wallāhi today I can bear witness with Yaqīn that you have answered the du'ā of the softest sweet tongue. The voice of sincerity (إخلاص), truthfulness (صدق) and Steadfastness (ثبات).

O Allāh, I would never have expected them to be humiliated and exposed this bad, those Liars, Liars, Liars!! They betrayed & backstabbed their own brothers and befriended Hyenas.

O Allāh, today they have placed their hands together with those they considered as Secularists (علمانيين), Nationalists (قوميين), Democrats (ديمقراطيين) and Apostates (مرتدين) with their own tongues.

I love you O Allāh, Yā Rabb ul-Ālamīn ﷻ Your plans are the best of plans, you have so much wonders for us. Keep us steadfast upon the path of 'Izzā!

اللهم ثبت قلوبنا على دينك وانصر إخواننا الموحدين الصادقين في كل مكان

*The difference between the Kuffār and Ahl al Kitāb*

Asalāmu 'Alaykum wa Rahmatullāhi wa Barakātuhu, and to proceed:

Question: Please clarify the difference between the Kāfir and Ahl al Kitāb, as it's well known that Ahl al Kitāb are the Jews and Christians, and they are Kuffār, so what is the difference between the two (descriptions)?

And may Allāh reward you with all goodness on our behalf.

Answer: They are all Kuffār, for indeed Ahl al Kitāb from the Jews and Christians are Kuffār, so they share this description with the others, except that they differ from the others amongst the Kuffār by 2 things:

1. That they have a Book from the Heavens, despite the distortions that have occurred within it, that's why they are attributed to it.
2. That a Muslim is permitted to eat from the sacrifice of a Jew and Christian, and (also permitted) to marry a Jewish and Christian woman, and he's not permitted to do that with the rest of the Kuffār.

“However him being reliable in authenticating [Hadīths] doesn't mean to agree with everything he says, even if it was Imām Ahmad, if he authenticated some Hadīths, perhaps someone else would differ with him, so the truth would be with the other person.

So this is Imām Ahmad رحمه الله تعالى, when he was asked by Abū Dāwud رحمه الله about the Hadīth:

"There would be just credible descendants who carry this knowledge from their forefathers, they protect and guard this religion from (those) taking matters to extreme, and from those who take the text out of context to bend and twist it (to suit their desires), and from the ignorant ones who misinterpret the text"

Is it Fabricated? He replied: No, infact it is Sahīh. And the Majority of the Hufādh, infact ALL of the Hufādh [Major Imāms of Hadīth] weaken this report.”

ولكن ليس معنى أنه مُعْتَمَد على تصحيحه أن يُوَاقِق من كل وجه. حتى الإمام أحمد لو صحح أحاديث ربما يختلف معه غيره، فيكون الصواب مع الآخر. فهذا الإمام أحمد رحمه الله تعالى حين سأله أبو داود عن حديث

Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad(حفظه الله) said about the evil Scholars in our times:

“If the student of knowledge agrees with them over their {whims}, they put before his name 4 or 5 titles, such as: Al-Shaykh, Al-Muhaddith, al-'Allāmah, al-Faqeeh, al-Atharī.

And if he opposes their whims, they strip him off, even from the title "Al-Shaykh", even if he was (considered) a Shaykh in his age (i.e. linguistically), and they think that a man is raised by their titles, or lowered by stripping it off (the individual), but they do not know that a man is only raised by Allāh through his actions and standing firm by the Haqq.”

was asked: What is the ruling on lying for Maslaha, especially in (حفظه الله)Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad ?prison responded by saying: This issue is differed upon, and it was (حفظه الله)Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad in "Riyādh al- (رحمه الله)in "Minhāj al-Qāsidīn", and al-Nawawī (رحمه الله)mentioned by Ibn al-Jawzī in "al-Ādāb", and (رحمه الله)in "al-Fath", and Ibn Muflīh (رحمه الله)Sālihīn", and al-Hāfidh Ibn Hajr .others

And that is based upon what has been narrated in the Hadīth pertaining the permissibility of lying in reconciliation, in war and to the wife (Note: i.e. expressing a great deal of love even if one does not feel all of that love, bring harmony to their relationship, lying to deceive is Harām by Ijmā') - with a difference of opinion in other than these situations - so the Scholars have differed over this, so can analogy be used for these 3 (mentioned in the Hadīth) for what falls under its category? And are ?these 3 (mentioned in the Hadīth) solely restricted (to them) or only used as an example and others went towards the (رحمه الله)al-Khattābī , (رحمه الله)al-Nawawī , (رحمه الله)So Ibn al-Jawzī :view that whatever falls under its category, then it's permissible, and their Criterion for this is Every praiseworthy goal which cannot be achieved except by lying, then it becomes permissible to) .{lie

And this is in (matters) besides a Need and Necessity, but in general, staying away from lying whenever possible is safer for the individual in his Dīn, and unclear indirect speech is an alternative .from lying

However, a person could be forgiven in prison due to the Ikrāh and Oppression, which wouldn't be forgiven elsewhere, and the issue has a difference of opinion as you see, and their statement has a .point of view, and Allāh knows best “Sub-Heading: Showing the different types of Lands and the Ahkām (rulings) upon its inhabitants.

Therefore, the lands are divided into 2 types, there's no 3rd category for it:

A) Dār Kufr (Land of Kufr): Such as the situation of Makkah before & after the advent of the Messenger.

Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "this city of oppressive people" [4:75].

And Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "I will show you the home of the defiantly disobedient" [7:145].

B) Dār al-Islām (Land of Islām): Such as Al-Madīnah after the Hijrah, for verily the Hijrah was obligatory from Makkah to al-Madīnah.

Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "And [also for] those who were settled in al-Madinah and [adopted] the faith before them. They love those who emigrated to them." [59:10].

(It was obligatory to migrate to Madīnah) until Makkah was conquered, so the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) said:

"There is no Hijrah after the Fath (Conquest of Makkah)"

Agreed upon from the Hadīth of Ibn 'Abbās(رضي الله عنهما).

So Dār al-Islām is where the rulings of Islām is dominant (over the land), even if most of its inhabitants are Kuffār, such as the situation of al-Madīnah at the beginning, before the renouncement of the covenants and evacuation of the jews, and likewise with al-Yemen, Najrān, al-Bahrain and al-Shām during the time of 'Umar Ibn al-Khattāb(رضي الله عنه).

And Dār al-Kufr is where the rulings of the Kuffār is dominant (over the land), even if most of its inhabitants are Muslims, such as the land of the 'Ubaydiyyīn who controlled Misr (Egypt), al-Shām and al-Maghrib.

So whenever the authority is given to the Kuffār, their rulings would be applied and be dominant (over the population).

And whenever the authority is given to the Muslims, their rulings would inevitably be dominant.

So the Hukm (ruling) deals with the dominant, not the subdued, and the situation of the lands is like the situation of the worshippers, at times a Mu'minah (believer) & at times a Kāfirah (disbeliever), and that is because its characteristic is transverse, and isn't intransitive.

And the Hukm (ruling) revolves around this obstacle, by its presence and non-presence.

But if the Kufr has befallen upon the rulers, yet despite that, they do not apply the Ahkām (rulings) of Kufr upon the land, nor do they ban (the population) from displaying the symbols of Islām, and the people of the Dīn have possession (of the land by freehold) and assembly upon the Haqq, and they are by that, displaying their Dīn, and no one prevents them from doing so, therefore the country would be a land of Islām, due to the rulings of Kufr not being implemented upon, however it's obligatory to remove this apostate ruler, and place someone else in his position if that was possible, without a greater harm and Fitnah.

2) And the land of Kufr is divided into:

- Kuffār Harbiyyīn (disbelievers that don't have a covenant).

- Kuffār Mu'āhidīn (disbelievers that have a covenant).

So the Harbiyyīn: Are like the inhabitants of Makkah before Sulh al-Hudaybiyyah.

And the Mu'āhidīn: Are like the inhabitants of Makkah after the Sulh (peace-treaty).

And as for Ahl al Dhimmah, then their land is Dār Islām, because they are under the Hukm (Ruling) of the Muslims, and under their protection, secure. And the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) took the Jizyah from the Jews and Christians, in accordance to Allāh's statement:

"[fight] until they give the jizyah willingly while they are humbled." [9:29].

And he took it (i.e. the Jizyah) "from the Majūs of Hajr", it was narrated by Al-Bukhārī from the Hadīth of 'Abdul Rahmān Ibn 'Awf(رضي الله عنه)."

Discussion between Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr and his student on *Clear Matters*:

Shaykh: What are the Clear Matters?

Student: What's known in the religion by necessity.

Shaykh: No, that's wrong.

Student: (Matters) that the Muslims know.

Shaykh: Yes, there's a difference than saying "known in the religion by necessity", this is not sufficient.

Clear (Matters), i.e. it is Clear to the laymen and scholars, the laymen and Scholars know it, it's called Dhāhirah, clear.

For e.g. What are the clear matters that the laymen and the scholars know, that all the people know?

Student: Prostrating to an idol.

Shaykh: This is a clear matter, and a matter of Shirk. Put aside the matters of Shirk, what is other than the matters of Shirk?

Zinā, it's known that fornication is prohibited, it's a clear matter that everyone knows.

And abstaining from killing (an innocent), everyone knows this, the young and the old, it's a clear matter.

The Qiyām (i.e. Tarāweeh) of Ramadān is a clear well known matter amongst all the people.

- That it's prohibited to drink alcohol (clear matter).

- The obligation of Salāh, that Salāh is necessity.

- That Hajj must be performed.

- That Zakāt must be paid.

Okay, leaving the beard to grow, is it a Clear or Unclear matter? Leaving the beard to grow is a clear matter, the Hijāb is a clear matter, marrying one's mother is a clear matter, everyone knows this, even the laymen.

Ya'nī, the matters that the laymen ask and they taught you, these are clear matters. Bread is Halāl, it's necessary to give the Adhān, these are clear matters, whether it was from the Obligations, Recommendations or Permissible matters.

Oppression is a clear matter, oppression is well known, no one would permit it, lying & cheating, these are all clear matters, you are able to bring 1000's of matters that all the people know.

And what opposes it is the unclear matters that only the Scholars & students of knowledge know, and it requires learning, this is called Unclear Matters, such as:

Is Allāh going to be seen in the Ākhirah? This is unknown to the laymen until you teach them.

Does Allāh have fingers? Two eyes? The questioning of (the angels) Munkar and Nakīr in the grave? These are matters for specific people (i.e. Scholars & students of knowledge), and the Hujjah in the Unclear Matters differs from the Clear Matters.

“Secondly: The ruling on allying with the Kuffār against a Muslim State or Group, such as Ahl al Baghī (transgressing muslim rebels).”

Shaykh Hamūd al-'Uqlā' (رحمه الله) said:

Ahl al Baghī are a group amongst the Muslims who revolt against a valid Imām with an acceptable Ta'wīl, and they are not considered Kuffār for merely revolting, because they did not revolt (against the Imām) except with an acceptable Ta'wīl, rather they are not considered Fussāq according to some Scholars.

Imām Taqī al-Dīn Ibn Taymiyyah (رحمه الله) said what follows: “But if the Bāghī (aggressor) made Ijtihād and had Ta'wīl, and it doesn't appear to him that he's a Bāghī, infact he believes that he's upon the Haqq, even though he's mistaken in what he believes, him being called "Bāghīyan" doesn't necessitate him being sinful, let alone necessitate him being a Fāsiq. And those who say to fight the Bughāt that have Ta'wīl mention: With the command of fighting them, our fighting is to repel the harm of their aggression, not a punishment for them, rather it is to prevent transgression, and they (i.e. The Scholars) mention that they remain upon integrity, they do not become Fussāq” [1].

And what was used as proof by those who said that Ahl al Baghī aren't Fussāq is Allāh's statement:

“And if two factions among the believers should fight, then make settlement between the two. But if one of them oppresses the other, then fight against the one that oppresses until it returns to the ordinance of Allah . And if it returns, then make settlement between them in justice and act justly. Indeed, Allah loves those who act justly. The believers are but brothers, so make settlement between your brothers. And fear Allah that you may receive mercy.” [2].

The significance from the Āyāt is that He said: “The believers are but brothers, so make settlement between your brothers.”

Moreover if the Bughāt revolted against the Imām, and this is their situation, it's obligatory to call them (back to Allāh's command) and asked them what they are irritated by him (i.e. the ruler), so if they mention an oppression, he (i.e. the Imām) would remove it, and if they mention a misconception, he would (also) remove it, and if they remained revolting (against the Imām) after that, he would take refuge in Allāh and fought them, and it's not permissible for him to seek assistance from the Kuffār to kill them, just as it's not permissible to ally with the Kuffār against fighting a Muslim State which has some dispute or difference between each other's leader, because by allying with the Kuffār, it is given authority for them over the Muslims, and it's not permissible for the Kāfir to gain authority over the Muslim:

“And never will Allah give the disbelievers over the believers a way [to overcome them].”[3].

And there's an agreement of those whose statements are taking into consideration from the Scholars of the Ummah and its Fuqahā', that it's not permissible for a Muslim Ruler to seek assistance from a Kāfir State against the Muslims in any circumstance whatsoever, and that is because of the following reasons:

1) What we have previously mentioned of the texts from the Qur'ān and Sunnah, and statements of the Scholars from not allowing allying with the Kuffār against the Kuffār, so if this is the correct view - I mean, the impermissibility for the Muslims to ally with the Kufrār against a Kāfir state - then it would be more deserving to be impermissible to ally with them (i.e. Kuffār) against a Muslim State. [Note: The Shaykh wrote 20 pages showing why it's Harām to ally with the Kuffār against a Kāfir State].

2) The Kuffār are enemies to the Muslims, an enmity of 'Aqīdah and Religion, and it's well known that if the Kuffār are able to fight the Muslims, they would seek revenge from them, and completely eradicate them from what they have instilled (against the Muslims) from Hatred and Enmity. [4].

Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) says: "If they gain dominance over you, they would be to you as enemies and extend against you their hands and their tongues with evil, and they wish you would disbelieve." [5].

Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) says: "O you who have believed, do not take as intimates those other than yourselves, for they will not spare you [any] ruin. They wish you would have hardship. Hatred has already appeared from their mouths, and what their breasts conceal is greater - [till Allāh said] - But when they are alone, they bite their fingertips at you in rage." [6].

And Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) says: "Those who disbelieve wish that you would neglect your weapons and your baggage so they could come down upon you in one [single] attack" [7].

3) And with regards to Ahl al Baghī, then the reason behind the permissibility of fighting them is to deter them and return them back to the Tā'ah (obedience to the Imām), not to kill them and wipe them out, and by this, it becomes known that there's no need for the Kuffār (to assist us), so it's not permissible to seek their assistance against them (i.e. the rebels).

4) That allying with the Kuffār in that situation is alliance to them, and inclining towards them;

And Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) has said: "And do not incline toward those who do wrong, lest you be touched by the Fire." [8].

5) Moreover, certainly seeking assistance from them (i.e. the Kuffār) gives some of the Muslims reinforcement and strength over others, and igniting a war between them, as a motive for them to return disputes back to the leadership and power, and that is something which the Sharī'ah doesn't approve of whatsoever, rather he must call the Muslims in that situation towards reconciliation if they were all seekers of the truth or power or leadership, so if they one of the two warring parties is in the right, then what is intended by fighting the other party is to deter its transgression, not to wipe it out, and that's only achieved without seeking help from the Kuffār.

6) And seeking assistance from the Kuffār gives them empowerment in breaking the strength and authority of the Muslims, and putting an end to it, rather it could result in wiping them (i.e. the muslims) out or driving them out of their lands & seizing it, and sufficient is history as an example of what we're saying, for verily the Muslims in Andalus for instance, an enormous Fitnah occurred between them, and some of them sought help from the Christians against their Muslim Brothers, to the extent where all of them were perished, and the authority of the Muslims was removed, along with the rule of Allāh from before and after.

7) Seeking their assistance (i.e. the Kuffār) is also allowing them to get involved within the private affairs of the Muslims, and looking at the secrets of the Muslims and their areas of weakness and strength, the matter which could make chiefs and rulers appeal to them, infact the matter could reach having those (Kuffār) to assemble their armies and weapons in the lands of the Muslims under the pretext of maintaining security and settling disputes, and granting victory for the weak and oppressed, and that is merely from poor conduct and management of referring to them (i.e. the kuffār) for aid and victory, (initiated) by those who have a disease in their hearts amongst the Muslims. [9].

And some of the Scholars have mentioned that from the forms of seeking assistance from the Kuffār against the transgressing muslim rebels is (Major) Kufr (i.e. If the laws of Kufr replace the laws of Islām) [10].

Imām Abū Muhammad Ibn Hazm(رحمه الله) mentioned in al-Muhallah:

"And as for whoever's campaign was done out of zealously from Ahl al Thughūr (those who defend the borders of the State) amongst the Muslims, so he sought assistance from the Mushrikīn al-Harbiyyīn, and he unleashed their hands to kill whoever disagrees with him from the Muslims, or taking their property, or enslaving them, so if he had the upper hand, and the Kuffār were in compliance with him, then he is ruined in Fusūq (corrupt major sins), and he wouldn't be a Kāfir by that, because he didn't come with anything that necessitates his Kufr from the Qur'ān or Ijmā', but if the ruling of the Kuffār was enforced upon it (i.e. the land that gets taken over replacing the Sharī'ah), then he becomes a Kāfir by that based upon what we mentioned, and if they were equal, wherein no ruling is enforced over the other, so we would not see him as a Kāfir by that, and Allāh knows best" [11].

And this ruling, i.e. the impermissibility of seeking assistance from the Kuffār includes the Kuffār al-Harbiyyīn, Ahl al Dhimmah, and Murtaddīn.

Imām Abū Muhammad 'Alī Ibn Hazm(رحمه الله) also mentioned:

"Is it allowed to seek assistance against the transgressing muslim rebels from Ahl al Harb or Ahl al

Dhimmah or other transgressing muslim rebels, Abū Muhammad (i.e. Ibn Hazm), may Allāh have mercy upon him said: The people have differed over this, so a group of Scholars have said it's not permissible to seek assistance against them (i.e. the rebels) from a Harbī or Dhimmī, nor by someone who declares fighting them as permissible when they retreat, and this is the statement of Al-Shāfi'ī, may Allāh be pleased with him, and we have mentioned in Kitāb al-Jihād the statement of the Messenger of Allāh(صلى الله عليه وسلم):

{Verily, we do not seek assistance from a Mushrik}. [12]

And this is a general impermissibility for seeking their assistance in governance or fighting or something that deals with anything, except for what a consensus has been reported pertaining the permissibility of seeking their assistance, such as giving directions (to a place etc) or renting or fulfilling a need and other than that, which doesn't incur from it humbling oneself (to the Kuffār), and the Mushrik is exclusive to the Dhimmī and Harbī” [13].

But as for those that are affiliated to the people of knowledge who say it's permissible to seek assistance from the Kuffār to fight against transgressing muslim rebels in a case of necessity, then he has no Hujjah, nor any proof from the Qur'ān, nor Sunnah, nor an authentic Athar (narration from Sahābah & Tābi'īn).

Shaykh 'Abdul Latīf Ibn 'Abdul Rahmān Ibn Hassan Āl al-Shaykh(رحمه الله) said:

“As for a muslim trying to gain victory against a Bāghī (transgressing muslim rebel) with the help of a Mushrik, then no one has stated this, except the one who made a bizarre statement, and based it upon Qiyās (analogy), and he did not look at the reasons for the ruling, and the comprehensive correlation between the Foundations and Branches, and whoever pounces upon the likes of these strange bizarre statements, and resorted to quoting it and basing his verdict upon it, then he has followed the (strange) exceptions (of the Sharī'ah), and disregarded the Asl (Foundation) that is affirmed by the Salaf of the Ummah and its Imāms which is taken from the Hadīth of al-Hassan and the Hadīth of al-Nu'mān Ibn Bashīr” [14].

*Are the Hadīths of the innovators accepted?*

Shaykh 'Abdullāh al-Sa'd حفظه الله said:

For instance, the innovator; if his bid'ah was not the major bid'ah that takes him outside the fold of Islām, then this doesn't negate to rule upon him as "Thiqah", and that is if he was Truthful, a Hāfidh and Precise (in narrating Hadīth), so this (bid'ah) doesn't prevent him from being classified as Thiqah, even though he doesn't have integrity with regards to belief ('Aqīdah) which is due to his bid'ah, because this (bid'ah) doesn't have anything to do with the ruling upon the narrator from the aspect of being "Thiqah" (Truthful and Precise) that relates to accepting the chain and not rejecting it, and that's why the Scholars of Hadīth have authenticated many of the narrators who were described with innovation, and accepting them with regards to their narrations and authenticating their Hadīths.

An example of that is Abā Bakr Ibn Khuzaymah(رحمه الله), he mentioned in his (Sahīh): "Abbās Ibn Ya'qūb al-Rawājānī narrated to us, the one who is accused in his views, the Thiqah (trustworthy and precise) in his Hadīths..."

So he differentiated between him being Thiqah in his Hadīths and what he believes, so he said: (The one accused in his views), and that is because he's accused of being Shi'a (note: The Muhaddithīn narrated from Shi'a that had some bid'ah, they did not narrate from a single Rāfidhī Kāfir that insults Abū Bakr and 'Umar).

So this shows that (mere) bid'ah doesn't make the narration rejected at all times according to the correct view, whether this narrator reported something that supports his bid'ah or what doesn't support his bid'ah.

And the Scholars have differed over this issue into 3 opinions:

1. Rejecting the narration of the innovator completely; And that the narrator who's an innovator isn't accepted in regards to narrating Hadīths, and consequently his reports aren't authentic nor acceptable, and this view is attributed to Imām Mālik , as it was mentioned by al-Khatīb al-Baghḍādī in "Al-Kifāyah" (page 120), and there is a mistake in the publication as it was pointed out by Dr. Māhir al-Fahl in his Tahqīq for "Muqaddimat Ibn al-Salāh" (page 229), where he said:

"Note: In both publications of "al-Kifāyah", the words of al-Khatīb being: (And those who it is NOT narrated from is Mālik Ibn Anas), and what's clear from the context of the speech and comparing it to what came before and after it, that the word "NOT" is an interpolation, and this is assured by the quote of al-Zarkashī in "Al-Bahr" (4/270) from al-Khatīb, then al-Hākim mentioned in "al-Madkhal ila al-iklāl" (42), and others from Mālik this opinion" [End Quote].

Al-Hākim stated it in "Ma'rifat 'ulūm al-Hadīth " (page 15): And he mentioned an Ijmā', and those who went towards this view is al-Jūzajānī Abū Ishāq, especially to those who were described as being shi'a, so he would reject their Hadīths, except a small handful among the narrators who were well known for their memory and precision, such as Abī Ishāq al-Sabī'ī and Al-A'mash, despite trying to reject their Hadīths, then he accepted them, and that's if the narrator was from the people of Kūfah and described as being shi'a, he generally describes him as "a wondering apostor", and the examples for the Manhaj of Al-Jūzajānī is numerous, and what is sufficient regarding that is to read his book "Al-Shajarah", where you will find many examples upon his path and methodology regarding that (i.e. being way too strict on those from Kūfah described as being shi'a).

And what pushed me towards mentioning that the examples are numerous from his actions, is that some of the researches rejected this from him; and this is not correct.

2. Separating between if this narrator reports a Hadīth that supports his Bid'ah, so in this situation, it wouldn't be accepted, but if he reports a Hadith that doesn't support his Bid'ah, then this Hadith is accepted, and this separation is also for al-Jūzajānī, and it was chosen by many of the Later Scholars, among them is al-Hāfidh Ibn Hajr.

3. That bid'ah (innovation) doesn't affect the narrator if it has been affirmed that he's a Hāfidh, Precise and Truthful, not a liar, and this is the view of the over-whelming majority of the Scrutiners of Hadīth among the Early Scholars, with the heads amongst them being Imam Ahmad, 'Alī Ibn al-Madini, Yahya Ibn Ma'in and others, and this is what the Madhab of Bukhārī, Muslim, al-Tirmidhī and al-Nasā'ī is upon, and others from the Scholars of Hadīth .

An example of that is Muslim Ibn al-Hajjāj narrated from the chain of 'Adī Ibn Thābit from Zir Ibn Hubaysh, he said: 'Alī Ibn Abī Tālib said: "By Him Who split up the seed and created something living, the Apostle (may peace and blessings be upon him) gave me a promise that no one but a believer would love me, and none but a hypocrite would have hatred to me."

And 'Adī Ibn Thabit is described as being from the story-tellers of the Shi'a, and there's no doubt that this Hadīth has support for his Bid'ah, yet despite this, Imām Muslim narrated this Hadith of his from his chain, that even Abā Nu'aym narrated it in "Al-Hilyah", and when he narrated this hadīth, he said: "It is unanimously agreed upon over its authenticity", meaning that this Hadīth has fulfilled all the conditions for acceptance that has been stipulated by the Scholars of Hadīth , this doesn't mean according to him that Bukhārī and Muslim narrated it, however it means that this Hadīth has fulfilled the conditions which the Scholars of Hadīth have placed and stipulated.

So I say that the 3rd view is the correct opinion, and because that is the opinion of the Early Imāms from the Scholars of Hadīth , and what has been acted upon, and what the proof coincides with, and that we entrusted him in what relates to his precision and memory, and we have went by his word in what relates to testimonies, therefore it's required from us to accept his narrations, whether it relates to (supporting) his bid'ah or not.

But as for the statement that if he narrates a Hadīth which supports his innovation, it's not accepted, and if he narrated a Hadith that doesn't support his innovation, then it's accepted, then this statement has contradictions and scrambles, and that is because you have ruled upon him as being "Thiqah", so what necessitates from this is to accept his Hadiths, but if you reject his Hadiths that support his bid'ah, then this results towards saying he's not "Thiqah", and towards doubting him being "Thiqah", and that he might lie and come up with something that supports his innovation, therefore this statement is a weak view, and isn't correct.

Guys, please move on. Stop speaking about the same issue day in day out. Yes, it's important to warn the masses against the deviants so we know how to refute their misconceptions and stay away from them (which is why I share the explanations of the Scholars). But stop giving extremists who are famous for private messaging sisters (and testing their 'Aqeedah) attention.

Forgive my language, but I simply don't care about them. Don't come up to me and tell me what they say, I don't care who's the new person they made Takfeer upon or who their new cheerleader is, leave this non-beneficial speech.

What's more important is you looking at yourself & asking yourself, are you really there for your brothers and sisters & behind their back? Are you actually doing something productive for the Ummah, or do you just come online to joke around 24/7 (even with sisters wal-iyathubillah) and shout "Die in your rage Kuffar", "Hazimis are juhaal haha", "Saudi King is a Kafir lol" & then play Fifi on your playstation...

Sorry I don't wanna join your "Fun" and laugh at others, I have more important things to worry about. If you don't want to seek beneficial knowledge or help your brothers and sisters, np you're free to do what you like, but please understand that I'm not here to joke with you, may Allah reward you for understanding.

#Weak_Hadīth “All the children of Ādam are sinners, and the best sinners are those who frequently repent to Allāh”

Shaykh Turkī(رحمته الله) commented upon this Hadīth:

“This Hadīth was narrated by Imām Ahmad(رحمته الله) in his "Musnad" (13049), Al-Tirmidhī(رحمته الله) in his "Sunan" (2499), Ibn Mājah(رحمته الله) in his "Sunan" (4251), al-Dārimī(رحمته الله) in "al-Musnad" (2730), al-Hākim(رحمته الله) as it's mentioned in "al-Mustadrak" (4/244), Abū Ya'lah(رحمته الله) in his "Musnad" (2922), and others from several authorities from 'Alī Ibn Mas'adah al-Bāhilī, from Qatādah, from Anas(رضي الله عنه) that he said: The Messenger of Allāh(صلى الله عليه وسلم) said it.

I (i.e. Shaykh Turkī) say: And the Hadīth contains ('Alī Ibn Mas'adah), and he was weakened by several Imāms from the Scrutinisers of Hadīth.

Imām al-Bukhārī(رحمته الله) said about him: “He is questionable (i.e. Weak)”

Imām Abū Hātim(رحمته الله) said: “There's nothing wrong with him” (i.e. As it's well known among the students of Hadīth, this statement of Abū Hātim means: He is not used as proof, but his Hadīths are written for consideration - for supporting evidence)

Imām Abū Dāwūd(رحمته الله) said: “(He is) Weak”

Imām al-Nasāī(رحمته الله) said: “He's not that strong”

Imām Ibn Maīn(رحمته الله) said: “Sālih” (i.e. Acceptable for consideration & supportive evidence, not used as proof alone)

And he was weakened by Imām al-'Uqaylī(رحمته الله) as it's mentioned in "Al-Du'afā' al-Kabīr" (3/250).

And Imām Ibn Hibbān(رحمته الله) said about him: “He was among those who made mistakes & didn't narrate much, and he narrates singular narrations which cannot be relied upon, so he deserved to be abandoned in being used as proof in what doesn't agree with the Thiqāt (trustworthy & precise narrators) in the reports”

Imām al-Tirmidhī(رحمته الله) said about this Hadīth: “This Hadīth is Gharīb, we do not know of it except from the Hadīth of 'Alī Ibn Mas'adah from Qatādah”

I say: Here, Al-Tirmidhī(رحمته الله) has detected it due to 2 defects:

1. Al-Gharābah (calling it Gharīb), and it's well known by research and examination from his works that he doesn't mention it in most of his applications except that he intends by it, an indication towards a defect in the Hadīth and weakness!
2. Al-Tafarrud (Singular Narration), and it is the Tafarrud of Mas'adah on behalf of all the companions of Qatādah who are numerous!! (i.e. 'Alī Ibn Mas'adah being alone in narrating this Hadīth from Qatādah, instead of all the other companions of Qatādah). And this is a defect and indication that strikes in the heart of the scrutiniser of Hadīth regarding the authenticity of the Hadīth and its confirmation!

Imām al-Bayhaqī(رحمته الله) said: “'Alī Ibn Mas'adah made Tafarrud in it”, End Quote from Shu'b al-Ēmān (9/331), and the Tafarrud (singular narration) in the likes of these narrators is not relied upon at all! Especially with the absence of the companions of Qatādah and their numerous numbers (from mentioning this Hadīth), so the Tafarrud of this weak narrator in Hadīth is a defect which necessitates a halt in accepting it and (a halt in accepting) the statement of raising it to "Hassan" and confirming it - as it was done by many of the contemporary Scholars, as is their usual habit of looking towards the outwardness of the Isnād and leaving it at that!!

And among those who rejected it and has been quoted from him, is Imām Abī 'Abdillāh Ahmad Ibn Hanbal(رحمته الله), for verily it has been mentioned in "al-Mankhab min 'ilal al-Khallā" (37 - Tahqīq by Tāriq 'Awdhillāh):

“Abū 'Abdillāh (i.e. Imām Ahmad) said: This Hadīth is Munkar” [End Quote]

Shaykh Tāriq 'Awdhillāh(رحمته الله) said while commenting upon this statement of Imām Ahmad(رحمته الله):

“This is Ahmad's rejection of this Hadīth, and it is the Tafarrud of 'Alī Ibn Mas'adah from Qatādah, because he's not a strong narrator, and there is weakness in his memory, and the Tafarrud (singular narration) from his likes are not relied upon, especially that he also made Tafarrud from Qatādah, and he is a Hāfidh who has numerous companions that are Hufādh, they have collected his Hadīths and memorised them, and the most famous and precise amongst them from him are:

Sa'd Ibn Abī 'Urūbah, Hishām al-Dastawāī and Shu'bah, so if this Hadīth was preserved from Qatādah, atleast one of these (Hufādh) would have narrated it from him.

So when not a single one of the precise narrators from the companions of Qatādah narrated it, but rather 'Alī Ibn Mas'adah was alone in narrating it from him (i.e. Tafarrud), with what he has from weakness, it proves that this Hadīth is Munkar (rejected) from Qatādah, it doesn't have any basis from his Hadīths.

And Ibn 'Adī mentioned along with this Hadīth, another Hadīth in the biography of 'Alī Ibn Mas'adah in "al-Kāmil" (5/207), then he said:

“And he (i.e. 'Alī Ibn Mas'adah) has other (narrations) of which I have mentioned from Qatādah, and ALL of it isn't preserved”

~ End of the words of Shaykh al-Muhaddith Tāriq Ibn 'Awdhillāh(حفظه الله ورعاه).

So if this is affirmed, the mistake of al-Hākim(رحمه الله) becomes known when he commented after it (i.e. The Hadīth): “It has an authentic chain, and they (i.e. Bukhārī & Muslim) did not collect it”

Imām al-Dhahabī(رحمه الله) rebuked his statement by saying: “Alī is Līn (weak/feeble)”

Therefore the Hadīth is weak, however its meaning is correct, without a shallow of a doubt, and Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) knows best.”

~ Shaykh Turkī(حفظه الله).

📖 Chapter (4/69) #Translated for Sharh Kitāb al-Haqā'iq Fī-Tawhīd by Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

Note:

- = (Matn) which is the original text of the book.
- = (Sharh) which is the commentary on the Matn.

Chapter 4: The Label of Shirk, from the chapter of the vilified labelled actions.

(#Matn):

“Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "And if not that a disaster should strike them for what their hands put forth, and they would say, "Our Lord, why did You not send us a messenger" [28:47].

And in the agreed upon Hadīth on the authority of Huthayfah(رضي الله عنه), he said: "Yā Rasūl Allāh, we were living in Jāhiliyyah (ignorance) and wickedness, then Allāh brought us this goodness (i.e. Islām)".

And in the Hadīth on the authority of 'Amr Ibn 'Absa al-Sulamī(رضي الله عنه), he said: "In the times of Jāhiliyyah, I used to think that people who used to worship idols were upon misguidance, and they were not upon anything (which may be called the right path)", it was narrated by Muslim."

- (#Sharh) of Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

This is the 4th chapter from the first section, and the first section is clarifying the essence of Islām and Shirk and the 4th chapter is pertaining the "Ism" (Label) of Shirk, which is from the vilified labelled actions.

And this chapter is sub-joined to the Essence of Shirk, because this is from the descriptions of Shirk, which is the Ism (Label) for a vilified action, so it's vilified and it's known that it's vilified, and the people of ignorance before Islām knew that it was vilified.

"Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "And if not that a disaster should strike them for what their hands put forth""

The significance of this verse is that it contains a type of hiding/secretcy.

And the main focus from it is, ""for what their hands put forth""

What has their hands put forth? It has put forth Shirk, and they are because of this Shirk, deserving of punishment, which is the "disaster" (i.e. that's mentioned in the verse), therefore they know that it's vilified, and that's why they deserve being punished for it, yet despite that, Allāh does not punish them until a Messenger is sent to them, this is the significance of this verse.

And this verse requires mentioning what comes after it to fully grasp the significance of it.

"And in the agreed upon Hadīth on the authority of Huthayfah(رضي الله عنه), he said: "Yā Rasūl Allāh, we were living in Jāhiliyyah (ignorance) and wickedness..."":

"And wickedness", this is what's relevant, and the significance behind this Hadīth is that they used to know that it's wicked, ignorance and Jāhiliyyah (time of ignorance) before the advent of the Messenger.

"And in the Hadīth on the authority of 'Amr Ibn 'Absa al-Sulamī(رضي الله عنه), he said: "In the times of Jāhiliyyah, I used to..."":

This is the most explicit (text) in the chapter, and 'Amr was from the Hunafā' (those who singled out Allāh before the advent of the Prophet), so he would know while he's living in the time of Jāhiliyyah and before the advent of the Messenger, he would know that the people were misguided, and that they're upon nothing (i.e. Not the correct path), why? He said:

Because they worship idols.

And the summary of this chapter is that the Ism (Label) of Shirk is vilified, and its vilification is well known before the advent of the Messenger, and they deserve to be punished for that due to knowing its vilification, however Allāh does not punish them over knowing that & having that knowledge until a Messenger comes to them, and tat is well known.

(Matn):

"Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah(رحمه الله) said: "The over-whelming majority of the Salaf and Khalaf are of the view that whatever is before the advent of a Messenger, from Shirk and Jāhiliyyah is bad and heinous, and it is wicked/evil, however they do not deserve to be punished (in the Dunyā & Ākhirah) except after the advent of a Messenger, and based upon this, the people had 3 opinions regarding Shirk, Oppression, Lying, Fawāhish (like Zinā) etc:

It has been said that its heinousness is known by the intellect, and that they deserve to be punished for that in the Hereafter, even if a Messenger didn't come to them, as the Mu'tazilah say, and it has been said that there's no heinousness or good or wickedness pertaining them (i.e. Shirk and Stealing etc...) before being addressed (with a message) as the Ash'ariyyah say, and those who agreed with them, and it has been said that it's bad and wicked and heinous before the advent of a Messenger, however the punishment (in the Dunyā & Ākhirah) only deserves to occur with the advent of a Messenger, and the over-whelming Majority of the Salaf and most of the Muslims are upon this view, and this is what the Qur'an and Sunnah indicates, for verily it contains therein a clarification that what the Kuffār are upon is wicked, heinous and terrible, before a Messenger (reaching them), even though they do not deserve to be punished (in the Dunyā & Ākhirah) except by the (arrival) of a messenger" [Al-Fatāwah 11/676-677]"

- (Sharh) of Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

From the speech of Ibn Taymiyyah while he quotes the Madhab of the Salaf, Ibn Taymiyyah(رحمه الله) said: "The over-whelming majority of the Salaf and Khalaf are of the view that whatever is before the advent of a Messenger, from Shirk and Jāhiliyyah is bad and heinous..."

"And based upon this, the people had 3 opinions regarding Shirk, Oppression, Lying, Fawāhish (like Zinā) etc":

The First View: And it is the Madhab of the Mu'tazilah: That its heinousness is known by the intellect, and that they deserve to be punished for that in the Hereafter, even if a Messenger didn't come to them

“That its heinousness is known by the intellect”: There's nothing wrong with this (statement).

“And that they deserve to be punished for that in the Hereafter”: This is wrong, rather they are only punished in the Ākhirah after the Hujjah has ben established upon them by the Messenger.

“Even if a Messenger didn't come to them”: And this is (also) wrong.

The Second View: And it is the Madhab of the Ashā'irah: Infact, not just the Ashā'irah alone, rather some of those who ascribe themselves to the 4 Madhāhib agreed with them over this statement, and it was mentioned by some of the Ahnāf, some of the Mālikiyyah, some of the Shāfi'iyyah, and some of the Hanābilah, so they agreed with them over this wrong mistake and mentioned:

“There's no heinousness/bad or good or wickedness pertaining them (i.e. Shirk and Stealing etc...) before being addressed (with a message)”.

So is Shirk vilified according to the Madhab of the Ashā'irah and those who agreed with them? No.

And when is Shirk known to be vilified according to their statement? After being addressed, i.e. (By) the Messenger.

And that's why the Ashā'irah and whoever agreed with them, do not apply Asmā' (Labels of Shirk etc...) before establishing the Hujjah! So they said, there is no Asmā' (Labels) or Ahkām (Rulings) except after establishing the Hujjah, and this is the wrong mistake that they fell into.

The Third View: Which is “that it's bad and wicked and heinous before the advent of a Messenger, however the punishment (in the Dunyā & Ākhirah) only deserves to occur with the advent of a Messenger”.

And this is the Madhab of Ahl al Sunnah wal-Jamā'ah, so Shirk is bad, heinous and vilified, however for the punishment for it only comes after the advent of the Messenger.

So no one should assume that before the advent of the Messenger, he's not called a Mushrik. (Rather) whoever has the Essence of Shirk established within him (before the Hujjah), what is only given off is the Asmā' (Labels of Shirk, not the Rulings of Apostasy, Killing and Punishment in the Hereafter), he's called a Mushrik, Oppressor, Tyrant, Bad, Heinous.

Most of those who learn Arabic do so for speaking purposes, or to come back as a "Shaykh" who doesn't speak about Tawhīd at all, rather just speaks about Fiqh to please everyone.

We are not like this, we differ from these people. How do we differ with them? Our Niyyah is different to theirs, our intention of learning Arabic is only done Fee Sabeelillāh, to understand the Shari'ah and revive Islām.

We don't just speak about minor Fiqh issues, ignoring the Ummah of Muhammad(صلى الله عليه وسلم), and the most important 'ilm - Tawhīd and matters pertaining Al-Walā' wal-Barā' which is watered down by these منحرفين.

May Allāh سبحانه وتعالى give us strength and allow us to master the language of the Qur'ān and our beloved Prophet Muhammād صلى الله عليه وسلم, and to gain victory for this Dīn, so that the Nūr of Tawhīd can overcome Shirk, Bid'ah and all those callers to the hellfire.

was asked: Is it authentic from Ibn 'Abbās that if one (حفظه الله)Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān ?forgets to say the du'ā before having intimate relations (with one's wife), that he says it afterwards responded by saying: No, it's not authentic from Ibn (حفظه الله)Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān .(رضي الله عنهما)'Abbās

(رضي الله عنه)Rather it has been reported from some of the Sahābah such as 'Abdillāh Ibn Mas'ūd pertaining the Dhikr when having intimate relations (with one's wife), that he says it afterwards, it and a group of Scholars on the authority of 'Abdullāh (رحمه الله) was narrated by Ibn Abī Shaybah .Ibn Mas'ūd

يَسْمِ اللّٰهَ ، اللّٰهُمَّ جَنَّبْنَا الشَّيْطَانَ ، وَجَنَّبِ الشَّيْطَانَ مَا رَزَقْتَنَا

Some of the Sahābah held the view that he says this after having intimate relations if he forgot (to .say it beforehand), and this is the statement of a group amongst the Fuqahā

Speaking in the toilet is disliked, and the matter becomes more severe if it involves mentioning the name of Allāh, and he is to be prevented from that, thereupon we say that mentioning the name of Allāh in the toilet has two situations:

1. That he's in the toilet, not in the state of doing his need, then this is Makrūh (If he mentions Allāh).
2. That he's in the state of doing his need, then this is Harām (if he mentions Allāh), and it's considered Makrūh if he mentions what's besides the Dhikr of Allāh (during that state).

"And by the Mercy of Allāh, you dealt with them gently. And had you been severe and harsh hearted [1], they would have broken away from about you..." [3:159].

Al-Sayyid Muhammad Rashīd Ridā said: "That is because severity and harsh heartedness are character traits that people are unable to tolerate and drive people away, no matter how numerous the virtues of the severe and the harsh hearted one may be. Instead people will break away from around him and leave him all alone even if it means that they lose out on something that they would have benefitted by being around him. As a result, they lose whatever guidance you could have given them and your da'wah doesn't reach their hearts." [2].

All of the callers to Islām should contemplate this noble verse very deeply. If rough speech and harsh heartedness would have caused the people to break away from the noblest of the first of creation and the noblest of the last of creation, and the most beloved to the Lord of mankind and jinn and all that exists صلى الله عليه وسلم, then how about anyone else who is severe and harsh hearted?

Some of the Scholars of Tafsīr have said: "Derived from this verse is the obligation of always having good character and noble manners - especially the one calling to Islām and commanding the good." [3].

---

[1] Imām al-Qurtubī(رحمه الله) said: "Harsh heartedness refers to (the one who possesses) a scowling face, and who does little to encourage or attract, and who shows too little compassion and mercy" [Tafsīr al-Qurtubī (4/249)].

[2] Refer to Tafsīr al-Manār (4/199).

May Allāh reward those who have been blessed with the 'power' of knowledge, and use this 'power' to humble themselves to Allāh, even when they have the chance to overcome someone.

An example of this is the humble Zāhid al-Hāfidh Ibn Rajab رحمه الله, just to briefly go through this incident, a student of his narrated being in a lesson of al-Hāfidh Ibn Rajab رحمه الله and he explained an issue in immense detail, astonishingly! So on that same day, they were invited with him (i.e. Ibn Rajab) to a gathering for one of the Major Judges (in the country), and (the narrator/student said) they spoke about the same issue (that Ibn Rajab spoke about in his lesson), and they did not come with (i.e. mention) anything similar to what our Shaykh (Ibn Rajab) mentioned in his lesson.

So the students looked towards Al-Hāfidh Ibn Rajab رحمه الله wanting him to speak about the issue, (you know sometimes the student wants to show the virtue of his Shaykh and be proud of him), but Ibn Rajab remained silent.

So after they left, the student and those with him spoke to al-Hāfidh Ibn Rajab رحمه الله and told him "May Allāh give you goodness, and increase you in virtue, you mentioned to us the issue and beautifully summed it up, then it was mentioned in this gathering, and you did not mention anything to them, if only you had benefited them."

So Al-Hāfidh Ibn Rajab(رحمه الله) replied: "My gathering with you is for the sake of Allāh, and this gathering is meant for the Dunyā"

Ya Allāh; "My gathering with you is for the sake of Allāh" 🤲🤲🤲

Shaykh Haytham Sayfaddeen has really beneficial lessons - One thing that stands out in particular is that he refers to big Imams of Tawheed, so you know the 'Aqeedah you will receive is correct & that he has studied it thoroughly.

And on top of that, he really stresses on referring back to the top Scholars of Hadith, who follow the Methodology of the Salaf, so you will feel comfortable with the Hadiths he is mentioning at all cases, you will benefit in what Hadith is weak or authentic, since he has put effort into this field which many teachers ignore!

So Shaykh Haytham Sayfadden is a rare asset in the west, Hadith is a major part of having the correct opinions in Fiqh, and the people of Hadith are considered to be the most correct amongst the people, I have shared a poem in the past & will share it again, because it's so amazing:

Imām al-Shāfi'ī(رحمه الله) used to say "Stick to the people of Hadīth, since they are the most correct amongst the people"

The following is an extract from al bidaya wan-nihayah (10/254) of ibn Kathir rahimullah and Siyar A'lamun Nubala' (10/60) by imam adh Dhahabi rahimullah, The poem is an extract from Al bidayah wa nihaya (10/256) by ibn kathir and Diwanush-shafi'ie (page 88).

It is all taken from the book Al Aqidat-ul Imam al Araba'a (7/92-93) of Muhammad ibn Abdur-Rahman al-Khumayyis,

The following is all about Imam shafi'ie,

"And his strict adherence to the Sunnah reached the point that he used to advise his companions to stick to it, so he used to say 'Stick to the people of hadith, since they are the most correct amongst the people.' And he said 'if I see a man from amongst the people of hadith, then it is as if I have seen a man from the Companions of the Prophet SallAllahu Aleyhi wa sallam. May Allah subhanahu wa ta'la reward them with good, they preserved the foundations for us, so they have an excellence over us.' And he rahimullah recited the following verses of poetry,

'All forms of knowledge besides the Quran is a pre-occupation;
Except for the hadith and knowing the fiqh (jurisprudence) of the religion;

Knowledge is that which contains 'he said...' Or 'he informed us...'

Anything other than that is from the whisperings of the Shaytan.'

May Allah reward Imam Ash-Shafi'ie and have mercy upon him.

was asked: How long is the 'iddah (waiting period) for the (حفظه الله)Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān ?woman divorced on the 3rd time responded by saying: What the Majority of the Scholars, (حفظه الله)Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān and the 4 Imāms, and others are upon is that her 'iddah is 3 Qurū', just like the woman on the 1st and 2nd divorce (al-Raja'iyyah - where the husband can take her back after the 1st and 2nd .(divorce

And the {Qurū'} is the Menses according to the most correct opinion amongst the Scholars, so .therefore if her 3rd menstrual cycle is complete, then she is out of her 'iddah

And it has been said that the 'iddah of the woman divorced on 3rd time is 1 menstrual cycle, since the husband cannot take her back, and the only reason why the 'iddah was obligated is so the husband can take her back, so if he doesn't have any means to take her back, then she doesn't have a 'iddah, but rather purification of 1 menstrual cycle, such as the one who separated from her husband through Khulu', the enslaved woman, and the Zāniyah if she wishes to marry, and the .Muhājirah

And this statement is attributed to Abī al-Hussayn Ibn al-Labān, and Shaykh al-Islām Ibn made a comment upon this view that there's no Ijmā' opposing it, and he (رحمه الله)Taymiyyah mentioned: "There is nothing from the apparent meaning of the Qur'ān except that it agrees with this ".view, it doesn't oppose it

. "in "I'lām al-Muwaqqi'n (رحمه الله)And a similar statement was mentioned by Ibn al-Qayyim

And some of the Later Scholars have claimed that this view is Shāth (strange/anomalous), and that the Qur'ān is against it, and this claim doesn't have a proof, for there is nothing in the Qur'ān that .opposes this

. [And Allāh's statement: "Divorced women remain in waiting for three periods" [1

The apparent meaning of the Āyah is regarding al-Raja'iyyah (when a husband can take back his wife on the 1st and 2nd divorce), and it's not referring to the Bā'inah (the wife that is completely :divorced), the proof for this is Allāh's statement

"...And their husbands have more right to take them back in this [period] if they want reconciliation"

And the woman that has been divorced for the 3rd time cannot be taken back (by the husband), so it becomes known that the Āyah is referring to al-Raja'iyyah (when a husband can take back his .wife on the 1st & 2nd divorce), and Allāh knows best

:Sūrat al-Baqarah (verse 228) - This is the complete Āyah [1]

Divorced women remain in waiting for three periods, and it is not lawful for them to conceal what" Allah has created in their wombs if they believe in Allah and the Last Day. And their husbands have more right to take them back in this [period] if they want reconciliation. And due to the wives is similar to what is expected of them, according to what is reasonable. But the men have a degree [over them [in responsibility and authority]. And Allah is Exalted in Might and Wise." [2:228

📖 Chapter (3/69) #Translated for Sharh Kitāb al-Haqā'iq Fi-Tawhīd by Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

Note:

- = (Matn) which is the original text of the book.
- = (Sharh) which is the commentary on the Matn.

Chapter 3: Islām and Shirk are two opposites that cannot be joined together.

(#Matn):

“Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "And what can be beyond truth except error?" [10:32]

Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "Indeed, We guided him to the way, be he grateful or be he ungrateful." [76:3]

Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "It is He who created you, and among you is the disbeliever, and among you is the believer." [64:2]

Ibn Taymiyyah(رحمه الله) said: "Every person that does not worship Allāh alone, is undoubtedly a worshipper of other than Allāh. And there exists no third category in the children of Ādam. So either he is a Muwahhid or a Mushrik, or mixes this with this (i.e. Tawhīd with Shirk), such as the distorters among the worldly religions, and the christians, and whoever imitated them from the deviants who affiliate themselves to Islām" [Al-Fatāwah (14/282-284)]

And Shaykh 'Abdul Rahmān(رحمه الله) said in his Sharh of "Aslu Dīn al-Islām wa Qā'idatihi", and 'Abdul Latīf(رحمه الله) in "al-Minhāj" page 12, both said: "Whoever performs Shirk has left Tawhīd, for indeed they are two opposites that cannot be joined together, and they negate each other, not join together nor cancel each other out""

- (#Sharh) of Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

“Chapter: Islām and Shirk are two opposites that cannot be joined together.”

This chapter is sub-joined to both of the previous chapters that came before it, and we have previously alluded towards this (issue) in the introduction, which is that Islām and Shirk cannot be joined together, so he's either a Muslim or Kāfir, there is no 3rd category.

So whoever has the essence of Islām established within him, then he's a Muslim.

And whoever has the essence of Shirk established within him, then he's a Mushrik.

So Allāh's statement: “"And what can be beyond truth except error?"”

What's understood from this is that Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) mentioned two categories, there's no 3rd category, either Truth or Misguidance.

And what is meant by it is Allāh's statement: “"Indeed, We guided him to the way, be he grateful or be he ungrateful""", is His statement, "grateful" or "ungrateful" (Kafūra).

And in Allāh's statement: “"It is He who created you, and among you is the disbeliever, and among you is the believer."”

A believer or Kāfir, therefore there is no 3rd category.

As for the words of Ibn Taymiyyah(رحمه الله) he stated, either a Muwahhid or Mushrik, or whoever mixes this and that (i.e. Tawhīd & Shirk together), then this person is also a Mushrik.

So Shirk has two categories, either a pure Mushrik, or a Mushrik who mixes between the worship of Allāh and other than Him.

?was asked: Is it required to make wudū' from vomiting (حفظه الله)Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān responded by saying: There's a difference of opinion (حفظه الله)Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān .amongst the Scholars regarding that said wudū' is not required from him, however he should rinse and wash his (رحمه الله)Imām Mālik and a narration from Imām (رحمه الله), mouth, and this is the Madhab of Imām al-Shāfi'ī (رحمه الله)Ahmad said it's obligatory to make wudū', and this is the statement of Imām (رحمه الله)Abū Hanīfah in a narration, basing that upon the Hadīth of Thawbān, that the Messenger of (رحمه الله)Ahmad .vomited, then performed wudū' (صلى الله عليه وسلم)Allāh

.(رضي الله عنه)'It was narrated by Ahmad and Al-Tirmidhī from Abī al-Dardā narrated from the chain of Ismā'īl Ibn 'Ayyāsh from Ibn Jurayj from Ibn Abī (رحمه الله)And Ibn Mājah :said (صلى الله عليه وسلم)Mulayka from 'Ā'isha, that the Prophet

Whoever vomits, has a nosebleed, belches, or emits prostatic fluid, should stop praying; perform" .ablution, then resume his prayer, and while he is in that state he should not speak

And this Hadīth is very weak, Ismā'īl Ibn 'Ayyāsh is nothing (completely rejected) when narrating .(from anyone other than his own country (i.e. Shām

.And what's correct in the issue is that it's not obligatory to make wudū' from vomiting

And the Hadīth of Thawbān is differed upon regarding its authenticity, and even if it is authentic, then it's held upon being recommended, because that's the general principle regarding mere actions .((from the Prophet alone said in "Al-Istidhkār" about the Hadīth of Abī al-Dardā: "And (رحمه الله)And Imām Ibn 'Abdīl Barr this Hadīth isn't authentic according to the Scholars of Hadīth, nor does its meaning obligate a ruling (of making wudū')...and investigation concludes and necessitates that what keeps wudū' intact isn't nullified except by a well-established Sunnah, that isn't opposed (by an authentic text) or did not order the (سبحانه وتعالى)Consensus of which is obligatory to be used as proof, and Allāh obligation of the wudū' from vomiting, nor has it been affirmed in the Sunnah from His .nor has everyone agreed upon it (صلى الله عليه وسلم), Messenger was asked: Someone missed the Second Rak'ah from Salāt (حفظه الله)Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān ?al-Jum'ah, how should he complete his Salāh responded by saying: He would pray it with 4 Raka'āt as (حفظه الله)Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān .Dhuhr according to the most correct opinion amongst the Scholars said: "If you catch a Rak'ah from the Jum'ah (prayer), then pray (رضي الله عنه)Abdullāh Ibn Mas'ūd' an extra Rak'ah (after the Imām gives Salām), and if you missed the Rukū' (both Rak'ahs), then .pray it with 4 rak'ahs in "al-Sunan" from the (رحمه الله)and al-Bayhaqī (رحمه الله)It was narrated by Ibn Abī Shaybah chain of Abī Ishāq al-Sabī'ī from Abī al-Ahwas from 'Abdillāh (Ibn Mas'ūd), and its chain is .Authentic

.it was narrated by al-Bayhaqī (رضي الله عنه), And this is the statement of 'Abdullāh Ibn 'Umar

it was narrated by Ibn Abī (رضي الله عنه), And (also the statement of) 'Abdullāh Ibn al-Zubayr .Shaybah said in his (رحمه الله)And it's not known that any of the Sahābah opposed them, and Al-Tirmidhī :('Jāmi

And this is what's practised by the Mjaority of the Scholars, from the companions of the" and other than them, they said: Whoever catches a Rak'ah from al-(صلى الله عليه وسلم)Prophet

Jum'ah, he would pray an extra rak'ah (after the Imām gives Salāms), and whoever catches them sitting (i.e. During Tashahhud), he would pray 4 Rak'ahs, and this is the view of Sufyān al-Thawrī, .Ibn al-Mubārak, Al-Shāfi'ī, Ahmad and Ishāq

Abū Hanīfah, Dāwūd (al-Dhāhirī), Ibn Hazm said if he enters in the Jum'ah (Salāh) before the Imām :saying (صلى الله عليه وسلم) gives Salāms, he prays 2 Rak'ahs, in accordance to the Prophet's

When you hear the Iqāmah, proceed to offer the prayer with calmness and solemnity and do not" ".make haste. And pray whatever you are able to pray and complete whatever you have missed

(رضي الله عنه).It was narrated by Al-Bukhārī & Muslim from the Hadīth of Abī Hurayrah

They said that the apparent meaning of this Hadīth is that whoever catches a part of the Salāh before the Imām gives Salāms, then he is ordered to enter in it with the Imām, and afterwards he .would catch up on what he missed, which is 2 Rak'ahs, not 4

And this is questionable, and what's affirmed in the Authentic Ahādīth is that whoever catches a Rak'ah from the Salāh, then he has caught the Salāh, this has been narrated in the Sahīhayn (i.e. Bukhārī & Muslim) and others, and what's understood from it (i.e. The Ahādīth) is that whoever didn't catch a Rak'ah, then he has missed the Salāh, so he would pray Jum'ah as Dhuhr, which is 4 .Rak'ahs, not 2, based upon the statement of the over-whelming majority of the Sahābah

And some Scholars have mentioned an Ijmā' that whoever doesn't catch a part of Salāt al-Jum'ah .before the Salāms, then he is obliged to pray 4 Rak'ahs

And the one who catches what's less than a Rak'ah (i.e. enters in Tashahhud), he takes the same .ruling as the one who hasn't caught anything (from the Salāh), and Allāh knows best

Shaykh al-Islām Sulaymān Ibn Nāsir al-'Alwān(حفظه الله) was asked: Is a distinction made in the triple divorce when a man says (to his wife) "You are absolutely divorced" and saying "You are divorced thrice"?

Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān(حفظه الله) responded by saying:

What's correct regarding that is the triple divorce doesn't incur from it except 1 (divorce), whether it was with the phrase "You are divorced, divorced, divorced", or "You are divorced, and divorced, and divorced", or "You are divorced thrice", or "You are completely divorced".

So all these expressions do not change the ruling at all, if he made 3 divorces in 1 sitting, then that's Harām and nothing from it is valid except 1 (divorce), and this is what's affirmed from the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم), and the command that was implemented in the time of Abī Bakr al-Siddīq(رضي الله عنه).

So if a man said to his wife "You are divorced twice or thrice", he would not ave divorced her except once.

And that's similar to if a man was asked, glorify (Allāh) 3 times, so he said "SubhānAllāh thrice", he would not have made glorification (of Allāh by saying subhānAllāh) except once (not 3 times).

And the Islamically legislated divorce is when a man divorces his wife during the appointed time which Allāh has ordered, as a single divorce, and nobody does otherwise except a Jāhil, and the ignorant one is to be directed back to the Sunnah, not to remain upon Bid'ah.

Infact, learning from those Scholars and what they themselves have taught us, is what makes me not accept what they say on certain issues, because they have mentioned that a Scholar can make mistakes, he can be ignorant of certain issues.

Inshā'Allāh I could adjust the correct times on the sequence for videos, then add subtitles in English.

And then it becomes easy to add Turkish subtitles and other languages Inshā'Allāh, since the times are already set, and the only thing that needs to be replaced is the English Text.

May Allāh reward anyone who is able to help out with translating from English > his own language and add subtitles.

#Fiqh Chapter of Hajj (Lesson 1/27) - {Sharh al-Rawdh al-Murbi'}

~ Shaykh Sulayman Ibn Nasir al-'Alwan(حفظه الله).

Radwan Dakkak shared Haytham Sayfaddīn's post.

Brothers, I recommend that you go through the Usul al-Fiqh lessons, Fiqh of Taharah lessons and 'Aqeedah lessons. From my experience, mixing up different kinds of sciences/series allows me to remain focused on studies & benefit more, because if I just stick to one series, I get bored. The shaykh goes through a lot of opinions in Fiqh of Taharah, so go through it slowly (obviously by taking notes - this is assumed & essential at all times):

You can use this transcript as a guide while you watch the video & make your own notes, it will help you Insha'Allah.

Keep laughing and enjoying this Duniyā you low life coward. You have the audacity to continuously criticise the best people on the face of this Earth, while showing love and kindness to Kuffār, Murtaddīn and Zanādiqah.

What have you done for your brothers and sisters who are suffering, oppressed and tortured in the worst of ways! You filthy coward, I hate you so much and I ask Allāh to destroy you and humiliate you!!

Go enjoy your day playing around O coward, while those you mock and make fun of sleep on the uncomfortable floor, protecting our oppressed brothers and sisters!

May the eyes of the cowards never sleep.

📖 Chapter (2/69) #Translated for Sharh Kitāb al-Haqā'iq Fi-Tawhīd by Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

Note:

- = (Matn) which is the original text of the book.
- = (Sharh) which is the commentary on the Matn.

Chapter 2: The Essence of Shirk.

(#Matn):

“Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "And [He revealed] that the Masājīd are for Allāh , so do not invoke with Allah anyone." [72:18].

Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "And Allāh has said, "Do not take for yourselves two deities. He is but one God, so fear only Me." [16:51].

Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "[for] they worship Me, not associating anything with Me" [24:55].

Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "Or have they other deities who have ordained for them a religion to which Allah has not consented?" [42:21].

Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "Have you not seen those who claim to have believed in what was revealed to you, [O Muhammad], and what was revealed before you? They wish to refer legislation to Taghut, while they were commanded to reject it" [4:60].

On the authority of 'Abdullāh Ibn Mas'ūd(رضي الله عنه) as a Marfū' narration (i.e. Raised to the Prophet):

"What is the greatest sin in the Sight of Allah?" He said, "That you set up a rival unto Allah though He Alone created you." [Agreed Upon].

On the authority of Abū Bakr(رضي الله عنه):

"We said, O messenger of Allāh, is there any Shirk besides what is worshipped or called upon besides Allāh". It was narrated by Abū Ya'lah(رحمه الله) and it has weakness.

And Al-Bukhārī(رحمه الله) narrated as a Mu'allaq (hanging) narration:

"Ibn 'Abbās said (about Allāh's statement) {as one who stretches his hands}: i.e. Like the Mushrik who worships another deity besides Allāh, like the example of a thirsty man who looks towards his imagination for water from afar, while he wants to obtain it, but isn't able too" [End Quote].”

- (#Sharh) of Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

After we have explained the Essence of Islām, which is:

“Submission to Allāh through Tawhīd, free from Shirk, and compliance to Him through Obedience, and that he submits to Tawhīd through knowledge, certainty, truthfulness, love, acceptance, compliance, abandoning Shirk, professing that by his tongue, disbelieving and rejecting the Tāghūt.”

We come towards the Essence of Shirk, and the Āyāt clarify the essence of Shirk, and it is as the Hadīth mentioned, which is "to place rivals besides Allāh", and this is the best definition for Shirk, and it's a Prophetic definition.

And the 2nd Hadīth also mentions the Essence of Shirk, which is "We said, O messenger of Allāh, is there any Shirk besides what is worshipped or called upon besides Allāh". The Hadīth was narrated by Abū Ya'lah(رحمه الله) and it has weakness, however it falls under a correct foundation.

The words of Ibn 'Abbās(رضي الله عنه): “The Mushrik who worships another deity besides Allāh”:

So all these definitions are disciplined, the first (definition) is Prophetic, and the second (definition) was mentioned by the Sahābah, and it was approved by the Messenger(صلى الله عليه وسلم), and the third (definition) is the saying of a Sahābī (i.e. Ibn 'Abbās).

And we do not have anything to add for this in defining Shirk, we will now address the Āyāt, so that we can apply the Prophetic Tafsīrāt (elucidations) and what has been narrated upon it, by extracting what's relevant from it.

Allāh's statement: “And [He revealed] that the Masājīd are for Allāh , so do not invoke with Allah anyone”.

The main focus is (in the words): "so do not invoke".

Allāh's statement: “And Allāh has said, "Do not take for yourselves two deities. He is but one God, so fear only Me””.

The main focus is (in the words): "Do not take for yourselves two deities", so whoever takes for himself two deities is a Mushrik.

Allāh's statement: “"[for] they worship Me, not associating anything with Me", the main focus is (in the words): "not associating"

Allāh's statement: “Or have they other deities who have ordained for them a religion to which Allah has not consented?”.

The main focus is (in the words): "who have ordained/legislated for them a religion".

Allāh's statement: “Have you not seen those who claim to have believed in what was revealed to you, [O Muhammad], and what was revealed before you? They wish to refer legislation to the Tāghūt, while they were commanded to reject it”.

The main focus is (in the words): "They wish to refer legislation to the Tāghūt", so whoever makes Tahākum (refers legislation) to the Tāghūt, then he has placed besides Allāh a deity who he refers judgement too, therefore he did not disbelieve in the Tāghūt, and the Legislator is the one who has placed a partner with Allāh in His Ulūhiyyah (divinity).

(Matn) Sub-heading:

“Al-Qāḍī 'Iyādh(رحمه الله) mentioned in "Al-Shifā" in the sub-heading of what was from the statements of Kufr: "That every statement which negates singling Allāh alone in worship, or it clearly stated in worshipping someone besides Allāh, or with Allāh, then it is Kufr according to the Ijmā' of the Muslims"

Shaykh Muhammad Ibn 'Abdul Wahhāb(رحمه الله) said in "Tārīkh Najd" page 223, he said: "Indeed Shirk is the worship of other than Allāh, and sacrificing or vowing to him (i.e. the one besides Allāh), and making du'ā to him", (then) he said: "And I do not know of anyone from the people of knowledge who differed regarding that" (adapted - i.e. Relating what's relevant from the quote).

Shaykh Ishāq Ibn 'Abdul Rahmān(رحمه الله) said: "Supplicating to those in the graves, asking them and seeking their assistance and help, (is something) the Muslims didn't dispute, rather it is agreed upon that is it's from the Shirk that makes one disbelieve" (Risālat Takfīr al-Mu'ayyan).

And he (also) stated in it (the same Risālah): "How can the prohibition for making Takfīr upon the Muslims be held upon those who call upon the Righteous and seek their assistance with Allāh, while diverting towards them from the acts of worship which isn't deserving to anyone except Allāh, and this (statement of prohibiting Takfīr) is false according to the texts of the Qur'ān, Sunnah and Ijmā' of the Ummah"

And he stated in it (the same Risālah): "Supplicating to those in the graves, asking them and seeking their assistance and help doesn't fall under this chapter, and the Muslims did not dispute regarding it, infact it is agreed upon that it's from the Shirk that makes one disbelieve, as mentioned by Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah himself, and he considered it among which there's no dispute in making Takfīr on it"

And Shaykh Sulaymān(رحمه الله) quoted in "al-Taysīr" page 117, "The consensus of the Mufasssīrīn that obedience in the lawfulness of what Allāh has declared unlawful, or the unlawfulness of what has declared lawful, is 'Ibdādah (worship) to them, and Shirk of Obedience"

And he also quoted: "The consensus that it's necessary to have Kufr Bit-Tāghūt for the validity of Tawhīd"."

- (Sharh) of Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

“Sub-heading”:

This sub-heading is pertaining the Ijmā'āt (consensuses) that clarify the Essence of Shirk, so the statement of Al-Qāḍī 'Iyādh(رحمه الله) in which he mentioned an Ijmā', and the main focus pertaining it is his statement:

“it is Kufr according to the Ijmā' of the Muslims”.

So every statement that clearly stated in worshipping someone besides Allāh or with Allāh, then it is considered Kufr according to the Ijmā' of the Muslims.

Likewise Muhammad Ibn 'Abdul Wahhāb(رحمه الله) said, “Indeed Shirk is the worship of other than Allāh”:

So he mentioned an Ijmā' (regarding this).

Likewise Ishāq Ibn 'Abdul Rahmān(رحمه الله) said: “The muslims did not dispute that supplicating to the people in the graves, asking them, seeking their assistance and help is Shirk”.

And he quoted an Ijmā', and he also stated that supplicating to the righteous and seeking their assistance and help is something the Ummah have agreed upon regarding its invalidity, and he also mentioned another time that seeking help and assistance (from the dead) and asking them (for needs) is Shirk.

Then at the end, Sulaymān(رحمه الله) mentioned the Ijmā' of the Mufasssīrīn that obedience (to someone) in the lawfulness (of what Allāh declared unlawful) and unlawfulness (of what Allāh declared lawful) is Shirk of Obedience.

Al-'Izz Ibn 'Abdul Salām(رحمه الله) said:

"Whoever comes to a land in which Zinā (fornication) is widespread, and instead lectures the people about the impermissibility of Ribā (interest), indeed he has betrayed Allāh and His Messenger."

In a time where Muslims are in dire need to learn their Tawhīd and Walā' and Barā', teaching them about Wudū' and purification, or being honest with the Kuffār is a great betrayal to the Dīn.

Likewise, we see many of those influential people changing to suit people's desires. For instance, now you will find them speaking against Madkhalis and the rulers (due to pressure from the community), when for the past decades, they did not utter a single word to condemn them, they were the cause for their Bid'ah to spread, infact till today they have Ijrā' and are concealing knowledge of the Dīn. You have been avoiding to speak the Haqq and telling the Muslims not to speak about politics, yet when the Ummah suffers some defeats, or some political issue comes up, you Juhhāl are always to first to give your irrelevant opinion.

Where are your posts about Nawāqidh al-Islām O famous people? Do you really think you're smart blind following a Madhab with fanaticism and condemning whoever goes by proof? Is this your pathetic Da'wah that you're trying to grant victory for? Quoting the sayings of men, while never quoting what Allāh and His Messenger صلى الله عليه وسلم have said?!

Imām Ahmad(رحمه الله) would reject you blind followers, and warn against you. You have betrayed this Ummah, by ignoring what the Ummah is going through, and not getting your priorities right. I don't care how much you claim to love the Ummah and make du'ā for them, your actions prove otherwise, and you are always first to criticise the faults of our brothers and sisters.

Scholars of the Tāghūt and Celebrity speakers can go die in their rage, history will record you as the scum of the Earth, you callers to the gates of Jahannam. May Allāh humiliate you in the dunyā and ākhirah.

Regarding the issue of Tahākum & is the referee on the Soccer field considered a Tāghūt or not? I'll relate the opinion of what my beloved Shaykh Abū 'Umar حفظه الله has said in brief, and Inshā'Allāh this post will help clarify the foundations of the matter:

So firstly my brothers, we must differentiate between the types of laws, we have:

1. Administrative laws (قوانين إدارية).
2. Legislative laws (قوانين تشريعية).

The Shari'ah has given us an amount of flexibility or lee way with regards to the Administrative laws, as long as a person doesn't make the law in contradiction to one of the general rules of the Shari'ah, then it's accepted.

So we have the administrative laws in soccer for instance, ya'nī the game is between two teams, the halves are 45 minutes, 11 players on each team, these are administrative laws and a person who refers to these laws in his game, he's not considered a Kāfir.

These are from the laws form which a person has freedom as long as it doesn't contradict the general principle of the Sharī'ah, and this is the role of the referee, ya'nī the referee that rules or organises the soccer game, this is as far as his jurisdiction goes, ya'nī he's only there to make sure that these administrative laws are met, he makes sure that:

- The game goes for 45 minutes each half
- There are 11 players on the field
- They play fair, no harming each other, if the ball goes outside the line, it's considered a throw-in.

This is where the role of the referee ends, he is not responsible or required to follow the legislative laws.

The legislative laws are the laws that have Tashree', ya'nī the ones that go against the laws of Allāh(عز وجل), such as abolishing Qisās, and even abolishing al-Walā' wal-Barā', and other aspects of the Fifa law that would go against the islamic law.

According to the Shaykh's understanding, and Allāh knows best is that the courts are the only ones involved in the legislative laws, and every sport had its own courts, so here for example, you have the NRL court, AFL court, Fifi court, where a player goes to retrieve his rights or to sue a club that hasn't paid him, or to sue another player that harmed him etc...

This is different than what happens inside the field, now if you play soccer for example and someone slide tackles you and breaks your leg, the Shaykh sees this as an accident and a mistake, even if the person deliberately slid tackle you, he didn't deliberately break ur leg, because a slide tackle is different than breaking your leg, he didn't bring his hand for example and slammed you and break your leg. He did a slide tackle which would be considered an accident, so there would be no Qisās in it to begin with, it would be "Diyah", ya'nī he would pay Diyah for your broken leg.

But let's say he did something where Qisās would apply, it's not the role of the referee to give him Qisās, because as we mentioned before, the only role of the referee is to make sure the administrative laws are met. So what he would do is give you a red card and tell you to leave the field, this is the administrative law, but he's not telling you, Khalās this is all you can do, and you can't ask for your right.

For example, if these people were playing in a land that was ruled by Islamic Law, and this happened, i.e. A person slide tackled another player and broke his leg, it's not up to the referee there and then to judge that the Qisās happens, the referee is not a judge, he just organises the game, so he gives the guy a red card, he tells him to leave.

So then it would be up to this player if he wants, the one who got his leg broken, to go to islamic courts to ask for his rights from the one who broke his leg, so the referee has no part in the legislative laws, it's the judges in the court that would be considered Tawāghīt because they are referring to Fifa to arbitrate between the players.

And also the players who go to these courts, they would be considered people who would be doing Tahākum to the Tāghūt, so according to the Shaykh's understanding is that these legislative laws only happens in the courts that have to do with these games, not in the actual field itself.

As for soccer being Halāl or Harām, that's a separate issue. The shaykh views that soccer in and of itself is permissible, there's nothing wrong with a group of brothers playing together the sport.

However, to play under the umbrella of Fifa, that would be Harām because of the many Munkarāt that one can mention.

So in brief, the Shaykh doesn't see the referee who is giving the red card as "Abolishing Qisās", because what's simply asked from him is the administrative laws.

With regards to the father at home, the one who has two kids, and one of the, hits the other, and he doesn't allow the other to take back his right from the other, is this considered ruling by other than what Allāh has revealed.

Firstly, there has to be authority or power for Qisās to take place, for example if a father had 2 children, and 1 killed the other, is it the father's role to kill the killer or his son that killed the other one? No, it's not, it's up to the Hākim. The same thing if one son broke the other one's leg, it's not up to the father to break his leg, it's up to the Hākim, so that son would have to go to an islamic court to ask for his right.

As for a simple slap, or he took his money from him, stole a few pennies from him, Allāh knows best, but this would have to be out forward to an Islamic court, and it's not up to the father to do it himself, unless it's in the matters that are simple like if he slapped him or something, then if the father wanted to rule by Islamic law, then yes he would have to let the other son slap him back.

But if he doesn't, then this would fall under "Tark" (abandoning to rule by Allāh's law in a specific situation) which is a sin, not Major Kufr.

If you hang out with innovators, don't be surprised finding yourself become like them. This is what happens when you don't listen to the advice of the Salaf & take your Dīn from others without care, mingling with people with corrupt 'Aqīdah.

Imām Mālik(رحمه الله) said: "Indeed this knowledge is part of the religion, so look to those who you take your religion from"

Before you take your Dīn from a Scholar, you must analyze him and do deep research surrounding him and whether you can trust him, whether he is knowledgeable and pious.

Pay attention to how I mentioned {Scholar}, not any random laymen you find on Facebook. Yes, I know it's hard to find a Reputable Shaykh in our times, which is why you must make the effort to search for him, even if he's in the end of the world, you pack up your bags and go study under him, this is how important this Dīn is.

Learn Arabic so you don't have to rely on translations. If you ask laymen online to help direct you to the Righteous Scholars, that's beautiful. May Allāh reward you.

SubhānAllāh, someone who had the audacity to debate in public, put out his misconceptions, then when I refuted his claims and mistakes, he deletes all of mine and his comments, unfriends me and makes a new humorous post. Is this what you call knowledge? This shows that some people only want to show 1 opinion to the people, and don't want to hear the other side, infact they try their best to conceal the other side, since they can't handle a proper discussion. Here was my response to him, which he never responded too & there are many witnesses:

(Part 1) I say in response to your comments (while quoting your words exactly without distortion):

Brother Abū 'Āsim said: "Whoever claims that there is a difference of opinion on whether the one who does not have Lā ilāha illā Allāh is a kāfir mushrik, then this person who claims there is a difference of opinion himself does not have Lā ilāha illā Allāh."

I (the poor slave of Allāh) say: I have Husn al-Dhan that you are not intending by this, whoever claims there is a difference of opinion on "excuse of ignorance in Major Shirk" is a Kāfir as al-Hāzimī stated, because there's a huge difference between the misunderstanding the Mawānī' of Takfīr and its unclear details and claiming "there's a difference of opinion in someone who {DOESNT} have Lā ilāha ilā Allāh".

Because those who give excuse of ignorance due to misconceptions and misinterpretations believe that person who fell into an act of shirk hasn't nullified Lā ilāha ilā Allāh, except after having knowledge that the act he fell into was Shirk.

For instance, you say the one who votes has fell into Major Shirk in and of itself, however someone might excuse him due to ignorance of not knowing the ruling on voting, and their misinterpretation is going by the Asl (general principle) which is him being a Muslim with the utterance of the Shahādātayn, his attachment to his muslim parents, the islamic land he belongs too, and also acting upon the manifest apparent symbols of Islām that are performed by all the Muslims, so he see's that this "specific individual" is not called a Mushrik until he is aware that it's Shirk, and if he is aware of it, he would disbelieve in it {Right Away!}.

Brother Abū 'Āsim said: "Because the whole Qur'ān, from it's beginning to it's end, is about at-Tawhīd and ash-Shirk and that whoever does not single Allāh out in worship is a disbeliever.

And it is a part of Lā ilāha illā Allāh that one believes that "lā ilāha" means leaving shirk and rejecting it, so if someone believes that one can have Lā ilāha illā Allāh whilst not having "lā ilāha", then he himself either does not understand the meaning of lā ilāha illā Allāh, or he has denied it's meaning."

I (the poor slave of Allāh) say: 100% agree.

Brother Abū 'Āsim said: "So the one who himself makes takfīr of the mushrikīn, but he claims that if someone does not make takfīr of the mushrikūn rather he calls them muslims and claims they have Islām and that they are upon lā ilāha illā Allāh, then he has made lā ilāha illā Allāh possible without leaving shirk and rejecting it, thereby denying the meaning of Lā ilāha illā Allāh and not rejecting the Tāghūt himself.”

I (the poor slave of Allāh) say: Okay, now we have reached the unrestricted Takfīr upon not only whoever gives excuse of ignorance, but whoever excuses those that give excuse of ignorance, this statement implies Takfīr upon 99.99% of the Ummah, and the "Manāt" behind this is denying the meaning of Lā ilāha illā Allāh by not rejecting the Tāghūt.

"Not rejecting the Tāghūt"? Now the most common response "is the description of Kufr Bit-Tāghūt upon 1 level"? If you say yes, then you must make Takfīr upon the one who doesn't openly show animosity to the Mushrikīn, even if he was weak.

For example, the incident of Hātib(رضي الله عنه) when he revealed a secret of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) of him wanting to wage war against Quraysh, and Hātib only did this to seek the leniency of Quraysh so they don't harm his relatives.

So as a result of this, Allāh revealed: "O you who have believed, do not take My enemies and your enemies as allies, extending to them {affection}..." [60:1].

So Hātib didn't openly display animosity to the Kuffār by his actions, rather he extended to them {affection} as Allāh stated, as Allāh said in the same Āyah:

"You confide to them affection" [60:1], yet Allāh still affirmed Ēmān for him, despite removing the animosity/enmity to the Mushrikīn which is obligatory, however the foundation of the enmity to the Mushrikīn was met in Hātib, he did not support them against the Muslims, nor give them absolute obedience, nor ally with them, nor show affection to them due to their Kufr, but he rather revealed a secret while he is certain that it won't harm the muslims, nor benefit the Kuffār, and you can refer back to the Risālah he wrote which is narrated.

But the main point is that Kufr Bit-Tāghūt is not upon 1 level, some parts are a condition & pillar of Kufr Bit-Tāghūt which makes one a Kāfir for not having, and other parts of it aren't, so likewise with Takfīr, it's not all upon 1 level, where a person automatically becomes a Kāfir for mixing it up and making mistakes in its unclear details, such as the Mawānī, and the Scholars have many evidences regarding this, which deserves to be elaborated further because of the importance, however I can leave you with 1 big question:

- If making unrestricted individual Takfīr upon the Mushrikīn was part of Asl al-Dīn which makes the one who disagrees with it a Kāfir, then how come the Ashā'irah who negate the "Ism" of Shirk before the Risālah not called Kuffār for not disbelieving in the Tāghūt, infact they went further and said, "Shirk is not something bad" before the Hujjah, this is what Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah رحمه الله has mentioned (which I have the text for), and this was stated by al-Hāzimī, Alī al-Khudayr and others, and I don't know anyone who stated otherwise.

Brother Abū 'Āsim said, the one who gives excuse of ignorance is a Kāfir because: “1. He does not have Lā ilāha illā Allāh, and he is like the one who says that if someone says Lā ilāha illā Allāh, and then he says: "Lā ilāha illā Allāh wal-Husayn wal-Badawiy", then he is still a muslim if he is ignorant.

So tell me Radwan, is there a difference of opinion on the one who claims Islām and says Lā ilāha illā Allāh, and then suddenly he says: "Lā ilāha illā Allāh wal-Husayn wal-Badawiy" ?”

I (the poor slave of Allāh) say: You're applying the rulings of Islām in its wrong place, and you have done so numerous times as it will be mentioned shortly Inshā'Allāh.

Yes, whoever says Lā ilāha illā Allāh, but {COMMITTS} shirk by calling upon al-Husayn wal-Badaw is just like the one who says "Lā ilāha illā Allāh wal-Husayn wal-Badaw".

However what you fail to understand is that the one who gives excuse of ignorance doesn't believe that he has nullified his Shahādah to "Lā ilāha illā Allāh wal-Husayn wal-Badaw" except after the Hujjah has been established.

Again, I stress on the fact that giving excuse of ignorance has unclear details attached to it, and misconceptions and misinterpretations must be removed. Once misconceptions and misinterpretations are removed, and he arrogantly refuses to make Takfīr upon the one who commits Shirk Akbar, and just say "ohh he's jāhil", he's a Kāfir, because he called a Mushrik a Muslim without ta'weel. Just like the one who calls a Muslim a Kāfir with Ta'weel doesn't disbelieve, as 'Umar رضي الله عنه did with Hātib رضي الله عنه, and Usāma called Sa'd Ibn 'Ubādah a Munāfiq out of ta'weel, so we cannot differentiate between these two matters.

Brother Abū 'Āsim stated the second reason why the one who gives excuse of ignorance is a Kāfir: “2. He has denied the Ijmā' on this issue, which has been narrated by many scholars such as Ibn al-Qayyim and others, and whoever goes against the Ijmā' has committed kufr.”

I say: My knowledge is very limited, however this unrestricted statement of "Whoever goes against the Ijmā' has committed Kufr" is very loose and unacceptable.

As you know, the Ijmā'āt are 2 types, Dhanī (Speculative) and Qat'ī (Clear-Cut), the speculative consensus are what are derived from the Qur'ān and Sunnah with agreement of the Scholars in a certain era (the Sahābah for instance).

Clear-Cut consensus is matters known in the religion by necessity, such as Tawhīd, Shirk, the obligation of Salāh, Zakāt, Hajj etc...

Yes, I agree with the Ijmā' of Ahl al-Sunnah that there's no excuse of ignorance for a {muslim} to fall into Major Shirk, however this Ijmā' is Dhanī.

A clear-cut consensus means that there's a clear verse such as "Allāh does not excuse a Muslim with ignorance if he commits Major Shirk", this would be Qatī, and all the Scholars & Laymen would agree upon that without dispute.

So the matter must be known by necessity in religion, where the laymen are aware of the matter before the Scholars.

However the issue of excuse of ignorance is obscure to so many Fuqahā', Muhaddithīn, Usūliyyīn, Hufādh, so imagine the situation is with the laymen who don't know as much, are we going to make Takfīr upon 99.99% of the Ummah because they made a mistake in an issue from the unclear details of Takfīr and its Mawānī?

The words of the Scholars would be sufficient in this issue, and what relates to the 3rd nullifier, and please don't misquote Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr حفظه الله, for he has mentioned that the one who gives excuse of ignorance is "mistaken", I'm not using the words of the Scholars as proof, however they have explained this issue beautifully with proof

Brother Abū 'Āsim continued to say: "3. He has claimed that the Qur'ān is not clear in its clarification of the ruling of the one who worships others besides Allāh.

So let me ask you, if someone were to deny the obligation of the prayer, would there be a difference of opinion on him being a disbeliever, if the Qur'ān has reached him or he had the possibility to find knowledge? No.

So how can there be a difference of opinion on the one that does not single out Allāh in worship?

Or is the ruling of the prayer more clear according to you than the ruling of the mushrik in the Qur'ān?!

The Qur'ān was revealed to clarify at-Tawhīd and ash-Shirk and to clarify who is a muwahhīd and who is a mushrik, and then people claim that whoever denies these issues then there is a difference of opinion, but whoever denies what is below these issues - such as the prayer, or siyaam, or the nubuwwah of a certain Prophet - is a kāfir and there is no difference of opinion?!"

I say: These words, "He has claimed that the Qur'ān is not clear in its clarification of the ruling of the one who worships others besides Allāh" is completely unacceptable again...

The one who gives excuse of ignorance affirms the clarity of Shirk in the Qur'ān and the ruling on the one who worships others besides Allāh, and that this is Major Shirk which takes one outside the fold of Islām.

However, pay attention, he doesn't take this person who ascribes himself to Islām outside the Millah unless it's shown to him. Yes, he's mistaken, but to say he claims Allāh hasn't made Shirk clear in the Qur'ān is not fair...

With regards to your statement that there's no difference of opinion regarding whoever denies the obligation of Salāh, that's correct. However these words:

"So how can there be a difference of opinion on the one that does not single out Allāh in worship?"

SubhānAllāh, I affirm the Ijmā' mentioned by the Imāms such as Ibn al-Qayyim and others, and there's no difference of opinion regarding the Kufr of whoever worships other than Allāh...

HOWEVER, we are speaking about the ruling on "whoever gives an excuse based upon misconceptions and misinterpretation to the one who ascribes himself to Islām", not "whoever doesn't single out Allāh in worship"...

Your statement "Or is the ruling of the prayer more clear according to you than the ruling of the mushrik in the Qur'ān?!"

This is a misunderstanding akhī, this is why I asked if you could clarify with me before having a blow at me, may Allāh guide me and you to the Haqq, I must sleep now, since I gotta wake up early for work, I didn't have time to respond to all your claims, Inshā'Allāh I can continue that tomorrow.

📖 Chapter (1/69) #Translated for Sharh Kitāb al-Haqā'iq Fi-Tawhīd by Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

Note:

- = (Matn) which is the original text of the book.
- = (Sharh) which is the commentary on the Matn.

(#Matn):

“Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "So if they argue with you, say, "I have submitted myself to Allah [in Islam], and [so have] those who follow me." [3:20].

Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "Yes [on the contrary], whoever submits his face in Islam to Allah while being a doer of good will have his reward with his Lord. And no fear will there be concerning them, nor will they grieve." [2:112].

Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "And who is better in religion than one who submits himself to Allah while being a doer of good and follows the religion of Abraham, inclining toward truth?" [4:125].

And in the Hadīth: "Islām was built upon 5 pillars, testifying that there's no one worthy of worship except Allāh...", al-Hadīth (i.e. Till the end of the Hadīth), it's agreed upon over its authenticity from the Hadīth of 'Umar(رضي الله عنه)."

- (#Sharh) of Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

Here we mentioned 3 Āyāt and 1 Hadīth clarifying the essence of Islām.

And the essence (of Islām) that is mentioned in the Āyāt is that Islām means: Submission to Allāh through Tawhīd, and being free from Shirk, and compliance to Him through al-Tā'ah (Obedience), and the "Alif and Lām" in the word "al-Tā'ah" is general (i.e. absolute obedience to Allāh), and the greatest acts of obedience are the 4 pillars (i.e. Salāh, Zakāt, Siyām and Hajj), and we aren't reiterating the 5th pillar which is submission to Allāh through Tawhīd.

“And it's mentioned in the Hadīth, "Islām is built upon 5 pillars..." al-Hadīth”:

So our statement "al-Hadītha" with a Fatha (on the last letter), means to complete the Hadīth, and this is a terminology which the student of knowledge must know, so if the author intends to complete the Āyah or the Hadīth, he writes ("al-Āyah" or "al-Hadīth").

(Matn) Sub-Heading:

“Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "So know, [O Muhammad], that there is no deity (worthy of worship) except Allah" [47:19]

And Muslim(رحمه الله) narrated from the Hadīth of 'Uthmān(رضي الله عنه): "Whoever dies while he knows that there's no deity worthy of worship except Allāh will enter Jannah".

Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "Say, [O believers], "We have believed in Allah and what has been revealed to us" [2:136].

And it's mentioned in the Hadīth: "I have been ordered to fight the people until they testify that there's no deity worthy of worship except Allāh, and that Muhammad is the Messenger of Allāh, and establish Salāh and give Zakāt.." al-Hadīth (i.e. Till the end of the Hadīth), it's agreed upon from the Hadīth of Abī Hurayrah(رضي الله عنه).

Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "The believers are only the ones who have believed in Allah and His Messenger and then do not doubt" [49:15].

And in the Hadīth: "I testify that there's no deity worthy of worship except Allāh, and I am His messenger. The slave who would meet Allāh without having any doubt about these (two fundamentals) would enter Jannah", it was narrated by Muslim from the Hadīth of Abī Hurayrah(رضي الله عنه).

Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "And Allāh testifies that the Munāfiqīn are liars" [63:1].

And in the Hadīth: "Whoever dies while testifying that there's no deity worthy of worship except Allāh, and that Muhammad is the Messenger of Allāh, sincerely and truthful from his heart will enter Jannah", it was narrated by Ahmad from the Hadīth of Mu'ādh(رضي الله عنه).

Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "And [yet], among the people are those who take other than Allāh as equals [to Him]. They love them as they [should] love Allāh . But those who believe are stronger in love for Allāh" [2:165].

And in the Hadīth: "There are three qualities whoever has them, will taste the sweetness of Ēmān: To love Allāh and His Messenger(صلى الله عليه وسلم) more than anyone else..." al-Hadīth (i.e. Till the end of the Hadīth), it's agreed upon from the Hadīth of Anas(رضي الله عنه).

Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "Indeed they, when it was said to them, "There is no deity but Allah , " were arrogant" [37:35].

And in the Hadīth: "No one who has an atom's weight of pride will enter Jannah", it was narrated by Muslim from the Hadīth of Ibn Mas'ūd(رضي الله عنه).

Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "So invoke Allah , [being] sincere to Him in religion" [40:14].

And in the Hadīth: "Verily, Allāh has made the hellfire Harām for whoever says that there's no deity worthy of worship except Allāh, seeking by that the pleasure of Allāh", it's agreed upon from the Hadīth of 'Itbān(رضي الله عنه).

Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "So whoever disbelieves in the Tāghūt and believes in Allāh has grasped the most trustworthy handhold with no break in it." [2:256].

And it's mentioned in the Hadīth: "Whoever professes that there's no deity worthy of worship except Allāh, and disbelieves in what is worshipped besides Allāh, his property and blood become inviolable", it was narrated by Muslim from the Hadīth of Abī Mālik al-Ashjaī from his father."

• (Sharh) of Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

"Sub-heading": This sub-heading is sub-joined to the (chapter) Essence of Islām, and we will mention under it the Shurūt (conditions) for "Lā ilāha ilā Allāh", and it is in sequence (i.e. Every condition is mentioned in order), and every condition has an Āyah and Hadīth (to support it).

•The First Condition - Knowledge (العلم): "Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "So know, [O Muhammad], that there is no deity (worthy of worship) except Allah" [47:19]

And Muslim(رحمه الله) narrated from the Hadīth of 'Uthmān(رضي الله عنه): "Whoever dies while he knows that there's no deity worthy of worship except Allāh will enter Jannah".

And knowledge (العلم) is the first condition, and what opposes it is ignorance (الجهل), and knowledge is from the speech of the heart (قول القلب), because the heart according to the legal functions that relates to it is divided into two types, some things that relate to his actions, and other things that don't relate to actions, which is belief (الإعتقاد), so knowledge is included within the speech of the heart or what is (also) called belief (i.e. Al-I'tiqād).

•The Second Condition - Speech (القول): "Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "Say, [O believers], "We have believed in Allah and what has been revealed to us..." [2:136] Al-Āyah.

And it's mentioned in the Hadīth: "I have been ordered to fight the people until they testify that there's no deity worthy of worship except Allāh, and that Muhammad is the Messenger of Allāh, and establish Salāh and give Zakāt.." al-Hadīth (i.e. Till the end of the Hadīth), it's agreed upon from the Hadīth of Abī Hurayrah(رضي الله عنه)."

And it is the speech of the tongue (قول اللسان), meaning: to pronounce the statement of Tawhīd, and what opposes pronouncing (the statement of Tawhīd) is to leave off pronouncing (the statement of Tawhīd).

•The Third Condition - Certainty (اليقين): "Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "The believers are only the ones who have believed in Allah and His Messenger and then do not doubt" [49:15].

And in the Hadīth: "I testify that there's no deity worthy of worship except Allāh, and I am His messenger. The slave who would meet Allāh without having any doubt about these (two fundamentals) would enter Jannah", it was narrated by Muslim from the Hadīth of Abī Hurayrah(رضي الله عنه)."

And it is sub-joined to the speech of the heart, in the sense that you pronounce it (i.e. The Shahādatayn) with certainty with your tongue, and that you know it (i.e. its meaning) with certainty, so whoever was skeptical or doubtful or hesitant about Tawhīd, then he isn't a Muslim.

The Fourth Condition - Truthfulness (الصدق): "Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "And Allāh testifies that the Munāfiqīn are liars" [63:1].

And in the Hadīth: "Whoever dies while testifying that there's no deity worthy of worship except Allāh, and that Muhammad is the Messenger of Allāh, sincerely and truthful from his heart will enter Jannah", it was narrated by Ahmad from the Hadīth of Mu'ādh(رضي الله عنه)."

What opposes truthfulness (الصدق) is lying (الكذب), so whoever said it out of dishonesty (i.e. Lying and deception), his Islām isn't valid, such as the Munāfiqīn.

The Fifth Condition - Love (المحبة): "Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "And [yet], among the people are those who take other than Allāh as equals [to Him]. They love them as they [should] love Allāh . But those who believe are stronger in love for Allāh" [2:165].

And in the Hadīth: "There are three qualities whoever has them, will taste the sweetness of Ēmān: To love Allāh and His Messenger(صلى الله عليه وسلم) more than anyone else..." al-Hadīth (i.e. Till the end of the Hadīth), it's agreed upon from the Hadīth of Anas(رضي الله عنه)."

And what opposes Love (المحبة) is Hatred (البغض), and this Hatred is from the actions of the heart (عمل القلب), and this is the first condition from the actions of the heart, and what precedes it from conditions from the speech of the heart, which is Knowledge, Certainty and Truthfulness, however in reality Truthfulness has Tafsīl (details attached to it), so at times it is sub-joined to the actions (of the heart), and sometimes it is sub-joined to the limbs (of the body), and sometimes it is sub-joined to knowledge, and the context, gathering (the texts) and splitting it up clarifies that.

So here, it's necessary to know that there's no deity worthy of worship except Allāh, and that Muhammad is the Messenger of Allāh, with truthful certain knowledge that has no doubt in it nor dishonesty (i.e. Lying or Deception), because "most likely assumed" is called "Knowledge" at times, for instance, if it is most likely assumed that the time for 'Ishā' has entered, he would pray the 'Ishā'.

However with regards to "Lā ilāha ilā Allāh", it's not sufficient to most likely assume, rather truthfulness and certainty is required, and Love is the first level of the actions of the heart, and this is in a general perspective, but in specific, intention comes first, wherein he is searching and desiring for that (love of Allāh), so if he wishes for it, the Love(المحبة) would be present with him, and Love isn't sub-joined to the speech of the heart, for instance the insane person doesn't have speech (of the heart), because he doesn't know, however he has actions of the heart, he Loves and Hates (for the sake of Allāh), and he seeks and wishes, and this is the difference between the two, a person could know something without loving it, so the area that deals with the speech of the hearts differs from the area that deals with the actions of the heart.

The Sixth Condition - Compliance (الإنقياد): "Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "Indeed they, when it was said to them, "There is no deity but Allah , " were arrogant" [37:35].

And in the Hadīth: "No one who has an atom's weight of pride will enter Jannah", it was narrated by Muslim from the Hadīth of Ibn Mas'ūd(رضي الله عنه)."

And what opposes compliance is arrogance, so it's stipulated upon the one who has fulfilled the previous Shurūt (conditions) to not be arrogant, because the arrogant one is not a Muslim, for verily the arrogance one doesn't act upon Tawhīd, nor pray nor comply (to what Allāh ordered).

And here, we intended two conditions, which are Acceptance (القبول) and Compliance (الإنقياد), so the one who is arrogant rejects with his knowledge, and what opposes acceptance is rejection, and what opposes compliance is abandonment, therefore it's stipulated for whoever says "Lā ilāha ilā Allāh" that he's accepting (Allāh's command) in compliance.

The Seventh Condition - Sincerity (الإخلاص): And sincerity here means to abandon Shirk, "Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "So invoke Allah , [being] sincere to Him in religion" [40:14].

And in the Hadīth: "Verily, Allāh has made the hellfire Harām for whoever says that there's no deity worthy of worship except Allāh, seeking by that the pleasure of Allāh", it's agreed upon from the Hadīth of 'Itbān(رضي الله عنه)."

The Eighth Condition - Disbelief in the Tāghūt (الكفر بالطاغوت): "Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "So whoever disbelieves in the Tāghūt and believes in Allāh has grasped the most trustworthy handhold with no break in it." [2:256].

And it's mentioned in the Hadīth: "Whoever professes that there's no deity worthy of worship except Allāh, and disbelieves in what is worshipped besides Allāh, his property and blood become inviolable", it was narrated by Muslim from the Hadīth of Abī Mālik al-Ashjaī from his father."

So a person can say "Lā ilāha ilā Allāh" and this statement through knowledge, truthfulness, certainty, abandoning Shirk, compliance and acceptance, with Love and seeking that (i.e. Allāh's love), however he doesn't disbelieve in the Tāghūt, so this person is not called a Muslim.

And Kufr Bit-Tāghūt consists of 5 things:

1. Believing in the falsehood of worshipping the Tāghūt.
2. Abandoning it.
3. Hating the Tāghūt and having animosity to it. And 'This is pertaining to the Tāghūt'

And we have two things pertaining to the people of the Tāghūt.

4. Hating the people of the Tāghūt
5. Making Takfīr upon the people of the Tāghūt.

For instance, Democracy is a Tāghūt, for us to disbelieve in Democracy, we must first believe in the Falsehood of Democracy, and this is the speech of the heart, then abandoning it, then hating it and wishing for its removal and showing animosity to it, and this is the actions of the heart, then hating the people of Democracy, then performing Takfīr upon them.

And similar to Democracy is Secularism, because the Ism (Label) of Tāghūt is referred too theories, systems, doctrines, inanimate things, and individuals, the man and woman, and (also) nationalism, ba'thism, communism and the man-made courts, and the heads of the Jews and Christians who adhere to the corrupted books that they altered, and their elders and leaders, so these are all Tawāghīt.

And the general masses among the Jews and Christians are Kuffār, because the Tāghūt is the one who adorns Shirk.

And this shows that the Kuffār are divided into two types:

1. Tawāghīt, and they are their Leaders.
2. Kuffār, and they are the rest.

So the Jews and Christians are Kuffār according to Ijmā' (consensus), and our statement that the Jews and Christians and those who follow the corrupted books, we don't intend by that the understanding of our contraries (i.e. those modernists), or a confinement which shows that there are Jews who are following the corrupted (version) of the Tawrāt, and other (Jews) following the non-corrupted (version), and likewise with the Christians, but rather this confinement is to display their reality.

Therefore, the Essence of Islām is: Submission to Allāh through Tawhīd, free from Shirk, and compliance to Him through Obedience, and that he submits to Tawhīd through knowledge, certainty, truthfulness, love, acceptance, compliance, abandoning Shirk, professing that by his tongue, disbelieving and rejecting the Tāghūt.

So whoever has fulfilled these matters, then he has fulfilled the Essence of Islām.

Someone might say, we still have (to mention) Salāh, Zakāt etc...? We say that this is included under the topic of compliance.

(Matn) Sub-heading:

“Ibn Hazm(رحمه الله) said: "The people of Islām overall have said that everyone who believes in his heart, a belief in which he has no doubt in it, and professes with his tongue Lā ilāha ilā Allāh, and that Muhammad is the Messenger of Allāh, and that everything he came with is truth, and he declares his disavowal from every religion besides the Dīn of Muhammad(صلى الله عليه وسلم), then he is a Muslim Believer, there is nothing required from him other than that", (al-Fisal 4/35).

Shaykh Sulaymān Ibn 'Abdillāh Ibn Muhammad Ibn 'Abdīl Wahnāb(رحمه الله) said: "Verily, professing it (i.e. The Shahādah) without knowing its meaning, nor acting upon what it necessitates from adhering to Tawhīd and abandoning Shirk, and disbelieving in the Tāghūt, for indeed that is of no benefit according to Consensus", quoted in his book (al-Taysīr).

Shaykh 'Abdullāh Abā Butayn(رحمه الله) said: "The evidences from the Qur'ān, Sunnah and Ijmā' of the Ummah have demonstrated that it's necessary to stipulate Sincerity for actions and statements"

And al-Shaykh 'Abdul Rahmān Ibn Hassan Ibn Muhammad Ibn 'Abdīl Wahnāb(رحمه الله) said: "The Scholars of the Salaf and Khalaf, among the Sahābah, Tābi'īn, the Imāms and all of Ahl al Sunnah, have unanimously agreed that a person cannot be a Muslim, except by abandoning Major Shirk and making Barā'ah from it" (al-Durar al-Saniyyah 11/545-546)."

• (Sharh) of Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

“Sub-Heading”: This sub-heading is pertaining the Ijmā'āt (consensuses) for the Shurūt (conditions) of Lā ilāha ilā Allāh, for verily the conditions (of Lā ilāha ilā Allāh) consists of (proof from) the Qur'ān, Sunnah and Ijmā'.

“Ibn Hazm(رحمه الله) said, "The people of Islām overall have said"”: This is the phrasing of the Ijmā'.

“whoever believes”: This is what knowledge means, i.e. Whoever knows.

“has no doubt in it”: This is the condition for certainty.

“and professes with his tongue”: This is the condition for intention, and it is the statement "Lā ilāha ilā Allāh, Muhammad Rasūl Allāh", and that every he came with is truth.

“and he declares his disavowal”: It includes al-Kufr Bit-Tāghūt and Ikhlās, because al-Barā'ah is abandoning, and Ikhlās (Sincerity) is abandoning Shirk.

“there is nothing required from him other than that”: Meaning, When he first enters into the Dīn, and the negation (of nothing more required from him) is not an unrestricted negation, in the sense that when he first enters (into the Dīn), there is nothing required from him except for Lā ilāha ilā Allāh with its Shurūt (conditions), so if he entered into the Dīn and adhered to that, the rest of the requirements will come to (ultimately) perfect Lā ilāha ilā Allāh.

“Shaykh Sulaymān Ibn 'Abdillāh said”: He is the author of the book "Taysīr al-'Azīz al-Hamīd Sharh Kitāb al-Tawhīd".

And his statement mentions among the conditions, knowledge (العلم), because he said, "if he doesn't know its meaning, it will be of no benefit (i.e. Saying the Shahādah), so this proves that knowledge is a condition.

“Utterance”: And utterance is not sufficient on its own, however it's required.

“acting upon what it necessitates”: This includes Acceptance (القبول) and Compliance (الإنقياد).

“Kufr Bit-Tāghūt”: And this is clear (i.e. Well known).

And the words of Shaykh 'Abdullāh Abā Butayn(رحمه الله) mentions among the conditions, (having) Ikhlās in actions and sayings.

And the statement of Shaykh 'Abdul Rahmān Ibn Hassan(رحمه الله) mentions among the conditions:

“Al-Barā'ah”: Which is al-Kufr Bit-Tāghūt

“Abandoning Shirk”: Al-Ikhlās (Sincerity) which is abandoning (Shirk).

Not referring back to the Scholars is extreme deviance and involves disobedience to Allāh and His Messenger(صلى الله عليه وسلم), which most likely results in misguidance and possibly even Kufr, and only a Jāhil will refuse to take his Dīn from the Scholars.

Note: Some people get turned off when they hear someone say "return back to the Scholars" and "Learning Arabic is essential", whereas whoever says this is affirming the general principle in Islām.

The biggest reason it turns people off is because the over-whelming majority of Scholars in our time are sell-outs, so the youth will not take the Scholars seriously and become "self-taught".

However, they have made a huge mistake by placing all the Scholars in the same basket, yes the Murji'ah always parrot "We must respect the Scholars, learning Arabic is essential", and this is correct, however the Murji'ah apply this to govt Scholars, and tell youth who make Takfir upon clear nullifiers of Islām "to learn Arabic" in order to deter them away from Takfir completely.

When our brothers say it's a must to return back to the Scholars, it refers to the righteous Shaykh, not the deluded sell-out.

A person's facebook wall should only consist of sharing what the Scholars have said, whose speech is based upon daleel, nothing else.

Giving general reminders is also fine, but we have way too much opinions and general reminders floating around, not enough knowledge being shared. This advice goes to myself before anyone else, as I tend to speak a lot too. Acting upon knowledge is the most important matter.

If I have helped motivate you to study the Dīn, then Alhamdulillah. However, to consider me as a person of knowledge to refer back too is completely unacceptable!

It's really sad to see Muslims taking their Dīn off random FB people (such as myself), rather you must have a Shaykh to guide you & explain the Dīn for you.

Yes, I have benefitted a lot from what people have shared on FB, however do not make this your primary learning source.

And I don't understand the youth of this Ummah who are:

1. Jobless, sitting at home doing nothing.
2. Speaking about Dīn 24/7, but aren't bothered to listen to a Tawhīd class for 5 mins and write notes. Too much talk, not enough serious seekers of knowledge.
3. Appearing to be someone they're not, raising themselves above their level, articulating their words in a way that makes them sound "professional", 80% of the words they write up aren't even used in Real Life.
4. Copying and Pasting quotes without understanding what they mean and who they come from.
5. Attachment to people & accepting everything they say, including towards the righteous servants of Allāh who are defending the Dīn. However in most cases, these youth are simply blind followers, yes someone in particular can be one of the closest people to the truth, but this doesn't mean that he isn't free from any mistakes.
6. Claiming to love Dīn and the Ummah, but is absolutely attached to the Dunyā and only follows what his whims & desires say.

And numerous other examples that we often see online. But the thing about Facebook and other social platforms, is that it gives people who remain silent (in most cases) in RL the chance to speak what's inside them and share their views.

By Allāh, there are so many two faced people around. Online, they can be one person, in Real Life, they are like chickens who don't have the audacity or courage to speak.

This was one of the du'ās that Imām Ahmad(رحمه الله) made:

"O Allāh, whoever from this Ummah was upon other than Truth while perceiving to be upon the Truth, then return him back to the Truth, so that he can be from the people of the Truth"

اللَّهُمَّ مَنْ كَانَ مِنْ هَذِهِ الْأُمَّةِ عَلَى غَيْرِ الْحَقِّ وَهُوَ يَظُنُّ أَنَّهُ عَلَى الْحَقِّ فَرِّدْهُ إِلَى الْحَقِّ لِيَكُونَ مِنْ أَهْلِ الْحَقِّ

All matters of the Dīn must be referred back to a Shaykh. Using the excuse of "too many sell outs, so I'm going to ask FB people or give my own Fatwa" is completely unacceptable & rejected by Allāh.

I will not answer any questions, unless I've confirmed it with a righteous local Shaykh or online. I can also direct you to what the Scholars have said, that's my job as a layman while I learn the basics of the Dīn which I'm ignorant of.

The questioner said: I asked our Shaykh al-'Allāmah Sulaymān Ibn Nāsir al-'Alwān(حفظه الله) on the phone a short while ago, regarding the issue of excuse of ignorance, and his opinion regarding whoever says that: "whoever gives excuse of ignorance in Major Shirk isn't called a Muslim"?

So he responded to me with the exact words: "Whomever says that the one who gives excuse of ignorance in Major Shirk isn't a Muslim, this person is from the people of ignorance and misguidance, he isn't called a Scholar, nor a Student of Knowledge, this statement is from the sayings of the Khawārij and Mu'tazilah, yes if he said that whoever gives excuse (of ignorance) has made a mistake, there's nothing wrong with this, and the Scholars have still remained differing over this issue, and none of them labelled each other as innovators, let alone make Takfir upon each other, so this statement has no basis to it".

قال السائل : سألت شيخنا العلامة سليمان بن ناصر العلوان حفظه الله منذ قليل على الهاتف حول مسألة العذر بالجهل ورأيه في من يقول أن من يعذر بالجهل في الشرك الأكبر لا يسمى مسلماً ؟

فأجابني بالنص : "من يقول أن من يعذر بالجهل في الشرك الأكبر ليس بمسلم هذا من أهل الجهل والضلال ولا يسمى عالماً بل ولا طالب علم وهذا القول هو قول الخوارج والمعتزلة , نعم لو قال أن من يعذر فقد غلط فهذا لا شيء فيه ومازال أهل العلم مختلفون في هذه المسألة ولم يبدع بعضهم بعضاً فصلاً عن التكفير فهذا القول لا أصل له"

- The fifth issue: Turning sideways for the Hay'alatayn

Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tarēfē(حفظه الله) said: Several Scholars have mentioned an ljmā' that turning sideways at the Hay'alatayn (i.e. The 2 Hayyah's) is a Sunnah, for verily "Muslim" has narrated from the Hadīth of Abī Juhayfah(رضي الله عنه) that he said:

"Bilāl made the Adhān, so I followed his mouth here and there (i.e. while he was turning from side to side), as he said to his right and left: Hayya 'ala Salāh; Hayyah 'alal Falāh" [1].

And there is a halt (i.e. hesitation) in mentioning the ljmā', due to holding the matter over the Maslahah of being heard according to some Fuqahā' from the Mālikiyyah and others.

And a difference of opinion has occurred regarding the recommendation of turning sideways for the Hay'alatayn during the Iqāmah, and what's correct is that it's not recommended, since there is no proof for it, so what's most suitable in the Iqāmah is not to do it, therefore what's prescribed is to remain still during it.

With regards to the description of turning sideways, I do not know of a detailed method that describes how it's performed in the Sunnah, which is why the Scholars have differed over its manner in 3 ways:

1. That he says: "Hayya 'ala Salāh" twice on his right side, then he says "Hayya 'alal Falāh" twice on his left side, and it is the Madhab of the Hanābilah, and the opinion of some Fuqahā' from the Shāfi'iyyah and Hanafiyyah, and it is the stronger view.
2. That he turns towards his right side to say: "Hayya 'ala Salāh" once, then he says the next (Hayya 'ala Salāh) on his left side, then he says: "Hayya 'alal Falāh" once on his right side, then says the next (Hayya 'alal Falāh) on his left side, and this is the opinion of someone Fuqahā' from the Hanafiyyah and Hanābilah.
3. Just like the first way of doing it (i.e. 1st opinion), however he returns back after pronouncing each "Hayya" towards the Qiblah, so his face is directed to it.

And what appears to be most correct: Is that the reason behind turning sideways is for being heard (by the muslims), so its practise would be banished with the availability of loudspeakers.

But as for "al-Istidārah" (turning right and left - with your whole body as well), then it's not prescribed in the Adhān nor Iqāmah, and some Fuqahā' have said it's prescribed, basing that upon what has been narrated in the Hadīth of Abī Juhayfah(رضي الله عنه), and it mentions:

"So Bilāl went out, then gave the Adhān, and performed Istidārah during his Adhān" [2].

And it's not authentic, because it comes from the narration of Al-Hajjāj Ibn Artā', who is weak, the likes of him is not used as a Hujjah, and his Tafarrud (singular narration) in the likes of this Sunnah (i.e. Prescribed act) is rejected on the spot, and even if it's authentic, what would be intended by "al-Istidārah" is turning sideways (while the body remains still), and the banishment of the "Istidārah" (turning right and left with your body) has been reported by what Abū Dāwud narrated from the Hadīth of Abī Juhayfah(رضي الله عنه), and it mentions:

"I saw Bilāl going towards {al-Abtah}, then he made the Adhān, and when he reached (the words): Hayya 'ala Salāh, Hayya 'alal Falāh, he turned his neck right and left, and he did not perform Istidārah (turn himself right and left with his whole body)" [3].

- The fourth issue: Description of the Adhān.

Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tarēfē(حفظه الله) said: The Adhān consists of 15 phrases, and that is with 4 Takbīrs at the beginning, and without Tarjēe', so it would be pronounced just like it has been narrated in the previous Hadīth of 'Abdillāh Ibn Zayd(رضي الله عنه) in its complete form:

"Allāhu Akbar Allāhu Akbar, Allāhu Akbar Allāhu Akbar, Ash-hadu An Lā ilāha ilā Allāh, Ash-hadu An Lā ilāha ilā Allāh, Ash-hadu Anna Muhammad Rasūl Allāh, Ash-hadu Anna Muhammad Rasūl Allāh, Hayya 'ala Salāh, Hayya 'ala Sahāh, Hayya 'alal Falāh, Hayya 'alal Falāh, Allāhu Akbar Allāhu Akbar, Lā ilāha ilā Allāh".

And this is the practise (that the Muslims) have settled upon, and it is the verdict given by the Fuqahā', among the Hanafiyyah and Mālikiyyah.

And its description according to the Mālikiyyah is 17 phrases, with 2 Takbīrs at the beginning, and with Tarjēe', and its complete form (is the following):

"Allāhu Akbar Allāhu Akbar, Ash-hadu An Lā ilāha ilā Allāh, Ash-hadu An Lā ilāha ilā Allāh, Ash-hadu Anna Muhammad Rasūl Allāh, Ash-hadu Anna Muhammad Rasūl Allāh [1], Ash-hadu An Lā ilāha ilā Allāh, Ash-hadu An Lā ilāha ilā Allāh, Ash-hadu Anna Muhammad Rasūl Allāh, Ash-hadu Anna Muhammad Rasūl Allāh, Hayya 'ala Salāh, Hayya 'ala Sahāh, Hayya 'alal Falāh, Hayya 'alal Falāh, Allāhu Akbar Allāhu Akbar, Lā ilāha ilā Allāh"

And its description according to the Shāfi'iyyah is 19 phrases; There are 4 Takbīrs in the beginning, with Tarjēe', and its complete form (is the following):

"Allāhu Akbar Allāhu Akbar, Allāhu Akbar Allāhu Akbar, Ash-hadu An Lā ilāha ilā Allāh, Ash-hadu An Lā ilāha ilā Allāh, Ash-hadu Anna Muhammad Rasūl Allāh, Ash-hadu Anna Muhammad Rasūl Allāh [2], Ash-hadu An Lā ilāha ilā Allāh, Ash-hadu An Lā ilāha ilā Allāh, Ash-hadu Anna Muhammad Rasūl Allāh, Ash-hadu Anna Muhammad Rasūl Allāh, Hayya 'ala Salāh, Hayya 'ala Sahāh, Hayya 'alal Falāh, Hayya 'alal Falāh, Allāhu Akbar Allāhu Akbar, Lā ilāha ilā Allāh"

↑ Footnotes 📖

[1] He lowers his voice when pronouncing the Shahādatayn for the first time, to the extent where it's able to be heard quietly, then he makes Tarjēe', so he pronounces - the rest of the Adhān with a loud voice, just as he started.

Knowledge isn't about how much you can write, rather it's about the quality and deep meanings behind what you write.

May Allāh have mercy upon the Salaf, they spoke so much by using very few words.

For instance, if you read the chapter headings of the Muhaddithīn in their books of Hadīth (such as Bukhārī), you will find it has amazing Fiqh and it's really short & beneficial.

Whereas, if you see the chapter headings of the Later Scholars, like Imām al-Nawawī(رحمه الله) for example in Riyādh al-Sālihīn, you will see that it's fairly long.

Knowledge should make you love your brothers & sisters in Islām even more, and always think good about them. Being there for your brothers and sisters in need is a sign of pure Tawhīd & firm Walā' and Barā'.

Ask yourself, is seeking knowledge making you a better person who humbles himself to Allāh, are you making more improvements in your عبادات [acts of worship], and truly loving your brothers/sisters like you love yourself? 'Umar Ibn al-Khattāb عنه الله رضي was honest at first when he answered this question, Inshā'Allāh you can be honest and truthful while thinking about this. Forgive your brother and remove any grudges from your heart, may Allāh grant you Jannah and give you Ikhlās in everything you do.

- The third issue: The phrases of the Iqāmah.

Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tarēfē(حفظه الله) said:

The Scholars world-wide have unanimously agreed that the phrases of the Iqāmah are the exact same phrases as the Adhān, and what's added onto it is the phrase "Qad Qāmat is-Salāt" after: "Hayya 'alal Falāh".

And they (i.e. The Scholars) have also agreed that the Takbīr at the end of the Iqāmah is pronounced twice, and the phrase "Lā ilāha ilā Allāh" at the end of it, is pronounced once, and the difference of opinion only occurred regarding pronouncing its phrases twice or once, based upon several opinions:

The first opinion: And it's the view of the Majority, that its phrases are pronounced once, except for the Takbīr at the beginning and the end, and his statement "Qad Qāmit is-Salāh" are (all) pronounced twice.

The second opinion: That the Takbīr at the beginning is pronounced 4 times, and the rest of its phrases are pronounced twice, except for his statement "Lā ilāha ilā Allāh" (i.e. This is only pronounced once), and this is the Madhab of the Hanafiyyah.

The third opinion: That its phrases are pronounced once, except for the Takbīr at the beginning and the end, and this is the Madhab of the Mālikiyyah.

And the first & second opinion are strengthened by proof, and it is from the differences of variation, not in opposition/contradiction, due to what has been narrated in the "Musnad", "Abī Dāwud", "al-Tirmidhī", and "Ibn Mājah" from the Hadīth of 'Abdillāh Ibn Zayd(رضي الله عنه) as a Marfū' narration (i.e. Raised to the Prophet):

"When you make the Iqāmah, you should say: Allāhu Akbar Allāhu Akbar, Ash-hadu An Lā ilāha ilā Allāh, Ash-hadu Anna Muhammad Rasūl Allāh, Hayya 'ala Salāh, Hayya 'alal Falāh, Allāhu Akbar Allāhu Akbar, Lā ilāha ilā Allāh." [1].

And due to what has been narrated in the "Sahīhayn" from the Hadīth of Nas Ibn Mālik(رضي الله عنه) that he said:

"Bilāl was ordered to repeat the phrases of the Adhān twice, and pronounce the phrases of the Iqāmah once, except for "Qad Qāmat is-Salāh" (i.e. Pronounce this twice)" [2].

And due to what has been narrated in Sunan "Abī Dāwūd" and "al-Tirmidhī", and it was authenticated by "Ibn Khuzaymah" from the Hadīth of Ibn Abī Laylah; That 'Abdallāhi Ibn Zayd(رضي الله عنه) came to the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) and said:

"O messenger of Allāh, I saw a man in my dream wearing two green garments carrying a bell, so he pronounced the phrases of the Adhān twice each, then he pronounced the phrases in the Iqāmah twice each, and he sat down in an idke manner of sitting." [3].

And what has also been narrated by al-Dāraqutnī(رحمه الله) in "al-Sunan", and 'Abdul Razzāq(رحمه الله) in "al-Musannaf", from al-Aswad Ibn Yazīd:

"That Bilāl would give the Adhān by pronouncing each phrase twice, and he would pronounce each phrase in the Iqāmah twice, and he would begin with the Takbīr, and finish with the Takbīr" [4].

And this is the opinion of several Scholars, such as Ahmad(رحمه الله), Ishāq(رحمه الله), Ibn Khuzaymah(رحمه الله), Ibn Jarīr al-Tabarī(رحمه الله), Ibn Taymiyyah(رحمه الله) and others.

#Adhān_and_Iqāmah #Fiqh

- The second issue: What has been agreed upon from the phrases of the Adhān.

Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tarēfē(حفظه الله) said: The Imāms have agreed upon the (following) narrated phrases in the Hadīth of 'Abdillāh Ibn Zayd(رضي الله عنه):

"Allāhu Akbar Allāhu Akbar, Allāhu Akbar Allāhu Akbar, Ash-hadu An Lā ilāha ilā Allāh, Ash-hadu An Lā ilāha ilā Allāh, Ash-hadu Anna Muhammad Rasūl Allāh, Ash-hadu Anna Muhammad Rasūl Allāh, Hayya 'ala Salāh, Hayya 'ala Sahāh, Hayya 'alal Falāh, Hayya 'alal Falāh, Allāhu Akbar Allāhu Akbar, Lā ilāha ilā Allāh"

And the Scholars have unanimously agreed that the Adhān is 2 by 2, except for the last phrasing from it, which is: "Lā ilāha ilā Allāh", for it is singular (i.e. mentioned once), and that is what "al-Bukhārī" and "Muslim" narrated from the Hadīth of Anas Ibn Mālik(رضي الله عنه) that he said:

"Bilāl was ordered to repeat the phrases of the Adhān twice, and pronounce the phrases of the Iqāmah once, except for "Qad Qāmat is-Salāh" (i.e. Pronounce this twice)" [1]

And they (i.e. the Scholars) unanimously agreed that the Takbīr at the end of the Adhān is Takbīrān (i.e. 2x Takbīrs), and the difference of opinion is regarding the number of Takbīrs at the beginning of the Adhān, is it mentioned 4 times (It's still 2 by 2, i.e. Allāhu Akbar Allāhu Akbar, Allāhu Akbar Allāhu Akbar) or twice (Still 2 by 2, i.e. Allāhu Akbar, Allāhu Akbar)?

And they also differed regarding the "Tarjee" (which is saying the Shahādatayn in a low voice, then repeating it with a louder voice), and the difference of opinion only occurred due to the differences in the narrations, as mentioned by Ibn 'Abdīl Barr(رحمه الله) in "al-Istidhkār":

"And due to the differences in the narrations from Bilāl and Abī Mah'thūrah regarding that, the Fuqahā' differed" [2].

And the number of Takbīrs in the beginning of the Adhān is 4, which is the opinion of the Majority of Scholars, from the Hanafiyyah, Shāfi'iyyah and Hanābilah, due to the previous Hadīth of 'Abdillāh Ibn Zayd(رضي الله عنه), and it's a Sunnah (i.e prescribed) at times to make 2 Takbīrs in the beginning (of the Adhān), in accordance to what "Muslim" narrated from the Hadīth of Abī Mah'thūrah(رضي الله عنه):

"That the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) taught him the Adhān: Allāhu Akbar Allāhu Akbar, Ash-hadu An Lā ilāha ilā Allāh, Ash-hadu An Lā ilāha ilā Allāh..." till the end of the Hadīth [3].

And this is what the 'Amal (practise) of Ahlal Madīnah are upon, but making 4 Takbīrs is more famous, and the 4 Takbīrs have been narrated in some of the narrations from the Hadīth of Abī Mah'thūrah(رضي الله عنه).

#Adhān_and_Iqāmah #Fiqh

- The first issue: Regarding the obligation of the Niyyah.

Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tarēfē(حفظه الله) said:

The Niyyah (intention) is a condition for the validity of the Adhān and Iqāmah according to the over-whelming majority of the Scholars, so whoever's intention behind giving the Adhān and Iqāmah was to learn (i.e. Practise it) and what's similar to that, then it's not taken into consideration.

And the Hanafiyyah disagreed, so they viewed it as non-obligatory, because they obligate having the Niyyah (intention) in the "Specific Acts of Worship in & of themselves" (such as Salāh etc...), and they do not obligate it in the means towards it (i.e. Such as Wudū' since it's performed for the acceptance of every Salāh, which is a specific act of worship in and of itself).

However, this is a weaker view, due to the general meaning of the Prophet's (صلى الله عليه وسلم) saying from the Hadīth of 'Umar Ibn al-Khattāb(رضي الله عنه):

"Verily, actions are but by intentions" [1]

This is simply one example of how this great Imām of the Salaf differentiated between ignorance in Tawhīd and ignorance in the Clear Matters of the Religion:

Imām al-Marwazī (Died 294 AH) said: "Verily, the one who denies the Farā'idh (i.e. The clear obligations of Islām) becomes a Kāfir due to the denial of Allāh's message, and if the message hasn't been sent, or it was sent (down), but he didn't hear of the message from the (tongue of the) Muslims, then the one who is ignorant of the Farā'idh (i.e. The clear obligations of Islām) would not be considered a Kāfir, however ignorance in Allāh is Kufr in all cases, before the message and after it"

Challenge to Extreme Takfeeri's: The Ashā'irah do not give the Ism of Shirk before the Risālah, they believe in excuse of ignorance in both Ism & Hukm before Hujjah. Now, the majority of the Scholars from Ahlal Sunnah didn't make Takfir upon the Ashā'irah, does this mean they are Kuffār? Infact, even those Scholars who made Takfir upon the Ashā'irah, did anyone of them mention "The Ashā'irah are Kuffār because they believe in excuse of ignorance before Hujjah"...??

Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah (رحمه الله) said: "The over-whelming majority of the Salaf and Khalaf are of the view that whatever is before the advent of a Messenger, from Shirk and Jāhiliyyah is bad and heinous, and it is wicked/evil, however they do not deserve to be punished (in the Dunyā & Ākhirah) except after the advent of a Messenger, and based upon this, the people had 3 opinions regarding Shirk, Oppression, Lying, Fawāhish (like Zinā) etc:

It has been said that its heinousness is known by the intellect, and that they deserve to be punished for that in the Hereafter, even if a Messenger didn't come to them, as the Mu'tazilah say, and it has been said that there's no heinous or good or wickedness pertaining them (i.e. Shirk and Stealing etc...) before being addressed (with a message) as the Ash'ariyyah say, and those who agreed with them, and it has been said that it's bad and wicked and heinous before the advent of a Messenger, however the punishment (in th Dunyā & Ākhirah) only deserves to occur with the advent of a Messenger, and the over-whelming Majority of the Salaf and most of the Muslims are upon this view, and this is what the Qur'ān and Sunnah indicates, for verily it contains therein a clarification that what the Kuffār are upon is wicked, heinous and terrible, before a Messenger (reaching them), even though they do not deserve to be punished (in the Dunyā & Ākhirah) except by the (arrival) of a messenger" [Al-Fatāwah 11/676-677]

Just to break it down in short:

1) The Mu'tazilah believe Shirk and Stealing is known as bad before the advent of a Messenger, due to the intellect and Fitrah, and Ahlal Sunnah agree that something can be known as good and bad without a Message, however the Mu'tazilah say that they will be punished in the Dunyā and Ākhirah before the Message reaches them, and this is wrong.

2) In opposition to the Mu'tazilah, the Ashā'irah have a well known Principle in their Usūl that the intellect on its own cannot perceive what is good or bad, so they don't believe Shirk, Stealing and Zinā is bad in and of itself, except if a Message comes to say it's bad and evil, so they do not apply any Asmā' (Labels) or Ahkām (Rulings) before the Hujjāh, and this is also wrong.

3) Ahlal Sunnah believe that Shirk and Oppression etc...is bad and wicked due to the sound intellect, even if it's before the advent of a Messenger, and the proofs for this are numerous throughout the Qur'ān and the Sunnah, which I won't get into now. Ahlal Sunnah affirm the Ism of Shirk before the Hujjah, however they don't believe the Mushrik is punishment except after the Hujjah is established.

So back to the question, if the issue of applying the "ism" (label) of Shirk on an individual was part of Asl al-Dīn, then why didn't the Imāms of Ahl al-Sunnah make Takfīr upon the Ashā'irah and mention they are "Excusers", and secondly, the Ashā'irah even went further and said "Shirk is only bad because the Message told us", so they don't even consider Shirk in and of itself as something bad, unless a message comes to tell them that, which is a Bātil Principle, yet none of the Imāms of the Ummah made Takfīr upon them based upon this, let alone making Takfīr upon whoever excuses a "specific" individual due to misconceptions and Ta'wīl.

What you have done is invented false unrestricted principles and inserted it within Asl al-Dīn, making Takfīr upon whoever disagrees with you among the whole nation of Muhammad ﷺ, Shaykh al-Islām ibn Taymiyyāh (رحمه الله) perfectly describes the Bid'ah of Hāzimiyyah in Minhāj al-Sunnāh (5/95):

"...However, from the realm of the people of innovation is that they innovate sayings & consider it obligatory [to be known] in the religion, infact they consider it apart of Ēmān which one must believe in, and they make Takfīr upon whoever disagree's with them regarding it, and they declare lawful his blood, just like the actions of the Khawārij & Jahmiyyāh & Rāfidah & Mu'tazilah & other deviants, and Ahl al-Sunnāh do not innovate sayings, nor do they perform Takfīr upon the one that is mistaken in his Ijtihād, even though their opponents [among the innovators] legalise their blood, just as how the Sahābah didn't make Takfīr upon the Khawārij, even though they made Takfīr upon 'Alī (رضي الله عنه) & 'Uthmān (رضي الله عنه) and whoever supported them, and they declared lawful the blood of the Muslims who differed with them..."

To the Sisters and Brothers, may Allāh keep you firm upon the Haqq. There is just 1 thing I want to let you know Inshā'Allāh. When you see someone post something that disagrees with your Methodology, such as "The rulers in our time must be obeyed", avoid getting defensive and "shocked" and responding in a sentimental way (i.e. Prompted by your feelings). Teach your brothers and sisters in a nice way, uphold the best of Akhlāq without being harsh to them, and it's not necessary to continuously make Takfīr + insult the Tawāghīṭ when giving Da'wah, this could turn many people off. Please don't feel hurt by this Nasīhah, it's just what I think, let me know of any mistakes you see, may Allāh preserve you.

#Adhān_and_Iqāmah #Fiqh

- The ruling on giving the Adhān and Iqamah:

Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tarēfē (حفظه الله) said: The two books of revelation have mentioned the legislation of giving the Adhān and Iqāmah, Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) said:

"And when you call to prayer, they take it in ridicule and amusement. That is because they are a people who do not use reason." [5:58]

And Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) said:

"O you who have believed, when [the adhan] is called for the prayer on the day of Jumu'ah [Friday], then proceed to the remembrance of Allah and leave trade. That is better for you, if you only knew." [62:9]

Al-Bukhārī and Muslim have narrated on the authority of Anas Ibn Mālik (رضي الله عنه) that he said:

"The people mentioned the fire and the bell (as means proposed for announcing the time of prayer) and by such a suggestion they referred to the Jews and the Christians. But Bilal was ordered, "Pronounce the words of the Adhan (i.e. call for the prayer) twice and the Iqama once only." [1]

And it's also narrated from them (i.e. Bukhārī & Muslim) from the Hadīth of 'Abdullāh Ibn 'Umar (رضي الله عنهما):

"When the Muslims arrived at Madīnah, they used to assemble for the Salāh, and used to guess the time for it. During those days, the practice of Adhān for the prayers had not been introduced yet. Once they discussed this problem regarding the call for prayer. Some people suggested the use of a bell like the Christians, others proposed a trumpet like the horn used by the Jews, but 'Umar was the first to suggest that a man should call (the people) for the prayer; so Allāh's Messenger (ﷺ) said: Yā Bilāl, get up and pronounce the Adhān for the Salāh" [2].

And several Imāms have mentioned a consensus regarding the legislation of giving the Adhān, among them are: Ibn 'Abdīl Barr, Ibn Hubayrah, al-Nawawī, Ibn Qudāmah and al-'Aynī [3].

And even though the reason behind giving the Adhān was orginally to signal the entrance of the (prescribed) time (for Salāh), however it's an honourable symbol from the Apparent Symbols of Islām, infact the Sahābah made it the distinction between the Apostate Tribes and others.

Abū al-'Abbās al-Qurtubī(رحمه الله) said: "And what occurs from giving the Adhān is to signal three things: The entrance of the (prescribed) time (for Salāh), and a call towards congregation and the place for Salāh, and openly displaying the symbols of Islām." [4].

And if the inhabitants of a land agreed upon leaving it (i.e. Al-Adhān & Iqāmah), they would be fought, and the Fuqahā' have differed over their ruling based upon two well known opinions (i.e. whether the Adhān & Iqāmah are obligatory or recommended), and they are two narrations from Ahmad:

1. That the Adhān and Iqāmah are Recommended Sunnah's.
2. That the Adhān and Iqāmah are Fardh Kifāyah (i.e. A collective obligation).

And what appears (most correct) is that it's a recommended Sunnah in general, (and) a collective obligation in the Mosques that hold regular prayers, since it's not mentioned that the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) or his (Rightly-Guided) Caliphs abandoned it, not even once, so this proves it's an obligation, and this is what's correct in the Madhab of Ahmad, for verily Ahmad, Abū Dāwud and Nasā'ī have narrated from the Hadīth of Abī al-Dardā', he said: I heard the Messenger of Allāh(صلى الله عليه وسلم) say:

"There are no three people in a town or encampment among whom do not make the Adhān, nor establish the Salāh, except that Shaytān has control over them." [5].

And what's correct: Is that the wording "Adhān" in this Hadīth is Shāth (anomalous - i.e. Not authentic), the majority of the narrators did not mention it, and what is sufficient pertaining that is what "al-Bukhārī" and "Muslim" narrated from the Hadīth of Anas Ibn Mālik(رضي الله عنه):

"That whenever the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) went out with us to fight (in Allah's cause) against any nation, he never allowed us to attack till morning and he would wait and see: if he heard Adhān, he would postpone the attack and if he did not hear Adhān, he would attack them." [6]

The #Introduction of Kitâb al-Haqâ'iq Fî-Tawhîd with Sharh of Shaykh al-'Allâmah 'Alî al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

Kitâb al-Haqâ'iq was written by Shaykh 'Alî al-Khudayr, and Shaykh Hamûd al-'Uqlâ' wrote an introduction for it. Many Scholars author books and make a Sharh on their own works, just like this amazing book in front of us now.

(#Matn):

"All praise due to Allâh, the Lord of Mankind, and Peace and Blessings be upon the best of Prophets and Messengers, our Prophet Muhammad and upon all of his family and companions, to proceed:

So this book, Allâh make it easy (for us) to put together, revolves around the essence of Islâm, Shirk and Kufr, and it mentions the Asmâ' (i.e. Labels) and Ahkâm (i.e. Rulings) of the religion, and the difference between the two, joining them together and separating them, the essence of establishing the Hujjah, the essence of the Clear and Unclear matters, and the difference between the two, the Usûl (Foundations of the Religion) and Ordainments (Clear Matters), and what is related to that by its evidences from the Qur'ân, Sunnah and Ijmâ', and when it's the right time, we will mention some statements of the Scholars, because of what it has from benefit according to what we observed, and what has reached us with deficiency (in our observations), and most of the mistakes today is because of not differentiating between that (i.e. Labels and Rulings, Clear and Unclear matters, Usûl and Ordainments etc...)

Ibn Taymiyyah(رحمه الله) said: "And Allâh has made a distinction between what is before the Risâlah (i.e. Message of Islâm) and what comes after it, relating to the Asmâ' (labels) and Ahkâm (rulings), and gathering between the two pertaining the labels and rulings" [Al-Fatâwah 20/37]

And he also said: "And knowing the scope of the Asmâ' (Labels) is obligatory, especially the scope of what Allâh has revealed upon His messenger}

Ibn Jarîr al-Tabarî(رحمه الله) said in the Tafsîr of Sûrat al-A'râf at the 30th Âyah: "And this is from the clearest of proofs, regarding the mistake of whoever claims that Allâh will not punish anyone over a sin he committed or misguidance that he believed in, except if it comes to him after knowing the reality of it correctly, so he commits it (i.e. The sin) in arrogance towards his Lord, because if it was like that, there would be no difference between the misguided group that became misguided while thinking to be upon guidance, and the group of guidance, whereas Allâh has differentiated between their Asmâ' (labels) and their Ahkâm (rulings) in this verse" [End Quote]

Shaykh 'Abdul Latîf(رحمه الله) said in "Minhâj al-Ta'sîs" on page 12: "And how many nations have become ruined due to their lack of knowledge and not knowing the scope of "Haqâ'iq" (Reality of Tawhîd and Shirk), and how many nations have fallen into that, of mistakes, doubts and troubles, an example of that is (the principle), Islâm and Shirk are two opposites that cannot be joined together, and do not cancel each other out, and ignorance in knowing both of their realities or one of them, made many people fall into Shirk and worshipping the Righteous, due to not knowing the "Haqâ'iq" (Reality of Tawhîd and Shirk) and understanding it properly" [End Quote]

And his father 'Abdul Rahmân(رحمه الله) said in his Treatise "Asl Dîn al-Islâm": "Unquestionably, whoever performs Shirk has abandoned Tawhîd, for verily they are two opposites that cannot be joined together"

And Shaykh 'Abdullâh Abâ Butayn(رحمه الله) said: "And what needs to be taking into careful consideration is knowing the scope/limits of what Allâh has revealed to His Messenger, because Allâh has vilified whoever doesn't know the scope/limits of what Allâh has sent down upon his Messenger, as Allâh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "The bedouins are stronger in disbelief and hypocrisy and more likely not to know the scope/limits of what [laws] Allah has revealed to His Messenger. And Allah is Knowing and Wise" [9:97], (Risâlat al-Intisâr).

And this book consists of 10 types, every type consists of chapters, and sometimes there are sub-headings in the long chapters, to make it easy and simplified, and the amount of chapters (in the book) are 69 chapters, and Allâh has made easy for us that what is in the book is not a long Matn (text), nor a long Sharh (explanation), but rather it's something between that.

And what I intend by "al-Haqīqah" is the essence of something, its true nature and the foundations of it."

(#Sharh) of Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

Bismillāhi al-Rahmāni al-Rahīm, and all praise is due to Allāh, the Lord of Mankind, and Peace and Blessings be upon our Prophet Muhammad and upon all of his family and companions.

Indeed, all praise is due to Allah, we praise Him, seek His Help, and seek forgiveness from Him. We seek protection in Allah from the evil of our own selves, and our evil deeds. Whomever Allah guides none can misguide him; whomever He misguides none can guide. And we bear witness that there is none worthy of worship except Allah alone, He has no partner; and we bear witness that our master and Prophet Muhammad is His Slave and Messenger.

To proceed: So in these lessons, Inshā'Allāh we will elucidate "Kitāb al-Haqā'iq", and in the beginning, we'll clarify the matters that the introduction has addressed.

So the introduction spoke about several points:

The first point: Generally about a brief simplified description of what is addressed in this book from the issues that revolve around it, and what are the chapters that we will shortly mention, and what are the books (mentioned) in it.

The second point: Showing the importance of knowing the Asmā' (Labels) and Ahkām (Rulings) and its essence (i.e. True reality), and the ruling regarding that, which is Wājib (i.e. Obligatory to know), and the more severe the Ism (Label) becomes, the greater the Obligation (of knowing it) becomes, and it is from the Islamic Obligatory Knowledge.

The third point: Then mentioning who clarified that (differentiation) amongst the Scholars, whom are Ibn Taymiyyāh, Ibn Jarīr al-Tabarī, 'Abdul Rahmān Ibn Hassan, 'Abdul Latīf Ibn 'Abdul Rahmān and 'Abdullāh Abā Butayn.

The fourth point: Mentioning an overall description for this book, because this book speaks about the essence of Islām, and a muslim must know this, and it's the principle of the foundations (of Islām). And it is knowing the essence of Islām, then knowing the essence of Shirk, then knowing the Clear Matters, then knowing the Unclear Matters, and the difference between the two (i.e. Clear & Unclear), then knowing (what is meant by) establishing the Hujjah and how it's established, then knowing the difference between the Asmā' (Labels) and Ahkām (Rulings), this is the basic outline of what this book revolves around.

"Allāh has made a distinction": He (i.e. Ibn Taymiyyah) attributed the distinction to Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى), which proves that it's a legislative distinction, and not an intellectual separation, nor sentimental (i.e. Prompted by feelings), nor based upon Ijtihād (i.e. Determining Allāh's judgement)

"Al-Risālah": The "Alif and Lām" here is referring to the 'Ahd (i.e. Covenant), and at times it's called "al-Khusūs" (i.e. The Specific), what is meant by it is the Prophetic Message that the Mustafah(صلى الله عليه وسلم) came with.

"Relating to the Asmā' (labels) and Ahkām (rulings)": So this proves that before the Risālah, there are Asmā' (labels) and Ahkām (rulings), and after the Risālah, there are Asmā' (labels) and Ahkām (rulings) as well, and we will be exposed to it frequently, and this is the Madhab of Ahl al Sunnah wal-Jamā'ah in this issue, which is that they give Asmā' (Labels) before the Risālah (i.e. Prophet Message).

As for the Ashā'irah, they do not give Asmā' (Labels) before the Risālah.

As for the Mu'tazilah, they give off Asmā' (Labels), however they make the intellect the cause for (giving off) these Asmā' (Labels).

Then Ibn Taymiyyah(رحمه الله) mentioned the ruling on knowing these Asmā' (Labels), the Ism (Label) of Shirk, and the Ism (Label) of Islām, so he said "It's obligatory".

Then he stated, "Especially the scope of what Allāh has revealed upon His messenger": Meaning, the Asmā' al-Shar'iyyah (i.e. The Islamic Labels).

"Ibn Jarīr al-Tabarī said":

Ibn Jarīr(رحمه الله) is from Ahl al Sunnah wal-Jamā'ah, and he is one of those who mentioned the differentiation between the Asmā' (Labels) and Ahkām (Rulings), he mentioned the differentiation in his Tafsīr of Allāh's statement:

"A group [of you] He guided, and a group deserved [to be in] error. Indeed, they had taken the devils as allies instead of Allah while they thought that they were guided." [7:30].

So He [i.e. Allāh] called this (group) guided, and called the other "deserved [to be in] error (i.e. Misguidance)", so He differentiated between the Ism (Label) of Misguidance and the Ism (Label) of Guidance, he (i.e. this person) is misguided while he assumes to be upon the Haqq, and this assumption doesn't prevent the Ism (Label) of Misguidance to be applied upon him.

"Shaykh 'Abdul Latīf(رحمه الله) said.....And his father 'Abdul Rahmān(رحمه الله) said in his Treatise "Asl Dīn al-Islām":

These are the descendants of Shaykh Muhammad Ibn 'Abdul Wahhāb(رحمه الله), 'Abdul Latīf Ibn 'Abdul Rahmān Ibn Hassan Ibn Muhammad Ibn 'Abdul Wahhāb, so Shaykh 'Abdul Latīf clarified and described the importance of knowing the Scope (of the Islamic Labels) and Haqā'iq (Essence of Islām and Shirk), because due to ignorance pertaining this matter, many fall into mistakes, doubts, troubles and Fitnah, you will find him sacrificing to other than Allāh, so this person has the essence of Shirk established upon him, so he's called a Mushrik, so he (i.e. The person who doesn't comprehend these matters properly) assumes that if he (i.e. The mushrik) made Ta'wīl (misinterpretation) of that, or imitated (someone) in doing that, none of these Names (of Shirk) will be applied upon him, so he fell into mistakes.

Then he gave an example of “Islām and Shirk are 2 opposites that cannot be joined together or become uplifted together”: Meaning, it's not possible to call an individual who sacrifices to other than Allāh a Muslim, because the essence of Shirk cannot be joined with the essence of Islām, and this was stated by Ibn Taymiyyah(رحمه الله) in "Al-Fatāwah", he said: "Mankind consists of two categories, there is no 3rd category between them", so it's not possible to say, there's a person who's not a Muwahhid nor a Mushrik, so whoever sacrifices to other than Allāh due to being ignorant of the essence and reality of Shirk (i.e. He doesn't know it's Shirk) cannot be called a Muslim, and his state of ignorance or misinterpretation doesn't prevent the Asmā' (Labels of Shirk) from being applied upon him, because Ignorance and Misinterpretation is not an excuse in Major Shirk.

Place of Birth: Riyādh.

He graduated at the Usūl Al-Dīn Faculty at the University of the Imām in the year 1403 AH.

His Teachers in his Quest for Knowledge:

He started his quest for knowledge when he was still in high school. He started studying the Qur'ān and reciting it. He did this with the noble Shaykh 'Abdul Ra'ūf Al-Hannāwī, may Allāh have mercy upon him and allow him to dwell in His spacious Paradise.

One of the first of whom he took knowledge before he started his study at the Usūl Al-Dīn Faculty, was the noble Shaykh 'Alī Ibn 'Abdullāh Al-Jardān and the noble Shaykh and judge Muhammad Al-Muheeti' (and he was one of the leading judges from the time of Shaykh Muhammad Ibn Ibrāhīm), may Allāh have mercy upon them (both) and allow them to dwell in His spacious Paradise.

He also studied with:

4. His Eminency, the father, Al-'Allāmah Shaykh Hamūd Ibn 'Uqlā' Al-Shu'aybī(رحمه الله). He studied Tawhīd, 'Aqīdah and other Islamic Sciences with him until the Shaykh passed away.

5. He also took knowledge from Shaykh Muhammad Ibn Sālih Al-Mansūr(رحمه الله). He stayed with him for four years, from 1409 until 1413 while he studied Tawhīd, Fiqh, Al-Farā'idh, Hadīth and Nahw.

6. He also studies with Shaykh Muhammad Ibn Sālih Al-'Uthaymīn(رحمه الله). He primarily studied Fiqh with him for a period of four years (from 1400 until 1403).

7. He also took knowledge from Shaykh 'Abdullāh Ibn Muhammad Ibn 'Abdullāh Āl-Husayn. He primarily studied Fiqh with him.

8. He also studied with the Zāhid, the Shaykh Muhammad Sulaymān Al-'Alīt. He studied several books with him concerning Al-Zuhd, like “Kitāb Al-Zuhd” by Imām Wakī” and “Al-Wara” by Imām Ahmad Ibn Hanbal, may Allāh have mercy upon them all.

9. And also while he was studying at the Usūl Al-Dīn Faculty, he studied under numerous Noble Scholars, may Allāh grant them success, assist them, preserve them and make them flourish, and may Allāh have mercy upon those who passed away from amongst them.

His Teachings:

Shaykh 'Alī Al-Khudayr has lectures and teaches Islamic sciences, he gave lessons in Tawhīd, 'Aqīdah and Fiqh, and his first Islamic lessons in the Masājīd was in the year 1405 AH, teaching Fiqh and Mustalah al-Hadīth, and (in the early days), the number of students didn't exceed 5, but that amount grew rapidly until the Shaykh became very well known for his knowledge in the Al-Qasīm area. Most of his lessons started after Salāt Al-Fajr and after Salāt Al-'Ishā'.

And many students of knowledge from within and outside (the country) studied under him, many graduated as judges, doctors, teachers, preachers and students of knowledge, and perhaps a convenient time will come to mention their names Inshā'Allāh.

His publications and books:

Most of his publications are essays that are present amongst his students and other than them in Tawhīd and Fiqh, and from his published books is this book that is between our hands, "Kitāb al-Haqā'iq Fī-Tawhīd", "Kitāb al-Jam' wal-Tajrīd Fī Sharh Kitāb al-Tawhīd", "Kitāb al-Tawdīh wal-Tammāt 'Ala Kashf al-Shubuhāt", and "Kitāb al-Mahkī Fīhi al-Ijmā' Min al-Ahkām al-Fiqhiyyah", (including many other large books)

We ask Allāh(عز وجل) to grant him success, preserve him, bless him, forgive him, his parents and family, and to preserve and grant success to his Shaykhs who are alive, and to forgive and have mercy upon his Shaykhs who have passed away, and to grant victory to Islām and the Muslims, and to bring glory to Jihād and the Mujāhidīn, and humiliate the enemies of this religion when they're in need.

And peace and blessings be upon our Prophet Muhammad, and upon all of his family and companions.

Q. Akhi, the one who abandons salah doesn't disbelieve can u explain? What I have read is that it is kufr akbar

#Sharing here for the Benefit:

A. Yes brother, the issue of abandoning Salāh can be divided into 4 different categories:

1) The person who denies the obligation of Salāh is a Kāfir according to Clear-Cut consensus (إجماع قطعي), whether he abandons Salāh or not, denying its obligation is Kufr without any dispute from the Madhāhib.

2) The person who {completely} abandons Salāh (i.e. Abandons praying 5 times a day) out of laziness is a Kāfir according to the Consensus of the Sahābah, and this consensus was mentioned by the prominent Scholars, Imām 'Abdullāh Ibn Shaqīq al-'Uqaylī, Imām Muhammad Ibn Nasr al-Marwazī, Imām Ayyūb Ibn Abī Tamīmah al-Sikhtiyānī, Imām Ishāq Ibn Rāhawayh and Imām Abū Muhammad Ibn Hazm al-Andalusī. However this is a speculative consensus (إجماع ظني), so we are obliged to follow this consensus, however the one who goes against this consensus doesn't become a Kāfir, for instance the Scholars in the Madhab of Abū Hanīfah, Mālik, al-Shāfi'ī officially adopt the view that he doesn't become a Kāfir, some of them don't recognise this Ijmā' or they restrict the Ijmā' to "Denying the obligation of Salāh", however I'll show how that's wrong soon Inshā'Allāh.

3) The person who abandons 1 Salāh was considered a Kāfir by 5 of the Sahābah as mentioned by Shaykh Sulaymān Ibn Nāsir al-'Alwān (حفظه الله), and it's not narrated that anyone disagreed with them, and the Sahābah who adopted this opinion were: 'Umar Ibn al-Khattāb, 'Abdullāh Ibn Mas'ūd, Abū Hurayrah, Mu'ādh Ibn Jabal and 'Abdul Rahmān Ibn 'Awf, and this was also the opinion held by a group of Scholars from the Salaf such as Imām Ahmad, Ibrāhīm al-Nakha'ī, al-Hakam Ibn 'Utaybah, Ayyūb al-Sikhtiyānī, Abū Dāwud al-Tiyālīsī, Abū Bakr Ibn Abī Shaybah, Zuhayr Ibn Harb, Sufyān Ibn 'Uyaynah, 'Abdullāh Ibn al-Mubārak, Ishāq Ibn Rāhawayh and others. However, there's no إجماع [Consensus] on the Kufr of abandoning 1 Salāh as mentioned by Sh. Sulaymān al-'Alwān, and even though it's not narrated from the Sahābah any difference of opinion, there are other Hadīths that show the one who abandons 1 Salāh doesn't disbelieve, but this can be debatable.

4) Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah (رحمه الله) adopts the view that the one who abandons Salāh more than he establishes it is a Kāfir, so if he abandons 3 Salāh per day, he's a Kāfir. And this is what Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad (حفظه الله) follows, that a person receives the description of "Abandoning Salāh" if he leaves prayer more than he performs it.

- With regards to those who claim "The majority" of Scholars say the one who completely abandons Salāh is not a Kāfir, then this is wrong, and Shaykh al-'Alwān rejected this. Now, it's possible that some of the Scholars within the Madhāhib didn't view the Ijmā', and there's no doubt they performed Ijtihād to reach their conclusion, however we are obliged to return back to the clear evidences from the Qur'ān, Sunnah and Ijmā' of the Sahābah.

- As for the claim that the Ijmā' is restricted to "denying the obligation of Salāh", then this is rejected, because the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) said: "The difference between a man & shirk or Kufr, is {abandoning} Salāh", the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) abandoning, and also 'Abdullāh Ibn Shaqīq al-'Uqaylī & the Imāms who mentioned the consensus said "Abandoning", not denying it's obligation. Infact, to prove this further, many Imāms said "Whoever abandons 1 Salāh is a Kāfir", they didn't say "Deny 1 Salāh", so imagine the one who abandons Salāh {completely}, this person is clearly a Kāfir, and this is what the consensus is referring too.

Important Note: I have touched on the issue of Tārik al-Salāh before dealt as a Munāfiq before, so the reason why he is buried in the graveyards (or burial) of the muslims, washed, shrouded etc...is because Tārik al-Salāh is dealt as a Munāfiq in this Dunya as mentioned by Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah and other Fuqahā', just like Huthayfa رضى الله عنه knew the names of the 12 hypocrites that the Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم told him of in Madīnah, when they passed away, Hudhayfa didn't pray Janāzah over them, however he did not prevent the Sahābah from praying over them.

Inshā'Allāh this answers your question brother والله اعلم

Lol, but once the interviewer read {Arabic} under the "spoken الحمد لله Excellent job interview languages" section, I get asked in a surprised way, "Why do you speak Arabic?!", I'm like it's coz I'm arab, "But you're so white!!"

Many arabs from Bilād al-Shām are white...But I understand the confusion, even reverts themselves think we are reverts ☺

Alhamdulillah, Allāh has made everything so easy for us, can't wait to start working full-time Inshā'Allāh, may Allāh reward all those who work hard to earn their own Rizq and give out .generously to those who are in need

As for the brothers who do not work/study, and aren't even serious about studying Dīn, ponder over !this Hadīth, may Allāh reward you, don't remain seated jobless

I really love some of the younger brothers who have a passion to seek knowledge, but we need to help them out and give them the correct directions.

I remember a beautiful brother who just started seeking knowledge, he showed me a huge library of books he downloaded in Arabic :)

Ya'hī, even when I was younger and passionate, I thought it was cool to download 1,000+ volumes of books, but in reality I didn't even read anything from it. Nah, to be honest I did read about 10 volumes {cover to cover} but with only around 30% comprehension.

And what I did was completely wrong. Brothers, what's the point of having a {huge} library of books if you're not going to read it, and even if you do read and understand it, you won't benefit as much as learning the structured way, i.e. Under Scholars who explain the books that came before them.

But as I mentioned, we need to help & give our brothers and sisters the correct directions in seeking knowledge. Before jumping into these massive & complex books, we need to put our utmost focus in learning the Arabic Language, memorising the Qur'ān and studying Mutūn like "al-Usūl al-Thalātha" etc...

Infact, many became scholars by memorising Mutūn (short concise texts) and mastering them, while those who memorised the long books didn't bring much benefit to the Ummah at all - This was mentioned by Sh. Sulaymān al-'Alwān(حفظه الله).

And before seeking knowledge, we must study the etiquettes of seeking knowledge, as you all know, the Salaf would learn manners before knowledge. This will keep you humble and lower the wing of pride & arrogance when you learn more. Also, your manners will be the heaviest deed on the scales in Yawm al-Qiyāmah, not only do the people love manners, but most importantly Allāh loves good manners, so be just and show good conduct because Allāh loves it and ordered it.

And one of the hardest trials our beloved brothers in sisters face, especially in our times, is finding the righteous Shaykh to learn from, this must be taken into consideration before taking your Dīn from any random Shaykh out there.

You know how people say "You must love all the Scholars", this is not correct, and these people are placing all the Scholars in 1 Basket, whereas Allāh سبحانه وتعالى and the Prophet صلى الله عليه وسلم have warned us about the evil Scholars who don't act upon their knowledge. Infact, the first people to disbelieve in 'Īsa عليه السلام were the Scholars as mentioned by Imām Anwar al-'Awlakī رحمه الله

I ask Allāh to make your pursuit of knowledge easy for you, and Inshā'Allāh this knowledge that you acquire strengthens your relationship of Allāh and makes you get closer to Him in Salāh and worship. If anyone needs directions in where to start, there are many resources available الحمد لله. I recommend you to study and learn with someone who can motivate you, keeping good company will give you a pure heart that is full of Ēmān and Yaqīn. May Allāh bless you.

Shaykh Sulaymān Ibn Nāsir al-'Alwān(حفظه الله) said:

The rulers are 3 types:

1. A just ruler, so it's obliged to obey him in that which is not known to be disobedience (to Allāh).
2. An unjust oppressive ruler, so it's obliged to obey him in that which is known as obedience (to Allāh).
3. A ruler who replaces the Shari'ah of Allāh, and supports the Kuffār against the Muslims, there is no hearing or obeying for this (ruler), and it's obliged to hate him and show animosity towards him, and make Barā'ah from him, and he has no authority over the Muslims.

Shaykh Sulaymān Ibn Nāsir al-'Alwān(حفظه الله) said:

Not everyone who agrees with the Murji'ah in an opinion becomes a Murji', and not everyone who adopts an opinion from the sayings of the Khawārij becomes a Khārijī, so an individual is not ruled with absolute Ijrā' nor as being from the Khawārij...

UNTIL his Usūl (foundations) coincide with the Usūl of the Murji'ah or the Usūl of the Khawārij. And it could be said about an individual: "He has some Ijrā' in this issue, and that other person has some (opinions) from the Madhāhib of the Khawārij"

And beware beware from oppression and injustice when speaking about others amongst the Scholars, Preaches, Reformers and other than them, for indeed justice in speech and actions is from the characteristics of the believers, and it is what Allāh loves and orders.

Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "And when you speak, be just"

And Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "Indeed, Allah orders justice and good conduct" is an absolute demolisher of the innovators, he is a man full of حفظه الله Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad proof, very rarely do you find him giving his own opinion, and one of the first things I learnt from his :amazing books is when he says

الذي يظهر لي والله اعلم

"...What appears (most correct) to me, and Allāh knows best"

This really melts my heart, I can't believe how some brothers over-look these important etiquetes .and manners, and read books cover to cover like it's some newspaper

حفظه الله and Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān SubhānAllāh, I must say Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad are amazingly just and fair, subhānAllāh their honesty and truthfulness can be felt deeply, the الله way they mention all the opinions without hiding any knowledge, holding firmly onto their principles .and speaking from their heart to please Allāh with pure intentions

By Allāh, I really believe Sincerity is what makes these men become great Imāms in the Ummah, they remind me so much of Imām Ahmad and Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah, SubhānAllāh the we صلى الله عليه وسلم Scholars who act upon their knowledge are the inheritors of the Prophet must love them and appreciate them, they have done so much for us, they are suffering so much :( .May Allāh be pleased with them and have mercy upon them calling him a liar صلى الله عليه وسلم You know how the people disbelieved in the Prophet was there to support him, comfort him, believe in him, reminding him رضى الله عنها etc...Khadījah was nothing but truthful and a pure soul. So no صلى الله عليه وسلم that Allāh loves him, the Prophet matter how many people slander the righteous, we will remain loving them till we die as our beloved .صلى الله عليه وسلم did with our beloved Prophet Muhammad رضى الله عنها Mother Khadījah

Only Allāh knows how truthful and pure the rare strangers of this world are, I wish I was from them, were gatherings of (رحمه الله)said: "The gatherings of Imām Ahmad (رحمه الله)Imām Abū Dāwud Ākhirāh, not a single matter of the Dunyā was mentioned, I did not see him mention the Dunyā at all" 🙏 was asked: Shaykh al-Islām (Ibn Taymiyyah) mentioned in {Dar' (حفظه الله)Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad al-Ta'ārudh): "Just as if the army of the Kuffār came, and it's not possible to repel their evil from the Muslims, except by wearing their clothes, then repelling them by wearing their clothes is better than allowing them to roam around the land in fear of imitating them in (their) clothing" [End Quote], and this was affirmed by many Scholars, and it causes a confusion (for me), which is if clothing itself was considered Kufr, such as wearing the revered Cross, and an idol & what is similar to that, then what would the guidelines be pertaining this issue? Especially if it's from our Usūl (fundamentals of the religion) that nothing permits Kufr except Ikrāh (compulsion), so what is the response to this ?misconception responded by saying: The books of Tārikh (history) have (حفظه الله)Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad mentioned that the Crusaders surrounded the city of 'Akkā after conquering Al-Quds in the year 583 AH, and the besieged muslims didn't have much ammunition or food supplies, so Salāh al-Dīn al- and those with him, sent a group of Mujāhidīn on a ship which resembles the ships رحمه الله Ayyūbī of the crusaders, they shaved their beards, wore the same clothes as the Kuffār, and raised the cross on their ship, so when the crusaders saw them, they thought they were their allies, so they left them alone, so these Mujāhidīn were able to enter 'Akkā, and give its people what they need .during their besiegement

As for the issue of wearing the clothes (of the Kuffār), shaving the beard, wearing gold, and what's similar to that when it's necessary to do so in Jihād as is the case here, then it's permissible, for the permissibility of lying, walking with pride (in war), wearing silk has been narrated (in the Hadīths), so whatever would fall under its same category would be permissible, and what is similar .to these Harām acts are also permitted in times of necessity

But as for the issue of raising the cross and idols, which has reverence to their Kufr symbols, then it's not permissible, because this is not permitted except in the case of Ikrāh (compulsion) alone, :however some of the Scholars have permitted it, and they have proofs, such as

That some of them do not differentiate between Ikrāh (Compulsion) and Darūrah (Necessity), so .1 .they make what is permitted in the case of Darūrah to be permitted in the case of Ikrāh

.Based upon the Hadīth of Muhammad Ibn Maslamah when he killed Ka'b Ibn al-Ashraf .2

Based upon the Hadīth of Al-Hajjāj Ibn 'Alāt .3

That if the Kuffār wage war against the Muslims and capture them, certainly they would kill or .4 imprison or drive them out of their land, so this is like Ikrāh, since they are waging war against them, this is like they are compelling the muslims to perform this action, and Kufr is permitted in .Ikrāh if the heart is filled with Ēmān

And these proofs are not free from criticism and debate, except for the 4th proof, for indeed if the situation of the Muslims is like that, until it reached to the limit of Ikrāh, to deter the Muslims from being killed and imprisoned, then it becomes permissible (in that situation) and Allāh knows best, except that this is in a specific scenario where the people of knowledge issue a Fatwa when it .occurs in accordance to the Principles of the Sharī'ah, and Allāh knows best

Do not be like Muhājir Umm Qays and migrate "solely" to marry a woman. Fear Allāh my dear brother & purify your intentions for wanting the pleasure of Allāh. Jannāh is what you must strive for, don't waste your time thinking about women.

Ibn Qays(رحمه الله) said: "Preserve your gatherings from mentioning women"

And subhānAllāh if you see the reality of men today (even myself), we tend to talk about women.

We are better than this, one of the greatest fears of getting married in our times is holding onto the Dunyā more.

Allāh comes first, we must repent to Allāh and preserve our time, Allāh has written the name of your spouse, when it's the right time, Allāh knows what's best for you, your Naseeb will come Inshā'Allāh.

Don't let women distract you from focusing on learning your Dīn and studying the Pure Tawhīd. Infact, if you are only here to impress women, stalk them and try marry them, then you're really selfish. What good are you doing for the Ummah if you're posting Da'wah or jokes for the opposite gender to like you, don't you feel ashamed to use our beautiful Dīn for personal gain? May Allāh forgive you my brother (I'm speaking very generally - I have no one in mind).

If you want a wife, I'm telling you, Facebook isn't the right way to go about it, infact almost all girls will turn you off, except a few, may Allāh preserve them and increase our Ummah in sisters who love Tawhīd and the Haqq.

And don't speak to non-Mahrams under the pretext of "I'm wanting to marry her", Allāh won't accept such an excuse, this takes away the Barakah of your marriage. Atleast many of the older generation, despite their ignorance of Tawhīd, had Hayā' (shyness and modesty) and would get married by seeing the other person's family. But these days, Allāh ul-Musta'ān...

Asalāmu 'alaykum brothers.

The gofundme donations account that was created for the sister who has 2 children is not going to be able to take donations anymore. I received an email saying that donations are blocked. We have organised a bank account to receive donations for the sister in need. This is a better way to receive donations for her inshallah. The bank details are below.

Bank type: NAB
Bsb: 083-673

My brothers who are following the affairs of the Ummah 24/7, and listening to Shaykhs on youtube here and there. I was just like you as well, however I realized that focusing way too much on politics didn't bring much benefit. Infact, for the past 10 years (except for the last 1-2 years), I did not really do any structured studies, I was all over the place, from spending most of my time following politics, giving da'wah to christians, watching a lot of debates on satellite channels, I spent a lot of my early teenage years refuting the Rafidah and Sufiyyah. Among the positives of growing up learning about all these distorted people and listening to all different speakers from all sects is that it made me firmer in my own 'Aqeedah and the way I view politics.

However, what I was lacking is structured studies of the deen, so what I'm trying to tell you is that focusing all your time and efforts in talking about politics will make you have a deficiency in your knowledge of the deen.

Also because we need to open our eyes and see the reality of the Ummah, most of the muslims are "ignorant moderates" or have "irjaa" correct? Therefore, what I decided was the best thing to do is to reach towards those people, and I can tell you for a fact, 99% of these people have no clue about what's going on, infact they are ignorant of many matters of Tawheed.

So among the best ways to bring them back to Tawheed is to teach them Fiqh & Hadith etc....then you can share some knowledge of Tawheed, and if they have questions, no problem, be kind and soft with them or else they would run away from you. If you don't show good manners in your Da'wah, do not complain about people not accepting the Haqq. People are not going to come to Tawheed straight away, you gotta take them step by step.

It's extremely necessary to mix up your Da'wah with Tawheed and other sciences of Islam, including politics to show them the reality of what's going on. But if you're solely going to post "politics" and "Takfeer", no one is going to listen to you.

Structured studies brings a lot of benefit to yourself as well, we complain about so many "Sell outs" which is true, I don't disagree with you, however what are you doing my beloved brother?

The problem is that we have alot of wicked sell out Speakers/Shaykhs, but then on the other side, we have a lot of brothers who love the Haqq, but are ignorant of the Deen so they are unable to explain the important matters of the Sharee'ah properly, and on top of that, many lack good manners. So tell me how people are going to listen to you when you lack "knowledge" and "manners", ofcourse they are going to listen to Mufti Menk and other Deceivers.

So my humble advice to the brothers here, is do what you're good at. I'm not telling everyone to be a student of knowledge, we need all sorts of professions, however we are in dire need of real people of knowledge, or else people will go elsewhere and listen to Juhhal. So those who are serious about the deen, focus on mastering the Arabic as this is the key to all the sciences in Islam, infact you will love what Ibn Hajr has mentioned regarding the Nawaqidh al-Islam.

I would only speak about something that is relevant and because I love you guys, otherwise I wouldn't have any use in writing this, may Allah keep you all upon the Siraat al-Mustaqeem.

A woman humbling herself before a man through her soft speech is something that Allah prohibited the pure wives of the Prophet ﷺ from doing, making it all the more reason to have other women included in that prohibition:

{ فَلَا تَخْضَعْنَ بِالْقَوْلِ فَيَطْمَعَ الَّذِي فِي قَلْبِهِ مَرَضٌ }

"Then do not be soft in speech [to men], lest he in whose heart is disease should be moved with desire." [Al-Aḥzāb 32:33]

The Hadith: {Those who rule over you will be in accordance to the way you are (i.e. In terms of righteousness etc...)}.

It was narrated by al-Bayhaqī(رحمه الله), and he said this is "Disconnected", and it comes from the narration of Yahya Ibn Hāshim, and he's weak. Al-Hāfidh [Ibn Hajr] said: "And there are unknown narrators in the chain", and it's narrated from a Mursal path (this narration is not authentic).

~ Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Khudayr(حفظه الله).

Side Note: Shaykh Nāsir al-Dīn al-Albānī(رحمه الله) also gathered the chains of narration in "Silsilat al-Aḥādīth al-Da'īfah" (1/490) and classified it as "Weak", and he also mentioned: "The reality denies this, for verily History has informed us about Great Leaders taking power after Bad Leaders, and the population (under their rule) remain the way they are.

It's not sufficient to take your Dīn from someone who has a lot of knowledge, he/she must also fear Allāh and have Taqwa (i.e. God-Consciousness). The reason being is because a pious person will not lie about the religion of Allāh, their hearts are pure and their lips speak the truth.

Whether they are correct or mistaken is a separate issue, but Allāh loves them as long as they say "Allāh said" and "The Prophet said", holding firmly onto the Principles of Ahl al-Sunnāh wal-Jamā'ah. The righteous people of knowledge are fair and just, kind & merciful to the believers and stern against the disbelievers, they are people of proof and actions to their words, may Allāh reward them.

We are all sinners & no one is infallible, so do not use the excuse of being a sinner to stop you from changing for the better. Your sincerity and truthfulness can raise you really high in the eyes of Allāh. Hide your good deeds just like you hide your bad deeds, may Allāh resurrect you with those you love, on a day where the liars and hypocrites of this Dunyā will be exposed for who they really are.

Forgive me for giving another reminder.

There's no authentic Marfū' Hadīth from the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) for fasting "The White Days", but rather it has been (authentically) narrated from 'Omar Ibn al-Khattāb, Ibn Mas'ūd and Abū Dhar. And from the Tābi'īn, al-Hassan al-Basrī and al-Nakha'ī.

~ Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Khudayr (حفظه الله)

Note: Among the Major Contemporary Scholars of Hadīth who weakened the Marfū' narration are Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān, Shaykh 'Abdullāh al-Sa'd and Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tarēfē.

Question: What about the Hadīths that say to fast 3 days of every month?

Answer: The Hadīth where the Prophet (صلى الله عليه وسلم) said: "It is sufficient for you to fast three days of every month, because for every good deed, you will have (the reward of) ten like it, so that will be like fasting for a lifetime"

Shaykh 'Abdul 'Azīz al-Tarēfē حفظه الله says, you can fast {any} 3 days of the month to receive that amazing reward, those Hadīths in Bukhārī & Muslim don't specify "The White Days", even though some Scholars have tried to include it.

So there's no Authentic Marfū' Hadīth where the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) said to specifically fast the white days, however it has been firmly established by the Sahābah.

Also this Hadīth > It was narrated that Abu Dharr said: The Messenger of Allaah (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said to me: "If you fast any part of the month, then fast the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth."

Narrated by al-Tirmidhi (761); al-Nasaa'i (2424).

This hadeeth was classed as hasan by al-Tirmidhi, and al-Albaani agreed with him in Irwa' al-Ghaleel, 947.

1. So this Hadīth mentions the 13th, 14th, 15th, and al-Hāfidh Ibn Hajr(رحمه الله) said it's Authentic and Mawqūf upon Abī Dhar رضي الله عنه, but rather some narrators mistakenly added "Abū Dhar reported that the Prophet said to me...", rather it should be "Abū Dhar said..."

2. Many Later Scholars don't understand the terminology of Imām al-Tirmidhī(رحمه الله) correctly, so islamqa said "Al-Tirmidhī graded it hassan", however the definition of "Hassan" according to Imām al-Tirmidhī(رحمه الله) doesn't mean "Hassan" according to the definition of the Later Scholars which is just beneath Sahīh, rather Imām Abū 'Īsa al-Tirmidhī(رحمه الله) defined what is meant by hassan in the end of his book "al-Jāmi", and that it's a Hadīth that has been narrated through several chains, there's no liar or person accused of fabricating in the chain, and it doesn't have any irregularities. Those are the 3 conditions he set for a Hadīth to be "Hassan", so the Hadīth could still be "Disconnected", have weak narrators and this is numerous throughout his book "al-Jāmi" or as it's also known as "Sunan al-Tirmidhī".

I hope this helps, and Allāh knows best.

*My husband won't speak to me in Turkish* ❧

The wife of Shaykh 'Umar Uzbek told Shaykh Taqī ul-Dīn who was a very close friend of 'Umar Uzbek ('Umar Uzbek was a Turkish man who fought the russians in Afghānistān), she said:

"Yā Shaykh, my husband 'Umar Uzbek doesn't talk to us except in Arabic, we don't understand Arabic, we want him to talk to us in Turkish, why doesn't he talk to us in the language that we understand, he would only talk to us in Arabic, could you please talk to him, even if merely for an hour a day just talk to us in the Turkish Language"

Taqī ul-Dīn said I talked to 'Umar Uzbek and said "Why don't you talk to your family in the Turkish language"

So 'Umar Uzbek said: "When we were under the rule of Russia, any time Russia annexed a country and took it, the first thing the russians did was compel us to learn their russian language perfectly, by force! And we had to learn it, unless they know that learning the russian language will make the person who learns it follow their ways of thinking, character and tradition, they would not have forced anybody to learn it..."

He went on to say, "I vow to not talk to my family except in the Language of the Qur'ān and the Prophet Muhammad(صلى الله عليه وسلم), if they so agree, they can talk to me, if they don't, then I will have no use in talking to them"

This is a really interesting explanation:

"Shaykh Muhammad Ibn 'Abdul Wahhāb(رحمه الله) said: "Even though most of the Kuffār and Munāfiqīn didn't understand the Hujjah of Allāh while it has been established upon them, Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: "Or do you think that most of them hear or reason?" [Al-Furqān:44]

Then he gave examples of those who the Hujjah has been established upon, however they did not understand it, such as: The Khawārij, and those that believed in (the divinity of) 'Alī Ibn Abī Tālib(رضي الله عنه), and the Ghulāt al-Qadariyyah" [Tārikh Najd page 410]."

Sharh of Shaykh al-'Allāmah 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله):

*He has given 3 examples of those who the Hujjah had been established upon*

“Those who believed in (the divinity of) 'Alī”: Meaning, they believed He was a God, and these are the Ghulāt, they believed in the divinity of 'Alī during his lifetime.

Has the Hujjah been established upon these people? Yes, what is the type of Hujjah? The Place (i.e. Makān), they were in al-Madīnah, they were living among the Muslims, and they were punished, he (i.e. 'Alī Ibn Abī Tālib) burnt them with fire.

“And the Ghulāt al-Qadariyyah”: Those who negate (Allāh's) knowledge, these are Kuffār according to the Ijmā' of the Salaf, they denied Allāh's prior knowledge (pertaining matters of the whole universe), and the Hujjah has been established upon these people, despite not understanding it, and thinking that they are upon the Haqq, and they thought that this is the (Correct) Religion, so Ibn 'Omar(رضي الله عنه) made Barā'ah from them, and the Salaf have unanimously agreed upon making Takfīr upon them, and they (i.e. Ghulāt al-Qadariyyah) thought that they are upon the Haqq, but this did not benefit them.

“Such as the Khawārij”: The Khawārij, their issue is one of innovation, and therefore it must be pondered over.

How has the Hujjah been established upon the Khawārij, while they have not understood it?

And this in reality is a place of dispute, because the issue that the Khawārij fell into is from the Unclear Matters, and as long as it's an unclear matter, it requires removing (any) misconception from them, we'll break it down, we will ponder (over this) and break it down, and we'll mention to you some of what I made Ijtihād in, and we'll see if some of the brothers have any comments to make.

(As for) The Khawārij, Allāh knows best, but as for the issues of innovation such as making Takfīr due to Major Sins, this is an {Unclear Matter}, perhaps the Shaykh (i.e. Muhammad Ibn 'Abdul Wahhāb) doesn't intend this, and perhaps he intended what is related to their transgression against the rights of the people, due to them transgressing against others, and they have oppressed and killed (muslims).

So it turned into a {Clear Matter}, and it is the issue of killing, and the Hujjah in the Clear Matters is the "Place", and it's not necessary that he understands (the Hujjah) and becomes convinced of it, because they killed one of the sons of the Sahābah, 'Abdullāh Ibn Khabbāb, and they assaulted others, so (from) here, the Sahābah fought them, (such as) 'Alī and whoever was with him, due to the oppression and transgression that they did, not because of the Unclear Matters, this can be referred back too (in the previous chapters) and Allāh knows best.

Killing is one thing, i.e. (There is) a Tā'ifah among the people of innovation, if the Tā'ifah had authority and abstained (from the commands of Allāh) and transgressed, then it is fought as the worst (of groups) to be killed.

Consequently the Khawārij were present in the time of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) as specific individuals from "al-Khuwasirah" and they were not fought.

And they started off as being people of innovation in the time of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم), however they did not assemble together during the time of 'Alī(رضي الله عنه), and that is why in the beginning of their affairs, 'Alī(رضي الله عنه) would leave them (alone), 'Alī(رضي الله عنه) left them in "al-Kūfa", so they were left alone and weren't fought.

However they were left alone until they assembled together (i.e. Formed a group) and became a Tā'ifah Mumtani'ah that possesses authority, then they transgressed, so right now that's enough, they must be fought as the worst of people to be killed, and this is applied upon the people of deviation in general, and this is what appears (to be most correct) to me, and meanwhile there still remains room (to further elaborate) if something else comes up (to my mind).

I'm not forcing anyone to accept anything I share, but ya'nī if your main priorities in life is to criticise and condemn "my Da'wah", I would appreciate it if you could "specify" which part of my Da'wah bothers you, instead of making general statements.

Shaykh Ahmad Jibrīl حفظه الله advised us to not let Da'wah get personal, we must renew our intentions at all times. We do not post for people to "accept us" or "love" us, we post to please Allāh, whether people like it or not.

I'm not infallible, nor are the Scholars I share knowledge from, so if you see any mistakes, it would be nice of you to discuss with me and teach me, instead of hiding and laughing with your friends about "my mistakes".

SubhānAllāh there are so many childish people who come online to insult and attack others, yet you will find they give "no Da'wah" at all, infact their Da'wah is only "Refuting others" ما شاء الله

Like, I would respect them if they actually showed us how to give proper Da'wah, however by Allāh, all I see from them is making fun of the "good" brothers and sisters, while defending & making excuses for the Tawāghit and Murtaddīn.

Forgive me guys, I do not like to speak about people unless it brings some benefit (i.e. Warn against their deviation etc...).

And these people are the least of my worries, I have other issues to deal with, Alhamdulillah. However I should really avoid posting on social media every day and preserve my time, doing what's beneficial. Inshā'Allāh I'm working on it, there is Da'wah outside of Facebook as well.

This year was very nice for Da'wah and I'm happy that some brothers/sisters have benefitted, however I'm gonna start working again Inshā'Allāh, so I hope others can step up :) I know people don't like to read long posts, however you won't benefit much from reading short general reminders, so Inshā'Allāh I'll continue with the transcribing and translating and try my best to avoid writing posts like these, may Allāh accept from us and bring benefit from our secular and islamic studies.

I don't like it when brothers say "You can change the girl you're marrying, she is like a sponge".

Firstly my dear brother, there's also a chance that she can change you, so don't get your hopes up.

Secondly, I don't like this "Marrying to change him/her" to begin with, not only because it works both ways, as it has occurred with the Salaf who married innovators, but because it goes to show how ignorant people are of their Dīn.

Shaykh Muhammad Ibn 'Abdul Wahhāb(رحمه الله) said in "al-Usūl al-Thalāthah":

إِغْلَمْ رَحِمَكَ اللَّهُ، أَنَّهُ يَجِبُ عَلَى كُلِّ مُسْلِمٍ وَ مُسْلِمَةٍ تَعْلَمُ هَذِهِ الْمَسَائِلِ الثَّلَاثِ وَالْعَمَلُ بِهِنَّ

He says, "Know, may Allāh have mercy on you, that it is obligatory on every {Muslim} and {Muslimah}, to learn and act upon the following three matters."

Here he says knowing the 3 Fundamental Principles of Tawhīd is obligatory upon every {Muslim} brother and sister, this is whether you're single or not, so don't wait until marriage to learn your Dīn.

A sister shouldn't have to be "Changed", rather she should learn her 'Aqīdah firmly and understand it, likewise she should be aware of the affairs of the Ummah, who is upon the Haqq and who is upon the Bātil, making Barā'ah from the Munāfiqīn and Murtaddīn. An extra bonus would be if she knew Arabic and studies from the Righteous Scholars of our time. But if she loves Imām Anwar al-'Awlākī(رحمه الله) and Shaykh Ahmad Jibrīl(حفظه الله), that's fine Inshā'Allāh.

Remember my dear brother, the woman you are marrying will be the mother for your children. Ensure that she is firm and well-mannered so she can raise humble lions and lionesses, not chickens like the Murji'ah rejects.

That's all I wanted to say, I had to let it go off my mind because so many brothers have told me this, I know that people will disagree, this is only my opinion on the matter, and I can be wrong, and Allāh knows best.

A Trap in Seeking Knowledge - Don't get stuck speaking about seeking knowledge to the point where you don't end up seeking knowledge. I love to spend my life seeking Islamic knowledge (especially Hadīth), however this alone is not enough, as there will be no difference between me and the sell-outs. What matters most to me is whether Allāh is pleased with me, and acting upon my basic knowledge that I have learnt, for the sake of granting victory to this Dīn.

BETWEEN FOLLOWING THE EVIDENCE, AND IMITATING THE SCHOLARS.

By Shaykh Sulaymān Ibn Nāsir al-'Alwān(حفظه الله).

All praise is due to Allah, the Lord of the worlds. And to what follows

Some of the brothers have asked the question: What is the ruling concerning two who differ in a fiqh matter? Is it the right of every individual to take the words of the imaam of his madhhab [school of thought], or should they research the matter and look into the evidences? Inform us of the ruling and may Allah reward you greatly.

So I answered them:

If there isn't any clear evidence in a matter and the ruling of a matter is based on Ijtihād [1], then it is on the Muslim to follow the one whom he thinks is the most knowledgeable and pious from the people [2], and there is no blame on him if he does that.

As for the matter where there is evidence, then it is not allowed for a Muslim to take the words of his Imaam if those words go against the evidence. Instead, it is on him to leave the words of his Imaam, whoever he may be, if the evidence has reached him, and this is obligatory on the entire creation.

For the words of the scholars are in need of evidence and not vice a versa. Indeed the words of the scholars help to understand the texts and explain the matters and so forth.

As for the words of the scholars being an authority over the words of Allah and His Messenger, then none of the scholars have ever stated this. Instead this goes against the Quran and the Sunnah and the consensus of the Muslims, since Allah has commanded us to follow His Book and to obey His Messenger in many places in the Quran. Allah has said:

وَأَطِيعُوا اللَّهَ وَالرَّسُولَ لَعَلَّكُمْ تُرْحَمُونَ

“..and obey Allah and the Messenger so that you may receive mercy.” [3: 132]

And Allah said:

قُلْ أَطِيعُوا اللَّهَ وَأَطِيعُوا الرَّسُولَ

“Say! Obey Allah and obey the Messenger.” [24: 84]

And Allah said:

خَذِرُوا الَّذِينَ يُخَالِفُونَ عَنْ أَمْرِهِ أَنْ تُصِيبَهُمْ فِتْنَةٌ أَوْ يُصِيبَهُمْ عَذَابٌ أَلِيمٌ

“Let those who contradict his orders beware lest a trial or a painful punishment befall them.” [24: 63]

And Allah said:

يَا أَيُّهَا الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا أَطِيعُوا اللَّهَ وَرَسُولَهُ وَلَا تَوَلَّوْا عَنَّهُ وَاتَّبِعُوا تَسْمَعُونَ * وَلَا تَكُونُوا كَالَّذِينَ قَالُوا سَمِعْنَا وَهُمْ لَا يَسْمَعُونَ * إِنَّ شَرَّ الدَّوَابِّ عِنْدَ اللَّهِ الصُّمُّ الْبُكْمُ الَّذِينَ لَا يَعْقِلُونَ... الآية

“O you who believe! Obey Allah and His Messenger, and do not turn away from him while you are able to hear. And do not be like those who say: “We have heard,” but they do not hear. Verily! The worst of living creatures in the sight of Allah are the deaf and the dumb, those who do not understand.” [8: 20]

Verily the scholars [may Allah's mercy be upon them], used to advise their students not to blindly follow. Instead they made it binding on them to take the evidence since this is what is obligatory and a must for all the Muslims. So if the evidence reaches someone then he must follow that evidence and leave whatever opposes that evidence. Allah has said:

اتَّبِعُوا مَا أُنْزِلَ إِلَيْكُم مِّن رَّبِّكُمْ وَلَا تَتَّبِعُوا مِنْ دُونِهِ أَوْلِيَاءَ قَلِيلًا مَّا تَذَكَّرُونَ

“Follow what has been sent down unto you from your Lord, and do not follow any protectors besides Him. Little do you remember.” [8: 21]

And Allah even bore witness to the guidance of the one who obeys His Messenger, as is mentioned in Surah an-Noor:

“And if you obey him you will be guided.” [24: 54]

So whoever leaves the evidences for the words of Abu Haneefah or Maalik or Ash-Shaafi’ee or Ahmad, then he has gone against a principle that the Muslims have all gathered upon. Imaam A-Shaafi’ee [may Allah’s mercy be upon him], has stated:

قال الإمام الشافعي رحمه الله تعالى: أجمع المسلمون على أن من استبان له سنة رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم لم يكن له أن يدعها لقول أحد

“The Muslims have all agreed that if a sunnah of the Prophet ‘s has reached someone, it is not befitting that he leave it for the saying of anyone.”

And Imaam Maalik [may Allah’s mercy be upon him], said:

قال الإمام مالك رحمه الله تعالى: ليس أحد بعد النبي صلى الله عليه وسلم إلا ويؤخذ من قوله ويترك، إلا النبي صلى الله عليه وسلم

“There is no one after the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him, except that their words may be accepted or rejected.”

So, as for those who are fanatics in following the Imaam of the particular madhhab, then this goes against the guidance of the predecessors, and is in opposition to what the Imaams of those madhhab were upon. Since they were all agreed upon the dispraise of blind following and fanaticism. Verily, it is obligatory on the Muslim to go with the evidence, whether it be with the Maalikee school, or the Hanafee school, or the Shafi’ee school, or the Hanbalee school, or the Dhaahiree [3] school, or any other school. As Allah did not confine the truth to any of these schools, since the scholars of these schools were men, who were capable of being correct and also making mistakes. They were not infallible from mistakes and errors.

Imaam A-Shafi’ee [may Allah’s mercy be upon him] said:

قال الإمام الشافعي رحمه الله: ما من أحد إلا وتذهب عليه سنة الرسول صلى الله عليه وسلم وتعزب عنه، فمهما قلت من قول أو أصلت من أصل فيه عن رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم خلاف ما قلت، فالقول ما قال الرسول صلى الله عليه وسلم وهو قولي

“There is no one among us who has not had a sunnah of Allah’s Messenger elude him or have one slip his mind; so no matter what rulings I have made or fundamental principles I have proposed, there will be in them things contrary to rulings of Allah’s Messenger. Therefore, the correct ruling is according to what Allah’s Messenger said, and that is my ruling.”

Verily, the scholars [may Allah have mercy on all of them] have disputed on many matters in the religion. From the rulings concerning purification, prayer, zakah, fasting, Hajj, selling, divorce, adh-Dhihaar [4], and other things. While none of these scholars, who were firm in knowledge, ever said that it was allowed for every individual to take from where he pleases, concerning the different schools, without looking into the evidence, the exception being the blind follower who is not able to research into the evidences.

If it was permitted for every Muslim to follow his desires and pick and choose from all these different opinions and sayings, then the religion would be made up of these various schools of thought, and the Book and the Sunnah would be of little benefit. And we seek refuge with Allah from this!

So I say that which all the Muslims have agreed upon, that it is obligatory to take all matters of dispute back to the Book and the Sunnah, according to the understanding of the scholars of the early generation; looking into their words, and into their reasonings behind certain decisions on matters after looking into the evidences.

For example the scholars have disputed on the matters of what nullifies your purification. Like eating camel meat, touching a woman without sexual contact, and things that exit the body from other than the two private areas [5]. For some have said that these things that exit, nullify your purification and at the same time are impure. Verily, every imaam had a saying about these matters. Concerning the eating of camel meat, Maalik, Abu Haneefah, and Ash-Shaafi’ee, were of the opinion that it does not nullify your purification. But, on the other hand, Imaam Ahmad [may Allah’s mercy be upon him] was of the opinion that it did. And this was also what Ibn Hazm preferred.

The correct opinion concerning this, is the madhhab of Imaam Ahmad, since there are two authentic hadeeths from the Prophet that prove that the eating of camel meat nullify your purification. One of them is the hadeeth of Jaabir bin Samurah in Saheeh Muslim [6], and the other is the hadeeth of Al-Baraa collected by Abu Dawood [7] and At-Tirmidhee [8], and others.

As for the touching of the women or embracing or similar to this, then Imaam Ash-Shafi’ee was of the opinion that touching a woman nullifies your purification whether it is with passion or not. And Abu Haneefah was of the opinion that unconditional touching does not nullify your purification. And Maalik and Ahmad in one narration were of the opinion that it does not nullify your purification except with passion.

So, for the one who examines the various evidences in this matter will find that the Hanafee school is the closest to the correct opinion. And in one narration, this opinion is also accredited to Imam Ahmad and is also the preference of Shaikh ul-Islam Ibn Taymiah. Since there has not reached us any evidence that is authoritative in proving that touching nullifies the purification whether with passion or without. So in the absence of evidence, we return to the origin which is that the purification is not nullified. And the madhhab of Abu Haneefah is more clear on this issue than the other schools, since it has been narrated to us that the Prophet kissed his wives, left to the prayer, and he did not make wudu [ritual ablution]. While, at the same time, it is not narrated to us in the hadiths that it was with or without passion. Even though there is some problem with the authenticity of this hadith. Verily it was narrated by Abu Dawood, At-Tirmidhee, and Ibn Maajah, by the way of Wakee', on the authority of al-A'mash, on the authority of Hubayb bin abee Thaabit, on the authority of Urwah, on the authority of Aaisha, but there is deficiency in it. As Hubayb did not hear it from Urwah. [9] But there are other hadiths that are authentic concerning this matter. And Allah knows best.

As for the things that exit from the body like blood and other things, then the madhhab of Imaam Ahmad says that these things nullify your purification. But the madhhab of Imaam Ash-Shafi'ee says that any of these absolutely do not nullify your purification. And this is the correct opinion, which is also supported by Imaam Maalik and in one narration from Imaam Ahmad. And this is the conclusion that Ibn Taymiah and many others came to. Since there is no evidence, that anything which exits from your body, other than the two private areas, nullifies your purification.

So these examples that I gave, are to show that the truth is not limited to a specific scholar, group, or school of thought. Verily, the Muslim is not commanded to follow and stick to a specific school of thought. Instead, he should seek out the truth, as every school of thought is correct in some things, and mistaken in others.

As the school of the Hanbalees are correct in many of the rulings in the matters of this religion. likewise the Shaafi'ees, the Maalikees, and the Hanafees [are also right in many rulings]. While, at the same time, Imaam Ibn Hazm was alone in some of his opinions which actually are the correct opinion. Many of the scholars differed due to the availability of the evidences, distinguishing between the authentic and the weak, between the things that abrogate and are abrogated, and between the unconditional [mutlaq] and the qualified [muqayyad]. So the one who is in the right follows the one who has the truth with him without being biased. Likewise he opposes the mistakes without slandering or defaming someones person, or putting him at a low level. Since these scholars were striving to reach the correct opinion [mujtahidoon], and whether they were correct or incorrect, they will be rewarded either way.

So, after this, it is not obligatory on anyone to follow one of these scholars. And whoever thinks this has strayed far away from the correct path. Verily, it is not obligatory to follow anyone except the Messenger of Allah , since his saying is all truth and he does not speak from his own desire.

As for any others from the scholars and the Imaams of the various schools of thought, then we don't take from their words except what agrees with the truth. And this is a serious matter that none deem important except the one who wishes to be guided and save his soul from falling into evil.

How many are the ones who claim to have knowledge and are busy writing, except that they are fanatics headed for destruction, and blind followers. They are angered by those who go against their particular Imaam but are not angered by those who go against the Book of Allah or the sunnah of the Messenger of Allah .

So the correct one is he who makes the Book of Allah and the sunnah of His Messenger the ruling over all sayings. Even if those who disagree, disagree with him and accuse him of heresy. Indeed, it has become a common practice of those who blindly follow and are fanatics, to label those who differ with them as heretics and astray. And this is the status of every liar, and the one who is a deviant from the truth and the straight path since when he is unable to provide the proof and the evidence he resorts to these types of tactics.

Verily, there is evidence in the Book of Allah and the sunnah of the Prophet , that the truth will have many enemies fighting against it, trying to prevent it from being manifest. They come with various molds that support their intellects, and satisfy their desires.

For the person on the truth, he should put all his efforts into it so as not to be shaken away from this truth that he is on. He should call others to this truth and Allah will provide him with help and support. And he will remain victorious as long as he is trying to give victory to the religion and the truth, with full sincerity to Allah and their will not cease to be aid from Allah as long as he stays on this way. Allah has said:

يَنْ جَاهِدُوا فَبِمَا لَنْهَدِيَنَّهُمْ سُبُلَنَا وَإِنَّ اللَّهَ لَمَعَ الْمُحْسِنِينَ

“As for those who strive hard in Us [Our cause], We will surely guide them to Our paths. And verily, Allah is with the Muhsinun [good doers].” [29: 69]

Also Allah has said:

يَا أَيُّهَا الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا إِنِ تَنْصُرُوا اللَّهَ يَنْصُرْكُمْ وَيُثَبِّتْ أَقْدَامَكُمْ

“O you who believe! If you help (in the cause of) Allah, He will help you, and make your foothold firm.” [47: 7]

And whoever Allah helps then that is indeed enough against the evil of His enemies.

But the help will not come until there are first two things:

Sincerity to Allah in both sayings and actions.
In accordance with the guidance of the Prophet Muhammad.
So if these two conditions are met then nothing can oppose him, even if they were to all come together from the east and the west. Allah has said:

إِنْ يَنْصُرْكُمُ اللَّهُ فَلَا غَالِبَ لَكُمْ وَإِنْ يَخْذُلْكُمْ فَمَنْ ذَا الَّذِي يَنْصُرُكُمْ مِنْ بَعْدِهِ وَعَلَى اللَّهِ فَلْيَتَوَكَّلِ الْمُؤْمِنُونَ

"If Allah helps you, none can overcome you; and if He forsakes you, who is there after Him that can help you? And in Allah [Alone] let believers put their trust." [3: 160]

And all praise is due to Allah. W'al hamdu lillah rabbil aalameen

Drilon Ga Is he on the right Manhaj? I read that he praised Shaykh alwan, but i also heard other things

26 December 2016 00:26

Radwan Dakkak His Manhaj of Hadīth is correct and goes along the path of the Salaf, and Sh. Khālīd al-Hāyek says from what he knows is that Sh. 'Abdul Karīm al-Khudayr is upon the methodology of the Early Scholars in Hadīth. Ofcourse, there might be some differences, but his Manhaj in Fiqh and Hadīth is correct. As for 'Aqīdah, this is something which requires further research, as I do not study 'Aqīdah from him, but there's nothing wrong with taking his Hadīth & Fiqh Inshā'Allāh. والله اعلم

26 December 2016 00:30

Shaykh 'Abdul Karīm al-Khudayr(حفظه الله) was asked: "I made Wudū' for Salāh and wiped over the socks, and when I finished (from wiping), I remembered that the duration of wiping over the socks has expired, so I went back to wash my feet immediately, so did I do the right thing?"

Shaykh 'Abdul Karīm al-Khudayr(حفظه الله) responded by saying: "If you made Wudū' and wiped over the socks, then remembered that the duration (of being able to wipe over the socks) has expired - which is 1 day and night for the resider, and 3 days including its nights for the traveller - then you went back immediately before wiping the (wet) body parts (with a towel etc...), and washed your feet, then what you did is correct; Because maintaining the order (for Wudū') is mandatory, so it's necessary upon you to wash your feet for Wudū', and thereupon it would be valid, but if the elapsed-time prolonged and you wiped the (wet) body-parts that come before the feet, then it's required to start all over again (i.e. Repeat the Wudū'), because maintaining the order (of Wudū') is Obligatory."

Nationalism isn't a big problem among our Youth alhamdulillah, however it's still present among the older generation. Many fathers have been attending Jum'ah for their whole life, and the Khateeb never addresses the issue of nationalism in the Khutbah, can't you see how wrong this is, and how much problems it has resulted in and division between Muslims, especially for the youth to get married etc...

Do not neglect giving Da'wah to our elders, I know it's very hard, but especially those who give Khutbah, be smart and look at what needs to be addressed and look at your audience. As Shaykh Ahmad Jibril said, look at your audience and speak on their level. This is part of the wisdoms of Da'wah, and there's a big difference between speaking on their level and watering down the religion, so make the most out of your Da'wah, and the Khutbah is the perfect time to address those important issues.

Speak to please Allah and His religion, not to please the people and make them hear what they want. Yes, once you address important issues and teach the people Tawheed, alot of people come afterwards to ask you questions, and this is a good thing, what's the point of attending a Khutbah and leaving without implementing anything new?

Remember the rule: If you hear something that you're never heard before - then guess what - you've learnt something, if you only hear the same things you've heard before, you've never learnt anything.

SubhanAllah, our situation reminds me of Al-Andalus, Imam Abu Muhammad Ibn Hazm al-Andalusi was fed up with the situation and called the Scholars "Fussaq" [Corrupt], because they were busy discussing theological issues ignoring the Ummah, while the Crusaders were taking over Muslim Cities. Compare our situation with al-Andalus, history repeats itself, we have Fussaq not only speaking about theological issues, but even condemning the Righteous servants of Allah and distorting the true teachings of Islam, banning any speech about politics & kicking muslims out of the Masajid, wala hawla wala quwata ila Billah. Can you see how messed up their priorities are? They are serving the agenda of the Kuffar, may Allah give them what they deserve.

Just a final note, forget about these Speakers, Shaykhs, Sell-Out Scholars, don't be a person who complains about "this and that", you're not any better if you sit down and do nothing. Ask Allah to give you strength and become a Scholar or Student of Knowledge, lead the way and don't rely upon others.

Insha'Allah one day, not only "Palestine" or "Kashmir" will be free, but all the Muslim Lands including the forgotten "Andalus" will be free, where a muslim will be able to travel wherever he wishes without any "fake" borders. May Allah allow us to live to see that day.

Usūl al-Fiqh by Shaykh ‘Ali al-Tamimi(حفظه الله)

Lesson (2/17) Transcribed:

The text of the Qur’ān and the Hadīth is in the Arabic language, so in order to deduce rules of fiqh, those general rules of Fiqh, it assumes the knowledge of the Arabic language. And since this course is being taught in English & for the most part I imagine the audience, English is their first language or let’s say for the most part that Arabic is not their first language, it’s going to be difficult to be taught and we’ll try our best to present the subject of Usūl al-fiqh by giving examples in English but at times, it might be difficult, because it does assume Arabic knowledge.

And Fiqh, the actual evidences of fiqh itself, one of the problems is that depending upon how extensive our knowledge is of Fiqh, we might not be able to appreciate to its fullest some of these matters of Usūl al fiqh. But at the same time, I’m sure we can learn many principles of Usūl al fiqh, we can have a good introduction to Usūl al fiqh and I think this subject is very important. And the reason why I decided to teach Usūl al fiqh in this course was basically because 4 or 5 reasons. And I’ll like to share that with you because I think these should be our goals in studying this topic over the next 6 or 7 days you have.

The first aim we should have of this course is that we should have an introduction to this topic, an introduction to this science. The science of Usūl al fiqh. In other words, after the 18th lecture or the 20th lecture, all of us will be leaving insha’Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) and we’ll have a good introduction to this topic. We’ll have said we’ve learnt something, and to help us in doing that, I have prepared, translated a small booklet about 30 pages which would be distributed tomorrow, it’s a small introduction to this topic.

The second aim we should have, that I wanted to all come out of this course is to understand that the Sharee’ah (Allāh’s law), the divine law has supremacy over everything. In other words, the standards by which humans, their behavior should be judged & their behavior should be conformed is by Allāh’s law, the shari’ah, not by reason, not by whatever they feel is right or wrong. That is the second thing which should come out of this course which I hope we’ll learn.

The third thing is an appreciation of how sharee’ah law is determined. That’s the 3rd aim I want to have in this course. In other words, when a scholar comes or you’re reading a book and it says this thing is Wajib, or this matter is disliked (makruh), or we should follow the sunnah, I mean we should appreciate how did they get to this. What does it mean by these statements, so that’s the third aim of this course.

The fourth aim of this course, this is very important to me is lessening of fanaticism and development of a spirit of tolerance.

Alhamdulillah many brothers have adopted the correct attitude of following the sunnah, this is something which is good, but unfortunately though sometimes they have fanatical opinions and they have fanatical positions and they are intolerant to other opinions. And the reason why is because many times they don’t know Usūl al-fiqh, so if there is another opinion, they immediately assume that, that other opinion is false because that person is rejecting the sunnah or is not strict to the sunnah, but in reality what it is, is that because the rules and the regulations of the sharee’ah are sometimes not of the same clarity in other words, for instance the regulation that we should pray 5 times a day, that command is not the same for instance as maybe one of the different aspects of Salāh where the Scholars have differed.

So because brothers have no idea of Usūl al-fiqh, they do not understand why scholars differ or how do they come to this point of view, sometimes they take a fanatical approach. And by understanding Usūl al-Fiqh this would help us lessen the fanaticism and would help us develop a spirit of tolerance, we would understand a little bit better when can scholars differ, why do they differ, and when is for instance differences unallowed.

The final aim I have of this course is to provide a basic response to the orientalist and the modernist. These are 2 groups of people which are very active, especially in the English language. The orientalists are those people who study Islam, they’re non-muslim. And the modernists, they follow a school of thought which has been influenced by the orientalists. And they come out with arguments sometimes, we shouldn’t follow the sunnah, the sunnah has been fabricated, sometimes they come out with the argument that reason comes before the sharee’ah and so forth and these different arguments, so by studying Usūl al-fiqh we would have some basic answers to some of their misconceptions and to some of their arguments. That’s the 5th aim I have in this course.

One of the things which we left last time & the reason why we're doing an introduction because there's really no good place to place it, is regarding knowledge and the different types of degree of certitude. Basically we can divided certitude into 5 categories;

The first being knowledge, then a little bit less than that, being that which is probable(Dhan), and then comes a doubt, then comes impalpable(or wahn) and then comes ignorance and I would like to explain each of these 5 categories and some of the sub categories in some of them.

First of all, what is knowledge, well knowledge according to the definition in Usūl al-fiqh, the definition of knowledge or 'ilm in Usūl al fiqh is to conceive of something as it is in reality, that's what knowledge is and the highest degree of certitude is when one has knowledge of something, when he conceives of something in his mind as it truly is in reality.

Now sometimes one will have a situation where there are 2 matters, one is more likely than the other, and that is known in Usūl al-fiqh as al-Dhan or we might translate in English that which is probable. So if something is knowledge, there's only 1 possibility for it, but sometimes you have 2 possibilities, one is more likely, one is more probable than the other and that which is more probable is known as al-Dhan.

Now if these 2 matters or these 2 rulings are equal, in other words both "a" and "b" the likely hood of it being "a" is the same as the likely hood of being "b", they're equal okay, then it is referred to as al-Shakk, which I have translated here as doubt. Knowledge is to conceive of something as it is in reality, sometimes we have 2 matters, one is more probable than the other, one is more likely than the other. That which is more likely is known as al-Dhan. Now what happens if they are equal, I mean there's no way we can distinguish one more than the other, it seems to us that they're both equal, impossibility, improbability, okay. We refer to this as then therefore al-Shakk.

Now when we said there were 2 matters, one is more probable than the other, the unlikely one, if "a" is more probable than "b" then the unlikely one, matter "b" is referred to as which I translated improbable, but it's known as al-wahn.

And finally the lowest category is ignorance or al-jahl which is defined as to conceive of something as it is not in reality. So if knowledge is to conceive of something as it is in reality, ignorance is to conceive of something as it is not in reality. The stronger of the 2 [matters] is dhan, and the lesser of the 2 is wahn, and if they're equalivent it's shakk.

Now knowledge according to Usūl al fiqh is 2 types. That which is known as al-'ilm al-daruri, and the other is al-'ilm al-muktassab. Al-'ilm al-daruri we might translate as necessary knowledge, while al-'ilm al-muktassab might be translated as acquired knowledge.

Al-'ilm al-daruri means that knowledge which is necessary because it's based upon the senses, in other words you know the 5 senses, hearing, sight, taste, smell and touch. When knowledge is rooted upon something like that, it becomes al-'ilm ul-daruri, you don't have to think about it, it's necessary knowledge, I mean if you see something, I see this, a red pen. I don't have to prove that it's a red pen because by my sight itself, I understand it's a red pen.

And likewise in terms of the sharee'ah al-'ilm al-daruri we gain it from something, from certain evidences of the sharee'ah sometimes gives us which is 'ilm al-daruri like the mutawatir Hadith, those Hadith which are mutawatir provide us necessary knowledge because we know it can't be a lie, or it cannot have an error in it. And ofcourse when we get into the section of the sunnah, that will become a little bit more clear.

Al-'ilm al-muktassab, acquired knowledge is that knowledge which you have to bring evidence for, you have to prove it, you have to show it, because it's not something which is just gained by the 5 senses or by such an overwhelming proof which is known by necessity. The point is that sometimes knowledge is of a different degree, in terms of the strength of it. Now ignorance which is the exact opposite of knowledge, is also 2 types;

Simple ignorance which is al-jahl al-baseet, this is when you do not know something, for instance I say to somebody "when was the battle of badr" and somebody said "Allāhu a'lam", I don't know, that's simple ignorance.

Compounded ignorance which is the worst type of ignorance, compounded ignorance or al-jahl al-murakkab, means as opposed to simple ignorance when you just do not know, al-jahl al-murakkab or compounded ignorance is when you think you know and you don't know. I'll give you an example, "when was the battle of badr" somebody says "I don't know, Allāhu a'lam", that's simple ignorance, compounded ignorance he says "It was in the 7th year of hijrah" because he thinks he knows but it's the wrong answer, that's the worst type of ignorance.

So therefore we have the 5 categories, knowledge, dhan which we said probable, shakk(doubt), wahn(improbable) and ignorance. And knowledge is 2 types, the necessary knowledge and the acquired knowledge. And ignorance is 2 types, simple ignorance and compounded ignorance.

Now when we talk about the science of Usūl al-fiqh, it's based upon knowledge('ilm) and it's based upon dhan. In other words, not every time when you come to a matter in Usūl al-fiqh or really, all the sciences in the sharee'ah, I mean it's a general rule for all the sciences in the sharee'ah, it's not always a matter of knowledge, in the sense that there's only one answer and you've conceived of that matter as it is in reality, it's not always like that. But sometimes you've only taken the more probable matter, the more probable issue, dhan.

So the first issue which is very important for us to understand, not always the sciences of the sharee'ah and Usūl al fiqh in specific because it's what we're studying, is based upon knowledge. In the sense meaning that conceiving of a matter as it truly is in reality, sometimes it's based upon dhan, the more probable, the more likely of the 2 matters, because the evidences are not that clear cut.

The law giver – Al-Hakim:

Who is the law giver, who tells us, who legislates for us laws that we are supposed to emulate and conform to. Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) alone is the lawgiver, all the sharee'ah comes from Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) and Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) alone, and the evidences is a verse from surat yusuf, there are many evidences but we'll just take one, where Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) says:

إِن الْحُكْمَ إِلَّا لِلَّهِ

That “judgment belongs only to Allāh” [12:40],

Now this is something very important for us to understand, that laws, legislations, regulations, as to what is lawful, what is not lawful, what is required, what is recommended, what is disliked, what is forbidden comes only from Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى). So somebody might ask a question, what about the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم), is he a lawgiver? The Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) is not a lawgiver, but rather the role of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) Muhammad is to convey the law and to explain it as Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) has revealed to him. So the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) is not a lawgiver, it's very important to understand.

Now that's different than saying “We do not find laws in his Sunnah” there's a difference, when we say that for instance, sometimes you might find a regulation only in the sunnah, it's not in the Qur'ān, that's one thing, meaning the source of it is in the sunnah. It's another thing to say that the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) is not a lawgiver, Just because we found it in the sunnah, it doesn't mean the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) himself initiated it, but rather Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) conveyed to us that law through the sunnah as opposed to conveying to us that law by the Qur'ān. Sometimes Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) conveys to us laws by the Qur'ān, and sometimes he conveys to us laws through the sunnah, and sometimes he conveys to us laws through both the Qur'ān and the sunnah.

So do not misunderstand it when I say the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) is not a lawgiver, that I'm sayings we do not find independent rulings in the sunnah, No, an example is the athan, the athan for prayer is required, it's an obligatory act upon the community as a whole. Somebody from the community which is known as fard al-Kifayah, which we'll talk about in the next lesson, but this is just an example that somebody in the community must give athan before the prayer, do we find any verses in the Qur'ān that tell us about the athan? No, but we find the obligation to do the athan and the manner of pronouncing the athan in the sunnah, in the Hadīth of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم), but does that mean the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) was a lawgiver in the sense that he decided to come up with the issue of the athan? No, Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) commanded that the athan be given, but through the sunnah, in other words Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) for a wisdom with him determined that this command would be delivered through the sunnah.

As opposed to the command for the laws of inheritance, the laws of inheritance, who receives what portion, what share upon death of a muslim, which of his relatives receive what share. Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) himself mentioned those shares in surat al nisa', so they came through the Qur'ān. So the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) is not a lawgiver, but the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) is a conveyor. And an example of that as a proof for that would be surah shurah [42:48], Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) says addressing the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم):

إِن عَلَيْكَ إِلَّا الْبَلَاغُ

“It is only upon you to convey”

This is one evidence from the many evidences. Likewise the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) explains to us, what was Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى)'s laws, we find that also in different evidences, among which is surah 16 verse 44, where Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) says:

وَأَنْزَلْنَا إِلَيْكَ الذِّكْرَ لِتُبَيِّنَ لِلنَّاسِ مَا نُزِّلَ إِلَيْهِمْ وَلَعَلَّهُمْ يَتَّقُوكَ

“And we have sent down upon you(meaning Muhammad) the reminder, so that you(meaning Muhammad) may clarify to the people, what has been sent down to them”.

So the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) does not himself make up the laws, but rather he only conveys and explains what Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) has legislated.

Let's give a couple more examples, this is a very important topic, look at surah 4 verse 10, Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) says:

إِنَّا أَنْزَلْنَا إِلَيْكَ الْكِتَابَ بِالْحَقِّ لِتَحْكُمَ بَيْنَ النَّاسِ بِمَا أَرَاكَ اللَّهُ

“We have sent down upon you the scripture of truth so that you may judge between the people, by what Allāh has determined”.

So here he's judging not by his own laws that he's making up, but by what Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) has commanded, and likewise I'm sure many of you might know, the verse in surat al-najm where Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) says that the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) doesn't speak of his own accord, but only what is revealed to him “wa ma yantiqū 3an al-hawa in huwa ila wahyin yu7a”.

Now let's take another question, what about the consensus (the Ijma'). One of the sources of Islamic law is as we'll see in some lectures of the future is the consensus which refers to the agreement of the scholars of the Ummah of Muhammad upon some sort of ruling. The Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) has said to us that his Ummah does not gather upon error. So when we say that there is a consensus of the scholars, does this mean they have gathered together and decided a law and so therefore collectively they became lawgivers? No, because whenever there is a consensus as we will see, one of the conditions for a consensus is that it has to be rooted in the Qur'an and the Hadith, the scholars themselves collectively(when they have a consensus) aren't making laws up, because a law only comes from Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى), that's the collective consensus.

And likewise when a scholar makes ijtiḥad, the Mujtahid, when a scholar exercises his opinion, he is exercising his opinion as we will come to the lecture of ijtiḥad in order to determine what is Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى)'s judgment regarding a matter.

Ijtiḥad is the exercise of opinion to determine what is Allāh's judgment in a matter in which there is no evidence mentioned by Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) in the Qur'an or let's say by the sunnah, so something new occurs there's no evidence in the Qur'an, there's nothing in the sunnah discussing this issue, a scholar tries to then deduce what is Allāh's judgment regarding that matter.

And so therefore he is not himself making up a law, but he's trying to determine Allāh's judgment of that matter and if he's correct, the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) says he will receive 2 rewards, but if he is in error, the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) taught us that he would only receive 1 reward for his effort.

Let's take another example, reasoning, reason, one's mind. Allāh's laws have wisdom to it, because Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) is al-hakeem, the all-wise, but with that we should understand that reason itself, one's mind itself cannot determine what is the aim or the intent of Allāh's law, and that's why Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) sent the Prophets and the messengers, that's why Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) revealed the scriptures, because if people themselves could determine that through reasoning alone, there would be no reason to send the Prophets and messengers.

Revelation is always in agreement with sound reason, and sound reasoning is always in sound agreement with revelation. But the point is that reasoning itself cannot determine what is Allāh's intent, and for this reason Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) sent the Prophets and messengers, so one himself cannot just deduce by reason itself what is Allāh's laws. So from this, we understand that the lawgiver is Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى), and the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) is not a lawgiver, but laws might appear in his sunnah, but he's not a lawgiver, but he conveys Allāh's laws and he explains Allāh's laws.

The scholars when they agree upon a matter which is known technically as ijma', they are not inventing laws or so forth, but rather as we will see in the lecture of ijma', in order for ijma' to be valid, it must be rooted in the Qur'an and Hadith. The mujtahid when he exercises his ijtiḥad, likewise he is not making up a law or introducing a law, but rather he is seeking to find Allāh's law in a matter which is not mentioned in either the Qur'an nor the Hadith, if he is correct he has 2 rewards and if he's incorrect, he receives 1 reward. And reason itself cannot determine what Allāh's intent and aim is.

When one therefore talks about a law or a ruling of a law, he has to know that this Allāh's law. You cannot then therefore just say that this is haram or this is halal or this is wajib or this is mustahab just based upon your own feelings, but rather it's Allāh's law so you have to know Allāh's ruling is regarding that and there are verses in the Qur'an which condemn those people who say that this is halal or haram without any knowledge regarding that. Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) says:

وَلَا تَقُولُوا لِمَا تَصِفُ أَلْسِنَتُكُمُ الْكَذِبَ هَذَا حَلَالٌ وَهَذَا حَرَامٌ لِّتَقْتُلُوا عَلَى اللَّهِ الْكَذِبَ ۚ إِنَّ الَّذِينَ يَفْعَلُونَ عَلَى اللَّهِ الْكَذِبَ لَا يُفْلِحُونَ

"And do not say about what your tongues assert of untruth, "This is lawful and this is unlawful," to invent falsehood about Allah . Indeed, those who invent falsehood about Allah will not succeed." [16:116]

#Reverts who aren't able to recite Sūrat al-Fātiḥah in your Salāh, take note

Narrated by 'Abdullāh ibn Abī Awfā(رضي الله عنه): A man came to the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) and said: I can not memorize anything from the Qur'an/ so teach me something which is sufficient for me. He said: Say,

سُبْحَانَ اللَّهِ وَالْحَمْدُ لِلَّهِ وَلَا إِلَهَ إِلَّا اللَّهُ وَاللَّهُ أَكْبَرُ وَلَا حَوْلَ وَلَا قُوَّةَ إِلَّا بِاللَّهِ

"Glory be to Allāh, and praise be to Allāh, and there is no god but Allāh, and Allāh is most great, and there is no might and no strength but in Allāh"

~ #Hassan_Hadīth In Sunan Abī Dāwūd(832). Al-Hāfidh ibn Hajr(رحمه الله) indicated that it is Hassan in al-Talkhees al-Habeer (1/236) as mentioned by Shaykh 'Abdūl 'Azīz al-Tarīfī

*Misconception about the Turkish Cop* #Final_Post

Sh. Abū Qatādah wrote a refutation against those who made Takfīr upon him, however the arguments he used were extremely weak, and he stressed on the issue that the Asl (general principle) of these armies is that they are individually dealt as Muslims like the rest of the population, and that what necessitates from making Takfīr upon him is making Takfīr upon "whoever doesn't make Takfīr upon him" such as his wife and family who support him, and I'll show why this is incorrect Inshā'Allāh, not from my words (as my words mean nothing), but from what the Scholars have stated:

Abū Qatādah was asked about those who make Takfīr upon the individuals of the Tawā'if al-Mumtani'ah, and was asked, what is the cause for their mistake?

Abū Qatādah replied by saying: "The cause for this mistake is Takfīr upon the individuals of the Apostate Tawā'if, without taking into consideration the Mawānī' (preventions). And this has become (i.e. The realisation of the preventions) if it was present, is the statement of the Majority of the Scholars, and that is what the principles of the Sharī'ah agree with. And unfortunately, if we had to follow the statement of those who make Takfīr (upon him), then we would (have to) make Takfīr upon everyone who agrees with him and supports him, such as his father, mother and wife. And the one who rejects that there are preventions of Takfīr isn't able to respond to this misconception, except with a mandate that doesn't coincide with the principles laid out by the Scholars"

And he also stated "So if his Islām has been affirmed with certainty, then he doesn't leave it (i.e. Islām) except with certainty, and the misconception of ignorance in the Hāl (reality) of the Hukkām (rulers) and Diyār (i.e. Different types of Lands) is extremely widespread, so it must be taken into consideration"

So the main two points that I'll be addressing are:

- 1) The Asl regarding the Tawā'if al-Mumtani'ah is that they are outwardly dealt as Kuffār, and showing that being a soldier or cop for the Tāghūt doesn't excuse him, as this nullifies the Foundation of his Religion.
- 2) Refuting the claim that making Takfīr upon the Turkish cop necessitates making Takfīr upon those who do not make Takfīr upon him, such as his wife and family.

The First Point:

- The Tā'ifah Mumtani'ah is a group that is abstaining from clear apparent laws of the Sharī'ah, and Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad(حفظه الله) said there is an Ijmā' from the Sahābah that they ruled upon them generally and individually as Kuffār, however this is a Speculative Consensus (Ijmā' Dhannī), wherein a person will not disbelieve if he denies that they were fought as Kuffār, and this also relates to the second issue that will be addressed Inshā'Allāh.

- Among the Clear Nullifiers that the Turkish cops/forces of the Tāghūt have fell into are: Abstaining from the Clear Apparent Mutawātir Symbols of the Religion, such as Ruling by the Sharī'ah, Striving in the Cause of Allāh, Walā' and Barā', Forbidding what Allāh has made Harām such as Ribā and Drinking Alcohol, infact it opposes this, not just abstains from (implementing) it.

It's a Tā'ifah that opposes whoever wants to establish the ordainments of Allāh and worship Allāh as He has ordered, and the one who opposes has a much severe ruling than the abstainer.

Allāh(جل وعلا) said: "Those who disbelieved and averted [others] from the way of Allah - We will increase them in punishment over [their] punishment for what corruption they were causing." [16:88]

It's a Tā'ifah that has fell into the Nullifier of Shirk Akbar, Shirk of Obedience and Monitoring (for the Tāghūt), and they have taken their Tāghūt as a Lord besides Allāh, who legislates for them man-made Laws, and they make Tahākum (seek judgement) from it, and they follow him in disobedience to Allāh and His Messenger(صلى الله عليه وسلم).

Allāh(جل وعلا) said: "They have taken their scholars and monks as lords besides Allah , and [also] the Messiah, the son of Mary. And they were not commanded except to worship one God; there is no deity except Him. Exalted is He above whatever they associate with Him." [9:31].

Shaykh Muhammad Ibn 'Abdul Wahhāb(رحمه الله) said: "And its Tafsīr which has no doubt pertaining it, is obeying the Scholars and Monks in disobedience to Allāh, not their supplications unto them, as it was explained by the Messenger of Allāh(صلى الله عليه وسلم) to 'Adī Ibn Hātim(رضي الله عنه) when he asked him and said: "We do not worship them. So the Prophet told him that their worship is obeying them in disobedience" [Al-Durar al-Saniyyah ~ This narration is strengthened by its numerous chains]

They have also fell into the Agreed Upon nullifier of supporting the Kuffār against the Muslims, infact they supported them against the religion of Islām itself, and they assisted them in fighting it, and extinguishing its Light, and killing and imprisoning those who call towards it (i.e. The Haqq of Islām) from the Preaches and Scholars, Allāh(جل وعلا) said: "Whoever from amongst you takes them as allies is indeed from them" [5:51]

- So it becomes clear that this is a Tā'ifah of Shirk and Apostasy, even if it claims Islām, and the Hukm (ruling) of Kufr isn't limited to being General(النوع) alone, rather it also includes their individuals, because the Shurūt (conditions) have been fulfilled with them, such as sanity(العقل), maturity(البلوغ), intent(القصد), there's no doubt they intend and choose to perform their actions, and Coercion(الإكراه) is not met with them, because they were not tortured to the extent where they could not bear it in order for them to perform this action (i.e. Be a cop for the Tāghūt), and they weren't threatened with death if they do not become one, so the Asl (general principle) is that they are Kuffār Murtaddīn individually, judging by the apparent.

- So in contrary to what Abū Qatādah said, Shaykh Walīd al-Sinānī(حفظه الله) said the armies of the Tawāghīt are all judged as Kuffār by principle (الأصل), and specific individuals who are truly exempted will be left to Allāh, however we go by the general principle and see them as a Tā'ifah of Apostasy, upholding the laws of Shirk and Kufr.

- And this is what Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad(حفظه الله) said about the Tā'ifah Mumtani'ah: "Then when it is established that they are resisting to accept and comply to anything from the Sharī'ah, there is no distinction between the individual and the group (they get the same ruling).

- And as for the forces of the Tāghūt being excused due to ignorance of the reality of the Rulers and the Talbīs (deception) of the Govt Scholars upon them, then this is not an excuse when it comes to Nullifying your Tawhīd, being among a Tā'ifah Mumtani'ah which abstains from the Apparent Laws of the Sharī'ah, and infact opposes it. The matter deals with Shirk, and as Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr حفظه الله said when it comes to the matter of ruling by other than what Allāh revealed, and whether it's a clear matter or not, he responded by saying it's a Clear Matter because it deals with Shirk, and these cops have fell into Shirk themselves, so they are not excused whatsoever in this case.

The Second Point:

- As for the claim that making Takfīr upon him necessitates making Takfīr upon his wife, mother and father because they support him and don't make Takfīr upon him, this is a mistake, because his family members are not within the Tā'ifah Mumtani'ah like him, therefore he is the one who fell into Kufr, whereas they haven't entered within the Tā'ifah al-Mumtani'ah falling into the Kufr and Shirk he has fallen into, and this is what Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad(حفظه الله) has mentioned, and the ruling regarding them falls under the issue of the 3rd Nullifier, of not making Takfīr upon the Tā'ifah Mumtani'ah he's in, and this is not unrestrictedly Kufr.

- Shaykh Walīd al-Sinānī(حفظه الله) said the Asl (general principle) regarding those in the Saudi forces are all outwardly dealt as Kuffār, and most of them, if not all believe the Saudi Rulers are Muslim, yet this did not excuse them, because they are a part of the Tā'ifah al-Mumtani'ah, serving the Tāghūt.

- Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad(حفظه الله) was asked: Is the Tablīs [Deception] of the Scholars considered an excuse in withholding from [performing] Takfīr?

Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad(حفظه الله) responded by saying: The discussion regarding the excuse in [committing] Kufr is very lengthy, wherein I wrote an unfinished draft in prison, a book by the name of: "al-Tafsīl lil-'udhr bil-Jahl wal-Ta'wīl", and what's correct is that there's no excuse for falling into Kufr, except by Ikrāh [coercion] alone, as it's mentioned in the Āyah, as for the rest of the excuses, then it is:

1. Either not an excuse to begin with, such as whoever goes into extremes [exaggeration] in the issue of excuse of ignorance, that he even excused the grave worshippers by their ignorance!

2. Or that the Muslim did not fall into Kufr to begin with, like the issue of Mistakes & Interpretation, and the discussion regarding the Tafsīl [detailed explanation] of this is very lengthy, and it requires a complete book, except that what I mentioned is only pointing out towards this matter.

So if you know this, then we shall speak about Talbīs [Deception] of the Scholars upon the masses, and is it an excuse? So we say that this is divided into two categories:

1. That the muslim falls into an action of Kufr himself, such as associating partners with Allāh and similar to that, then he isn't excused by it as I previously stated, except by Ikrah [coercion] alone, but as for Talbis [Deception] of the Scholars and their verdicts, then it's not an excuse, or else those who said: {And they will say, "Our Lord, indeed we obeyed our masters and our dignitaries, and they led us astray from the [right] way.} would be excused, and those who Allāh said about: {They have taken their scholars and monks as lords besides Allah} would be excused, and those which the Authentic Hadīth has mentioned regarding taking away knowledge: {people will take as their leaders ignorant persons who when consulted will give their verdict without knowledge. So they will go astray and will lead the people astray.} would be excused, and other than that.

2. That the Muslim doesn't fall into it [i.e. Kufr]; however he doesn't make Takfīr upon whoever does that [act of Kufr] because of a misconception that has befallen him, such as the Talbis [Deception] of these Scholars upon him and similar to that, so this person doesn't disbelieve; Because he didn't commit Kufr, and he didn't reject a text [From the Qur'ān & Sunnāh] nor Ijmā' [Consensus], and this is a branch/section of the issue "Whoever doesn't make Takfīr upon a Kāfir, then he's a Kāfir", and many mistakes occur within it, hence I will simplify the discussion regarding it, so I say:

1. The Kāfir Aslī, such as the Jew and Christian for example, so whoever doesn't make Takfīr upon him, then he becomes a Kāfir, for rejecting the texts [Qur'ān & Sunnāh] and Ijmā' [Consensus].

2. The Kāfir Murtad who openly proclaims leaving Islām after he was a Muslim, either for another religion, or for atheism and similar to that, then he is like the first type as well. [Whoever doesn't call him a Kāfir is a Kāfir]

3. The Kāfir Murtad who commits a nullifier from the agreed upon nullifiers of Islām, such as mocking the religion for example while he claims to be a Muslim, so whoever refrains from performing Takfīr upon him, then he is 1 of 2 men:

- Either he affirms that his action or statement which the text and consensus has mentioned is Kufr, however he refrains from performing Takfīr upon him because of a misconception that appeared to him, or extremely fearful [to give an opinion] and similar to that, then this person doesn't disbelieve; Because he didn't reject the text or Ijmā' [Consensus].

- Or he either disputes regarding the action or the statement, and that it's not Kufr, then the Hujjāh must be applied upon him, by showing the evidences and Ijmā' regarding this, so either he affirms that, or else he becomes a Kāfir.

4. The Kāfir Murtad who commits a nullifier which is differed upon, such as abandoning Salāh for example, so whoever withholds from performing Takfīr upon him is not a Kāfir.

*End Quote from Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad(حفظه الله)*

~ The main focus from the Fatwā is the Shaykh's words: "That the muslim falls into an action of Kufr himself, such as associating partners with Allāh and similar to that, then he isn't excused by it...", so the cop himself fell into Shirk and Kufr.

~ And then the Shaykh said: "That the Muslim doesn't fall into it [i.e. Kufr]; however he doesn't make Takfīr upon whoever does that [act of Kufr] because of a misconception that has befallen him, such as the Talbis [Deception] of these Scholars upon him and similar to that, so this person doesn't disbelieve; Because he didn't commit Kufr, and he didn't reject a text [From the Qur'ān & Sunnāh] nor Ijmā' [Consensus]...", so this includes those who didn't become a cop and fall into Shirk and Kufr, but they don't make Takfīr upon the cop, so they don't disbelieve.

• Likewise, Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله) said, a person who doesn't make Takfīr upon the Tawāghīṭ while he views them as Muslim due to certain misconceptions, he doesn't disbelieve. So the reason behind making Takfīr upon the soldiers of the Tāghūt is not because they believe the rulers are Kuffār are not, infact many are ignorant of this, but rather because they are part of a Tā'īfah Mumtani'ah who have fallen into Shirk and Kufr themselves, which render them as disbelievers, the Fatwa of Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr is below:

• Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله) was asked: A person defends the Tawāghīṭ day & night, and the Hujjāh has been established upon him tens of times, and he justifies the actions of the Tawāghīṭ, so what is the judgement of Allāh(جل وعلا) regarding this person?

Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله) responded by saying: If these Tawāghīṭ are Kuffār with their Kufr proven, and their Kufr has been proven to him, then he defends them, then this person is a Kāfir like them, Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said:

{And those who disbelieved are allies of one another}, and because his defence on their behalf is Tawallī to them,

Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: {And thus will We make some of the wrongdoers allies of others},

And Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: {And indeed, the wrongdoers are allies of one another; but Allah is the protector of the righteous},

However if he views that they are upon Islām, or their situation is obscure/unclear to him, then as long as you advised him, then you've done your job, however if he doesn't view their Kufr but he knows about their oppression and betrayal, yet still defends them, then Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said:

{And do not argue on behalf of those who deceive themselves},

And Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: {And do not be for the deceitful an advocate.}

And Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: {"My Lord, for the favor You bestowed upon me, I will never be an assistant to the criminals"}

*End Quote from Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله)*

Conclusion:

Inshā'Allāh this helps you understand the reality of the turkish cops and the ruling upon them in Islām. The Asl (general principle) is that they are outwardly judged as being Kuffār within a Tā'īfah Mumtani'ah.

#Part_4 Principle of Takfir: The description/process of establishing the Hujjah in the Clear & Unclear Matters, and there are several points under this Principle.

The First Point: The description of establishing the Hujjah in the Clear Matters:

It is conveying the proof from the Qur'ān and Sunnāh, so whoever has the proof conveyed to him or heard of it, then the Hujjah has been established upon him, and there's no stipulation of explaining it [to him] from a Scholar or anyone else, for the Hujjah that uplifts ignorance and eliminates being excused by it in the Clear Matters is the Book of Allāh and the Sunnāh of His Messenger(صلى الله عليه وسلم), and the what is meant is being conveyed the Hujjah and hearing it, not understanding the Hujjah, as it will shortly be addressed Inshā'Allāh.

The Second Point: The description of establishing the Hujjah in the Unclear Matters:

And it is the matters where the means of finding the proofs are hidden, and Ta'wil incurs from it wherein it's difficult for a morally obligated individual to comprehend it on his own, so the description/characteristic of establishing the Hujjah in it is: Conveying the proof and explaining it, and explaining what is intended by it and removing misconceptions and ambiguous interpretations from it, from whoever is able to do that, so if you've understood this difference in the characteristic of establishing the Hujjah between the Clear and Unclear Matters, many doubts would be removed from what is mentioned in the words of the Scholars when they mention the phrase “Establishing the Hujjah”.

The Third Point: The Scholars who've stated that establishing the Hujjah in the Clear Matters is done by the Qur'ān, while mentioning some of their statements:

Among the Scholars who have stated this are:

1. Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyāh(رحمه الله).
2. Imām Ibn al-Qayyīm(رحمه الله)
3. Shaykh Muḥammād ibn 'Abdūl Wahhāb(رحمه الله)
4. The A'immāt al-Da'wah such as Shaykh Ishāq ibn 'Abdūl Rahmān(رحمه الله), Shaykh 'Abdullāh Abū Butayn(رحمه الله), Shaykh Sulaymān ibn Saḥmān(رحمه الله) & others.
5. Shaykh 'Abdūl 'Azīz ibn Bāz(رحمه الله) & others.

Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyāh(رحمه الله) clearly showing that the Hujjah is done through Balāgh (i.e. Conveying the Qur'ān), he said:

"It's well-known that the Hujjāh is established by the Qur'ān for whomever it has reached, in accordance to Allāh's statement: {that I may warn you thereby and whomever it reaches} So whoever the Qur'ān has reached besides others, then the Hujjāh has been established upon him by what has reached him, excluding the one it hasn't been conveyed too" [End Quote]

Imām Ibn al-Qayyīm(رحمه الله) said: "Allāh has established the Hujjāh upon his creation by His Book & His Messenger, Allāh(جل وعلا) said: {Blessed is He who sent down the Criterion upon His Servant that he may be to the worlds a warner}, Allāh(جل وعلا) said: {And this Qur'an was revealed to me that I may warn you thereby and whomever it reaches}, so everyone who this Qur'ān has reached, then he has been warned by it and the Hujjāh of Allāh is established by it." [End Quote]

Shaykh Muḥammād ibn 'Abdūl Wahāb(رحمه الله) said: "As for Usūl al-Dīn which Allāh has explicitly made clear in His book, indeed the Hujjāh of Allāh is the Qur'ān, so whoever the Qur'ān has reached, the Hujjāh has reached him" [End Quote]

Shaykh Sulaymān ibn Saḥmān(رحمه الله) said: "The specific individual who has displayed from him what necessitates making Takfīr upon him in the matters that are known by necessity in Islām, such as worshipping other than Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى), indeed Allāh has established the Hujjāh upon him by revealing His book & sending His Messenger, so that no people can make an excuse against Allāh after sending the Messengers, and there is no doubt regarding this, as for what is besides the matters known by necessity in the religion of Islām, then we do not make Takfīr upon whoever says a statement wherein the Text hasn't reached him regarding the Takfīr of whoever does that, because the symbols (of Islām) do not necessitate (Takfīr) except after al-Bulūgh (i.e. Conveyed the proof in that issue), and likewise whoever doesn't see the text as authentic or he has another text which contradicts it, or he fell into a misconception, Allāh will excuse him by it, there is no problem regarding this amongst the Scholars" [End Quote].

Shaykh Ishāq ibn 'Abdūl Rahmān ibn Hassan(رحمه الله) said: "And this matter – which is worshipping Allāh alone without associating any partners onto Him, and disavowal to worshipping others besides Him, and that whoever worships other than Allāh has committed a Shirk, a Major Shirk which emits him from the fold of Islām – It is the fundamental Foundation, and Allāh sent the Messengers because of it, and the books were sent down, and the Hujjāh was established upon the people by the Messenger and the Qur'ān, and likewise we find the answer from the Imāms of the religion regarding that principle of Takfīr upon whoever commits Shirk with Allāh, that he is asked to repent, so he either repents or is killed, and they [the scholars] do not mention Ta'rīf (dialogue and explanation) in the matters of Usūl, but rather they mention "Ta'rīf" (dialogue and explanation ) in the unclear matters wherein the evidences would be hidden from some of the Muslims, such as the issues that the people of innovation have disputed, such as the Qadariyyāh, and Murjī'ah, and in unclear matters such as Sarf & 'Atf, and how do we have dialogue and discussion with the grave worshippers, while they aren't Muslims, and they do not enter within the name of Islām?! And is there any action that remains with Shirk?!" [End Quote]

Shaykh 'Abdullāh Abū Butayn(رحمه الله) says in his response against whoever stipulates the Imām & his deputy to establish the Hujjāh in all matters, whether clear or unclear, he says:

"And your statement that in order to establish the Islamic Hujjāh upon him is done by an Imām or his deputy, implies that the Islamic Hujjāh isn't accepted except by an Imām or his deputy, and this is an obscene mistake, none of the Scholars have stated this, rather what's obliged upon everyone is accepting the truth from whoever it may be, and what this necessitates: Is that whoever commits a prohibited act, Shirk and what's besides that in ignorance, and it has been explained to him by whoever has knowledge of the proofs of the Sharī'ah that whoever he committed wa Harām, and the proofs from the Qur'ān & Sunnāh have been explained to him, then it doesn't necessitate accepting it except if that was done by an Imām or his deputy, and I assume that you've heard these words from some of the invalid claimers and blind followed them in it, and did not notice what's wrong with it" [End Quote]

Shaykh al-Islām [Ibn Taymiyyāh] said: "And likewise with the statements which render the one who says it a Kāfir, the texts (i.e. Evidences) which necessitate knowing the Truth might not have reached the person, or he isn't able to understand it, and perhaps some misconceptions have been displayed to him which Allāh will excuse him by" [End Quote]

And the words of Shaykh al-Islām [Ibn Taymiyyāh] are regarding the people of Desires as it will shortly be shown – Inshā'Allāh – pertaining the correct understanding to the words of Shaykh al-Islām(رحمه الله).

Shaykh Hamd ibn Nāsir ibn Ma'mar(رحمه الله) said:

"Indeed, Allāh has sent the Messengers: {[We sent] messengers as bringers of good tidings and warners so that mankind will have no argument against Allah after the messengers. And ever is Allah Exalted in Might and Wise}.

So every person who has the Qur'ān & message of the Messengers reach him, then the Hujjāh has been established upon him, Allāh(جل وعلا) says:

{(And this Qur'an was revealed to me) that I may warn you thereby and whomever it reaches}, and Allāh(جل وعلا) says:

{And never would We punish until We sent a messenger}.

And the Scholars unanimously agreed that whoever has the message of the Messengers reach him, that the Hujjāh from Allāh is established upon him, and it's known by necessity that within the religion, Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) has sent Muḥammād(صلى الله عليه وسلم) and revealed to him the Book, for Him [Allāh] to be worshipped alone without associating any partners to Him, so none is called upon except Him, and no sacrifice is made except for Him, and no vow is performed except to Him, and no reliance is held except upon him, and he doesn't have any inward fear except from Him, and the Qur'ān is filled with this. Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said:

{And [He revealed] that the Masājīd are for Allāh , so do not invoke with Allāh anyone}..." [End Quote]

Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: {Verily, in this there is a plain Message for people who worship Allah}

Imām Ibn Kathīr(رحمه الله) said: "For benefit and sufficiency".

Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: {And those [i.e. Angels] who deliver a message. As justification or warning}

Imām Ibn Kathīr(رحمه الله) said: "Meaning, the Angels, and there's no disagreement here, for they (i.e. the angels) are the ones who descend with allāh's command to the Messengers, to separate between truth and falsehood, and guidance & misguidance, and the Halāl & Harām, and they bring to the Messengers revelation which contains exemption for the creation, and a warning for them from the torment/punishment of Allāh if they disobey/oppose His command".

And Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: {Balāgh...}

Imām Ibn Kathīr(رحمه الله) said: "Meaning, this Qur'ān provides a clear concept (i.e. Balāgh)

And Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: {And will [any] be destroyed except the defiantly disobedient people?}

Imām Ibn Kathīr(رحمه الله) said: "Meaning, that Allāh does not destroy anyone except those who choose the way of destruction" [End Quote].

The Fourth Point: The difference between establishing the Hujjah and understanding the Hujjah:

Understanding the Hujjah means to discuss and explain and convince the one being addressed, and "understanding the hujjah" is not stipulated for the Clear Matters and Major Shirk, but it's stipulated in the Unclear Matters, Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said:

{ [The time of] their account has approached for the people, while they are in heedlessness turning away}, then Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: { With their hearts distracted}.

So the Hujjah has been established upon them by what has reached them from the Qur'ān, except that they didn't understand it, because of their hearts being distracted , so they weren't excused by that, Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said:

{Or do you think that most of them hear or reason? They are not except like livestock. Rather, they are [even] more astray in [their] way}.

So the Hujjah has been established upon them, even though they are like cattle in not understanding [the Hujjah], and they weren't excused by that, Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said:

{The example of those who disbelieve is like that of one who shouts at what hears nothing but calls and cries cattle or sheep - deaf, dumb and blind, so they do not understand}.

And Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: {And this Qur'an was revealed to me that I may warn you thereby and whomever it reaches}.

Ibn Jarīr al-Tabarī(رحمه الله) stated: "Whoever the Qur'ān has reached, it is as if he's seen Muḥammād(صلى الله عليه وسلم)." [End Quote].

And Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: { And if any one of the polytheists seeks your protection, then grant him protection so that he may hear the words of Allah . Then deliver him to his place of safety (That is because they are a people who do not know)}

And He didn't say, until they understand the words of Allāh.

Shaykh Muḥammad ibn 'Abdul Wahhāb(رحمه الله) said:

“But as for Usūl al-Dīn which Allāh had clarified, and judged in His Book, for verily the Hujjah of Allāh is the Qur’ān, so whoever the Qur’ān has reached, then the Hujjah has reached him, however the root problem is that you [people] did not differentiate between establishing the Hujjah, and understanding the Hujjah, for verily most of the Kuffār and Munāfiqīn didn’t understand the Hujjah of Allāh while it has been established upon them, as Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said:

{ Or do you think that most of them hear or reason? They are not except like livestock. Rather, they are [even] more astray in [their] way}.

And establishing the Hujjah and conveying it is one thing, and understanding it is another thing, and Allāh made Takfīr upon them by having it reach them, even though they didn’t understand it, and if that is confusing for you, look towards the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم)’s statement regarding the Khawārij: “Kill them wherever you find them”, even though they were around in the time of the Sahābah, a person would belittle the actions of the Sahābah compared to them, and with the Ijmā’ of the people, for verily what took them out from the Dīn was strictness and extremism and (false) Ijtihād, while they thought that they are obeying Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى), and the Hujjah has reached them, but they didn’t understand it.

Likewise ‘Alī(رضي الله عنه) killed those who believed in his divinity, and burnt them with fire despite (them) being students of the Sahābah, and (despite) their (immense) worship and goodness, and they also thought that they were upon the Haqq, and likewise the Ijmā’ of the Salaf in making Takfīr upon a group of people from the Ghulāt al-Qadariyyah and other than them, despite their immense knowledge and strict acts of worship, while thinking that they are doing well (in their work), and none of the Salaf withheld from making Takfīr upon them, due to them not understanding (the Hujjah), for verily all of these (people) did not understand it.” [End Quote].

Shaykh Sulaymān Ibn Sahmān(رحمه الله) said:

“And it’s not a condition to understand from (the words of) Allāh and His Messenger(صلى الله عليه وسلم) the way the people of Ēmān and Acceptance and Submission understand of what the Messenger came with, in establishing the Hujjah, for verily understanding the Hujjah is another thing, doesn’t relate to establishing it (i.e. The Hujjah), Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said:

{Or do you think that most of them hear or reason?} [Al-Furqān:44],

And Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: {Allah has set a seal upon their hearts and upon their hearing, and over their vision is a veil}.

And Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: {But We have placed over their hearts coverings}.

And Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said: {Say, [O Muhammad], "Shall we [believers] inform you of the greatest losers as to [their] deeds? [They are] those whose effort is lost in worldly life, while they think that they are doing well in work}...” [End Quote]

And the statement of stipulating understanding the Hujjah necessitates from it that none disbelieves except the arrogant, and this is without a doubt false, and the A’immat al-Da’wah are in agreement regarding the differentiation between establishing the Hujjah and understanding the Hujjah in the Clear Matters.

The Fifth Point: The preventions of establishing the Hujjah in the Clear Matters:

Ibn al-Qayyim(رحمه الله) mentioned from it: Not reaching Tamyīz (being able to distinguish), like the child, or the insane, or the deaf person, or not being able to understand due to him not comprehending the speech, and there’s no interpreter (to translate), so he is upon the level of the deaf person, Shaykh al-Islām (Ibn Taymiyyah) said: “Whosoever the Da’wah has not reached, such as the child and insane, and whoever died in the state of Fatrah, then they will be tested in the Hereafter.” [End Quote].

The Sixth Point: The preventions of establishing the Hujjah in the Unclear Matters:

Whatever was a prevention in the Clear Matters, then it would be more deserving of being a prevention (of Takfīr) in the Unclear Matters, and from it as well is not understanding, and the presence of a misconception and similar to that, and we have previously mentioned in the second issue: The description of establishing the Hujjah in the Unclear Matters.

The Seventh Point:

We place our focus towards the difference between the (Clear) Ordainments and Shirk, so the (Clear) Ordainments don’t necessitate (calling him a Kāfir) except after the Hujjah reaches him, but as for Shirk, then whoever falls into it while the Hujjah hasn’t been established upon him, then the ism (label) of Shirk is given off to him, however he isn’t to be killed in the Dunyā, nor be punished in the Ākhirah until the Hujjah has been established, and further discussion will come shortly regarding this issue Inshā’Allāh.

The Eighth Point:

Some statements from the A’immat al-Da’wah might cause confusion and doubt for some people, when they are speaking about the grave worshippers and what they are performing from Major Shirk, and it is from the Clear Matters, so they (i.e. Imāms of Najd) say for example: There’s no problem in Takfīr upon him after the Hujjah has been established upon him, so if we knew the meaning of “Establishing the Hujjah” according to them, as we have previously shown in the first issue, and that according to them, it is established by the Qurʾān in the Clear Matters, this doubt and confusion would be removed. Some of their statements can be referred back too in the Third Point.

was asked: What are the (different) types of Lands? And what is (حفظه الله)Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad ?its Criterion responded by saying: The lands as it's well known are Three (حفظه الله)Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad :((types

.Which is what is ruled by the Sharī'ah: (دار الإسلام) Land of Islām •

Which is the Land of Kufr if there is a covenant between them: (دار عهد) Land that has a Covenant •
.and the Muslims, such as Makkâh after the Treaty of al-Hudaybiyyâh

Which is the Land of Kufr that doesn't have a Covenant between them and: (دار حرب) Land of War •
.the Muslims

has some statements in "al-Māridīniyyah" regarding the Coupled (رحمه الله)And Ibn Taymiyyâh which is the land that has Muslims and Kuffār in it, and neither do the Laws of (الدار المركبة), Land Islām or Kufr have authority over it, so these (people) and those (people) are dealt accordingly, and .it is not given a single (general) ruling, this is the general principle

As for the current reality, then each Land is looked at accordingly, because the affairs today have become mixed up, so you will find the Lands with regards to their rulings as being all lands of Kufr, but with regards to specific (areas) it differs, so from it is Dār Kufr and from it is Dār Islām, and but as for a Land that has a (الدور المركبة), most of it or many of it are from the Coupled Lands in our times, then it doesn't exist, and this issue is lengthy, and Allāh knows (دار العهد) Covenant .best was asked: Whoever works in these services, "Customs, Traffic (حفظه الله)Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad Police, Mayors", and was from those who conduct collecting (Harām) tolls and taxes, or issues ?licenses/permits and similar to that, what is the ruling upon him responded by saying: Know, my dear brother that the types of (حفظه الله)Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad :people in these affairs are Three

The Legislators, Governors and Judges: So the ruling on these people is well-known, they are .1
.Tawāghit who ruled by other than what Allāh has revealed

The Weak who do not have any might or power to change or denounce (Munkar): So the general .2 principle regarding these people is that they are excused, and sin could fall upon some of them due .to their acceptance, and his close-far distance from that

The Employees who work in what you have mentioned: So they similar to the First Category in .3

The youth of this Ummah, may Allāh bless them, must have some wise elders and Shuyūkh to guide them, teach them and give them directions.

Due to the large amount of wicked speakers around, the youth need an alternative, or else they will start listening to random people on Facebook and take their deen from them.

The internet is a blessing, because if we only remained going to the Mosques in our local communities and listening to leaders in our own Countries, we would not have learnt proper Tawhīd and Kufr Bit-Tāghūt, with the correct understanding from the Righteous Scholars.

It's still possible to learn these locally, however the internet has made it extremely easy for everyone to access resources and listen to Scholars from all over the world, instead of travelling to them, so say Alhamdulillah that Allāh has guided you to the straight path.

My best advice to the youth - and I'm from them - is look at the one who you're taking your deen from. The one you look up too will reflect on your manners, so be careful who you hang around with for the sake of your Ēmān.

Please do not come online and attack or make fun of your brothers and sisters, remember we are all nothing without the guidance of Allāh, so we must humble ourselves and have the intention to bring others towards Allāh, not push them away from the Haqq. Remember, people respect manners, they won't be able to fully comprehend Tawhīd as they have been living in ignorance, so be soft with them.

And please do not think what you say is unrestrictedly the Haqq and start labelling others who may disagree with you. Wallāhī it's best for you to refrain from having an opinion on certain issues, and we must understand that not everything is agreed upon.

Do not cause division between your brothers and sisters over Ijtihādī issues, always make sure you return back to the Scholars, and don't speak from your own whims lest you be sinful.

I really love the youth of this Ummah, and there are too many people attacking them instead of lifting them up, so I make du'ā that Allāh shows us all the right path and forgives our shortcomings.

Note: If you ever see me posting from my own desires, not returning back to the Qur'ān and Sunnah with the understanding of the Scholars, tell me to fear Allāh and remind me of speaking without knowledge, I love you for the sake of Allāh.

*Regarding the Turkish cop everyone is speaking about*

Firstly, being a policeman upholding the laws of Shirk and Kufr, and obeying the Tāghūt who is a legislator that has replaced the Sharī'ah, and makes Halāl what Allāh has made Harām, and has also made Harām what Allāh has made Halāl is without a doubt Major Kufr.

Secondly, the policeman who abstains from upholding the Sharī'ah of Allāh, but rather upholds and defends the Kufr laws of the Tāghūt is from the Tawā'if al-Mumtani'ah, and there is a Speculative Consensus (Ijmā' from the Sahābah) that they are all outwardly dealt as Kuffār, the following is the ruling regarding the Tā'ifah Mumtani'ah:

Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad (حفظه الله) was asked: What is the reply to the one who says that there are two views regarding the Tā'ifah Mumtani'ah? As well what is the reply to one who denies the Ijmā' that Shaykh al-Islām (Ibn Taymiyyah) mentioned and he says, "I looked at the (claimed) ijmā' and I could not find it?" And how can there be an Ijmā' of Sahābah then the Fuqahā come after them disagreeing with this ijmā' that is stated on their kufr?

Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad (حفظه الله) responded by saying: The discussion regarding the Tā'ifah Mumtani'ah is broken down into two parts:

A. Collecting the speech surrounding it

B. The reason for their kufr.

The first part: The Tā'ifah Mumtani'ah that is resisting the clear apparent laws of the Sharī'ah has two rulings with regards to it.

A. Fighting it. Regarding this, all the Fuqahā' in all the Mathāhib agree.

B. Their kufr. Regarding this, the Fuqahā' have two notable opinions. From the understanding of the Sahābah is that they all agreed on their kufr. But their ijmā' is not from their speech. Rather, it is from investigating and looking at their actions, that is also how all the Fuqahā' agree that the Sahābah had an Ijmā' on fighting them. They (the Fuqahā'), however, disagree on how to label them.

Do we fight them as ahlu riddah or do we fight them as bāghī (rebels)? This is not what is mentioned in the speech of Shaykh al-Islām (Ibn Taymiyyāh) in some places and that is surrounding the reason on fighting them. Is it because they are murtaddeen? This position (on them being murtaddeen) is what is apparent from Al-Bukhārī (رحمه الله) when he named the chapter regarding the Hadīth on Abū Hurayrah with regards to those who fought refusing to pay the Zakāh, "The Chapter on killing those who refuse to accept the obligatory acts and those associated with riddah". So they were labelled as murtaddeen for not accepting and complying with the obligation of Zakāh.

When we speak on this issue then we must know that Shaykh al-Islām (Ibn Taymiyyāh) did not mention an Ijmā' regarding their kufr. Rather, he mentions an Ijmā' with regards to fighting them. The texts mentioning the Sahābah, radiy Allāhu 'anhum, all agreeing that they are ahlu riddah comes by way of deduction and not by an explicit statement from the Sahābah, radiy Allāhu 'anhum.

The saying that there is an Ijmā' of Sahābah, radiy Allāhu 'anhum, is from their explicit actions, and it is their fighting, there is no disagreement amongst the Fuqahā with that. But with regards to the reason for fighting them, then this is not as explicit. This is the difference regarding it and it is not said that one who disagrees with their kufr that he has violated the Ijmā' and so then he has disbelieved because this is an Ijmā' Qatī'. (Ijmā' Qatī' is like the five salāh in which if one was to deny this then he becomes a kāfir). This is however a matter of investigating and deducting from their actions, so it is Thanni (Thanni Ijmā' is where the texts aren't as explicit and only known through thorough research).

The second part: It is with regards to takfīr on the Tā'ifah Mumtani'ah.

Know, that the heart needs qawl (statements) and 'amal (actions). The qawl of the heart is tasdīq (acknowledgment/affirmation) and the 'amal of the heart is istislām and inqiyād (submission and compliance). What goes against the qawl of the heart is takthīb (belying) and what goes against its 'amal is resistance. The one who has one or both of those disbelieves and leaves the Millah.

If a man has tasdīq but he arrogantly and stubbornly resists accepting something from the Sharī'ah that is apparent and established he disbelieves. This is like one who leaves salāh out of laziness (not rejecting it), is called to perform it and he refuses to do so with the sword, ibn Taymiyyah and Ibn al-Qayyim both said this one is a kāfir by ijmā'.

So one can either bely or either he can arrogantly refuse (or both), it would never be acceptable for one to differ over that issue. Ibn Taymiyyah stated that if one was to say, "if you killed someone like him then that is killing a Muslim," has fallen into the doubts of the Murji'ah and also like them from the people of desires.

It could be that one resists in accepting and complying to what is harām, although he has tasdīq in the prohibition. This is frequently found in those who are now called "intellectuals". We will find alot of them arrogantly resisting accepting some of those obligatory acts like Jihād, commanding good and other than them. Also with some of the acts that are harām like music, unveiling oneself, and others similar to it. This is a disobedient arrogant kāfir except in the case where the arrogant resisting is hidden and one is not able to know fully (if this applies). Then the foundational principle is disobedience and not kufr.

The evidence, however, may show and indicate the existence of this resistance. Then if the ruling regarding them appears, is evident, and it is established, then know that whoever agrees or joins that group gets the same rulings. He would then be connected onto their arrogant resisting to accept and comply to the Shari'ah and in their cause and reason for kufr.

Then when it is established that they are resisting accepting and complying to anything from the Shari'ah there is no distinction between the individual and the group (they get the same ruling). Unless the individual has no way of knowing and the matter is hidden, then his asl is still Islām. (Like an individual who is in a group that calls for Shari'ah but he doesn't know the leaders fell into kufr). Unlike the group that openly agrees on deterring obligatory duties, as an example, and the evidence for their arrogant resistance is available, and Allāh knows best.

*End Quote from Sh. Nāsir al-Fahad(حفظه الله)*

Thirdly, with regards to whether the Turkish cop made Tawbah or not, Shaykh Abu 'Umar(حفظه الله) said: "I've witnessed a few brothers (including Shari'ees from the Dwla) say that his act in itself is disavowal and implies disbelief in the Taghut, especially with those words he said.. Others say it's not enough and he has to declare his repentance and Kufr in Taghut openly and re-enter Islam from the door he left it.

Which ever opinion you follow, don't be harsh on others for adopting another."

Shaykh Abū 'Umar believes the cop died as a Murtad, but he said that's his Ijtihād, and mentioned that what's most important is that Allāh has gotten rid of an enemy of Allāh which is a big victory for all Muslims.

was asked: Whoever called upon those in the graves, or (حفظه الله) Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr performed Tawāf around them, or seeks assistance from them, while he is from the blind followers among the laymen, and the Scholars have given him a Fatwa that this is not Shirk, is he to be ?called a Mushrik responded by saying: Yes, he is called a Mushrik, and Islām is (حفظه الله) Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr negated from him, and he's not a Muslim. And we have clarified this numerous times, and all the previous lessons clarify this issue, so whoever was living amongst the muslims in the Arab lands or in the lands where its inhabitants are Islamic, whether it was in Africa, Egypt, Algeria, Morocco, Sūdān, Khaleej, Pakistān, Afghānistān, these are the countries that have an Islamic population, it has an established Da'wah, and it has the Hujjah of the Qur'ān, and he has lived with the muslims and the people of Tawhīd, likewise Irān, 1/3 of its population are from Ahl al Sunnah, so these people receive the Ism (Name/Label of Shirk) and Hukm (Rulings - Being punished for Shirk), and they are called Mushrikūn, and they are also given the Hukm (ruling) of the Kuffār, so he is a Kāfir .in the "ism" and "hukm" due to the establishment of the Hujjah

And we will not repeat (what we said in) the previous lessons, because the previous lessons speak about this topic, and we would say to you, "until the Hujjah is established upon him", and we have affirmed what the (the meaning of the) Hujjah is numerous times, and a separate chapter will come shortly, however there's nothing that prevents us from pointing towards what we intend by the Hujjah, and what we intended by the Hujjah is not solely discussing (the matter), because some .people think that the Hujjah is discussing and talking

I have applied the Hujjah upon him", i.e. I sat with him and discussed/debated with him, and I took" him and gave him this talk, this is how he thinks that is what the (establishing of the) Hujjah is, but it's not like that. (Rather) This is the Hujjah in the Unclear Matters, as for the Clear Matters such as Shirk, then the Hujjah regarding it is the "Place", if he was able to reach the place of the Hujjah, in a .place that has the Da'wah of Tawhīd, then the Hujjah has been established upon him after he became (صلى الله عليه وسلم) And that is why the Hujjah was established by the Messenger a Prophet, and he did not discuss with everyone from the inhabitants of Makkah, nor did he go to them, for verily his advent (of prophethood) and presence and being able to hear from him, this is

.the Hujjah

Infact some of them would run away from listening to him, would it (now) be said that this person doesn't have the Hujjah established upon him?! No, therefore it's necessary to precisely comprehend this issue, even though we have previously explained the chapters (regarding it), however if we say that the Hujjah is to be understood (it's within unclear matters), if the issue was regarding Shirk or the Clear Matters, then the Hujjah is the "Place" (i.e. Where the Da'wah of Tawhīd (can be reached

And if the issue is Unclear, then yes the Hujjah is giving and taking (i.e. Asking and Responding sent a battalion towards a man who (صلى الله عليه وسلم)questions). And that's why the Messenger married the wife of his father, to split his wealth into 5 portions and kill him for committing apostasy, he married the wife of his father, this is a Clear Matter, and there was no discussion that took .place, and he didn't say to go discuss with him first, no

Therefore, we have said that it's required to know what is meant by the Hujjah. And what is originally intended from this elucidation is to comment after mentioning the (related) chapters, however just so you can be exposed to this issue with us in the beginning (before we get further .(into it

Having the best Akhlāq is no doubt from the essence of Islām. May Allāh perfect our manners by following the example of the Prophet Muhammad(صلى الله عليه وسلم). However there's a group of people who come {online} to remind others about Akhlāq. I think this is a beautiful thing, as we are all lacking in our manners, but unfortunately some are taking this "Akhlāq" advice too far.

For instance, today someone rebuked me for making du'ā against the Kuffār, and told me to think before I speak, asking wouldn't it be more beneficial to make du'ā for them. Alhamdulillah I gave him evidences to show that you can make du'ā for the Kuffār and make du'ā against them.

Now I have a strong passionate hate against the Shī'a Rāfidah, Murji'ah, Apostate Rulers and Wicked Sell-Out Scholars. But unfortunately, some people consider it "Bad Manners" to call them dogs and donkeys, even though there is evidence to show the permissibility of doing so.

But let me tell you what's also considered "Bad Manners" my brothers and sisters. Continuously criticising others & mentioning their faults without saying a single good thing about them is also "bad manners". What's also a shameful character is cowardliness, yet many of the callers towards "Good Manners" only want to take the soft/merciful side ignoring the principle of Walā' and Barā' which is a pillar of our Shahādah. Takfīr and Enmity to the Mushrikīn is an important aspect of Kufr Bit-Tāghūt, but they want to shun this topic and lock it up completely, throwing the key in the ocean, to leave the muslims remain as cowards and chickens who have no Gheerah for the Ummah.

SubhānAllāh, the main priority of these people is to condemn the Da'wah we're sharing. For proof, just look at how many speakers havd travelled across the globe to condemn our beloved Humble Shaykh, and ofcourse they are not fair and just even if they try to make themselves appear "balanced". May Allāh give them what they deserve, it really hurts when you speak against someone who doesn't have a voice to defend themself :(

I have been told, "You speak too much about the Ummah", "Brother, why Fiqh of Hajj?!", "You have been extremely active in Da'wah, have a balance bro", "Instead of posting so much on Hadīth, why not Tawhīd?", "Alhamdulillah, I benefit from the Fatāwah of Fiqh the most, but the posts on Tawhīd and Takfīr are beneficial", wallāhī I love to listen to the thoughts of people, but you can't please everyone. Then we have those who condemn us for speaking about the main priorities of the Ummah, yet when "everyone" speaks about the important issues we've been talking about for years, they want to jump in and give their 2 cents, even though they were quiet about it before. Infact, there are some RIGHT NOW who gave a Khutbah on manners instead of the Ummah, I'm sure those callers to good manners online would kiss the forehead of the Khateeb. We are told the Muwahiddīn don't have Scholars, I will tell you: Yes, our Scholars are not in 5 star hotels taking selfies of themselves or in comfortable A/C rooms, if you want to find our Scholars, go out and find them yourself, you will see them as firm as a mountain acting upon their knowledge.

SubhānAllāh what a time we're living in, we cannot deny the importance of good manners, may Allāh forgive us and allow us to realise our bad character, whether it may be arguing too much, arrogance, showing off, self-admiration, harshness etc...This is why the Scholars say it's necessary upon us to continuously repent to Allāh, seeking his forgiveness and mercy.

My dear brothers, if you're feeling down or need any help, please don't keep it to yourself. Message me and speak your heart to me. I can help with advice in strengthening you relationship with Allāh and give you directions to bring happiness to your heart. Sometimes reading a post on Facebook won't do justice and you really need someone to talk too & be there for you.

But a general reminder to everyone else, some ways to revive your heart is to understand Tawhīd and implement it, revolving your life around 'Ibādah in the Masjid, falling in Sujūd, letting out every grudge from your heart to those who wronged you, forgive all muslims before you sleep. Keep the Dhikr of Allāh on your tongue, and the Qur'ān is the greatest form of Dhikr, as Ibn 'Abbās رضي الله عنهم said, a heart with no Qur'ān (i.e. Doesn't recite Qur'ān) is like a ruined house. Have sincerity in your heart, joke less. Always fear Allāh wherever you are, keep every word that comes from your tongue truthful.

May Allāh reward you all, and just because someone always smiles, it doesn't mean they aren't going through trials, wallāhī it's just that Allāh has blessed them with enough Ēmān to handle them as mentioned by Shaykh Ahmad Jibrīl(حفظه الله). The more Allāh loves you, the more He tests you. You are dearly special to Allāh, He has given you a gift many people don't have, you have a pure heart, Ibn 'Abbās explained the pure heart as being "The shy heart that testifies that no one has the right to be worshipped except Allāh", so subhānAllāh you have a shy heart that says Lā ilāha ilā Allāh, it's amazing. I love you all so much, stay strong as the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) said: "The strong believer is more beloved to Allāh than the weak believer"

Always speak the Haqq. Remember, people are not rejecting you, they are rejecting the message you are giving them. Your Da'wah alone is already harsh for them, so imagine if you followed that up with bad manners and harshness, no one will listen to you, and they will hate what you're telling them, even if it's the Haqq.

My dear brothers and sisters, May Allāh protect you. I know that you have so much to say, I do too. But you know what's amazing, Allāh has opened the eyes of many brothers/sisters. I came across posts where those who you might call "moderates" realised the truth, so many have felt betrayed by the Scholars.

Now, this is nothing new. 99% of Shaykhs around the world who have a voice to speak have lost all the main top priorities of the Ummah, infact shunning those important matters & speaking against the Haqq, and intentionally diverting away the affairs of the Ummah, telling the masses to have hope and patience while concealing knowledge.

And never fall for the du'ā they make for the Ummah, if you want to know whether they really care about the Ummah, look at their Da'wah and what their priorities are focused on. It's like a guy telling his wife "I love you", yet treats her worse than random strangers, he doesn't look after her, infact verbally abuses her AstaghfirAllāh, and then in the end says "I love you". Ya'nī, this is actually an evil tactic adopted by many heartless abusers against their victims, they try to act charming after the abuse, and the poor victim falls for it or is suffering in silence. The same way with our Ummah, may Allāh have mercy upon our Ummah and expose the deceivers, every single one of them.

As for the "solutions" many speakers are talking about, lol there's no need to listen to what these corrupt people say is the "solution", the solution is mentioned in the Qur'ān, infact the Qur'ān is divided into 3 categories:

1) Tawhīd

2) Qasas

3) Ahkām

And you would be surprised to know what most of the verses pertaining Ahkām in the Qur'ān address :) Hold onto the Righteous Scholars and love the Muwahiddīn, you won't find anyone more firm and truthful than them, but finding them is the big test for many ☺ I ask Allāh to continue guiding us and delight our hearts with news of glad-tidings. Be truthful to yourself and keep your sincere intentions between you and Allāh.

Lā Hawlā walā Quwata ilā Billāh! Brutal assault occurring in Aleppo as I'm writing this right now. Confirmed cases of rape and killings by the pigs of Bashār and Mushrik Shī'a Militias, much news is coming out and Wallāhi it's much more than what is being mentioned.

Now, I'm not going to be blaming all the sell-out Scholars and Apostate Rulers, as they are well known dogs to all of us.

However, by Allāh! We must ask ourselves, what have we done in this Dunyā?! What have we done in our lives??? Will Allāh really be pleased with what we are doing? Don't we claim to be Muwahhidīn? Where is the truth to our claim, we should really fear whether we are Hypocrites or not. If the Sahābah were rebuked, then imagine us who carry along enjoying our lives with the Mushrikīn.

Wallāhi this is a reminder for myself before anyone else, and if you don't want to hear any condemnations and just listen to "words of hope" that raise you up, thinking you're doing amazing in life, then sorry I don't believe in that, if Allāh rebuked the Sahābah for something 1,000,000 times smaller than what you have done, then what is preventing you from being rebuked.

O Allāh, make us real men! O Allāh, increase our Ummah in men and women who have divorced this life and only strive to please you! O Allāh, unite the hearts of the Muslims together upon "True Unity" of the Qur'ān and Sunnah! A unity upon Tawhīd and Kufr Bit-Tāghūt with Walā' and Barā' to Lā ilāha ilā Allāh!

O Allāh, grant victory to the Muwahhidīn in 'Irāq, Shām, Yemen, Khurasān, Shīshān, Masr, Al-Maghrib, al-Sōmāl, CAR, all of Africa, the Balkans, Philippines, Burmā, return al-Andalus and all the lands of Islām back to us!

O Allāh, destroy the filthy Shī'a Twelver Rawāfidh Mushrikīn, the donkeys of the jews, and their allies among the Nusayriyyah, 'Alawiyyah and other Bātiniyyāh. O Allāh destroy the Secularists, Democrats, "Fake" Islamist Apostates who are supported by the enemies and the Tawāghīt. O Allāh destroy all the Apostate rulers that rule our lands by other than your Sharī'ah, O Allāh destroy the evil corrupt Da'wah of the Murji'ah, govt sell-out Scholars, wicked sell out Speakers, and deceivers who mix and conceal the truth with falsehood! O Allāh destroy those who cry over the Murtaddīn and Mushrikīn, defending the Tawāghīt and making excuses for them, while searching for all the faults in the world in the Muwahhidīn, making false accusations against them and speaking against those who are unable to defend themselves. May Allāh silence the tongue of every deceiver, and paralyze the hands of every oppressor.

O Allāh, indeed I have wronged myself so much, and there is no one who forgives the sins except you, so bestow your forgiveness upon me and have mercy upon me, verily you are the Most-Forgiving, Most Merciful.

Usūl al-Fiqh by Shaykh 'Ali al-Tamimi(حفظه الله)

Lesson (1/17) Transcribed:

What is Usūl al-Fiqh?

Well if you actually look at it, Usūl al-Fiqh, this term is taken from 2 words. First word Usūl & Second word Fiqh. And in order to understand the meaning depth of this term, let's take it by looking at each word on its own.

The meaning of Usūl is a plural of the Arabic word al-asl. And we might translate that to English as "The root, the foundation of something". And in the Arabic language, the trunk of the tree is known as the Asl, and there's a verse in Surat Ibrahim, where Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) describes the good word of a tree, and then Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) says "Asluhā Thābit", its root is well-fixed, "wa far'uha" (its branch) is in the heavens or in the sky.

So as opposed to Asl (the root), we have branch which is fara' or furoo' (the plural), so Asl, the plural which is Usūl means foundation, in the Arabic language we say "asl al-Jidār" the root or the foundation of the wall (meaning the bottom part that touches the ground). So, the word Usūl means that which is built upon it, wherever that might be. So now we understand the first word Usūl, now let's have a look at the second word Fiqh.

What does Fiqh mean?

Does anyone know what the word Fiqh means linguistically? Linguistically the word of Fiqh means to understand or comprehend. There's a similar word in the Arabic language which is al-'ilm which is knowledge, but Fiqh is more specific in meaning than knowledge, so knowledge is something general, whereas fiqh is a little bit more specific in the Arabic language, which means to understand and comprehend.

And we find this in verses in the Qur'an where Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) tells us that Musa asked Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) when he was being sent as a messenger that he would understand speech, and the Hadīth of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) for instance in Sahih al-Bukhari where the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) made a dua for Ibn 'Abbās that:

"O Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) give him Fiqh in the religion"

Meaning, give him comprehension and understanding in the religion. That is the linguistic meaning of the word fiqh. But it has a technical meaning, which we can define as:

"Knowledge of the Sharee'ah regulations(Ahkaam) of actions required from their specific evidences."

(He was asked and what does that mean?)

Knowledge means as opposed to ignorance, regulations meaning that for instance that something is required, we say that Salāh, praying 5 times a day is obligatory, that's a regulation of the Sharee'ah, that you have to fast the month of Ramadan, that in order to marry, a woman must have a wali(a guardian), these are regulations in the Sharee'ah.

As opposed to regulations for instance of nature, that when it's cold and it rains, snow occurs, that's a regulation of nature. Regulation of the mind for instance, that the sum of something is equaled to its whole.

We're talking about the regulations of the sharee'ah like Salāh is required 5 times a day, one must give zakat, one must fast the month of Ramadan, a woman must need a guardian to get married, these are the regulations of the sharee'ah.

And there are regulations to do with action, in other words, belief that Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) is one, belief in the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) Muhammad as the messenger of Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى), belief in the angels, this is not entered into the subject of fiqh because these are regulations dealing with belief, or what we call Aqeedah or Tawheed.

But Fiqh specifically deals with those matters dealing with action (like Salāh, Zakat, Hajj, Fasting etc...), and these regulations are gained, we acquire them from their specific evidences. Those evidences in the Qur'an, those evidences in the Hadīth, those evidences from Ijma', the consensus, those evidences of analogy(or qiyās), so when we say Fiqh in the linguistic sense, it means to understand or comprehend.

We say fiqh as a subject/science, it means knowledge of the sharee'ah regulations, instead of regulations of nature/reasoning, and those regulations are of action as opposed to regulations to do with belief, and they are gained from their specific evidences. The specific proofs of the Qur'an, the Hadīth and the other sources of Sharee'ah law.

So if I say "The unbelievers will be buried in the hellfire", is this fiqh? It's not part of Fiqh, because we said that it's of action, and the belief that the believers will go to paradise and the unbelievers will go to the hellfire is not a matter of action, it's a matter of belief (Aqeedah).

If we say for instance that 3 is greater than 1, is this a matter of Fiqh? No, because there is no sharee'ah regulation.

Now we know what the word Usūl means, we said that which is built upon something, something is built upon it. And we know what the word fiqh means, so taking those 2 definitions together, we will know what Usūl al-fiqh means.

So now Usūl al-fiqh is a science, that means a knowledge of the general evidences of fiqh and how to use them and the statics of the one who impours them. So fiqh deals with the specific regulations, and Usūl al-fiqh deals with the general evidences.

What do I mean by general evidences?

Well, for instance if Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) tells us in the Qur'an:

"Aqumu al-Salāt"

or "establish the prayer". Now aqumu al-Salāt there's a specific ruling, it shows us that prayer is required, but the general ruling which deals with Usūl al fiqh is that whenever we have a command like in the Arabic language, the verbs there's a type of verb which is the commanding verb, "do this, do that", so establish, do! It indicates that it's incumbent upon us to do so.

So that's the first issue, so for e.g. a command tells us that it's required (wajib), a prohibition tells us that it's forbidden(haram), that's an example of a general evidence of Fiqh.

You come across a verse in the Qur'an, it prohibits you from doing something, Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) forbids you from doing something, you understand when you see a prohibition, it means a matter is forbidden, you've come across a Hadīth of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم), you find a command, you understand that a command means that it's required, it's Obligatory for me to do that. That is something which is Wajib, that is a general evidence of Fiqh.

A specific evidence would be like for instance the 5 prayers, it's required to pray 5 times a day, it's required to give zakah, that's a specific matter, it's required to fast Ramadan, it's forbidden to drink/consume intoxicants, so those are the specific ones.

That's not what Usūl al-Fiqh deals with, Usūl al-fiqh deals with the general regulations. And during the course when we study, we'll be studying this general evidences of Fiqh and how to use them, how to use these general evidences of Fiqh, in other words for instance if I had a verse of the Qur'ān & I have a Hadīth from the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) & they are contradictory, they seem that they do not fit in meaning for instance, what do I use, do I take the Hadīth, do I take the verse of the Qur'ān? Do I try to explain that verse in the Qur'ān from the Hadīth? Do I think one abrogates the other? This is how to use these general evidences of Fiqh.

And the third thing is the one who employs them, in other words the Mujtahid, the one who employs is the Mujtahid and we'll be talking about Ijtihad, what is Ijtihad and who can exercise Ijtihad.

So the science of Usūl al-fiqh used with knowledge of the general evidences of Fiqh, like a command means required, a prohibition means forbidden, how to use these general evidences in other words I have verses from the Qur'ān, I have Hadīth from the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم), what do I put first, does one explain the other, how do I deal with something that is abrogated, is there contradictory when one is abrogating the other, you know this whole idea of how do I use these evidences.

And then finally, the condition or the status of the one who employs them, who can make use of these evidence, who can use these principle, the Mujtahid, who is the mujtahid, who has the right to exercise ijtihad. What are his qualifications, that's what Usūl al-fiqh deals with.

If we now know what Usūl al-Fiqh means:

Where is the science of Usūl al fiqh taken from?

Well, Usūl al fiqh has 3 foundations, the foundations of Usūl al fiqh are 3.

The first is 'ilm ul-Kalam, which we might translate as theology, however 'ilm ul-Kalam is not the aqeedah according to the Salaf, but rather its the 'Aqeedah according to the Khalaf. In many of its aspect, it has innovation in it. But Usūl al fiqh is based upon that, and we'll discuss that in a moment.

And the second matter Usūl al fiqh is based upon is the Arabic language.

And the third matter which Usūl al fiqh is based upon is Fiqh itself, the regulations of Fiqh itself.

So right now we need to know that the foundations of the science Usūl al-fiqh is based upon 'ilm al-kalam (theology), the Arabic language and the regulations of fiqh itself. So what about the history of Usūl al fiqh, where did it start?

Well, Usūl al fiqh began right from the days of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم), in the sense that understanding these regulations, that for instance when the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) gives a command the muslims should obey that command. His statements are revelation as the sunnah has approved, an evidence of the religion.

For instance that when Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) gives a command or prohibition in the Qur'ān, it means we should act upon it or leave it. That for instance a person if he has enough knowledge, he can exercise ijtihad.

These general principles of Usūl al fiqh were known in the day of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم), were known in the day of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم)s companions. Because the companions of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) understood the regulations of the religion, and they are the most knowledgeable of humanity regarding that.

However though, they didn't have the science of Usūl al-fiqh written in a book. It was just principles they understood collectively and it remained that way for about 2 centuries until Imam al-Shafi'ee came about. Of course he died in the year 204 AH, that's the year of his death and:

Imam al-Shafi'ee was the first scholar to take these principles of Usūl al fiqh and put them together in a book.

To write a book and the book he wrote was known as "Al-riSalāh" that was the first book in Usūl al-fiqh, Imam al-Shafi'ee and his reason for, was because people began to not understand certain aspects of the religion, for e.g. some people started to question the validity of certain Hadīth of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم), certain Hadīth which are known as the Ahaad Hadīth, meaning those Hadīth which have come to us in a few chains of narration, some people started to argue, we cannot use these Hadīth, so imam al-shafi'ee tried to show that you must, you're obligated to use these Hadīth, these Hadīth are a proof in the religion. Some people started to argue for instance regarding the value of Ijma', the consensus is the consensus of the scholars a proof. Imam shafi'ee in al-risaalah shows that it is a proof, the issue of the Prophet's sunnah, what is its value, what do we gain from the sunnah, well the sunnah is the explanation of the Qur'ān, some people started to question that. They even started to question whether we should follow the sunnah. And imam shafiee in al risaalah explained that the sunnah is obligatory to follow & other issues he discusses in that book.

So the point is that Usūl al fiqh while all these principles were known in the time of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) and his companions, and the first couple centuries of islam, it was really imam al shafiee who started to put down the foundations of the science & try to gather all these principles and put it in a book which we can then say is the first book written in Usūl al-fiqh.

It doesn't mean that imam al-shafi'ee made up the subject of Usūl al fiqh as some people think, and just because imam al shafi'ee gathered these principles, it doesn't mean he is the one who made up.

Just like for instance, I'll give you an example, the Hadīth of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم), initially the Hadīth weren't written down, and then the Hadīth were collected into books, does that mean that those people who collected the Hadīth made up those Hadīth? No, they just collected which was memorized and which was initially spoken but they wrote them down with a chain of narration.

Likewise the Qur'ān, the Qur'ān initially was not in a scripture, but was written on different parchments, different bones, different pieces of palm tree, leaves and so forth, and then it was placed in a single mushaf, does that mean those people that put it in the mushaf, those companions, they're the ones that made the Qur'ān, they made it up? No, they just gathered what was there initially and likewise Usūl al fiqh was there before imam al shafi'ee but imam al shafi'ee for certain reasons which I explained decided to put it together in a book and he wrote a book called al-risalah and this book al-risalah is available in the English language, I guess many of you might have seen it or some of you have seen it, it's translated by a Christian author, a Christian professor, but the translation is generally more or less sound and its useful to use and we might photocopy some pages from it during the course we pass them out.

Okay, so we talked about how Usūl al fiqh was the first work and afterwards what happened was that:

2 schools of Usūl al fiqh developed.

After imam al shafiee wrote his book al-risalah, 2 schools of Usūl al fiqh developed. Like for instance we know in fiqh itself, there are 4 popular legal schools, the Hanafi, shafi'ee, maliki and Hanbali, and there are certain books written according to each of those madhahib.

And when you look at the legal writings of those 4 madhahib you find that the style of writing is different, from one madhab to the other. In terms of the way they organize the issues, some of the terminology they use and so forth, in terms of the value of certain books.

In the Arabic language, the science of the Arabic grammar, there are basically 2 schools, there's the school of Basra and there's the school of Kufa. Each school uses different terms for describing certain parts of speech and each school has different works and different authors and so forth.

And Usūl al fiqh likewise even though imam al shafi'ee was the first one who wrote it, it later on developed into 2 schools. One school we might call the shafi'ee school which is the school of the mutakalimeen or the mutakalimoon, and the second school is the Hanafi school which is the school of the fuqaha. They basically deal with the same issues, but the style of writing the legal textbooks of Usūl al fiqh are different. The style of writing of the shafi'ee or mutakalimoon school, mutakalimoon are those who study 'ilm al kalam(theology), it's different than the style of writing of the Hanafi school or the fuqaha school.

Some of the classical writings in the shafiee or the mutakalimoon school, for e.g. There's a book called "al-burhaan" by al-Juwayni who died yr 413AH, there's "al-Mustasfah" which is by al-Ghazali who died 505AH. These are 2 examples of books of Usūl al fiqh written according to the legal style of authoring books of that school which is referred to as the shafi'ee/Mutakalimoon school.

And as I said these schools deal with the same issues basically, but it's just a legal style of writing, that's the main difference. Let us look at some examples of the Hanafi way of writing.

Two examples of 2 books on Usūl al-fiqh according to the Hanafi/Fuqaha(scholars of fiqh) writing is "al-Usūl" by al-Jassas, who died in the year 370AH, and also "al-Usūl" by al-Sarsakhi, who died in the year 490AH. These are 2 examples of legal writings in Usūl al fiqh according to the Hanafi or the fuqaha method.

But what happened was, later on afterwards, scholars came who said let's combine the 2 styles of writing. In other words, let's combine the Shafiee/mutakalimoon style of writing and the Hanafi/fuqaha style of writing, and so now we have another type of legal books written which combined the 2 methods, you can call it the combined method of writing and I'll give 2 examples of that.

For e.g. "Al-Tanqih" and its commentary which is by Sadar al-Sharee'ah, and he died in the year 647AH, and another example of the combined method is "Jam' al-Jawami'" by al-Subki, who died in the year 771AH. Okay, so what happened was, these 2 styles of writing, the Hanafi/fuqaha and also the shafi'ee/mutakalimoon, later on scholars came and they said well we're going to write books on Usūl al fiqh using the best of both styles of writing & this is the combined method. An example is Al-Tanqih and its commentary written by Sadar al-Sharee'ah. Sadar al-Sharee'ah wrote a book called al-Tanqih and he also wrote a commentary of that book. And also Jam' al-Jawami' by al-Subki is also another example of the combined style.

The reason I brought this out was just to show you that when you come to the books of Usūl al fiqh. If we were to take a tour to the Library of Muntajah and look at the section of Usūl al fiqh. I haven't been to the library here before, but I'm assuming they'll have a section on Usūl al fiqh. The classical books written over the centuries would either be of that first style, the shafi'ee/mutakalimoon style, it might be written according to the Hanafi/fuqaha style or it might be written according to the combined style. And so therefore the organisation of the topics in each book would be different. The way of approaching this subject matter of that definition of Usūl al-fiqh would be different, in each style of writing.

And there are hundreds and hundreds of books on Usūl al-fiqh, these are just a few examples. What is the style which we will be using in this class? Basically we'll be using the shafi'ee/Mutakalimoon style, that's the main way we're going to deal with it, however though, what we're also be doing is that we'll be organizing the issues which are setting according to a more modern way of teaching Usūl al-fiqh. Basically the method or the order of the issues I'm following is that of Umar al-Ashqar and his introductory textbook to Usūl al-fiqh.

And just to give you a course outline of how we're going to deal with it over the next few days. In lesson number 2, we're going to discuss the lawgiver, who has the right to legislate laws? That's the first thing, then we'll be discussing the sharee'ah law itself, and then we'll be discussing the sources of sharee'ah law, and then the interpretation, how do we interpret the law interpretation of the sharee'ah law, and finally the interpreter.

Please don't invite me to any Islamic Groups/Pages, thanks!

FB groups in a nutshell: Men complaining about women, and women complaining about the Men who are complaining about women, non-Stop gender wars, free-mixing and arguments. 2016 where al-Walā' wal-Barā' is based upon what gender you are.

Likewise, most of the things I'm seeing on my news feed are:

1) Pointless posts

SubhānAllāh, forget about what others are doing on Facebook, I don't care about the deviant Murji'ah and Hāzimi's, our main concern should be to spread the correct teachings of Islām from the Righteous Scholars. Islām is not about my opinion or your opinion, our opinions mean nothing. Let's stick to sharing what the Righteous Scholars have said who understand the Qur'ān and Sunnah correctly, and forget about what people on Facebook do.

And no Scholar is infallible, so do not enforce the opinion of any human upon another, and our Da'wah should not be restricted to Facebook alone, may Allāh bless you all.

The Rapist is considered a Muhārib - #Important!

Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله) was asked about: Whoever doesn't pray, however he outwardly displays to the people that he prays, if the people begin to pray, he gets up to pray, and when he is away from the people, he abandons Salāh?

Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله) responded by saying: This is Nifāq (hypocrisy), the one who abandons Salāh, if he would abandon and perform, or abandon in secret and display to the people that he prays, this is a Hypocrite, Kāfir Munāfiq.

And if he abandons Salāh and he was told to pray, he replies: No, I will not pray, this is a refuser Kāfir Murtad, because he didn't repent from that, even if the evidences have been established upon him, he doesn't care, this is a Murtad.

So there's a difference between this and that, it's correct that the reason is 1, which is abandoning Salāh, however there are (certain) traits/circumstances which accompany abandoning Salāh in that situation, which differs with abandoning Salāh in this situation, and the Asmā' (names - i.e. Whether he's called a Murtad or Munāfiq) are dependant upon its traits/circumstances and what it necessitates.

(For instance) If a man comes to a woman and committed Zinā with her, he grabbed her from the streets by force and committed Zinā with her.

And a man dated a woman and committed Zinā with her.

The act is 1, which is Zinā, however the traits/circumstances differ.

The first person grabbed her by force, and he is called a Muhārib [1].

The second person took her with her consent and performed it (i.e. Zinā) with her in secret, he is called a Zānī, it is different in this case, so the punishment on the first (man) differs on the punishment on the second (man).

The one who took her with her consent is to be looked at, whether he is محصن (i.e. Has consummated in a marriage before - whether he's married right now or not), or isn't (So if he was Muhsan, then he is to be stoned, and if he wasn't, then he is to be lashed 100 times)

And the one who grabbed her forcefully without her consent and raped her, there is no Tafsīl (i.e. No elaboration and details) pertaining him, (with regards) to whether he's محصن (Has consummated in a marriage before) or not (i.e. He's to be killed regardless), even though Zinā is 1 and the same, but the circumstances differ, and if the circumstances differ, the name differs (i.e. Whether he's called a Zānī or Muhārib), and if the name differs, then the rulings will be of various levels.

Side Note:

[1] The Rapist is considered a "Muhārib" and the punishment for حراة [Hirābah] is mentioned in this Āyah where Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said:

"Indeed, the penalty for those who wage war (يُحَارِبُونَ) against Allah and His Messenger and strive upon earth [to cause] corruption is none but that they be killed or crucified or that their hands and feet be cut off from opposite sides or that they be exiled from the land. That is for them a disgrace in this world; and for them in the Hereafter is a great punishment" [5:33]

So the Muhārib according to the Imāms can either be:

- Killed

- Crucified
- Cut off his hands and feet on opposite sides and be killed and crucified.

The ruling on kissing (one's wife) for the Sā'im (one fasting) has a difference of opinion:

- 1) Completely Harām, because it is a means to Ejaculation and Breaking the Fast.
  - 2) There's a difference between the young and old man, according to the Hadīth of Abī Hurayrah(رضي الله عنه) that's reported by Abī Dāwūd, and it is Defective and isn't authentic, and it is Mawqūf upon Ibn 'Abbās(رضي الله عنه) and others, and there's no authentic Hadīth (from the Prophet) regarding the differentiation, even the Mawqūf report (upon Ibn 'Abbās) has been negatively criticised, because a man asked Ibn 'Abbās(رضي الله عنه) about kissing (his wife) while he recently got married, and Ibn 'Abbās(رضي الله عنه) asked him: Are you able to control yourself? He replied: Yes, so Ibn 'Abbās said: "Kiss".
  - 3) There's a difference between the one who is able to control himself and the one who isn't able too, according to the Hadīth of 'Ā'isha(رضي الله عنها): "The Messenger of Allāh(صلى الله عليه وسلم) used to kiss and embrace while he was fasting, but he was the one amongst you who had most control over his desire."
  - 4) It's Recommended, and this was stated by Ibn Hazm(رحمه الله).
  - 5) It's Permissible at all times, even if it results in what it incurs from it, as long as it's not intercourse.
- If the Sā'im (one fasting) emits prostatic fluid(المذي), then his fast isn't broken, only if he emits seminal fluid(المني).

~ Shaykh Sulaymān Ibn Nāsir al-'Alwān(حفظه الله).

- {Extra Benefit} The issue of committing sins such as backbiting & other than that for the one fasting, does it break his fast?

Shaykh Sulaymān Ibn Nāsir al-'Alwān(حفظه الله) said: There's a difference of opinion:

- 1) Sins during the day of Ramadān are greater than other than it, because of the sanctity of the time, just like the sanctity of the place in al-Haram [i.e. Makkāh], however it doesn't break the fast, and this is what's correct.
- 2) That it breaks the fast, and that was chosen by Ibn Hazm(رحمه الله), but it's questionable, and what's correct is the first view.

#Important Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله) was asked about the ruling on the one who makes a sacrifice to other than Allāh, and will his wife be divorced?

Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله) responded by saying: Whoever lives among the Muslims and makes a sacrifice to other than Allāh, he is a Mushrik Kāfir (i.e. Ism and Hukm).

And will his wife be divorced, while he takes the ruling of the Murtaddīn? If he does that openly, and it has been established upon him with proof, and he testified to that at the Judge, then he is a Murtad, and he takes the Ahkām (rulings) of the Murtaddīn (i.e. Wife is divorced). However, if he did that between him (i.e. The one he sacrificed too) and himself, and whenever he found out about it (being shirk), he repented or concealed that, then he takes the Hukm (ruling) of the Munāfiq (i.e. The Kufr he committed is dealt as Nifāq - Wife isn't divorced). With regards to his wife, she will remain with him, as we have told you in the topic of differentiating between the Munāfiq and Murtad.

~ Sharh Kitāb al-Haqā'iq Fit-Tawhīd

Important Note: There's a difference between the Ahkām of the Murtaddīn and the Munāfiqīn, that's why Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān(حفظه الله) said about Tārik al-Salāh (i.e. The one who abandoned Salāh), he doesn't have to renew the 'Aqd (i.e. Marriage contract) if he repented because there's no proof for that, and likewise he doesn't have to repeat Hajj. And Shaykh Al-'Alwān mentioned from Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah(رحمه الله) and other Fuqahā' that Tārik al-Salāh is dealt as a "Munāfiq", that's why Shaykh al-Islām Ibn Taymiyyah(رحمه الله) says he can inherit and be inherited from, the muslims wash him, shroud him, pray Janāzah over him and bury him in the graveyard of the Muslims. The reason being is because he takes the ruling of the "Hypocrites", because people might think the Abandoner of Salāh prays at home, whereas if you are certain that he doesn't pray at home and he dies, you do not pray Janāzah over him becaue he's a Kāfir Murtaḍ, however you do not prevent others from praying Janāzah over him as mentioned by Shaykh al-'Alwān, just like the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) told Huthayfa(رضي الله عنه) the names of the 12 hypocrites in Madīnah, when they passed away, Huthayfa Ibn al-Yamān(رضي الله عنه) did not pray Janāzah over them, however he did not prevent the Sahābah from doing so. So Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr(حفظه الله) has explained the difference between the rulings on the Murtaḍ and Hypocrite, and in general Tārik al-Salāh is dealt as a hypocrite, however if he openly claims he doesn't pray, then we will deal with him as an "Apostate", and no Janāzah would be prayed over him, Bārak Allāhu feekum.

My dear brothers, just remember that when you're engaged to a Muslimah, she's still Harām for you. Like subhānAllāh, all of us have weakness when it comes to the opposite gender, as Allāh said "And man was created weak", i.e. In the presence of women (as mentioned by the Mufasssīreen), and the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) said that women are the biggest Fitna for Men.

But Ya'nī some of the things I'm hearing from brothers after the engagement, is that he calls her and says "Believe me, deep down I really love you" 🌹 Akhī, what do you mean that you love her?

Have some Sabr brother, she's still a non-Mahram to you.

Speaking on the phone with her is a big NO, this is where Shaytān comes right in-between you and stirs desires, and they even end up going out together and speaking with each other, he says "My Fiancé", SubhānAllāh may Allāh protect us from ignorance.

Speaking alone with a non-Mahram woman is Harām, and this also includes speaking on the phone, because Shaytān is the 3rd person, and he can drift the conversation into something smooth and lovely wal-'lyāthubillāh, and soft speech which would place sickness in the other person's heart, the guy will start telling her "I love you", and "I will die for you" and Allāhu a'lam what else, so we must take this matter very seriously. The reason being is because this is sinning, and sins will take away the Barakah (blessings) of your marriage, and I'm sure none of you want that, may Allāh reward you.

Some Shaykhs recommend taking her (family) home number, so he can call her father or brother, talk to them with respect, tell them that you're excited to meet them and get to know them, and then you can politely ask "Can I speak with the أخت (sister) in your presence", and that way, you're safe-guarding yourself from any evil thoughts, and no soft words would be used Inshā'Allāh.

Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad (حفظه الله) has answered several questions in his Fatāwah of Ādāb on this topic, which also deal with speaking with a sister online, and that a man must fear Allāh, and avoid falling into deviation, especially since they can catch emotions and love for one another.

May Allāh keep our young boys and girls away from Harām and grant them Halāl spouses who truly deserve them, striving to please Allāh (سبحانه وتعالى) together while changing for the better.

Is it possible to love someone and be involved in a long-term relationship with them if you don't speak the same language?

If you truly loved them, wouldn't you at least try to learn their language or teach them yours, so you can better understand one another?

If we truly loved the Qur'ān and wanted to have a relationship with it, we would make effort to learn the Arabic language. In fact, this would become one of our main priorities in life – so we can understand the Words of our beloved Lord, without the need for an "interpreter" (translation).

Learning Arabic may seem daunting and difficult, but whoever tries to make the effort, sincerely for the sake of Allāh, Allāh will open the way and make it easy.

Learning Arabic requires dedication, patience, sacrifice and perseverance. But this should not deter us, and we must not give up or become frustrated. Knowledge is worship; therefore, every minute will be rewarded. The greater the effort, the greater the reward.

If all you've got is ten minutes a day, it's still possible. Ten minutes a day, over six days, equals 60 minutes a week (that's equivalent to a lesson). You just have to believe in yourself, make effort and constantly seek Allāh's help.

It's best to fix a regular time for learning Arabic, in the same way we eat and work at certain times. There are plenty of resources available online. If we have time to use social media every day, we have the time to learn Arabic.

There are a lot of people learning Arabic so they can get a job. They are driven, determined and motivated by money. On the other hand, there are others who learn it to adorn their speech or to argue and debate. Such people are motivated by love of fame and followers.

As Muslims striving to become sincere worshippers of Allāh (Inshā'Allāh), we have a better goal and reason for learning Arabic. Yet, are we really making enough (or any) effort?

Let's make the commitment from today, Inshā'Allāh.

It was related that when Ibn Taymiyyah was being transported by the ruler's representative to prison in Alexandria, a bystander saw him and said: "My master, this is the time for patience."

So, Ibn Taymiyyah looked at him and replied: "Rather, this is the time to be thankful. By Allah, such joy and happiness are descending upon my heart at this moment that if it was divided between the people of Sham and Egypt, there would be some left over, and if I had that amount in gold and distributed it, it would not equal even a tenth of the blessing that I am experiencing."

Later on, on Monday the 6th of the month of Sha'ban 726 AH, he was again arrested on orders from the ruler, and was ordered transferred to the Citadel Prison in Damascus. When he first learned of this, he said: "I was waiting for this, and this contains great benefit." When he was later in the prison, he said: "If this prison was exchanged for its weight in gold, I would not consider this to be enough to repay this blessing I am in and the good that it has brought me."

When he entered the grounds of the Citadel Prison in Damascus, he stood and looked at its walls, reciting the verse: "...So a wall will be put up between them with a gate therein. Inside it will be mercy, and from the outside, it will be torment." [al-Hadid; 13]

#Voting Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad(حفظه الله) was asked: The issue of bringing about the Sharī'ah or ruling by the Sharī'ah through the process of voting, is this considered a Nullifier which takes one outside the fold of Islām? And what if he said: "I know for a fact or I am fairly certain that the Majority will vote in favour "For" (the Sharī'ah)."

Shaykh Nāsir al-Fahad(حفظه الله) responded by saying: Yes (it's a Nullifier), and this is the rule of the people which is called "Democracy", we declare our innocence in Allāh from it, and from every Tāghūt, and even if he said that ALL the people - Not only the Majority - will vote for it (i.e. Sharī'ah), it's still invalid, and this is not the rule of Allāh, rather it is the rule of the people, for verily they did not rule/judge by it because Allāh has obligated or legislated it, rather they ruled/judged by it because the people wanted it, and if someone else wanted it, he would go ahead with it, so the deviations of those who affiliate themselves to the Islamic Party in this matter are numerous, and all you need to ponder over, are the Hadīths regarding the Khawārij, and how they were ruled by emission from Islām, and they were ordered to be killed, and they were maligned/rebuked severely despite their great acts of worship, and their exaltation of Islām and the Sharī'ah and their good intentions, so what is the reason for that? It is because they took a Manhaj from their own intellect, not the Manhaj of the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) and his Companions, so how about these (people) who do not have such (great) acts of worship and exaltation of the Sharī'ah which was present among those (i.e. Khawārij), and they (i.e. those who try bring the Sharī'ah through the means of voting) have almost fell into every form of Kufr, so will their good intentions intercede for them? And the discussion regarding this is lengthy, Wallāh ul-Musta'ān.

And no Muslim is excused for giving his loyalty to the Disbelievers, and supporting them against the Believers, for verily the Maslaha of Tawhid is the greatest Maslaha that the Ummah can hope for, and the Mafsadah of Shirk is the greatest Mafsadah that fends it off.

So it's not permissible to support the Disbelievers against the Believers due to greed in demanding something from the Dunyā, of safe-guarding (his) wealth or (his) authority/presidency and other than that, rather not even safe-guarding (his own) blood.

Whereby it's known that supporting the Disbelievers is Kufr and Apostasy from the Religion, and the Scholars have unanimously agreed, that whoever supports the Kuffār among Ahl al Kitāb and other than them from the religions of Kufr against the Muslims, and assisted them with ANY form of assistance, then he is a Kāfir like them;

Allāh(جل وعلا) says: "O you who have believed, do not take the Jews and the Christians as allies. They are [in fact] allies of one another. And whoever is an ally to them among you - then indeed, he is [one] of them. Indeed, Allah guides not the wrongdoing people." [5:51]

22 December 2016 19:00

Muhammad Ahmad Yes those 10 reasons which states the actions that breaks imaan..those 10 reasons are clear cut kufr

22 December 2016 19:09

Radwan Dakkak Guidelines for the Clear Matters where ignorance isn't considered an excuse in it: 1. Matters known by necessity in the religion: i.e. What is widespread from the rulings of the religion, well-known among the Scholars & Laymen, wherein the Scholars have a clear cut Consensus. 2. Matters that are agreed upon which is found in the text from the book of Allāh(عز وجل) and the Sunnāh of His Messenger(صلى الله عليه وسلم), the followers of Islām mention it everywhere, among the laymen and scholars, and there's no room for mistake or interpretation in it. The Third Point: What falls under the Clear Matters: 1. Tawhīd al-Ulūhiyyāh which is the reason Allāh sent the Messengers, and sent down the books, Shaykh al-Islām(رحمه الله) said: {And worshipping Allāh alone is Asl al-Dīn which is the Tawhīd that Allāh sent the Messengers by, and sent down the books for}. And likewise, Tawhīd al-Rubūbiyyāh is included within the Clear Matters. 2. Matters of Major Shirk such as the Shirk of grave worshippers, and diverting an act of worship to other than Allāh, such as Du'ā, a vow, a sacrifice...and other than that. 3. Matters known by necessity from the religion, or what is called: "The clear widespread ordainments", such as the 5 daily prayers, Zakāt, Siyām, Hajj, the prohibition of al-Fawāhish [Shameful acts] such as Zinā, Alcohol...and other than that, so there is no excuse of ignorance in this category except for the one who recently entered Islām, or whoever was raised in a desert far away, then he is excused for the message not reaching him, and his inability to learn, not merely ignorance, for ignorance with the ability to learn is not an excuse in these matters. And more details would be mentioned shortly regarding the one who recently entered into Islām, and whoever was raised in a far away desert, by the permission of Allāh, and the Scholars have unanimously agreed upon making Takfīr on whoever denies a ruling that's known from the religion by necessity, and this consensus was mentioned by a large number of Scholars, among whom is Ibn 'Abdīl Barr(رحمه الله), al-Qādhī 'Iyyādh(رحمه الله), Ibn Qudāmah(رحمه الله), Shaykh al-Islām(رحمه الله)...and others. 4. What falls under the Clear Matters is: Knowledge which became famous and widespread from the subsidiary issues [Furū'] such as the ruling on eating during Fasting, and the prohibition of what was Halāl according to Consensus such as Bread and water and similar to that which doesn't become unclear to the general masses.

Since Graphic Designs are being shared on my news feed, I'd like to share some of my 3D Computer Modelling that I did back in 2010 when I was 14 yrs old. Alhamdulillah due to connections, I was able to work in the biggest 3D computer modelling company for a few weeks, and I used softwares which are worth thousands of $$$, such as Abacus, Rhinoceros and Flow-3D. This job is where you test whether engineering projects will fail or succeed in the real life world, and the people I worked with were really cool, the supervisor and other guy were crack up, always laughing lol, the team even took me on excursions :D, and at the time they were working on analyzing one massive skyscraper in Stockholm (i.e. Sweden's capital). But anyways, this video is a Dam I designed with water flowing through the spill way, using the software "Flow-3D", and I'll post some other vid using Abacus (Software) below, and some of the designs I made using the Rhinoceros Software: This 1 sec vid is 27.0 MB, takes a while to upload...

There are some people who take 1 audio clip out of context and ignore the rest of the Shaykh's teachings. For e.g. The audio clip where Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān(حفظه الله) spoke against those Juhhāl hastening in making unjust Takfīr and that the Scholars are the ones who should busy themselves in it, he clarifies in this video, that his answer was in response to a question from a brother about those who "hasten" in performing Takfīr, and in this same clip he says: There are nullifiers that don't require conditions to be fulfilled and removing of barriers (like in unclear matters), some people tried to distort the Shaykh's words, infact the Shaykh said if you see a person abandon Salāh, u can individually make Takfīr upon him, let alone other Nullifiers, but the Murji'ah will do anything to twist his words to say "Only" Scholars can make Takfīr, whereas this is a lie, and nowhere and never did he say that in any audio.

Just like those Juhhāl who take a video from Shaykh Ahmad Jibrīl(حفظه الله) speaking against those who call others Kuffār and Mushrikīn, saying Kufr in Tāghūt etc...These people take 1 vid out of context and ignore the rest of the Shaykh's teachings, infact the Shaykh was speaking about Hāzimī's, but these guys want to apply the words of shaykh on "me and you"...Lā Hawla walā quwata ilā Billāh, just like Ahmad Jibrīl(حفظه الله) said about those who hasten in Takfīr "apply the words of the Scholars, where they belong, not where you think they belong", i say the same to you when you quote Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān(حفظه الله) and Shaykh Ahmad Jibrīl(حفظه الله), "Apply the words of the Scholars, where they belong, not where you think they belong".

There's also another audio clip taken from Shaykh Sulaymān al-'Alwān(حفظه الله) ignoring context and time, yet they ignore other videos where Shaykh defended and supported the same Muwahhīdeen these Juhhāl speak against, anyways here's the video of the Shaykh where he clarifies that he was speaking about Juhhāl who hasten in making unjust Takfīr, beneficial to watch ☺ was asked: There's a woman who travels with her husband (حفظه الله) Shaykh 'Alī al-Khudayr frequently because of his job, however this husband tries to compel her to uncover her face while she objects to that, and he took an oath to her that she must uncover her face in their future travel, so is this woman sinful if she went against the command of her husband & refused to travel with him to the land of Kufr, safeguarding her dignity and religion

The Shaykh responded by saying: A woman uncovering her face to strangers is Harām & it's not said: {O Prophet, tell your wives and your daughters and (سبحانه وتعالى) permissible, because Allāh (سبحانه) the believing women to bring down over themselves their Jalābīb (garments)}, and Allāh (سبحانه) said: {and to wrap [a portion of] their head-covers over their chests}, and Allāh (وتعالى) said: {And let them not stamp their feet to make known what they conceal of their (وتعالى) adornment}, and covering the face is firmly established by consensus, whereas the later scholars opposed that, when the colonizers ruled upon some of the Islamic lands, so ambiguity and .misconceptions occurred in the issue said in al-Fath(9/324): "The customs of the women in the past and present have (رحمه الله) Ibn Hajr .remained unchanged of covering their faces from the strangers" End Quote mentioned in his Sharh of 'Awn al-Ma'būd(11/162): "The agreement of (رحمه الله) And al-Tib al-Ābādī the muslims on preventing the women from going outside revealing their faces, especially with the .quoted it from him" End Quote (رحمه الله) amount of evil sinners around, Ibn Raslān

It becomes Harām upon her to obey him in this command in accordance to the Hadīth "There's no obedience to a created being when it comes to disobeying the creator", and she doesn't become (سبحانه) sinful Inshā'Allāh if she opposed her husband in this and rejected to travel with him, Allāh said: {Whoever fears Allāh, He will make a way out}, and in another verse: {He makes for (وتعالى) .{him an easy affair said (رحمه الله) Note: In the question after it, he mentioned more proofs, for e.g. Imām al-Shawkānī in Fath al-Qadīr(4/304) regarding the verse: {to bring down over themselves their Jalābīb(garments)} "The Mufasireen stated that they cover their faces & heads, except for 1 eye", and Abū Hayyān al-said in al-Bahr al-Muhīt(7/25) "The customs of the women in Andalus was that (رحمه الله) Andalusī mentioned that the (رحمه الله) nothing from a woman was shown except 1 eye", and al-Ghazālī women would remain wearing Niqāb & leave 1 eye to show, this is how it was in the past and .present

For those who wanted the transcript, this is the Commentary on Fiqh al-Sunnāh by Shaykh Haytham Sayfaddīn Book of Tahārah (Purification) Lesson 1 Transcribed. (The Shaykh himself will put the rest in book form - I'm working on transcribing other lectures while taking notes on Fiqh):

Shaykh Haytham Sayfaddīn said:

Inshā'Allāh this will be the first lesson for Fiqh al-Sunnah. The reason why this is a good book to go through is because first of all and the obvious reason is that it is already translated into English, so that saves a lot of work either spending the time beforehand translating the book to have it ready for the lesson. And this other reason is that each of you or whoever comes to the lesson can have it on their own and they don't have to wait for me to translate it and also it makes the lesson flow better than instead of me reading the Arabic and then translating it, or reading it in my head and translating it into English, it makes it flow a lot better, so that's one of the reasons why this is a good book. Another good reason is that even the book in Arabic, it's a good book because it doesn't follow a specific madhab, and that is one of the problems, most of the books of fiqh, even in the time of the earlier 'Ulemā, they were all written upon a specific madhab, you'll find it and they're say whether it is one of the 4 Madhāhib, whatever one it is, you'll only be getting what that madhab see's as the strongest opinion, so you would be left without knowing the other Madhāhib.

And we know that the more we go through these things, we see that there's not 1 madhab that's always right, the more you go into things, you start to see that there is a very, it's very spread out about which madhab, you know you might look into an issue and think the Hanbalī's are the strongest in this, but then you look at another one, you think no, I follow the Mālikī madhab in this just because the evidence is stronger, so this doesn't restrict it to one madhab, so that's a very good issue as well. And also, most of the issues he mentions the evidence for, while many of the other books even in Arabic, very often will only mention 1 evidence, sometimes they don't even mention an evidence, it might just be like a matn or a small text where the author says "And the ruling on this is this", so there's no real evidence, so that's one of the reasons why this is a good book.

And even Shaykh al-Albānī, one of his books is actually a commentary on Fiqh al-Sunnah, it's not extremely detailed, and it's mostly related to the Ahādīth in it, but when he spoke about it, he said the reason he chose it is because it's such a good book and he wanted it to be more authentic and more clear for the people so when they read it, they can get the full benefits from it, so that's why he chose to comment on it, so that's the reason why I think this is a very good book to start with.

And just a few more comments on the book itself before we continue, like any book, aside from the Qur'ān, there's no book that doesn't have mistakes in it, and there's no human that doesn't have mistakes, even with the Da'wah except for the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم), so in this book, some of the things you'll start to notice and I'll point them out when we come to them, and Inshā'Allāh you'll start to pick up on them yourself, is that sometimes he'll mention a topic but he won't mention evidence for it, or he'll mention a Hadīth but he won't mention the authenticity of it or where it is, and sometimes there might be a mistake, he'll say it's authentic, but if you look at what the earlier scholars said, it's actually weak, so that's why I think it's more beneficial to go through it, to read it is beneficial, but to go through it with an explanation, it makes it more beneficial because you can get a bit better idea of what is authentic and what isn't, if he only mentions 1 opinion, Inshā'Allāh we'll go through other opinions and talk about the evidences, so there will be that benefit as well, so Inshā'Allāh we'll start now, the first thing that the author talks about he says:

“Purification”

So Tahārah and then the first chapter and it's not mentioned in the English, but it says:

“The chapter of Miyaah”

Or the Chapter of the types of water, so he starts with the chapter of water, and obviously we know because Salah is in need of Tahārah, and it means Tahārah from Hadath, so to not be upon Janābah and to be upon Wudū' and also your clothing and your body and your area needs to be Tāhir and that the Asl or the first thing that we use for Tahārah is water, so we need to know the rulings on certain aspects of water, and are there certain types or certain things to do with water that make it unusable for Wudū' and for Tahārah, and just some of the issues with that, so that's the first thing that the author starts with, so he says:

“The Shari'ah has divided water into four kinds:

Mutlaq Water
Used Water (for purification)
Water mixed with pure elements and Water mixed with impure elements.”
And then he says “...We shall discuss each of them separately.”

So then he starts, he says:

“Mutlaq Water:

This kind of water is considered pure because of its inherent purity and as such, it can be used by an individual to purify him or herself. It consists of the following categories”

So he starts with Mutlaq water, what mutlaq water means is water at its most basic form, so it hasn't been used, all you'll say is that this is water and there's no extra characteristic is given to it. And then so he says:

The first category of Mutlaq water is:

Rain water, snow, and hail:

These substances are pure because Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) says so: And then he mentions the verse:

وَيُنَزِّلُ عَلَيْكُمْ مَاءً مِنَ السَّمَاءِ لِيُطَهِّرَكُمْ بِهِ

Or he says “And sent down water from the sky upon you, that thereby He might purify you...”

And this is from Sūrat al-Anfal verse 11, and then he mentions the other verse:

وَأَنْزَلْنَا وَأَنْزِلْنَا مِنَ السَّمَاءِ مَاءً طَهُورًا

And “We send down purifying water from the sky” Sūrat al-Furqan verse 48.

So these are the two evidences from the Qur'ān that the author uses to show that water that comes from the sky, so whether it's rain, snow or hail can be used for Tahārah. And then he goes on, he mentions, and I'll mention the Hadīth in Arabic as well, that way if it's recorded or other people who are around who prefer to have the Arabic, like sometimes on Sundays, the brothers ask if I can mention it in Arabic as well, so Inshā'Allāh I'll be doing that. Then the author moves on to the sunnah, and this is generally how we should approach the evidence, mention the Qur'ān first and then the sunnah, because the Qur'ān is the direct word of Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى), and the sunnah is, even though it's wahī, it's obviously not the words of Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى), but it's the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم)'s statements that came from Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى), so generally this is how the scholars divide things up. Some of them would mention Ijmā' first and then the Qur'ān and then the sunnah, and the reason for this is that they state that if something has a consensus on it, then no one disputes it, so if we mention the Ijmā' first as evidence, the issue is done, and because Ijmā' goes back to the Qur'ān and the sunnah as well, so you might see sometimes author's will first mention Ijmā' and that's the reason why. So the Hadīth that the author next mentions, he says:

كَانَ رَسُولُ اللَّهِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ يَسْكُتُ بَيْنَ التَّكْبِيرِ وَبَيْنَ الْقِرَاءَةِ إِسْكَاتَةً ، قَالَ: أَجْسِنُهُ ، قَالَ : هُبْنَةً ، فَقُلْتُ يَا أَبَايَ وَأُمِّي يَا رَسُولَ اللَّهِ إِسْكَاتُكَ بَيْنَ التَّكْبِيرِ وَالْقِرَاءَةِ مَا تَقُولُ ، قَالَ : أَقُولُ اللَّهُمَّ بَاعِدْ بَيْنِي وَبَيْنَ خَطَايَايَ كَمَا بَاعَدْتَ بَيْنَ الْمَشْرِقِ وَالْمَغْرِبِ ، اللَّهُمَّ تَقْنِي مِنَ الْخَطَايَا كَمَا يُتَقْنَى النَّوْثُ الْأَبْيَضُ مِنَ اللَّاتِسِ ، اللَّهُمَّ اغْسِلْ خَطَايَايَ بِالْمَاءِ وَالتَّلْجِ وَالْبَرَدِ

So this Hadīth is from Abū Hurayrah that he said:

"The Messenger of Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) used to be silent after the Takbīr or the Takbīrāt al-Ihram and when he would recite the Qur'ān in the Salāh, so Abū Hurayrah asked him: O Messenger of Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى), will my father and mother be sacrificed for you, why do you remain silent between the Takbīr and the recitation, what do you say at that time? So the Prophet(صلى الله عليه) صلى الله عليه replied: I say O Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) make a distance between me and my sins similar tot he distance you have made between the East and the West, O Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) cleanse me of my sins in the manner that a white garment is cleansed from dirt, O Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) wash my sins from me with snow, water and hail"

And then the author says this Hadīth is related by the group except al-Tirmidhī, so this is the Hadīth that the author mentions.

Student: All the books narrate the Hadīths except al-Tirmidhī, is that what they mean by Jamā'ah?

Shaykh: When they say Jama'ah, different authors have different meanings for it, here when the author says it, it means Bukhārī, Muslim, Abū Dāwūd, ibn Mājah, al-Nasā'ī and al-Tirmidhī, so when this author uses it, that's what he means. So those are the 6, so when he says it's narrated by the group except al-Tirmidhī, it means the other 5, so the 2 Sahihayn of Bukhārī and Muslim, Sunan ibn Mājah, Sunan al-Nasā'ī and Sunan Abī Dāwūd, and he isn't the first author that used the word Jamā'ah in this sense regarding the Hadīth. Before him al-Mizzī(رحمه الله) who was from the teachers of Imām ibn Kathīr(رحمه الله), the author of Tafsīr ibn Kathīr, he used that phrasing as well, same with al- Dhahabī(رحمه الله) and Ibn hajr al-'Asqalānī(رحمه الله), so these scholars of Hadīth would say the group narrated it, and they would mean these 6 books, and there's other uses you might find, they included Muwatta' Mālik or Musnad al-Imām Ahmad instead of ibn Mājah, so here for the sake of this lesson, it means those 6 books I mentioned originally, but it's very good too, any time you see an author using a phrase that isn't from the Qur'ān or Sunnah, so say it's narrated by the Jamā'ah or this Hadīth is Munkar, you know if they use something like that, it's very important to know what does this author mean by it, because you might say this author said this, and then you interpret it your own way based upon something else, and then you go tell someone else about it and it turns out you're wrong, so it's always very good to verify what the author means by it.

Student: One of the authors can say Hassan about a Hadīth; one author will mean Hassan, but a different author, when he says Hassan, he means Da'īf.

Shaykh: Something like that, yeah, or they might say like Jayyid, so they mean the same and they use different words or they use the same word but it has different meanings, that's why it's very important.

Student: Hassan can mean weak, really?

Shaykh: They might use it, like if they say it's Hassan, Imām al-Tirmidhī he had his own meaning for Hassan, so when we say Hassan now, it generally means that the narrators are acceptable but it's not the highest level, when he used to say Hassan, he would mean that the chains for it are weak, but there's more than one so they strengthen each other, so that's why it's important to always, just to not jump and think you understand what's meant by it, you know to verify it.

Student: Asks about saying the du'a collectively (summarised).

Shaykh: If one dhikr contains more than 1 du'a, you say the whole Dhikr, (you don't take 1 hadith and add it to another Hadith), so however the Prophet taught it, that's how you do it, you don't put a bunch of different things, because if he wanted us to do that, he would teach us all at once.

So that's the first topic or the first thing that he mentions is water that comes from the sky, so rain, snow and hail. The next thing that he says is:

Seawater

And he says "Sea water's purity is based on the following Hadīth:

سَأَلَ رَجُلٌ النَّبِيَّ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ فَقَالَ: يَا رَسُولَ اللَّهِ! إِنَّا نَرْكَبُ الْبَحْرَ وَنَحْمِلُ مَعَنَا الْقَلِيلَ مِنَ الْمَاءِ فَإِنْ تَوَضَّأْنَا بِهِ عَطَشْنَا أَفْتَتَوَضَّأُ بِمَاءِ الْبَحْرِ؟ فَقَالَ رَسُولُ اللَّهِ صَلَّى اللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ وَسَلَّمَ: هُوَ الطَّهُورُ مَاؤُهُ الْحَلُّ مِيتَتُهُ

Or the first Hadīth that the author mentions is from Abū Hurayrah as well that a man asked the Messenger of Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى), upon whom be peace, "O messenger of Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى), we sail on the ocean and we carry only a little water. If we use it for ablution, we will have to go thirsty.

May we use sea water for ablution?” Said the Messenger of Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى), “Its (the sea) water is pure and its dead (animals) are lawful (Halal)” and this Hadīth is related by the 5, al-Tirmidhī calls it Hassan Sahīh and al-Bukhārī says it’s Sahīh.

And Inshā’Allāh just to give you guys a better idea of how the lessons will go, generally what I’ll do, I’ll read what the author has said, then I’ll comment directly on the Ahādīth that he mentions, if it’s weak and he says it’s authentic or if he doesn’t say where it is, or if there’s something about the Ahādīth specifically, then after that we’ll go into the different opinions and the evidences for it, so about this Hadīth itself, al-Tirmidhī he said that it’s Hassan Sahīh, that’s in his book al-Jāmi’, so his collection of Hadīth, Imām al-Tirmidhī had a number of books, but his main collection of Ahādīth was called al-Jāmi’ or sometimes people call it sunan al-Tirmidhī, and he was from one of the main students of Imām al-Bukhārī, so al-Bukhārī said it’s Sahīh, that’s one of Imām al-Tirmidhī’s teachers, and this Hadīth was also narrated by Ibn Khuzaymah in his sahih, and Ibn Khuzaymah was another scholar, he narrated his book and his intention was only to include authentic Hadīth, just like Imām al-Bukhārī, and Imām muslim, and Imām Ibn Hibbān, Ibn Jārūd, and there’s a number of scholars that did that as well, so if you see that something is narrated by Ibn Khuzaymah, it’s not always authentic because it’s not to the level of Sahīh al-Bukhārī or Sahīh muslim, but what we can say from that is Imām Ibn Khuzaymah accepted it, because he put it in his Sahīh and he himself considered it to be Sahih. So this Hadīth is very clear, the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) said that the water of the ocean is pure and the dead animals in it are considered to be halal, and Inshā’Allāh we’ll leave the issue of the dead animals that come from the sea, and does it have to live in the sea all the time, or if it lives partly in the sea, if we get to the chapter of food Inshā’Allāh, if we ever reach that, so the issue of the pureness or the purity of the water is very clear, and just about the authenticity, Imām al-Bukhārī, he’s probably the greatest or one of the greatest of the ulema’ of the sunnah and Ahādīth, so generally when he says something is authentic, most of the time it’s very very rare that we would find that it isn’t authentic, and same with Imām al-Tirmidhī, if he says Hassan sahih then it’s acceptable according to him, so that’s considered a very strong evidence that the Hadīth is actually authentic. And just a last point on this sub-chapter, the author says it’s related by the 5, so if we said before the group, what’s the group?

Student: The group is the 6 narrators.

Shaykh: Who are the 6?

Student: Bukhārī, Muslim, Tirmidhī, Ibn Mājah, Abī Dāwūd, and Ahmad.

Shaykh: No, not Ahmad, it’s al-Nasā’ī.

Sometimes people mean it, but when the author says the group, it means those 6 that you mentioned with al-Nasā’ī, so when he says the 5, what does that mean? He means the 4 of those without Bukhārī and Muslim, and add Ahmad.

Student: Sorry, say it again.

Shaykh: So we have the 6, so take away Bukhārī and muslim, so we have 4, and add Ahmad. That’s what it means when he says “5”.

So it ends up being al-Nasā’ī, Ibn Mājah, Abū Dāwūd, al-Tirmidhī and Ahmad.

Student: So everybody except Bukhārī and Muslim?

Shaykh: And add Ahmad, because he’s not in the 6.

So the next issue he says, the water from the well of zam-zam, so the Hadīth that the author mentions, he says:

ثم أفاد رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم فدعا بسجلٍ من ماءٍ زمزم فشرّب منه وتوضّأ

Or he says: ‘Alī narrated that the Messenger of Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) called for a bucket that contained water from the well of Zamzam. He drank from the bucket, and then he made wudū’ and then the author says, this Hadīth is related by Ahmad, and that’s all he mentions for Zamzam.

And we see here that the author didn’t really mention whether the Hadīth is authentic or not, so that’s kind of one of the issues...

Student: It says “Narrated by Ahmad”

Shaykh: Is it Sahīh or not though? It doesn’t say...

This Hadīth is not even related by Imām Ahmad himself, it was narrated by his son ‘Abdullāh Ibn Ahmad Ibn Hanbal, he narrated it in his book, it’s called “al-Zawā’id al-Musnad”, so to its collection, so that’s the first issue to mention.

The second issue is that this Hadīth is authentic, it was authenticated by al-Bahuti who is from the ‘ulema’ of the Hanābilah, Imām al-Shawkānī, Ahmad Shākir and Shaykh al-Albānī and others, so the Hadīth is generally, there’s no dispute essentially that the Hadīth is authentic, so from this Hadīth we see obviously, not that we need specific evidence for it, but that drinking the water of zamzam is allowed obviously, and we also see that the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) made Wudū’ from it, so we know that making Wudū’ from it is allowed, so that’s specifically about the Ahādīth.

Now we'll go into, it will be the first issue that we talk about a lot of opinions, so to start in the first topic that we will go with that is the use of "maa' al-zamzam" for Tahārah, so this issue there is 8 opinions on it, the ulema' differed on it with 8 different opinions.

So the First opinion is that using ma' zamzam is Makrūh for removing Najāsah, and that it's Mubāh to make Wudū' or to make ghusl from, so that's the first opinion, so if someone had Najāsah on their body or on their clothing or in their home or masjid or something, it would be Makrūh to take ma' zamzam and clean the Najāsah with it, but if someone wanted to make Wudū' with ma' zamzam or to make ghusl with ma' zamzam, that there's no problem with it.

Student: What does the term Makrūh mean.

Shaykh: Disliked, so meaning if you did it, you're not sinful, but if you intentionally left it, then you'd be rewarded for it, so that's what it would mean, so if something's Makrūh and I say I'm not going to do it because it's Makrūh, you'd be rewarded for it, but if you did it, you wouldn't be sinful for it, so that's what it means.

Student: So you can do Wudū' with it as long as your body doesn't have Najāsah on it, that's the first opinion?

Shaykh: According to that, yeah, so say you went to the washroom, according to this, it's not haram, but it's disliked to use ma' zamzam to clean yourself, or if say you had Najāsah on your clothing, you shouldn't wash your clothing with it, but to make Wudū' or ghusl, there's no problem with it, so that's the first opinion.

And that's the opinion of the Ahnāf or the Hanafī school of thought or the Hanafī Madhab which goes back to Imām Abū Hanīfah, and it's the main opinion in the Hanbalī Madhab, so Imām Ahmad's madhab or his followers, the main opinion that they took was that it would be Makrūh, so that's the discussion on it.

Student: Why do you say "The main opinion", because there's more than 1 opinion with Imām Ahmad?

Shaykh: There's more than 1 opinion, and you'll find that especially with Imām Ahmad and also Imām Malik. Imām al-Shafī'ee, generally there are only 1 or 2 opinions, and Abū Hanīfah, generally only 1, but very often Imām Ahmad Ibn Hanbal, because he had lots of students and they took lots of effort to come ask him and always write his opinions down, so with that many students, there would become a dispute in which was his opinion, especially maybe he changed his opinion, maybe the person who took that opinion only met him once, so they're say we can't confirm that's Imām Ahmad's opinion, because this person only met him 1 time, while his son who lived with him for 40 years said different, so you'll find that there's lots of different narrations from these Imāms as well, but this is the main one for the Hanbalī Madhab.

And the Second opinion is that it's allowed to use, there's no problem with using it for cleaning Najāsah and making Wudū' and making ghusl, there's no problem with any of that, and that's the opinion of the Mālikiyyāh, so Imām Mālik(رحمه الله), that was his opinion and as well as his students and his companions.

And a Third opinion is the opinion of the Shāfi'iyyāh or Imām al-Shāfi'ī and his followers, that they say "Khilāf al-awla" to use it for Najāsah, so meaning it's not Makrūh even, it's just you probably shouldn't do it, it's just better not too, while to use it for hadath or for making Wudū' and making ghusl, there's no problem with that.

And another one is that it's Makrūh in both, and I'll go through these very quick just because like I said, the point isn't to know them all, the point is the discussion that we'll have after, and that was ibn Taymiyyah's opinion, that it's Makrūh to use it for either, so it's better to drink with it, and as for using it for Wudū' and using it for ghusl and cleaning Najāsah, it's Makrūh to do so.

There's also another opinion that's actually haram to use it with both, and that was the opinion of one of the Hanbalī scholars.

And the Last opinion is that Ghusl is Makrūh to do, Wudū' is fine, and that's a narration from Imām Ahmad, and it was also Ibn 'Abbās(رضي الله عنهما), his opinion as well, 'Abdullāh Ibn 'Abbās(رضي الله عنهما).

So now, that's the opinions, the evidences that they use, first of all, the ones that say you can use it for Wudū', they use the Hadīth that we talked about, the Hadīth of 'Alī that the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) used it for Wudū', so no one can come and say it's haram now, because the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم), he came to teach us our religion, we know if he does something, we know it's not haram, and especially to do something, in this Hadīth he was doing it in Hajj, he wouldn't do it in front of that many people if it wasn't to teach the people or if he thought that people misunderstand this and then use it wrong or anything, so the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) made Wudū' when he was at hajj with the water of zamzam, this shows that there shouldn't be any dispute that using it for Wudū' is allowed, and if using it for Wudū' is allowed, then ghusl should be the same thing, because they're both a way of purifying yourself, and then there's also a Hadīth from 'Abdullāh Ibn 'Abbās(رضي الله عنهما) that the messenger of Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى), that he said, he was talking about fevers, so if a person has a fever, he said:

أبردها عنك بماء زمزم ؛ فإن رسول الله صلى الله عليه وسلم قال: " الحمى من فيح جهنم فأبردوها بالماء " او قال " بماء زمزم "

So the Hadīth of ‘Abdullāh Ibn ‘Abbās(رضي الله عنهما) that the Messenger of Allāh(سبحانه وتعالى) said:

“Fevers are from the flames of jahanam so cool them with water” and in one of the narrations it says “the water of zamzam”

So some would say that this proves that you can use the water of zamzam for things other than drinking it, because if you’re using it to cool your body off, then this shows that it’s not only for drinking. And also there’s a Hadīth, Abū Dhar al-Ghaffārī(رضي الله عنه) when he was narrating from the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) talking about when he went on his Isrā’ and Mi’rāj, he narrated from the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم):

فرج سقفي وأنا بمكة ، فنزل جبريل عليه السلام ففرج صدري ، ثم غسله بماء زمزم

Or that Abū dhar mentioned that the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) said: “When I was in Makkāh, my roof was opened up and Jibrīl came down and he opened up my chest and he washed it out with the water of zamzam”

So this also shows that the water of zamzam can be used for things other than drinking. This Hadīth about the one of Jibrīl is in Sahīh Bukhārī and Sahīh Muslim, and the Hadīth earlier that I mentioned about the fevers, that’s also narrated by Imām al-Bukhārī as well.

Student: Was it Imām Abū Hanīfah the one who said it’s haram to use [Zamzam] for both?

Shaykh: No, Abū Hanīfah said that it’s Makrūh to use for Najāsah.

Student: When there’s a clear Hadīth that the Prophet(صلى الله عليه وسلم) made Wudū’ for it, right?

Shaykh: Yeah.

Student: So where did he get that from?

Shaykh: That’s the thing, we just throw that opinion out then.

Student: I’m just curious where did they get their opinion from.

Shaykh: Some of them would be, generally the ones who say it’s haram to Makrūh to use for any of those things, what they say is the reason is because this is blessed water and it has a higher status than other water, so it’s disrespectful to use it for that.

Student: I could see the Makrūh point, but the Harām though, completely forbidding it?

Shaykh: Yeah, so that’s the arguments, generally.

Student: What was the 4th one you said?
